The financial secretary, Mrs. W. J. Charlton gave a stimulating reading on stewardship.

A very pleasing and much-appreciated duet was rendered by Mrs. J. R. Hull, and Mrs. D. H. Webster. "The Springtime of the Soul." Mrs. Moore at the piano.

Mrs. Barrett then took the fifth chapter of the Study Book dealing with "Women in Many Lands." Glowing with enthusiasm she transported the members to the mission field in Africa, and vividly described the drudgery of the native woman's life there. China, Japan and India were similarly visited and the low status of women plainly portrayed. The introduction of Christianity had wrought a marvellous change for the better in woman's condition. The chapter was ably dealt with and the members realizing how richly blest they were.

Stephen S. Wise Says Germany Of Beethoven Dead, Buried Under Hitlerism

BUFFALO, N.Y. March 12 (AP) —Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York City, who last night lauded Mayor La Guardia's biting verbal attack last week upon Germany's Adolph Hitler.

"When Mayor La Guardia called Hitler a brown-shirted fanatic who is now menacing the peace of the world, that was an accurate, truthful understatement of fact," Dr. Wise said in an address here.

"Germany is dead," he declared. "The Germany of Bach, Beethoven, Goethe, and Einstein is buried amid the ruins that Hitlerism has brought to pass.

"Anti-Semitism is the most profitable racket in the world."

TRIBUTE IS PAID BERNARD E. PARK

Fitting Tribute Paid Deceased Barrister By Judge Smoke

Sympathetic references respecting the late Bernard E. Park, barrister-at-law whose death occurred at the comparatively early age of 37 years, following a brief illness, were made at a special meeting of Peterborough Law Association and also in His Honor Judge Sheldon L. Smoke and County Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., at the opening of county court on Thursday morning.

Meeting under the chairmanship of J. Walton Stevenson, president of the Law Association, the late Mr. Park's professional colleagues unanimously passed a motion of condolence, which is to be sent to his bereaved relatives, together with a wreath.

At the opening of his court, Judge Smoke commented:

"At this stage it is fitting I should make a statement with respect to Bernard E. Park.

"I had not a great deal to do with Mr. Park, but what little I had seen of him, I found that his office work was particularly good, and on the few occasions he appeared before me, he showed honor and respect to the court.

"I am sure that all members of the profession will join with me in expressing to his family our most sincere regrets at his passing."

Mr. McElderry, as senior member of the Bar present in court, remarked: "I had the honor of knowing Bernard E. Park since he was called to the Bar, and for years before that when he was attending school. He was a young man of promise, and he brought to his work an innate courtesy and refinement, greatly appreciated by his associates and acquaintances. His loss is a distinct loss to the city and the profession.

"We desire to extend to his bereaved brothers and sisters the condolences and regrets of the members of the Peterborough Bar, and may I also extend to His Honor at this time the condolences of the Bar of Peterborough on the great bereavement he has recently sustained in the death of his father."

AMELIA EARHART HOPS OFF MONDAY

$80,000 Flying Laboratory Is Tuned Up To Cruise 4,000 Miles Non-Stop

OAKLAND, Calif., March 12.—(AP).—The silvery $80,000 "Flying Laboratory" in which Amelia Earhart intends to set out Monday on a 27,000-mile flight around the world was lined up to-day at the Oakland airport for its final tests.

"I'll leave Monday as scheduled unless the weather goes against me," said the aviatrix who has flown the Atlantic, and the Pacific from Hawaii here.

The big monoplane has a cruising range of 4,000 miles on a capacity loading of 1,151 gallons of gasoline—ample for the 2,400 miles between here and Honolulu, first stop on the equatorial route Miss Earhart will follow.

En route to Hawaii, Miss Earhart will follow the course flown weekly by huge trans-Pacific flying boats on many other links the tousle-headed aviatrix will blaze a new sky trail.

The first untried skyway is between Honolulu and Howland Island. Tiny Atoll 1,900 miles southeast of Hawaii and near the equator. From Howland Island she projected route leads to British New Guinea, Australia, India, Africa, across the Atlantic to Brazil and home via Panama and Mexico. The course zig-zags across the equator at least four times.

Captain Harry Manning, navigator, will accompany her as far as Port Darwin, Australia.

SPRING CHAPEAUX GO IN FOR COLOR

Coronation Plays Big Part—Artificial Flowers Back

By Margaret Bruce
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

OTTAWA, March 12 (CP)—Buckingham lilac, Marlborough blue, Burlingham gray and shades of coronation red, blue, gold and green will make Miss Canada's spring chapeaux more brilliant than ever, but all the new shades cannot change the fact the manufactured materials for the Easter bonnets had their lowly origin "down on the farm."

The velveta, crepes, worsteds, linens and laces shorn of their fashionable names are plain flaxes, wools, cottons, or wood pulps, products of agriculture or the forest.

Flax is one of the oldest, for excavations of stone age ruins have revealed linen, fabrics, thread and linseed oil which are the best known products of flax. Authorities say the best method of harvesting flax has not advanced since the stone age. The best fibre is obtained by hand-pulling and the best threshing results from the use of the old flail after the seed heads have been crushed out with a roller.

The uses of flax extend from lace hats, fine linens and damasks to caisun for caulking boats.

Canadian straw is not used a great deal for hats. Italy, Germany and Japan supplying this material to a much greater extent.

Artificial flowers which according to one wholesale dealer here, have been dead on the market for four or five years, are in great demand this season, and are fashioned of cotton, often lacquered, silk, linen and velvet. They also can claim the farm as their original home.

Fashion Service

Juniors and young women will find this princess slip and pantee ensemble their favorite for everyday as well as for more "dress-up" occasions.

Even though it's your first attempt at sewing, you'll finish this ensemble in no time at all.

The princess slip follows the lines of the figure, so it can't ride up or twist. You can wear it 'neath your sheer new Easter frock. It won't cause any conflicting lines, for it is one-piece from the round neck to the hem with moderate flare.

You'll like the one-piece pantee with comfortable gathered fulness at the back with elastic inserted at the waistline.

When you shop for your material just take a peep at the remnant counter. You're sure to find just the length of silk, satin or batiste you need at a drastic reduction in cost.

The pattern includes a sewing chart. It shows the clearest illustrated instructions of this one-piece princess slip and pantee.

Style No. 3018 is designed for sizes 10, 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 16 requires 3 yards of 39-inch material for slip with 1 yard of 39-inch material for pantee.

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors, Conducted by Roberta

IT MAY not be our lot to wield
The sickle in the ripened field;
Nor ours to hear, on summer eves,
The reaper's song among the sheaves.

Yet when our duty's task is wrought
In unison with God's great thought,
The near and future blend in one,
And whatso'er is willed, is done.

—John G. Whittier.

Dear Friends:

I suppose you have all read of flyers in aeroplanes who have sometimes to "fly blind?" They are up in the air, up amongst the clouds, and maybe a bad storm comes up, or a heavy fog, and they cannot see where they are going.

Sleet gathers on the struts, the wings are coated with it, the flyer has the responsibility of all the passengers, and the knowledge that the gas cannot hold out indefinitely, and sometimes to make matters worse, his radio goes dead. So what does he do?

He does not get panicky and leave the controls and run around among the passengers shouting that he cannot see to land his ship. No, he circles around, trying with all his might to see the landing field, and doing his utmost in every way, so that he will not crash, and after awhile, God willing, he sees a rift in the fog and brings everyone down in safety.

Once in awhile he crashes, and he and all that are with him are wiped out, but who can say whose fault it is? Maybe one of the passengers was in a big hurry, so he took a chance. Maybe conditions looked alright when he left the airport, and it could not be avoided.

But, in the majority of cases, if it were traced to a finish, we would find that someone had made a mistake. Maybe not the pilot, maybe not the passengers, but somewhere along the line a mistake had been made, for which all paid with their lives.

And it is the same in our own case. Many the time we have to fly "blind", not knowing whether we are on the right track or not. The winds of adversity may cause the sleet of doubt to clog our wings so much that we are "grounded" for life.

Not for us is the soaring up into fresher newer realms. Fear of falling, fear of height, keeps us in the hanger of doubt. We cannot "take it" any more, and so we crash. But somewhere along the line someone made a mistake. It may have been one who doubted our sincerity, or scorned our efforts. It may have been that we were too easily discouraged, that we tired of well-doing too quickly.

Maybe we got tired of "green pastures," and wanted to go and play on the rock crags, and so when we tried to lift our ship of life up into the ether of nice living, all these things clogged the propeller of our desires, so that it would not turn and help us to rise.

Sometimes a flyer runs into these things, and slows down so that when he gets into fairer weather, all these things melt away, and so he makes a "happy three-point landing."

So with us. Someone may help to dispel our doubts by the sunshine of their conduct. Or maybe God Himself sends His wee small voice into our consciousness to rouse us to better endeavours, to show us that it is not a sin to be grounded for awhile, but it is a dreadful thing to stay there.

No one person, trying to live life as best they can, but has the winds of adversity blow upon them. Nor are they free from doubts creeping in, but all along the line it is a constant fight, and yet it can be a sort of glorious fight because you know you will come out the winner.

And how do you know that you have not many passengers on the ship of life who are looking to you for safe passage, who think that if you can take it, they can surely make a try, so that you all have "happy landings" together? So come on now, get that ship of yours up off the ground, and sail up into brighter, better things.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

INTIMATE ENEMIES THREE-ACT DRAMA OF TRINITY Y.P.S.

Clever Dialogue And Many Ridiculous Situations Develop In Play

REPEATED TONIGHT

A capacity audience greeted the first night performance of the royalty play, "Intimate Enemies", presented by the Trinity Young People' Society in the Reid street hall on Thursday evening, the cast for the three-act drama meeting the demands of their several roles with marked dramatic ability. The play was directed by George Nicholls.

The play is staged in the sitting-room of the Alcott home at Midlesborough, a small New England town, "a chilly old room but well furnished in the Victorian style"— and the action centres around the domestic infelicity of the Alcott family, lorded over by the father, Ainsworth Alcott (Abbott Wright), who especially delights in making it clear to Lucinda (Margaret Weir), his meek-spirited wife, his great condescension in having "married a blacksmith's daughter" and raised her to the status of "Mrs. A." his favorite manner of addressing her.

A Suppressed Son.

The children, however, Rhoda (Violet Gilmour), who is very much in love, and Ronald (Arthur Jenkinson), the suppressed son, rebelled at the parental authority, particularly when the former's wealthy young lover, Giles Ingram (Clifford Cruikshanks), was peremptorily ordered out of the house by the irate father when he had the temerity to ask for the daughter's hand. "With my brains and his brawn, maybe we can wear father down," was Rhoda's announcement of dual action when promised help by her unassertive brother.

Clever dialogue and the many ridiculous situations that develop as the story unfolded, gave the audience many a good laugh, a high light in the first act being the mournful family gathering about the open grate fire as they unwillingly listened when Mr. Alcott began the regular Wednesday evening reading from Dickens' "Great Expectations" two whole chapters having been promised. "I am greatly annoyed" was the favorite expression of the master of the house, and he said it with marked asperity upon the unexpected arrival of Christina Fontaine (Jessie Tully), and her daughter, Adoree (Marie Kearns) from New York, in the midst of the reading. Christina, a successful actress, was Lucinda's sister, who was considered to have disgraced the family by running off with a member of a travelling show troupe twenty years before; her trunk having been sent from New York soon after, she had been thought dead.

The will of the family autocrat is crossed many times after Christina's lively presence is added to the home circle, her care-free daughter being another disturbing factor, and the curtain is rung down on Act One amid the domestic upheaval caused by the visitors' intrusion. The dismissal of Mrs. Forbes, a poor relation, employed for over thirty years at the bank of which Mr. Alcott is president, under a trumped up charge, led to Christina's suspicion that something was wrong at that institution, and through a cleverly played game of bluff, she finally holds the whip hand.

Really possessed of only a two dollar bill, she fosters the impression of great wealth, and after many a wordy war and clash of wills, she does in the end bring about "great Caesar's fall"—and incidentally got a great hand from the audience for her accomplishment.

Ready For Fancy Ball.

Outstanding in the final act is the scene where the entire family, each in costume for a fancy ball, is eating supper before the fire-place in the living-room with the cloth spread on the floor, "like a winter picnic". A lucky bet on a horse, placed by Felix Thackeray (Malcolm Latimer), one-time jockey and lover of Christina's, who styles himself as "a handy man without anything to handle," retrieves her fortunes for the time being. By clever strategy even Ainsworth has been forced into a costume for the masquerade, Annie (Mabel Ferguson) the maid of all work who had been dismissed by the head of the household in a fit of temper, is taken back, with her desired raise, by the wife beginning now to lift her head in rebellion at domestic tyranny. The sun shines again on the love affair of Rhoda and Giles, in spite of the latter's vacillating in the direction of the fascinating Adoree, and also on that of Ronald and Alice Forbes (Gwylda Packenham), who came to plead for her mother's reinstatement, a fact brought happily to pass.

Practically no prompting was needed throughout the play, the many pretty dresses worn being another attractive feature. Entertainment between the acts, announced by Charles Huffman, president of the Trinity Y.P.S. included songs by little Miss Betty Mathers, accompanied by another little maiden, Miss Idell Fitzgerald, and cornet solos by Master Donald Ford. Home-made candy was sold during the between-act intervals, and the play, which will be repeated this evening will likely again draw a full house following the general satisfaction after Thursday nights' performance.

MILK BARS GIVE SALOONS A RUN

Success Of Idea In England Causes Old-Timers To Raise Eyebrows

LONDON, March 12 (CP)—Those old timers brought up on beer, who wonder where the new-fangled ideas will lead the next generation, are raising their eyebrows again.

This time it's because milk is flowing freely in old England.

Smart glass-fronted milk bars, all chromium and bright paint, are springing up throughout the country, rubbing shoulders with ancient beer taverns.

And brilliant signs are vieing with the name-plates of the corner saloons. Pastoral names are introduced. The new era has scrapped "The Kings Arms" or "The Boar's Head" for the "Contented Cow," "The Oak Churn" or "The Fat Jersey."

Just a year and a half after the country's first milk bar opened in London a survey showed there were more than 600 bars in operation and many more being installed. In London alone there are now 130 bars.

LENORE GORDON TO MAKE RADIO DEBUT

Will Be Heard In The McLaren Amateur Show On Sunday Afternoon

Little Lenore Gordon, 10-year-old Peterborough girl who was born a cripple and restored to health through the efforts of the Rotary Club, is scheduled to make a radio debut over stations CFRB and CKCL this Sunday. She will dance and sing in the McLaren amateur show "Good Humour" between 12:30 and 1 o'clock noon.

She gained her first public attention by winning first place in competition with 20 as an amateur contest in St. John's Parish Hall here recently. Since that triumph great local interest has been taken in her artistic accomplishments.

On her own initiative, she gained her present chance on the McLaren amateur program. Hearing of the chance for amateurs afforded by the program, she applied and was granted an audition. The audition was sufficient to win her a place on this Sunday's program.

LAKEFIELD

SKATING PARTY IS JOLLY AFFAIR

Successful Event Held Under Auspices Of Lakefield Young People

LAKEFIELD, March 12.— The Lakefield United Church Young People's Society held a skating party in the Lakefield rink on Wednesday night. During the early part of the evening many members of the society indulged in the gay old sport and afterwards went to the United Church Sunday School to spend the later part in playing games and contests led by Rev. Mr. Kelly.

At the finish of the games fine refreshments were served by the older members of the club which ended the meeting.

Shower Is Held

On Tuesday evening there was held a miscellaneous shower for Mr. and Mrs. Roy Frankish (nee Miss Norma Knott) at the home of Miss Ella Down in Douro. Many guests, numbering about a hundred and fifty from Peterborough, Lakefield, Buckhorn, Young's Point, Warsaw and Dummer were present to wish the newly-weds prosperity in their new community.

The early part of the evening was spent in games and contests conducted by Rev. and Mrs. George Kelly of Lakefield. Later in the evening, Miss Anne Richardson, niece of the groom, and Owen Bullock, daintily attired as a miniature bride and groom, drew in a beautifully decorated wagon and basket loaded with gifts from the guests.

Miss Florence Tedford read an appropriate address expressing the regret at the departure of the bride and groom from this neighborhood and wishing them all prosperity in their new community. Miss Irene Frankish, a cousin of the groom, and Miss Muriel Bullock, assisted the bride and groom in unwrapping the gifts. Both Mr. and Mrs. Roy Frankish expressed their thanks to their friends for the many gifts which they received.

A sumptuous lunch was served by the ladies.

TRAILERS MENACE FLORIDA'S TOWNS

Fewer Season Rentals—Tourists Dropping Idea Of Season In One Spot

OCALA, Fla., March 12 (AP) — Civic leaders from central Florida cities had a warning today the trailer is here to stay and cities who frown on it now will be passed up by the tourist spenders later.

Millionaires and many well-to-do nomads are travelling in trailers, said Fred J. Lee of the Clearwater Chamber of Commerce in a speech before the Florida Council of Chambers of Commerce yesterday.

M. M. Eadrick, secretary of the Bradenton Chamber of Commerce said the rolling homes were breaking down rentals.

"We won't be able to rent houses by the season any more," Lee added. "In the future they are not going to spend five months in anybody's town."

PONTYPOOL

FARMERS REPORT SEED GRAIN SHORT

Scarcity of Clover Seed Is Also Noted In Pontypool Area

(Examiner correspondence.)

PONTYPOOL, March 12. — The recent snowfall which has made a covering for fields and roads has been of much value to farmers in this district. Practically all winter fields have been covered with ice, and it is thought that a lot of fall grain and clover will be killed out. However, during the last cold wave the crops have been blanketed with a fair covering of snow.

Traffic on all township roads has been exceedingly heavy, many farmers have been hauling wood which has been cut in the bush. During the last week a lot of wood has been cut with circular saws when machines have been able to move.

Citizens in Pontypool have been putting in their supply of ice which is reported to be a good thickness.

Many farmers are taking advantage of the sleighing to draw home feed which is becoming scarce in this district, owing to the light crop of 1936. Farmers are hoping for an early spring that will allow them to get their cattle out on pasture at an early date.

There is also a shortage of seed grain and clover seed which is selling at a very high price. Feed grain is also a very high price, and those engaged in the feeding of hogs this winter are doing it at a loss when the price of feed does not correspond with the price of hogs. The feeding of hens is much the same, the price of eggs going down while the price of feed is increasing.

REMANDED ONE WEEK.

LONDON.—Bert. Gilbert, 29, an unemployed electrician, was remanded to-day in police court until March 19 on a vagrancy charge arising from the case of Bernice Neeb, 22, who returned home last night after being missing since last Monday.

BETHANY

ST. MARY'S A.Y.P.A. MEET AT RECTORY

Enjoyable Program At Regular Meeting—Lantern Slides Prove Interesting

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BETHANY, March 12.—The A.Y.P.A. of St. Mary's Church, Manvers Parish, held their regular meeting on Wednesday evening at St. Paul's Rectory, the guests of Rev. and Mrs. A. R. Holden. There were 18 members present and three guests.

The Young People have during the Lenten season been attending the church service, first at St. Paul's Church by special request of the rector, whenever it has been permissable weather. On Wednesday evening the rector had made it possible to have lantern slides, showing in detail from the foundation of the Anglican Church in England. The lantern depiction of facts were very much enjoyed and appreciated by the large congregation present. Mr. Harold Payne assisted very courteously in arranging the pictured lecture.

The A.Y.P.A. topic was of a literary nature, later at the rectory, and much of the program given was in close keeping with the church history, viz:: A duett-reading, given by Lawrence Staples and Vernon Young, customs in the early days of Merry England.

It was decided to hold the next meeting on March 26th, at the rectory. Program in charge of Gladys Wright and Gordon Smith.

The following program was given: Recitation by Isobel Sisson, entitled "Up Spoke Doubting Thomas"; reading by Vernon Young and Lawrence Staples, entitled "Early Customs in Merry England," symbolic of death to winter and arrival of spring; the keeping of Shrove Tuesday, hurling games, etc., and the origin many centuries ago of the now "national game," football; recitation by Muriel Hannah, entitled "See it Through"; Scriptural questions arranged by Bob Reid, which was most instructive. Mrs. Holden gave a brief commendation for the splendid program given and voiced appreciation of the voluntary assistance tendered for the evening's successful enjoyment.

Jean Smith and John Smelt were winners of the highest number of correct answers, and received suitable awards.

MILLBROOK

LITERARY SOCIETY HAS FINE PROGRAM

Students Delight Audience With Varied Numbers—Scenes Are Played

MILLBROOK, March 12. — The singing of "O Canada" opened the meeting of the Literary Society of the Millbrook Continuation School held in the Assembly Hall Wednesday afternoon and conducted by one of its teachers, Miss D. J. Bannister.

Those taking part in the trial scene taken from "The Merchant of Venice," were Gwenyth Staples, "Horatio"; Phyllis Williamson, "Nerissa"; Jack Whittington, the duke; Harry McLeod, Shylock; Howard Sutton, Antonio; Charles Foster, Bassanio.

Miss Margret Smith contributed a splendid paper on the "Abdication of King Edward VIII" dealing with the circumstances leading up to its proposal; the decision and its effect upon the King, the government and all the peoples of the Empire.

In keeping with facts pertaining to the government's head, Miss Margret Brackenridge gave an explanatory address of "Coronation, and what it means," a subject of vital interest to many at the present time.

Short Wave Reception.

Keenly interested in the radio world, Douglas Carveth, transmitted some of that feeling to his listeners when he addressed the gathering on "Short Wave Reception", using black board illustrations to prove his many statements.

Miss Mary Ball read the school paper and the edition was claimed the best of the current term. Singing of the National Anthem closed the meeting, following the brief business period conducted by Orville Walsman, literary president.

ARREST COMING IN FAKE LOTTERY

Millions Taken From New Englanders—No Draws Made In Four Years

BOSTON, March 12 (CP).—Federal officials indicated to-day new arrests would follow exposure of what United States Attorney Francis J. W. Ford described as a $5,000,000 fake Canadian lottery," drawing thousands of dollars weekly from New Englanders.

Ford said a "beautiful young blond" told Federal agents of the lottery and its 50 New England agents. Millions of bogus tickets were printed each month, he said.

Tickets sold for $1 each, Ford asserted, and offered a first prize of $40,000 and smaller awards. Although the lottery, "Canadian National Limited," had been in operation for four years, Ford said no drawings had ever been made on prizes awarded.

MINIMUM WAGE GOES UNOPPOSED SECOND READING

opposed appointment of three government employees to the five-man board, advocating two labor representatives, two employer representatives and one government nominee. His suggestion was not accepted.

Premier Hepburn labelled the Conservative attitude "grim, sullen acquiescence." He said the "humane result" of Quebec and Ontario joining hands in such a measure had come about because of the Liberal and labor attitude of his government toward minorities.

Mr. Croll said the bill would not affect agreements regarding wages for highly-skilled workers. They did not need protection of the Act. It would not be extended to agricultural workers and domestic servants because public opinion was not ready for such a step.

First reading of a Conservative bill to amend the Assessment Act made last session relating to the distribution of corporation taxes as between Public and Separate schools was given yesterday. It was unopposed when second reading debate will be reached.

Sign of Too High Taxes.

The record surplus of $7,347,729 estimated for the fiscal year to end March 31, meant the government had taxed the people too much, said Arthur Ellis (Con. Ottawa South) in opening the budget speech debate. To see the surplus taxation had been increased to the highest point in provincial history.

Mr. Ellis, Conservative financial critic, suggested the return to the municipalities of the right to collect income tax. The fact the government now proposed to subsidize municipalities to the extent of one mill on their tax rates showed the province didn't need the money.

"It is the government's intention to do so," said Premier Hepburn when challenged by Mr. Ellis to say whether the subsidy would be continued. The Premier said ultimate decision regarding the subsidy rested on a survey to be made for re-allocation of taxation fields between province and municipalities.

Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture, spoke for the government. He disclosed his department has plans to enable Northern Ontario farmers to supply gold mines, lumber camps and northern communities with produce, hitherto largely bought in carload lots from Toronto.

One marketing agent has been at work this year and others are to be appointed at Rainey River and Port William.

In the municipal subsidy, the government was aiding the urban home owners and farmers, the people who were bearing the brunt of the depression, the Minister said.

Buy Another Farm.

Mr. Marshall announced the purchase of the Gordon Auld farm, near the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, to give an extra 300 acres for crop experimental work.

First cabinet minister to predict an election date, Mr. Marshall said it would probably be a year from next June.

"By then we'll have another budget and another surplus," he said.

"The reason the Prime Minister has done such a good job is because he never forgot the man on the land," he said. "What would a country be without an agriculture. It is out on the land they breed the people that are worth while."

NO DEFENCE EVIDENCE

Jury Consider Murder Case After Addresses Are Given.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., March 12 (CP).—No evidence will be presented by the defence in the trial of William Mumchuk, charged with murdering Mrs. Amy Beabright, a neighbor, with an axe June 8, his counsel, H. M. Rogers, announced today. The jury will consider the case after addresses are made by counsel and Mr. Justice G. F. McFarland.

Raps Trade Pact

W. B. MOORE.

Former chairman of the federal tariff board and present Liberal member for Ontario county in the federal House, W. B. Moore rated with the opposition in support of Hon. R. B. Bennett's want of confidence amendment to the budget. It is expected that he will vote against the Dunning motion to go into committee of ways and means because he is not satisfied with the new trade agreement between Canada and the United Kingdom.

200 COMMUNIST CLUBS IN QUEBEC HOUSE INFORMED

ficials who could not speak French. He pictured what would happen if Federal government officials who could not speak English were sent to posts in Toronto.

200 Red Clubs Active.

Mr. Garson also warned the government against the spread of Communist activity and declared there were 200 Communist clubs in his province.

Gordon B. Isnor (Lib. Halifax), made a further plea for the fishermen of the Maritime provinces, while congratulating the government generally for presenting a business-like budget and one that was designed to encourage and stimulate business.

W. G. Clark (Lib. York-Sunbury) condemned the Farmers Creditors Arrangement Act which, he declared, had worked great hardships. Asked by A. J. Brooks (Cons. Royal) if his objections did not arise particularly from losses sustained in his farm implement business, Mr. Clark said that was not entirely the reason. "But it is true," he said, "I lost a great deal."

Reductions in the textile tariffs might embarass some manufacturers in Guelph but the sum total of the tariff changes would be beneficial, said R. W. Gladstone (Lib. Wellington South). It was unfortunate the innocent were often accused with the guilty, he said, referring to the textile investigation. Branches of the textile industry in Guelph were fairly organized and not open to criticism.

More Mining Interest.

More active participation by governments in the development of mineral resources was urged by Mr. Gladstone. He believed a spending up of mining development in the North would cure unemployment and bring Canada back to prosperity.

"I went, so far," he said, "as to draft some suggestions which I put forward for what they may be worth."

The suggestions were:

"1. That the mineral resources of Canada be developed more speedily through government loans or partnership with others or profit-sharing arrangements to bring recommended gold mining prospects into production and to carry on operations.

"2. If methods of orthodox finance are found to be a barrier to immediate action by this government to bring about speedy development of the mineral resources of our north country, then I suggest the following scheme of moderately unorthodox methods of finance.

"A.—That the participation of the government in gold mining operations be financed by an issue or issues of gold development certificates, non-interest bearing and negotiable as currency in Canada.

"B.—That interest at the rate of 33-100 of one cent per $100 per day (approximately 1 2 per cent per annum) be paid from consolidated revenue fund to the holders of gold development certificates for the time they are in the possession of the Bank of Canada or in the possession of any chartered bank in the Dominion of Canada.

"C.—That the transactions under the above plan in connection with the minerals development be kept in a separate account and that as profits accrue, the consolidated revenue fund be reimbursed for payments made for interest on gold development certificates and then for retirement of certificates."

Meet Favor Abroad?

"This method of financing should be received favorably by the holders of Dominion bonds outside Canada," Mr. Gladstone said. "I believe they would consider their investments more secure under a carefully organized plan for developing our mineral resources."

Establishment of "a ministry of economy" or a committee of members to study expenses was urged by Mr. Gladstone as a means of reducing heavy governmental costs and securing greater administrative efficiency. He was impressed by the lack of detail given in presenting estimates to the House and the scant opportunity given for the consideration of expenditures. The proposed ministry or committee could provide needed cooperation between spending departments and a link by which members of the House could be kept informed.

Referring to the hamperfing effect of the party considerations, A. M. Edwards (Cons. Waterloo South) said he was "afraid that in recent years we have departed a long way from the original conception of the word 'parliament.'"

Means More Competition

Mr. Edwards warned the government it was taking a great risk in building Canada's prosperity entirely upon export trade. It would mean the most intensive competition with other export countries with a standard of living far below that in Canada where the standard was in grave danger of being lowered drastically as a result of the policies of the present government.

There was little hope for financial recovery while so much national revenue was taken up in payment of debt charges, and expenditures continue to mount. Next year would see the greatest peace time expenditures of any year since Confederation. There was a need for rigorous retrenchment in government spending.

Mr. Edwards asked the minister of finance what justification he had for restoring the five per cent in the civil service salaries. It would be hard to convince those who, enduring great hardship and distress, supplied the money to pay these salaries, that restoration was justified. Civil servants, with assured positions, vacations with pay and financial security, had not felt the depression.

Would Reduce Civil Service

Restoration of civil service salaries could be justified only on political grounds, said Mr. Edwards, "and this country has reached the stage where it cannot afford politics of that kind." He urged elimination of civil servants whose services were not essential, particularly appointment of two men to one job—one French and English, which had been the custom.

Mr. Edwards made a strong plea for the textile industry which he said was little understood and which, in the great majority of cases, was a strong stimulating influence during the worst of the depression.

"No industry," Mr. Edwards declared, "has been so unmercifully hammered as the textile industry. It is like an obsession." Some large companies are culpable to some degree. Employers were numerous factories which were the mainstay of the communities in which they were located. He urged also that some protection be given the furniture industry.

Conservative tariff policies had always been designed to serve only as a means of giving the Canadian manufacturer an even break with his foreign competitors.

Justice Minister Lapointe said at adjournment the budget debate would continue today, "and I hope it will conclude also." It was generally believed a vote would be reached today. J. S. Taylor, former CCF member for Nanaimo who recently broke with his party and is now an Independent, said he would vote for the budget.

RELIEF DROPS FOR FEBRUARY

specific figures because they are subject to revision.

"It is expected," he added "that when confirmed figures are received the comparison with 1936 and previous years will be even more favorable as the confirmed figures for every month since March, 1936, have been consistently less than the preliminary figures."

The minister attributed much of the improvement to greater activity in manufacturing, although he said there was good reason to believe the heavy industries were also picking up.

A Steady Improvement

The striking feature about the returns, he said, was that the number on relief in recent months was decreasing from month to month, a reversal of the usual trend which inclines unemployment to increase during the winter, improving only in the Spring.

"From a comparison of the preliminary returns for January and February of this year with the figure of previous years, and the fact that the usual seasonal advance in relief figures from January to February has not occurred this year," he said, "it is very evident that the improvement in general economic conditions and the increases in employment are now having the expected favorable effect on relief figures.

"The latest figures available which measure the volume of employment in industries other than agriculture, fishing and domestic work are those received by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics from employers, showing the number of persons in their employ as at February 1. The number is 987,719 and compares with the total of 927,006 reported on February 1, 1936, an increase of 60,713.

"In connection with projects authorized in the Dominion-Provincial agreements, 10,811 men were afforded 152,933 man-days work during February and were paid in wages $303,454. The provinces in which works were reported to be in progress were New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia."

DIVORCE CHANGE HONEST ATTEMPT

Bishop Of Coventry Finds Merit In Proposed Amendments To Act

LONDON, March 12—(CP). — Changes in the divorce law of England as contemplated by a new bill now before the House of Commons are an honest attempt to arrest the drift which is taking place, under cover of the present law, towards divorce by mutual consent, declares the Bishop of Coventry in the Diocesan Gazette.

In answer to critics of the bill, who declare it rests on no definite principle, the Bishop declares: "The bill is, as I believe, informed by loyalty to several high principles. Bills, like waders, may often seem to rest on thin air, when in fact they are suspended from above."

Unable To Forecast Weather With Guarantee Of Accuracy More Than One Day In Advance

Dr. J. Patterson, Director Of Meteorological Services, Addresses Engineers

MADE IN THE ARCTIC

Despite frequent claims by amateur experimenters on behalf of methods of long range weather forecasting scientific meteorologists are not yet able to forecast weather with any guarantee of accuracy more than 24 to 36 hours in advance, Dr. J. Patterson of Toronto, Director of Meteorological Services of Canada, told Peterborough Engineers Thursday night. He held little hope for development of long range prediction in the near future.

At wide variance from the old amateur standbys of weather observation are the scientific methods of the present-day Weatherman described by Dr. Patterson in his address to the local branch of the Engineering Institute in Canada. It seemed that the scientific weatherman puts little stock in such household slogans as "Rain before seven, clear before eleven," and pays little attention to the thickness of rabbits' fur in the Fall, or the matter of the bear seeing his shadow in the Spring. The science of weather prediction has progressed in great strides in recent years.

"The army general studying his enlarged battlefield maps showing troop position and movements would feel almost at home in the modern meteorological headquarters, it appeared as Dr. Patterson described roughly the methods of prediction. Just as the military man anticipates likely results by observing the progress of various human forces on his maps, the weatherman predicts weather by observing the progress of elemental forces. By charting and graphing hundreds of twice-daily reports from weather stations throughout the Dominion, meteorologists at Toronto make for themselves a complete picture of the air mass movements under way in Canada.

Where Weather Made

Most of Canada's cold weather, for example, results from the movement of great masses of cold air down through the Dominion from the McKenzie River basin, he said. From the South Atlantic and Pacific oceans come most of the great warm air masses that spell mild weather in winter and hot weather in summer. The meteorological charts show the conflict of the air masses from such great sources as these and the positions of the battle lines. If the maps reveal the warm air masses retreating toward Ontario under a heavy attack from the enemy cold air masses in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, cold weather can be expected over Ontario he said.

Certainty of weather forecasting in the immediate future is impossible, Dr. Patterson declared. Progress will be made through concentration on study of the movements of the dry cold air masses from the Polar areas and the warm, moist masses from the Tropical areas, Dr. Patterson revealed. Formerly, principal attention was paid not to the actual air movements but to air pressures at various points. Interpretation of air pressure data left too much to guesswork.

Dr. Patterson exhibited slides which traced the development of the meteorological science from 1872 to the present. The release of the balloons by means of which temperatures at heights from 10 to 20 miles are taken was depicted. Unexpectedly, the lowest stratosphere temperatures are encountered in the stratosphere over the equator and warmest stratosphere temperatures are encountered over the poles, he said.

WAGE SUIT LOST AGAINST ABERHART

Should Never Have Been Brought Says Judge Of Social Credit Claim

VANCOUVER, March 12 (CP)— Ware claims of John L. Loreth and Mrs. M. Dover Hopkinson against Premier Aberhart of Alberta were dismissed in county court yesterday by Judge C. J. Lennie, who said "the case should never have been brought."

Loreseth, executive secretary of the defunct British Columbia Social Credit Union, claimed $625 for work done while organizing the union. Mrs. Hopkinson asked $525 in wages as the union's recording secretary.

"They all (Mr. Aberhart, Loreseth and Mrs. Hopkinson) saw a possible benefit by the amalgamation of their pet schemes and they all volunteered to do some work," Judge Lennox said in his review of the case. All did some work and Premier Aberhart made it clear that while he would give advice and help, the burden was to be on the plaintiffs found they had done some two months work and had no money for it. Then they took a very unusual way to get the money."

A letter identified by Loreseth as from Premier Aberhart was read to the court. It read: "You will need to go very slow in incurring expenses until you have a source of income established. You will find money will come later if you do not incur too much debt."

Burnham Protests To Attorney-General

A strongly-worded protest against an alleged assertion by Dr. Ernest Thomas Neal Communism and Fascism are God's agents for working the defeat of capitalism in an address to the George Street Church Open Forum last Sunday, was sent to Attorney-General Roebuck by J. H. Burnham of this city yesterday. The protest was worded as follows:

"I, John Hampden Burnham, of the City of Peterborough in the province of Ontario, barrister, protest that the Rev. Dr. Ernest Thomas of the United Church of Canada did at a public meeting in the George Street United Church, Peterborough, on March 7, 1937, announce that Communism and Fascism are God's agents for freeing the people from the bondage of capitalism and that similar convulsions to those now proceeding in Europe would within a few years be begun in America. I declare that his praise of Communism and attack on Capitalism are subversive of law and order and contrary to the statute in that behalf, and I hereby move the Attorney-General of Ontario to take measures as provided by law in such cases."

Mr. Ellis abandoned his questioning.

Mr. Roebuck questioned Mr. Lyon about the realizable value of the Dominion Power and Transmission Company assets, purchased by the previous commission for $22,000,000. Mr. Lyon said $3,400,000 would have been a high price for the Deere Falls power plant and the Lincoln distribution system was worth no more than $1,000,000.

"What about the Hamilton street railway" Mr. Roebuck asked.

"It is on our books for $2,250,000", said Mr. Lyon, adding it was not earning its interest. The same was true of properties acquired in Brantford.

Mr. Lyon estimated the $22,000,000 was $4,000,000 or $5,000,000 above the real value of the assets acquired.

war. It was food shortage that brought down Germany, Austria and Bulgaria. It nearly brought us down before them. They stood it 4½ years. Had it not been for sea power, we could not have stood it 18 months. Our ships were sunk by the millions of tons. It was a gamble whether Germany would be starved first or Britain."

Less Prepared Than in '14.

"We are less prepared," Lloyd George pursued, "than in 1914." It was very well for Sir Samuel Hoare to say that battleships were protected against air attack. But the next war would see bigger submarines and bigger airplanes. The food ship was fragile. It did not bristle with anti-aircraft guns.

"You are ready to make sacrifices for defending your country," he concluded. "Why not make them to strengthen what our weakest link of defense was in the last war. I appeal to the government to take the urgent problem in hand and deal with it before it is too late."

PLAN REHEARSALS FOR CORONATION

Westminster Abbey Ceremony Must Be Timed To Precise Second

LONDON, March 12—(CP).—Preparations for the rehearsals of the Coronation ceremony in Westminster Abbey are being made by the Duke of Norfolk, the Earl Marshal.

There will probably be a number of rehearsals in different sections in order to ensure that everything will be carried out to the precise second. These will be followed by a complete rehearsal but in ordinary attire, and finally there will be a rehearsal in which participants will wear full dress, giving some idea of the pageantry when will be seen at the Coronation.

There is no definite official information as to those who will take part in the rehearsals, but it is probable that Lady Mary Rachel Fitzalan-Howard, elder sister of the Duke of Norfolk, will represent the Queen, at any rate in the full dress rehearsal.

Lard Mary is on her way home from abroad and will be in London ready for the rehearsals, which will begin as soon as the arrangements in the Abbey are complete.

BROKEN WHEEL IS CAUSE OF TIE-UP BELLEVILLE LINE

Freight Car Is Derailed Near Campbellford Tieing Up Line

TRACK DAMAGED

Because a broken wheel on a freight car resulted in a tie-up of traffic on the Belleville-Peterborough line of the Canadian National Railways, mail train No. 11 due here at 9.20 a.m. had to be routed via Port Hope. The train steamed in to Peterborough at 9 o'clock, forty minutes late.

D. E. Bell, C.N.R. agent here, told a reporter that while details were lacking, he understood that the manifest freight which pulled out of the city at two o'clock this morning on its east-bound run, met with an accident about two hours later.

A large section of the track was damaged near Hoard's Station just east of Campbellford, he said, when a wheel on one of the freight cars broke, and traffic on the line was temporarily dislocated.

The morning mail train from Belleville to Peterborough was rerouted via Port Hope, but Mr. Bell anticipated the line would be clear in time for No. 12 east-bound, which leaves here at 3.20 p.m.

Champ Corn Eater Knows No Quitting

Tulsa, Okla., March 12—(CP)—A SMALL Rhode Island Red rooster here has something to crow about—he's the new corn-eating champion.

At a poultry show he was pitted against three supposedly voracious cocks, nearly double his size. The first aspirant gave up at 424 grains. A buff orpington entry quit at 447. The best the runner up could do was 473, but the champ pecked steadily on. Three times the judges brought more corn. Finally Bill Eschbach, the bird's owner called a halt at 751 grains.

WELSH RADICALS BRINGING DISCORD INTO EISTEDDFOD

Londonderry, Churchill, Lansbury Named To Preside Resign To Keep Peace

AFTER 8 JUDGES QUIT

CARDIFF, Wales, March 12. — (CP).—Radical Welsh Nationalists have sounded a discordant note as a prologue to the lyrics, of the 1937 Eisteddfod which this year is to be held at Machynlleth, in North Wales.

The Nationalists' complaint is that "the Eisteddfod is rapidly becoming an English institution" and when the Marquess of Londonderry, Winston Churchill and George Lansbury were recently chosen to preside at the celebration next August eight Welsh adjudicators promptly resigned.

Both Lansbury and Churchill were not long indicating their "inability" to attend, and now Lord Londonderry has sent the Western Mail his "regrets" and left the field open to the Welsh.

Lord Londonderry wrote that he reluctantly had resigned the position of President "as one who honors and reveres the Eisteddfod and would not in any circumstances willingly be the cause of creating a breach in the traditional harmony of these historical gatherings.

Opens His Home

He explained the invitation had probably been given him because of his connection with Plas Machynlleth, property he inherited from his grandmother, who was purely Welsh. "This constitutes my claim to a Welsh descent, of which I am very proud," he said. "I am glad to feel I am making some contribution to the Eisteddfod by lending the Plas and the grounds and my earnest desire is that this annual festival will be crowned with success."

The Western Mail of Cardiff, reported Lord Londonderry's resignation at length, in its news columns, suggesting that the Radicals' action was strange in view of the fact many prominent Englishmen have served in the past without causing trouble.

But the prominent Welsh paper had some more pointed remarks on its editorial page. It declared "Lord Londonderry's courteous and dignified letter . . . is one of the severest of the many rebukes that the fanatical group of Welsh Nationalists have received. . . . The scandal of it is that the Nationalists should have carried their insensate campaign into the Eisteddfod, an institution which should have been kept entirely outside the area of party conflicts and racial bitterness.

"The National Eisteddfod is surely founded strongly enough in the hearts of the Welsh people to remain unaffected by the friendly interest which English neighbors take in its proceedings."

MARIE TEMPEST TRUE TO TRADITION

Comedy Actress Carries On Despite Death Of Husband Few Hours Earlier

LONDON, March 12— (AP)— England's famed comedy actress, Marie Tempest, carried on true to the stage tradition last night, playing "Retreat From Folly" despite the death a few hours earlier of her husband and leading man, William Graham Browne.

"I shall play to-night," she said simply before the curtain rose. "Willy would have wished it."

Until the final curtain, only the trembling of her hands and the sympathetic consideration of her fellow actors gave the audience any inkling of the tragedy she was concealing behind the sparkling lines of the comedy.

At the end of the play, Miss Tempest forced herself to make her usual plea for funds for a private hospital for actors.

In a low, tremulous voice she recited the appeal "for the sick and ailing members of our profession."

At the last words Miss Tempest sank to her knees, tears glistening in her eyes, as the final curtain fell.

Ross Dobbin Honorary Member Of American Waterworks Body

Is Only Canadian In Association's Honorary Membership Roll

SPECIAL RECOGNITION

The following congratulatory reference to R. L. Dobbin, manager of the Peterborough Utilities Commission, recently appeared on the editorial page of "Engineering and Contract Record": "Waterworks men throughout Canada will be in thorough accord with the action of the board of directors of the American Waterworks Association in electing to honorary membership one of the Dominion's most prominent waterworks officials—Ross L. Dobbin, general manager of the Utilities Commission, Peterborough, Ont. In the bylaws of the association it is stated that "an honorary member shall be one whose practical or scientific knowledge in matters relating to water supply, and whose accomplishments in that field of endeavor shall entitle him to special recognition by the association."

Mr. Dobbin in his activities connected with waterworks matters both in relation to his duties at Peterborough and to his work on behalf of the association, has fully met the requirements laid down by the association and has well earned the distinction that election to honorary membership implies.

At the present time Mr. Dobbin is the only Canadian in the association's honorary membership roll, and members of the Canadian section will take pride in the honor thus bestowed on one of their confreres, just as they took pride in the award to him of the Diven medal by the association in 1930 and in his elevation to the presidency of the parent body in 1932. It is not often, and all the more noteworthy, therefore, that a Canadian achieves so frequent recognition by an organization whose headquarters and bulk of membership are in the United States."

JAP ARMY HEADS THREATEN CRISIS

Resent Foreign Minister's Charge Peace Of Orient Lies In Their Hands

TOKYO, March 12—(CP-Havas)—A new crisis brewed in Japan today as opposition smouldered in army ranks against the declarations of foreign policy made by the new Foreign Minister, Naotake Sato, before the Diet.

Sato's declaration last night, that the issue of war or peace in the Pacific depended primarily upon Japan's own attitude roused the ire of army leaders. Unless appeased, they may attempt to scuttle the Cabinet, it was feared.

It was decided at a conference of generals and certain cabinet members to ask Foreign Minister Sato to explain what the army leaders regard as a contradiction between his policies and those enunciated by Premier Seihuro Hayashi.

The section of Sato's speech in the Diet last night which seemed to represent the widest divergence from the traditional view of the army had to do with the existence of the so-called "emergency" or "crisis" in Japan.

"Every country of the world, Japan included, now faces strained international relations," said Sato. "This, however, can be overcome without much difficulty. The true crisis, namely war, depends on Japan's mental attitude.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, March 13

A LIVELY day, although not a satisfactory one, is the message made from the predominant stellar operations. Radical change seems imminent, and new undertakings may follow stagnant, or crystallized conditions. Elders or established institutions may figure in these. Private affairs should also be lively and gratifying.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of radical change and many new influences and contacts. New projects may be launched with safety and assurance because the cooperation of elderly persons or institutions may be counted on. Domestic, social and romantic affiliations should thrive.

A child born on this day may be enterprising, energetic, steady, industrious, steadfast and responsible. It should win the support of its elders.

BOY WHO RESCUED LAD IS UNKNOWN

Several Stories Are Told As To How Boy Was Pulled From River

A check-up by The Examiner in the immediate neighborhood has failed to reveal the identity of the person described as "a boy of about fourteen years of age," who was thought to have rescued Garry Jones, 6-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Jones, 604 Young street, North Monaghan from certain drowning in the Otonabee River.

When he returned home with his younger brother Benny, soaked to the skin as the result of his fall into the river from the old street railway wharf two blocks from the house, Garry told his mother, "A big boy and Benny got me out of the river." He could not give a description of the "big boy" but thought he might be about fourteen years old.

Mrs. L. Johnston, 631 Lock street who saw the child just as he came from the river told a reporter, "I heard the child screaming. As he ran up the street with a smaller boy I asked him how he got out. He said he had just jumped out. But he was crying so that he could scarcely speak." She said she saw no one else around, only the two lads, Garry Jones and presumably his 4-year-old brother Benny.

Hebron Davidson, Lock street grocer, said he heard that the lad was pulled from the river by a man who came along in a motor truck, just after the lad had fallen into the water. But, he said, there was no one in the locality who seemed to know the identity of the rescuer.

CENTRAL SCHOOL WINS PUCK TITLE FROM QUEEN MARY

TWO SHUTOUTS

Central won the School Hockey League championship for 1937 last evening at All Saints' rink with a 2-0 triumph over Queen Mary in the second game of the playoffs. The first ended 7-0 and Central took the round by a 9-2 score, twice thrashing the opposition. This is the second straight year—after being a long time out of playoffs that this squad, coached by Don Munro, has copped the school hockey title.

The game was speedy, exciting and quite clean, with only two penalties drawn. Queen Mary put up a much better battle than in the first playoff game. The teams battled it out hard in an even and scoreless first frame but Central showed an edge in the middle chukker to tally twice, R. Clark and Maxbock bulging the twine. It was even again in the lively third with neither side counting.

Two Goalies Good

Both goalies turned in a fine performance, kicking aside a number of hard drives, some at quite close range. The defences checked well to keep down the score while both forward lines and the alternates battled without letup all the way through. For the winners, the two Clarks were outstanding while McBride in goal stood out for the losers. The teams:

Queen Mary: Goal, McBride; defence, Weaver and Mosley; centre, Mortimer; wings, Ackford and Horton; alternates, Smith, Ridyard and Neiman.

Record Crowd Sure For Game Tonight

A sellout crowd is assured tonight at the Brock St. rink as Barrie and the local Colts clash in the first game of their O.H.A. junior "B" playdown series. Return tilt is in Barrie on Monday with goals counting on the round. The winner will go into Ontario semi-finals. Great interest in the city and district has been aroused over this important series between two oldtime rivals and smart young squads. The local arena officials have been asked to reserve 150 seats for Barrie rooters who will accompany the team. The series promises to be a real thriller with the classy well-matched teams battling their heads off in both games. The locals want a lead of several goals to take to Barrie.

Following is the Barrie lineup: Goal, Goring; defence, Jones and Dyte (the latter at left defence); centre, Bowen; right wing, Long; left wing, Scott; alternates, Livingstone, Leigh, Walker, Storey and Marshall. The locals' lineup is: Goal, Harding; defence, A. Clark and Crowe; centre, Blare; wings, Neal and Wright; alternates, Kingdon, G. Clark, Brady, Connelly and either

CURLING
By HERB MARTIN

When the two "Bobs"—Bob Martin and Bob Huffman—meet in the final game of Leads-Seconds tonight, it will be a game altogether out of the ordinary.

It will be a case of Winter vs. Spring, Experience vs. Youth—one has a bovish "bob", the other one a "bob" not so bovish.

These two teams have come right through this semi since Monday night, and to-night's game should be a dandy.

Dr. J. Cruthers Green pulled a somewhat saucy one Thursday night, at our expense. Bob Martin had just made a nice shot, clearing out his opponent's rock to count two for himself. The doctor turned to us and said "Your son is not a bad curler, Pepper." Thank you. Dr., we hope your boys grow up to be curlers, too.

Our club will be represented at the Hamilton bonspiel to-morrow with a rink skipped by M. Cruthers, and supported by E. Metcalfe, E. Thomas and D. Grant. Good luck, boys.

This is meant for our local curlers: Don't forget the annual meeting on Monday night.

We will hold our regular Saturday afternoon bonspiel tomorrow, weather permitting.

We wish to correct an error that was broadcast to our local curlers last night. At the conclusion of the Peterborough-Lakefield Cup competition someone from the Lakefield rink telephoned that our boys were ahead about thirty points. On checking over the scores this morning we find that it is the Lakefield curlers that are ahead 38 points on the round.

LAKEFIELD WINS OVER MAROONS 2-0

High School Team Defeats Maroons In Fast But Rough Game

LAKEFIELD, March 12.—The Lakefield High School Leafs won their second victory over the Maroons, 2-0, on Thursday in the Lakefield rink.

The play was fast and rough. The Maroons' forward line made many hard attempts to register but was out-guessed by Windsor, the Leafs' goalie.

In the first period, Murray scored for the Leafs. Then Smith, on the Maroons' team received a penalty for slashing and Garbutt, taking advantage, tallied for the Leafs to end the scoring.

Three penalties were handed out to Smith, who spent most of his time in the penalty box. The Leafs' team did not receive any penalties. The line-ups:—

Leafs.—Goal, Chester Windsor; defence, Earl Robinson and Jollan Murin; centre, Fred Hudson; wings, Willie Garbutt and Earl Playfair; subs., G. Burnett.

Drop 19-17 Overtime Cage Tilt In Oshawa To Lose Chance At Playoffs

(By Eric West)

On Wednesday afternoon, the P. C. I. senior cagers travelled to Oshawa and saw their final playoff chance fade when the Motor City crew copped a thrilling overtime victory, 19-17. Oshawa emerged from a close-checking first half with the slight lead of 6 to 4. At the end of regular time, P.C.I. had drawn up on even terms through a hard-fought second stanza, marred by numerous personal fouls. Gunsolus and Galley of P.C.I. were forced to the showers through fouls and Turner followed in the overtime session. Those players, when on, and Kelly were best for P.C.I. Davern relinquished his official duties in overtime to go in and score a basket. Mullet, McMaster, Maines and James were best for the winners. McMaster scored nine points but drew four fouls. The teams:

P.C.I.—Gemmell, Johnston, Galley, Laing, Turner, Davern, Gunsolus, Smith, Kelly.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(C.P.)

IT COMES about that some lads are playing hockey here this fine evening. And all the dolls and guys in town who could put the clutch on a ticket or two—even at scalpers' prices—will be assaulting up the line to the weatherbeaten rink on the Rue Brock. And it is an even-money proposition that the Colts will win on account of both the Barrie boys and the Peterborough players are called the Colts. This is a most embarrassing mixup and you would think maybe that the Colts of Barrie could have just as easily called themselves the Ponies or even the Little Horses. Anyway, no doubt, they will be sporting different livery and it will be no trick at all to tell the teams apart. You can yell: "Come on, you Petes," or "Boo you bums from Barrie," and everyone will know just who you mean.

* * * * * * *

IT SHOULD be a sellout crowd this p.m. and the old rafters will ring to raucous roars as of old. No one can tell yet which squad will win but it's a Bank of England cinch that it'll be a swell scrap. Our Colts have an old score to settle with the Barrie gang of a couple of years ago who nosed us out in a torrid series, losing here but winning the round. The locals want, not only a win tonight, but a good lead to tote to Barrie come Monday. The winner of this serial will prance into the Ontario junior "B" semi-finals.

* * * * * * *

THIS IS no sales talk. We are not trying to sell this game here tonight on account of it is already sold. With over 2,000 customers yelling for delivery. But with everyone talking about the tilt we can't seem to write about anything else. Everyone knows how Aurora barely beat out Lindsay and then how Barrie easily licked Aurora while our boys were doing d.to to the Lindsay lads. This would sort of indicate how well-matched the two Colts' teams are. The locals have been playing a sort of in-and-out variety of hockey this winter, looking like Provincial champs one game and like puck tramps the next. Tonight, they had better look up the tramp complex if they are money players. Tonight is payoff time.

* * * * * * *

OVER 150 rooters from Barrie will be on deck tonight, parked in a special section on the east side, we understand. All reserved seats at the rink were sold out yesterday, even to the back of the balcony which has not been used since a couple of dancers were necking up there to the strains of Eddie Stroud's band some balmy evening last summer. Fans are requested again not to smoke in the rink this eve as it bothers the players and cuts down visibility about the second period. The ice is in good shape, the fans hot, the players of both teams all in the pink, and the crucial contest of the season about to start. Let's GO!

* * * * * * *

WORD HAS been received from Secretary Walter Dinnen that the Senior City Hockey League finals will not commence Saturday evening, as some of the players have to work that night. So, Lakefield and Westclox clash in the first of their two-game playoffs at 8.30 Monday p.m. in the Brock St. rink. Second game a night or two later, goals counting on the round. Both teams have quite a following and

THE OLD Blood and Thunder Loop—sometimes it's thud and blunder—has its own 300 or so addicts. There is no other word than addict for it as this circuit gets into the blood and there have been several lively fist fights in the stands as well as desens on the ice this winter. Games have been good all season and reached a new high in the semi-finals. We expect the finals to be the very tops.

THE FOLLOWING letter was received today from H. Brasley of the Oshawa Arena, King St. West, Oshawa: "Dear Sir—We are holding a hockey tournament at the Oshawa Arena on the nights of March 22, 23 and 24. We would be glad to have you enter your team. The entry fee is $3.00. Each team may dress ten players and the spare goalie. There will be three games the first night and the teams will be matched by drawing. The games will consist of two twenty-five minute straight time periods. The first prize will be to the value of $100.00 and the second prize will be to the value of $60.00. Entries close on Wednesday, March 17. Should you decide to enter, kindly notify us before that date and we will let you know at what time your team will be playing." Apparently they aren't taking out the artificial ice there yet. Dunno if a local team intends entering or not.

CENTRAL WON the School Hockey League title yesterday with a 2-0 nod over Queen Mary, winning the round by the score of 9 to 6. School sports go in cycles and Central is now tops in the puck game. We can well recall some four or five years back when one of the Central teachers jokingly asked us not to feature such headings as: "Central Swamped By King George", etc. They weren't going so well then, but the last few years has seen Don Munro's squad too good for their rivals in hockey. This same cycle also applies to soccer and softball—and, once upon a time, to baseball before the schools took up the softer game.

Up at the P.C.I. gym, the senior and junior Bowmanville boys' squads are billed to tangle with the local Collegians' teams this p.m. And tomorrow night at the Y.M.C.A., two Senior City Cage Loop contests will be played. St. Paul's vs. Neill's at 8.15 and Dominion Life 'gainst C.G.E. at 9.15. Basketball in bunches, what?

BELIEVE GEHRIG GETS HIS PRICE

However Col. Ruppert Just Stubborn Enough To Let Dimaggio Sit On Fence

WANER REAL HOLD OUT

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 12 (AP)—On the way to Daytona Beach to talk things over with the Dards yesterday, Dizzy Dean stopped off at the Tilling stallion at Bradenton and in 15 minutes won 98 pitching quarters with the boys. "Looks like I can pick up that $50,000 per year right here at home," commented Dizzy as he pocketed the dough. Loneliest training camp in Florida is Detroit's because of Mickey Cochrane's "No wives allowed" edict. . . You should have seen the almost bald head of General Manager Warren C. Giles after he had celebrated his first day in the Cincinnati camp by sitting in the bleachers throughout the Reds' first nine-inning practice game.

The Yankees haven't given up on Lou Gehrig yet. . . They recall that the last time Lou was a hold-out, he and Col. Ruppert rode south on the same train. . . Not a word has been heard here from Joe Dimaggio. . . Baseball men, who can't imagine a Yankee exhibition tour through the south and southwest without Gehrig to draw the customers, believe Lou will get his $40,000 if he waits long enough, but all say Col. Ruppert is just stubborn enough to let Dimaggio sit at home a year before paying the $35,000 he demands. . . In the meantime, the camp awaits the Ruppert arrival, now set for Sunday.

Casey Stengel still keeps in touch with his major league friends and writes that his ears are just as big as ever. . . With Sammy Byrd out of the way, Jack Salverson of the Senators, who averages in the low 70's will claim the baseball coifing championship. The Paul Waner holdout begins to look like the real thing.

In Memoriam

The following poem, entitled "In Memoriam", concerning the late Howie Morenz—famous Canadien's centre ice star—was written by J. Bernard Crosson of Campbellford:

With sudden shock
We learned today
The great Morenz
Has passed away;
Gone from the game
He loved so well,
How much he loved
No man can tell.
Praise will ring out
That has no end
For the king of hockey,
Howie Morenz.
You Stratford Streak!
Canadien's Flash,
In hockey history
You will last;
For fourteen years,
The best of all,
A place from which
You cannot fall.
God grant you peace
And rest today—
The Greatest Great
Has passed away!

Peterboro' Curlers Warned To Beware Lindsay Has Gone On Spinach Diet

LINDSAY, Ont., March 13—(CP)—The Lindsay Town Hall curling quartet has taken a leaf from the back of "Popeye the Sailor" for a match here to-night. . . It has gone on a spinach diet.

The four members of the team are Police Chief Ralph Lawler, Magistrate A. E. Gee, Tax Collector Harry Wareham, and Secretary of the Water Board Gordon Cuthbert.

It was the water board secretary's idea that they become spinach conscious but it was Magistrate Gee who carried the plan through.

He was seen walking briskly up the main street to-day with a peck of spinach under his arm. At the Town Hall, he gave some to the police chief, some to the tax collector, and left a share in the office for Cuthbert, who was out at the time.

So if the Town Hall team wins against Percy Hatch's curlers four there's liable to be a spinach shortage in Lindsay for 165 other club members here probably would try the plan.

MOTORCYCLE CLUB PLANS ITINERARY

Kawartha Cycling Club To Stage Number Of Runs Through The Summer

At a well-attended meeting of the Kawartha Motorcycle Club last evening in the Chamber of Commerce, with a number of new-member visitors present, a program of cycling trips for the summer was adopted. The program committee of Sam Carew, Gord. Colmer, Jack Skiton and Tom Busby, presented the itinerary to the gathering. The executive committee of the club was authorized to take orders for club crests, the same design and color as the club pins, up till March 30th, when orders will be forwarded to the manufacturer.

The first outing will be April 11th to Belleville in the morning for inter-club competition to be arranged later. On April 25th, a trip will be made to Port Hope after lunch for a general reunion. May 12th, Coronation Day, was left open for later plans. The club will go to Wasaga Beach on May 24th for the week-end, leaving Sunday morning to attend the professional races. On June 13th, a trip will be made to Lindsay, Dunsford, Bobcaygeon and a return in the afternoon to Greenlunet. Arrangements will be made July 1st regarding intercrub activities with the Toronto Club. On August 2nd, a field day will be held by the Kawartha Club. Labor Day, September 6th, will see a general attendance of the local club at the international road race at Belleville. On Thanksgiving Day in October, plans will be made for an intercrub run with an associating club.

By ANDY RUTTER

At a meeting of the executive held last evening it was decided to hold as many events of the club championships events as possible this week-end at Omemee, the various races will commence at 10.30 Sunday morning and will include men's cross country 10 miles; men's downhill, 1.30; ladies' downhill, 2 p.m.; men's slalom, 2.30; ladies' slalom, 3.00.

As many members as possible with cars are asked to be at the Empress Hotel, and friends of the club with accommodation to spare could assist by driving past the hotel at 10 a.m. and picking up the strangers. The club will try to secure transportation at a slight cost for those who desire it. Lunch may be secured at the Omemee Commercial House if you do not care to carry your own. Be on time and come prepared to compete in some of the races; competition is the finest way to learn to ski.

ALL-U.S. ROOKIE CHICAGO OUTFIT LOSES TO BRUINS

NO "FLEDGLINGS" SCORE

CHICAGO, March 12.—(C.P.)—Chicago Black Hawks, out of the National Hockey League playoffs and with nothing to lose, tried out their All-American rookies last night and succeeded only in dropping a 6-2 verdict to the Boston Bruins.

Goalie Mike Karakas was the only veteran of the Yankee unit, which included defencemen Ike Klingbell and Paul Schaeffer, centre Milt Brink, and wingmen Bun Laprairie and Al Suomi.

Trudel pulled the score down to 2-1 after taking Gotlieb's assist, but Schmidt came back to click on another solo effort and then Clapper got Boston's fourth after teaming up with Dumart in the last two minutes of play.

This was the first time the Black Hawks had brought out their five American-born rookies to make their team an all-American aggregation with American-born Mike Karakas as goaler.

The game was played as Frank Calder, League president, considered a protest from Jack Adams of Detroit Red Wings, and Lester Patrick of New York Rangers, over the use of the new players. Patrick and Adams contend they should not have been used while teams still are battling for Stanley Cup playoff positions.

Major Frederic McLaughlin, Hawk owner, has announced the five youngsters will form the nucleus of a team which next year will be called the Yankees, and eventually be composed entirely of American-born rather than Canadian players.

Although the rookies, "Butch" Schaeffer of Hinckley, Minn., Milt Brink and Al Suomi of Eveleth, Minn., Ike Klingbell of Hancock, Mich., and "Bun" La Prairie of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., did not figure in any scoring, McLaughlin said he was pleased with their work.

Boston's easily-won victory placed the Bruins five points ahead of the Rangers, who lost to Detroit. A brilliant solo by Hooley Smith opened the scoring in the second period, and Milt Schmidt put Boston two goals ahead three minutes later. Louis Trudell came through with a Chicago goal before Schmidt and Dit Clapper scored for Boston in the dying minutes of the period.

All Boston goals were scored with either Schaeffer or Klingbell working on defence with a Chicago veteran. Only one Bruin marker, that by Cotliffe, came with all five of the American youngsters on the ice.

PEMBROKE TEAM IS DISQUALIFIED

C.A.H.A. Puts Little Lumber Kings Out For Using Ineligible Player

OTTAWA, March 12—(CP)—Cecil Duncan, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, announced late last night Pembroke Little Lumber Kings had been disqualified from further competition in the Ottawa and district playdowns for using an ineligible player.

Four teams the Kings eliminated to win the Ottawa District Junior crown were ordered to meet in a new series for the title. Ottawa Fishers will meet Perth, while Barry's Bay engages Renfrew in sudden-death games, both to be played Saturday night.

Duncan made the announcement following a conference with W. R. Elliott of Renfrew, president of the Ottawa and District Association, who suspended Carman Koen, Pembroke's star centreman and ordered the Kings and Perth to replay their district final series.

Perth, which lodged a protest with Elliott, claiming Koen was over the junior age limit of 20, refused to abide by his order and took the Island Pembroke passed up its chance to continue in the playdowns by signing.

Duncan said that on the evidence at hand Koen was over age and therefore ineligible and as the C.A.H.A. regulations were definite that onus of establishing age eligibility rested solely with the club concerned, there was no alternative but to disqualify Pembroke.

Winners of the sudden-death games will open a two-game, total-goal series next Monday and Wednesday for the district title. The survivors will engage Ottawa Riddeaus for the Ottawa and District championship and the right to enter the Memorial Cup playdowns.

The relano has forced rearrangement of Memorial Cup playdowns. Duncan has the problem under consideration and a revised schedule will be announced within a few days.

Heavyweight

GEORGE BIRD

St. Catharines' contribution to the pro boxing ring is George Bird, Canadian amateur heavyweight boxing champion. Bird, it was recently announced, would travel to New York to tangle with some American leather flingers. He was born in St. Catharines, Ont. on May 9, 1917. His first fight was in spring of 1929, when he won against "Red" Matthews of Hamilton in the 90 pound class. He has fought in every class since then, paper, fly, bantam, feather, light, welter, middle, light-heavy and heavyweight. He grew so fast that only a few bouts in each class were allowed him. He stands six-feet-one and tips the beam at 186 pounds stripped.

AURIE INJURES LEG AS WINGS DEFEAT RANGERS BY 4 TO 2

League's Leading Scorer To Undergo X-Ray—Small Bone May Be Broken

DETROIT NOW TOPS

NEW YORK, March 12—(CP)—The champion Detroit Red Wings stepped out into a seven-point lead over the National Hockey League's United States section last night as they handed New York Rangers a 4-2 trimming before 8,000 fans.

The victory qualified the Detroiters to meet the leading team of the Canadian group, starting March 23, for the league crown. The triumph may prove costly, for Larry Aurie, right-wingman and the league's leading scorer, was carried from the ice late in the second period with a badly bruised leg after crashing into the boards with Art Coulter, husky Ranger defenceman.

The Ranger club physician announced an X-ay would be necessary to ascertain if Aurie had broken a small bone in his leg.

"Butch" Keeling scored early in the first period for the Rangers, but Aurie counted a few seconds later. Gordon Pettinger then sent the Wings ahead before the frame was over.

After a scoreless second session, Syd Howe banged in Detroit's third goal early in the third. Rangers tried five-man power plays and got one counter back when Mac Colville scored, but Mac Kilrea notched the clinching tally with less than two minutes to play.

STRATFORD JUMPS INTO GAME LEAD OVER ST. MIKE'S

Midgets Win In Toronto 5 To 4 —Copper Cliff Redmen Slipping?

MARITIMES DANGEROUS

TORONTO, March 12—(CP)—Overnight happenings left followers of Eastern Canada's junior hockey wars baffled today, but when the whole business was sifted through every development seemed fashioned for the benefit of Stratford Midgets. Supporters of the powerful Midgets could be excused for shouting—they've been looking for a Dominion championship many long years.

First of the events was Midgets' 5-4 victory over St. Michael's College at Toronto. The result left Stratford with a two-one lead in games on the best-of-five round for the Ontario Hockey Association title. Now Midgets have only to win at home Tuesday to take the series.

Then there was the continued poor showing of Copper Cliff Redmen. Touted as Memorial Cup contenders because of successes against senior teams during the season, Redmen have looked ineffective recently. They just managed to pull through a sectional series with Sault Ste. Marie and last night in the first game of Northern Ontario Association finals with Timmins, they could get nothing better than a 3-3 win that left them with a bare two-goal lead to carry into the second game at Timmins.

Pembroke Nosed Out.

But these were shadowed by what occurred in the Ottawa district, where Pembroke Little Lumber Kings were thrown out of the playdowns and four team they had eliminated were ruled back in.

Pembroke was originally ordered to replay a series with Perth for using an over-age player, Carman Koen. Perth refused to meet Pembroke again, claiming the Kings should be disqualified. President Cecil Duncan of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, sided with Perth and declared Renfrew, Barry's Bay, Ottawa Fishers and Perth all back into competition.

Pembroke won the Ottawas crown last year and 20 straight wins this season had pinned the club in high regard. Now the four teams it set down will pair up to play sudden-death games and the two survivors will battle in a total-goal series for the right to meet Ottawa Rideaus for district honors.

President Duncan said the mix-up would force re-arrangement of playdowns and a revised schedule will be announced within a few days.

But if Stratford could smile at the ill fortune which had fallen on St. Michael's, Copper Cliff and Pembroke, the Mudgets still faced many pitfalls before Canadian finals.

Montreal Victorias and Quebec Beavers are preparing for their finals for a provincial title. Victorias scored shutouts in five of nine games during the schedule and Beavers have eliminated so good a force as Montreal Cranes.

St. Pats Coming Along.

And Stratford can lend an ear, too, to the warnings that are coming out of the Maritimes on behalf of Amherst St. Pats. Last year Amherst gave Pembroke a terrific tussle before bowing out and this year Nova Scotians have just about the same team. They've been setting up an enviable record in gaining another provincial crown.

Charlottetown Abegweits turned back Summerside 7-1 in winning the first game of Prince Edward Island finals to indicate power. Bathurst is awaiting an opponent after slapping aside Moncton for the New Brunswick championship.

WESTWOOD WINS TEDFORD TROPHY

Defeat Trent River By 4-3 Count In 30 Minutes' Overtime At Norwood Arena

WESTWOOD, March 12.—Westwood hockey team defeated the smart Trent River sextette on Tuesday evening at the Norwood Hockey Arena by a score of 4 to 3, before a large crowd of enthusiastic fans. It was a hard-fought battle and took 30 minutes of overtime to defeat the would-be champions.

Good hockey was displayed by both teams and at the end of 7 minutes Westwood thought they had registered their first counter, but after a big dispute, the goal umpire's decision held, and the play went on to the end of the first period with no score.

The second period was just nicely underway when Inkster fooled Spencer on a face-off shot from outside the blue line. Doug Dare got the gate. It was not long until Chaplain of Trent River aided one more to their count. Bruce Graham and Sam Rattan had a head-on collision, both being knocked out. Rattan had his nose cut and Graham received a cut over the eye; however, both players were patched up and were able to finish the game. This period ended with Barrie in the penalty box and the score Trent River 2, Westwood 0.

The third period was very exciting; every man doing his best, with J. Graham, J. Brown and E. Van Volkenberk receiving penalties after a few minutes play. Gerald Chaplin got the first goal for Westwood. A scramble and a big argument took place, but again the goal umpire's decision carried, making the score Westwood 1, Trent River 2. In less than two minutes Sam Rattan scored again for Trent River. This alarmed the fireworks Bert MortLock netted one more for Westwood, followed shortly after by another by R. Graham, ending the period score was Westwood 3, Trent River Three.

Two minutes overtime was played each way, but the score was not changed, both teams checking hard. It was decided to play five minutes more each way, and if the tie was not broken, to play another game on Friday night.

When the play started again Westwood set camp near the Trent River blue line, and in less than three minutes B. Graham shot the winning goal. This delighted the majority of the fans, who covered the ice with hats, coats, skates, fence and even a cow bell.

A pleasing feature of the game was that both injured players scored after the accident.

After the final song Alex. Kempt presented the Westwood team with a handsome cup, the Tedford Trophy. This was won by Hawkwik last year, and must be won three years in succession to become the property of the winners. At present, the cup is on display in the window of Lobb's garage.

The line up was as follows:

Trent River: Goal, Don Calmarity; defence, Doug. Dare, Ray Volkenburg, Alex. Brown and Melville Lane; forwards, Jim Rempt, Jim Inkster, Clifford Chaplain, George Brown and Sam Rattan; manager, Mann.

ACCIDENT IN TRAIN.

SWINTON, England (C.P.)—E. M. Jones, Streatham and Mitcham rugby player, was unable to participate in a recent match here. On the train journey from London he stumbled into a lamp bracket, the sound necessitating five stitches.

MAROONS RALLY IN THIRD PERIOD BEAT LEAFS 3-2

Montrealers Spot Toronto Two-Goal Lead In First, Then Win

ASSURES SECOND PLACE

FORUM, Montreal, March 12.—(CP)—Montreal Maroons' big red machine, spotting Toronto Leafs two first-period goals, roared from behind last night to whip the Leafs 3 to 2 and virtually assure themselves of second place, at least, in the National Hockey League's Canadian section.

Victory pulled Maroons four points ahead of the Torontonians in their stretch drive for the second spot, with only four games to play for each team. It confirmed Maroons' hopes of overhauling Canadiens, the section leaders, who need three more points to clinch the sectional leadership.

Herbie Cain and Russ Blinco were the drivers of the red machine in its run from behind. Cain scored the first Maroon goal in the second period and the tying one in the third. Less than three minutes later, Blinco fired from 30 feet, and the shot, partially obscured, went by the startled Walter Broda.

Outpressing the Montrealers in the first period, Leafs ran up their two-goal lead on scores by Syl Apps and Bob Davidson. Only 40 seconds of the game, played at breakneck speed most of the way, had elapsed when Apps poked in his tally.

Leafs had one final chance to pull out the game in the closing minutes when Lionel Conacher took the last of the game's three penalties. But, against tenacious checking, Leafs didn't have a shot while Connie was off.

BELLEVILLE WINS OVER STIRLING 8-6

Win Round 13-11 To Meet Tweed In Central Hastings Finals

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MADOC, March 12—The second game of the semi-finals between Belleville and Stirling in the Central Hastings league went to Belleville by a score of 8-6. Since the first game in Stirling ended in a 5-5 tie; Belleville won the round 13-11, and as a result meet Tweed in the finals to be played Monday and Thursday; the first game being played in Tweed, the second in Madoc. If a third game is necessary, the place will be decided later.

A third period rally on the part of the Belleville team, put them ahead after trailing behind the Stirling team throughout the first two periods. The score by periods was 3-2 end of first, 5-3 end of second for Stirling and 6-6 at the final gong for Belleville.

Led by Harry Ingram who was a tower of strength both offensively and defensively, the Stirling sextet waded into the fast Belleville outfit and held a commanding lead both by goals and by play throughout the first two periods. Penalties proved costly to the Belleville team as three goals were scored while they were short handed.

For Stirling, Ingram, Rogers and Robinson were the best, each getting 2 goals, while Fox in the nets made many beautiful saves. For Belleville, the Ehler brothers, Harvey and McGuire proved the most dangerous offensively.

According to an Associated Press despatch, 18 bids for construction of the International bridge across the St. Lawrence River, west of Alexandria Bay, have been opened by the Thousand Islands Bridge Authority. The combined low bids for all spans —which will be let to contract separately—totalled $2,011,489.03, as against engineer's estimates of $2,-001,489.

William T. Field, advisory engineer to the Bridge Authority, declared the favorable bids assure construction of the bridge, which will extend from Collins Landing on the American side to Ivy Lea, Ont. Field said the contracts would be awarded in about ten days.

Continuing on the news, L. B. Howland, engineer of this city, stated:

"I have just received official confirmation that the underwriting of the bonds for this undertaking are assured, and that the proceeds from this issue will be sufficient to meet the necessary expenditure to complete the entire superstructure of the bridge, and that work on actual construction will commence immediately the detail plans and specifications are fully plotted by the engineers.

"The bridge, solely a highway vehicular design, will be known as the Thousand Island Bridge; the spans will cross the St. Lawrence River forming an international link between Canada and the United States. The Ontario terminal will commence at a vantage point at Ivy Lea, which is about ten miles east of Gananoque, the structure following a series of islands which form a complete range of stepping stones for the piers, therefore no pier will necessarily be located in the water.

"The opening for traffic will not only complete the missing link of communication forming a continuous paved belt highway around Lake Ontario, but joining with the highways from the south will tap many populous states, the people of which are most enthusiastic and fully appreciate the new medium of communication to Canada.

"As a supplement to the efforts I have diligently given this important undertaking, I have a progressive plan in mind, which when evolved should have its influence in stimulating the attraction of not only tourists but commerce to your borders, as I believe the city of Peterborough with all its attractive environments can be made to prove a wonderful conventional city, including both summer and winter seasons; the effect of this flowing population will bring much merchandising and spending by the visitors which there is no doubt would prove advantageous to all channels of commerce and trade."

VETERAN RE-ADMITTED

Blind Bostonian Will Be Allowed to Join Son in U.S.

BOSTON, March 12 (C.P.).—A blind Boston war veteran, Roy Tessier, 44, refused re-entry into the United States from Canada since last September because immigration officers decided he was an alien, hailed as "marvellous" to-day a Labor Department decision permitting his return.

Informed in Montreal of the decision, Tessier said it was "like a dream to know my wife and I will soon again be able to be with our son V. Arthur, 16, living in Somerville.

Tessier and his wife were turned back last September after a Canadian visit financed by Tessier's bonus money. He served with the American Expeditionary Force in France.

The Day That I Forget

CHAPTER 33

RUSSELL didn't say anything more to Janet while they danced but when the dance was over he led her gently out toward the garden. Then he found a bench and asked her to wait for him.

He was gone for only a little while, a little while in which Janet reflected: I will not think of Joel. If I do, I'll probably find myself crying on Russell Bede's shoulder. He's that kind of a man. He makes you want to tell him the story of your life. Janet had never met anyone before who affected her that way. It was usually Janet who did the listening.

He came back with two plates loaded with salads and sandwiches which neither of them touched.

"Now what is it that I have that disappoints you," she asked softly.

"A husband," he answered at once. "I used to think that men who made a fuss about their wives going crazy over movie heroes were stupid but now I know how they feel. Only more so."

Janet really didn't understand and said so.

"It's plain, isn't it? Why shouldn't I be jealous? There are thousands upon thousands of women who think they're in love with your husband and would lay down hearts and hands for him and he has to be married to you."

Janet laughed. "Mr. Bede, you say the nicest things!"

He groaned. "Don't, Janet. Please don't ask me an ingenue's line. One more gurgle and I'll be finished. I expect better things of you."

"All right, I'm sorry. But you mustn't expect too much of any man's wife. I'm doing the best I can pretending that I'm a femme fatale."

"You'll never have to pretend that, Janet." He never called her anything else but by her first name, then or later. "You're a dangerous woman."

She laughed sincerely then.

"Yes, you are. You're the woman that many men wait for. You're not a predatory female gotten up with blandishments. You're no cinema version, you're the real thing and when a man realizes that, he fits you into his dreams and that is what makes it fatal."

Janet said, "I have a feeling that I oughtn't to sit here and let you say things like that to me but I'm enjoying it."

He was silent then. He was thinking amazedly that perhaps she seldom heard those things. He didn't know anything about Joel Paynter—he might be a right chap—but he knew that a girl like Janet married to a man like Joel, would play a secondary part in their joint life. The compliments would be for Joel.

"What do you do when you hear there things?" he asked after a long moment.

"Do?" Janet returned thoughtfully. "Why I don't 'do' anything for the simple reason I've never heard them before. I guess the only thing I can do is to change the subject. Have you . . ?"

"Don't ask me if I've read any good books, lady, or I'll take you back to the wading pool and douse you pretty head."

Janet felt relieved that the conversation was taking a lighter turn. She said:

"I was only going to ask you if you had any idea what time the fireworks start? I've a hangover from my childhood about fireworks. I love them! I, oh! and, ah! and wait with bated breat for the American flag at the end."

Russell knew that their brief interview was over. He picked up their plates and put them on the tray on which he had brought them.

"Come on," he said. "I'll stand in back of you to catch you when you bend over to see the bursting bombs."

Yes, Janet thought, he is the kind of a man who would always be in back of a woman whenever she needed him.

But Russell wasn't in back of her for long. He was, after all, the guest picture born in her imagination. She was seeing Nina Harley and Joel together. It was Carol Grieat all over again. What were they saying? Where were they? At Nina's house a mile beyond her own where Nina would be saying, "Come in for a nightcap," or Joel would suggest stopping for something to eat.

It'll go on and on this way, she thought, and some day I'll find I've either stopped caring or else I'll blow up and scream and there'll be little bits of me like these fireworks all over the place.

She felt a little sorry for herself, thinking of her sacrifices to keep her marriage intact on the shifting sand foundation.

For the first time in the three years of her marriage, she wished that Joel were something else other than what he was. She wished that he were a . . . an instructor in a boy's school, an engineer on a train, anything but a man whose associates were beautiful women of standards different from her own. She wished that women had a little more sportsmanship and decency about other women's husbands. Particularly her own who seemed to be fair meat for every siren.

She thanked her stars, looking up toward them in the peaceful heavens above her, that she trusted Joel, that she had respect for him and faith in his faithfulness. But even as she thought that, she told herself, I don't really know.

I don't really know it and I can't bear it!

She was sitting in a chair on the veranda of the Maynard's house. In the dark there and she slipped out quickly and ran across the back lawn toward the pagnouse where she had left her bathing togs.

She got her things quickly and went toward the garages to look for her chauffeur.

She heard a whistle at her back and turned as Russell Bede came up to her.

"I lost you," he said, "But I'm taking you home if you're going."

"Yes, I'm going," she said rather breathlessly. "But do you mind if I ask you to let me go alone?"

She couldn't have him with her. She had to be alone. Emotions heretofore unexperienced had stirred her up, unbalanced her and fatigued her.

"Of course I don't mind," he said. "Not if I can see you again. May I come to call on you tomorrow?"

"I'd like to have you," she said and gave him her hand.

"Au r," he said and closed the door of her car for her.

Her thoughts, which had nothing to do with Russell Bede, beat against her temples and her heart pounded so that her head ached with a dull throbbing pain when her car swung into the drive of her house. There were lights, she noted, in her living room. It must mean that Joel was at home. Relief was painful to her. She had meant to go directly to her room and close the door without looking to see if Joel was in his room. She was so afraid he wouldn't be.

"That you, Jan?" Joel called from the living room.

She went to the door rapidly. Joel was lying on a lounge in his pajamas and robe.

"I couldn't sleep," he said. "I guess I was jealous. I got thinking about that gay chasing you around all evening. You lay off those eastern millionaires, Mrs. Paynter."

Mrs. Paynter felt as though the gates of heaven had opened to her.

Bedtime Story
By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SNOW CREAM

"Children! Children! Please be quiet!"

The Lady Mouse Teacher in the Hollow Tree School put her two poor little paws together, tied her tail in a hard knot and squeaked again in a sad voice.

"Oh, what makes you all act so disorderly?"

Well might the Lady Mouse ask that. Susie Littletail had just screamed.

"I can't help it!" said Susie. "I have to scream every time Johnny Bushytail pulls my ears."

"Johnnie! Why are you so naughty?" asked Miss Mouse.

"It was only in fun," chattered Johnnie. "I just wanted to see—OUCH!" he suddenly cried. "OUCH!"

"What's the matter?" asked poor Miss Mouse.

That's Different

"Johnnie stuck a pin in me!" cried Johnnie.

"Oh, I did not!" barked Jackie.

"What did you do?" asked the teacher.

"I stuck a NEEDLE in Johnnie. A needle's sharper than a pin," laughed the puppy.

"Oh, children! Children! please stop and be quiet!" begged Miss

Mouse again. "I never knew you to be so bad. What can I do?" she asked in a low voice, Jennie Chipmunk, the cute little cousin of Johnnie and Billie the squirrels, crept to Teacher's desk.

"Yes, Jennie, what is it?" asked Miss Mouse.

"I think," whispered Jennie, "if you would let us girls have cooking class now and——"

"Oh, Jennie! That's a fine idea!" said Miss Mouse, begging the little chipmunk's pardon for interrupting. "The boy pupils will be interested in watching you girl animals cooking in the school kitchen."

"They'll be more interested in eating what we cook," laughed the little chipmunk girl.

"Indeed they will," squeaked Miss Mouse. So she clapped her paws, loosed the knot in her tail and said: "It isn't the day for it, but we are going to have cooking class now. The girls will cook and you boys may eat."

Quiet Excitement

"Hurray!" cried the boy animals who had been cutting up. Then they all became very quiet and the girls became very busy and excited for they loved to cook.

"All march down to the kitchen!" called Miss Mouse, for the cooking class met in the basement of the school where there was a stove and things in the closet to cook, like flour and sugar and lard and eggs and milk and all like that.

But when Miss Mouse went to look in the school kitchen pantry, to her disappointment the only things left were some eggs, sugar and milk with some vanilla in a bottle.

"Oh, dear!" squeaked the Lady Mouse teacher of the Hollow Tree School, "we can't have cooking class today, I forgot. The supplies don't come until tomorrow."

For a moment it seemed as if the trouble would all start over again. But, all of a sudden Uncle Wiggily, who just then came to visit the school, popped in and said:

"Don't be disappointed. If you have eggs, sugar, milk and vanilla I will show you girls how to make snow cream, and the boys can eat it. Just wait a moment." They all became very still.

And if the dollar bill in the pocketbook will send a Bedtime Story to the penny I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's visitors.

DECIDE TO SECURE LILIES FOR EASTER

Selwyn W.A. Will Have Them Distributed To Sick After Service

(Examiner Correspondence.)

SELWYN, March 12.—The regular meeting of the Women's Association of Selwyn United Church was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Gordon Fitzgerald on Thursday. There were thirteen members and four visitors present. The president was in the chair and presided over the opening exercises.

A very beautiful duet was rendered by Mrs. Wm. Furoy and Sara Jos. Roxborough accompanied by the former's daughter, Miss Mildred Purdy. Mrs. Gilbert McIlmoyle presided at the piano for the singing of two hymns. Mrs. Furoy, secretary, also read the minutes of the last meeting.

Arrangements were made for the purchasing of Easter lilies for the church on Easter Sunday, these to be distributed among the aged and ill of the community after Easter. The roll call was answered by helpful hints in house-cleaning, which led to a discussion of a number of individual opinions.

Miss Emma Elliott very kindly invited the ladies to meet at her home for the April meeting when the roll call will be answered by the donation of an article for the sale of work by each member.

After the closing exercises very delicious sandwiches, cake and tea were served by the hostess assisted by the committee in charge, after which a social hour was spent before the ladies one by one, journeyed to their homes.

Enjoyable Party

On Friday evening last, about one hundred friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Roxborough for a jolly evening of card playing and dancing. Snappy music was supplied by Mr. Herbert McConkey and daughters Bertrice and Edna, with floor management handled by Victor Mossanus and Jim McConkey.

At midnight delicious refreshments were served and the dancing again continued until the "wee sma" hours. The local hockey team again benefitted by this social evening, as Mr. and Mrs. Roxborough also very kindly donated the remainder of the collection after expenses were paid to the aid of the hockey club.

RUSH POINT EUCHRE ENJOYABLE AFFAIR

Mr. And Mrs. J. McCutcheon Entertain Friends And Neighbors

(Examiner Correspondence.)

RUSH POINT, March 12.—The home of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. McCutcheon and family was the scene of a very happy occasion recently when they entertained their friends and neighbors at a jolly progressive euchre party. Eight tables were played. The high scores went to Miss Sylvia King and Mr. Ezra King. The consolation was awarded to Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Toms.

A dainty lunch was served at the midnight hour. The guests then enjoyed a few square dances which brought the party to a close. The guests bade good-night to their hospitable host and hostess, assuring them that they had had a real good time.

Wood in Demand.

Two large trucks, a Dodge and a new International, owned by Mr. Cecil Patterson of Norwood, have been busy for several trips each daily through Rush Point drawing huge loads of wood from north of here.

The severe turn in the weather at the present time has caused a better demand for wood. "It's an ill wind blows no one any good." Several farmers announced this morning that they could get into their swamps on solid footing and hoped the cold weather continued for some time so they could get some swamp wood out for summer fuel.

Mr. Ross Pollock of Trent River, is at Rush Point helping take out ice for the summer operations at the Rush Point creamery, owned and operated by Mr. John Pollock.

Mrs. Wm. Hedger and daughter Leila, of Campbellford, who attended the funeral on Monday of the late Mr. Harry Buchanan, motored to Rush Point after the service, to call briefly at the home of Mrs. Hedger's son, Mr. Gordon Hedger.

Mr. Albert Elliott of North School section, spent Sunday last at Rush Point. Mr. Elliott is just recovering from a severe attack of 'flu.'

Mr. Carl Ogletree, of Saskatchewan, and his sister, Mrs. Hedger, of Rush Point, were Sunday guests at the home of Mr and Mrs. Chas. O. Pecheriot.

Because of the unusually favourable condition of the country roads this winter, the Scott Home Bakery bread truck, driven by Mr. Joe Little, has continued its usual route from Havelock through Rush Point district all winter, delivering fresh baker's bread throughout the country districts as in the summer months.

Mr. Murrie Burton of Chemahill, spent Monday night at his home at Rush Point.

Mr. Ernest Curtis moved his frame house from North River through Rush Point on Wednesday of this week. Mr. Curtis has purchased a lot from Mr. Chas. Davidson on the Rush Point-Havelock road, where his house is now located. Mr. Art Russell moved the building, which was placed on skids and towed behind the truck, taking advantage of the present good sleighing.

Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Hedger left Rush Point on Wednesday for McGill's Settlement, where they expect to reside during this year.

Messrs. Fred Hewitt and Reg. Burton are frequent guests at the home of Mr. Walter Davidson of Rush Point.

Miss Celestine Seeney is teaching the Public School at Rush Point at present, due to the absence of Miss Verna Buchanan, whose mother is seriously ill. It is believed that Mrs. Buchanan's condition shows some slight improvement at the present.

Collective wage agreements in several industries of Sweden are being cancelled by workers and efforts are being made to avert strikes.

SOIL TESTS ARE OFFERED FREE

Feature Of Unusual Intsrest Is Offered At Quinte Seed Fair

A feature which will be of unusual interest to the farmers of this district who plan to attend the Bay of Quinte Seed Show in Belleville, March 17 to 19, was described by Agricultural Representative A. D. Runions to-day. Tests of soil samples for their richness in mineral content will be made free of charge for farmers wishing to bring samples by officials of the Department of Chemistry, Ontario Agricultural College.

The following directions for those wishing tests were offered: "So as to get soil samples representative of your field or fields take about a dozen of soil from 10 to 12 places distributed over your field. Mix these thoroughly on a lampanin and bring about one-half pint samples of the mixture, preferably in a small cotton bag such as a salt bag. Attach a tag which bears your name and address—Concession and Lot if possible—and bring the samples to the O.A.C. exhibit at the Seed Show. Samples will be tested and suggestions as to fertilizing will be made while the owners of the samples wait."

"In not a few sections of this province, growing crops have shown the deficiency of such mineral constituents as phosphates and potash. An increasing number of farmers are asking to have their soils tested so as to determine what is most needed. Such determinations are a distinct help to farmers in choosing suitable fertilizers."

DOURO

Word has come to friends here of the death of twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Kennedy of Detroit.

Miss Marcelle Doherty, who spent a few weeks in Toronto has returned to her home.

Miss Gertrude Barry has returned home after an extended visit with her sister Mrs. Thomas Whibbs, of Toronto.

Mr. Augustine Whibbs, Jr., has been visiting his brothers in Toronto and Buffalo.

Mrs. Frank Maher of Edmonton, is visiting at the home of her brother, Mr. William Allen, who has been ill for some time.

ALBERTA HITS CORPORATIONS IN HER BUDGET

Banks, Railways, Insurance Firms To Pay $572,000 In Treasury

SALES TAX WIDENED

Million Over-All Deficit Estimated—Close Likely By Easter

By J. F. Sanderson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

EDMONTON, March 13 (CP) — Cabinet ministers were predicting today the Alberta legislature will wind up the session by Easter, making it one of the shortest in recent years.

Provincial Treasurer Low presented an orthodox sort of budget yesterday, featuring higher taxation on corporations and an anticipated deficit. Liberal leader Bowlen will lead off the budget debate Monday but it is not expected to last long.

The biggest obstacle to early prorogation is the government's debt-reduction act which may not be introduced for another week. Blocked by the courts in one attempt to reduce debts by attacking interest rates, the government is expected to make reductions in principal.

To fill depleted coffers in the treasury, the government selected banks, railway companies, insurance companies and corporations generally as the best medium from which to raise $572,000 extra revenue.

Power Exemptions

The two per cent sales tax will remain in operation with the list of exemptions narrowed to create $450,000 more revenue this year.

Alberta will continue to pay half interest on bonds, debentures and guaranteed securities in 1937-38, Making the announcement Treasurer Low said it was impossible for the province to pay full rates, considering the whole financial picture. The saving in the full year will be $3,611,000.

The treasurer made no budget provision for sinking fund payments except on irrigation and drainage district debentures guaranteed by the government. This will result in a saving of $368,653.

Over Million Deficit

The budget estimated an overall deficit of $4,227,815 in 1937-38. Revenue was placed at $18,945,928, an increase of $246,050. Expenditures were placed at $23,080,393, representing a decrease of $1,380,813. This net of figures would result in a cash surplus of $1,985,570 at the end of the year. But capital account and statutory payments were expected to convert it into an over-all deficit.

The main taxation changes were as follows:

Banks, in addition to the present branch office levies, will be assessed one-tenth of one per cent. of their paid-up capital which will yield $150,000 extra.

Railway taxes will be increased $110,000. A flat assessment of $10,000 a mile will be set and the tax increased from one to 1½ per cent.

Taxes on insurance companies will be increased $30,000, the rate on premium collections being raised from two to three per cent.

QUEBEC LIBERALS STICK TO BOYCOTT

Duplessis Takes Advantage To Advance Bills And Pass One

QUEBEC, March 13 (C.P.). — Duration of the Liberal members' boycott of the Quebec Legislature appeared uncertain to-day as the House stood in adjournment over the week-end.

Though belief was expressed in political circles they would be back on Tuesday, no definite indication of the length of their walkout came from Opposition Leader T. D. Bouchard or the members who deserted the House with him on Thursday night.

The Liberal Leader, charging "despotism" in Premier Maurice Duplessis, had stated the Legislature no longer needed an opposition since the Premier's word was law in running the debates. The walkout had been precipitated by Duplessis' refusal to allow a Liberal member to adjourn the Throne Speech debate on Thursday night.

With the Liberals away, the Address in reply to the Speech was adopted subsequently. Also, the Union Nationale Premier seized the opportunity to put through second reading yesterday enough Bills to keep the committees working for the next two weeks.

At the same time, he got third reading for a Bill to increase the fund for rural credits from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000.

Though the Liberal "strike" held the spotlight yesterday, political interest centred over the week-end in Beauce County, where the Government is fighting to retain the seat vacated by Dr. Raoul Poulin a few months ago. The by-election is set for March 17.

Premier Duplessis will take the stump in the county for the first time on Sunday night, speaking in behalf of J. Emile Perron at Beauceville.

Four Navies Begin "Beats" Off Spanish Coast

Many Steps Remain However Before Line Can Be Drawn Tight

Britain, France Assigned Atlantic Side—Italy, Germany The Mediterranean

COMPLETE PLANS MONDAY

Frontier Agents Will Be Posted Along French, Portuguese Borders

LONDON, March 13 (AP).—The warships of four great powers—Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany—today began taking over "beats" to police the coasts of war-scarred Spain and put teeth into the 27-nation non-intervention agreements.

Further vital steps, supplementing the naval cordon, remained to be taken, however, before the "hand-off Spain" lines could be drawn tightly about the civil war.

Three newly-appointed supervisors of the international blockade, chosen as the non-intervention committee ended months of bickering over details and principles, planned to meet in London Monday to complete plans.

They must provide for recruiting of frontier agents to be stationed on the French and Portuguese borders of Spain, a task committee members believed would require at least a week.

Each of the 27 participating nations also must pass legislation or promulgate decrees requiring its ships to comply with orders of the international naval patrol. Then, the committee hoped, the flow of munitions and volunteers to Spain would be halted.

Van Dulm Directing.

The non-intervention committee chose Admiral M. H. Van Dulm, former commander of the Dutch East Indies fleet, to direct the program, and put Admiral J. S. C. Oliver, former Dutch squadron commander, in charge of the naval patrol and Col. Christian Lunn, of Denmark, in charge of the frontier guard. The patrol beats were:

Great Britain: The Biscay coast from the French frontier to Cape Busto, west of Gijon; the southern coast from the Portuguese frontier to Cape De Gata, near Almeria.

France: The north-west coast from Cape Busto to the Portuguese border; the coast of Spanish Morocco, and the Balearic Islands of Majorca and Ivisa.

Italy: The Mediterranean coast from Cape Oropesa to the French border, and the Balearic Islands of Minorca.

Germany, Italy Smash Hopes of New Locarno

REPLIES SENT BRITAIN

LONDON, March 13.—(AP)—German's strong objections, backed by Italy, to participating in a new Western European security pact along lines at present suggested were explained by German ambassador Joachim von Ribbentrop today to foreign secretary.

The German envoy called at the foreign office shortly after a plane from Berlin brought the long-awaited Locarno note reply—Germany's answer to proposals for a new pact to replace the agreement nullified by reoccupation of the Rhineland.

Hopes for a similar pact, to bolster the peace of Western Europe, seemed dashed by unofficial reports of the nature of the replies Germany and Italy handed to the British ambassadors in Rome and Berlin simultaneously.

Contents of the notes will not be disclosed officially, however, until the British foreign office has had time to study them.

The Franco-Soviet mutual assistance pact was believed in authoritative quarters to be the stumbling block cited by the two replies, both Germany and Italy refusing to enter a general European agreement until France turns her back on her Russian ally.

Grandi To Visit Britain.

Von Ribbentrop's call was expected to be followed early next week by a foreign office visit from Dino Grandi, the Italian ambassador, for further talks about the Locarno situation.

Though the German and Italian replies, answering a note Great Britain sent last November also to Belgium and France, were framed and delivered in concert, it was learned the two notes were not identical.

Germany's new policy toward Belgium—seeking an agreement with France and Britain guaranteeing Belgian neutrality, was said to have made some divergence in their answers.

Informed sources in Rome declared Italy's note contended the Franco-Soviet pact destroyed the balance of power achieved under the old Locarno treaty and that Belgium wants something for nothing—security guarantees without responsibility."

CANADIAN LEARNS FLYING IN ITALY

Youth Refused Here Finds Favor With Duce—Comes Back For Recognition

SUDBURY, Ont., March 13.—(CP).—Denied the opportunity of enlisting in the Royal Canadian Air Force, two years ago, Oscar Cecutti, 23, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Cecutti of Sudbury, returned home this week from Italy in possession of the rank of sergeant in the Italian Air Corps and holding a military flying license.

His plans on going immediately to Ottawa to interview the aviation branch of the Department of National Defence to obtain recognition of his military flying license and make plans for obtaining a commercial pilot's license in Canada. He did not lose his citizenship in order to train with the Fascist flying school.

"I'll tell you how it happened," he explained. "I was very enthusiastic about flying and I made application with the Royal Canadian Air Force for several years. But things were bad. They were laying off men. I didn't know where to turn to and had no money for the education, so I corresponded with the Italian government." Finally he "packed up and went over."

After six months in a private school at Brendisi, he entered the military flying school at Taranto in southern Italy. As a Canadian he wasn't entitled to enrolment in the school, but was enthusiastic. Permission was granted by the Minister of Aviation, Benito Mussolini.

After six months in the military flying base at Roma, where he spent his last year of training. There were 150 students in his class and the flying was all done with parasol ships.

Members Of City Council Appear Well Posted On Question Of Dress

THE City Council had no Emily Post to guide them in a brief discussion on the question of dress for the dinner to Senator Ivs. G. Fallis, but at that they seemed to be well posted.

Alderman Cotton's reception committee reported that the dinner to Peterborough's Senator would be April 12, that Mayor Macdonald would be chairman, tickets are to be sold by the Business Women's Club, and "dress would be informal."

"Informal?" queried Alderman Hamilton. That means tuxedos. It should read "optional."

"If you said optional, men would come in tails and tux and business suits," Ald. Dolan observed. "You'd have a grand assortment."

Mayor Macdonald said the committee intended to designate that ordinary every-day suits should be worn to this dinner.

"When ladies are present, dress should be formal," Ald. Dutton stated, reflecting his acquaintance with Emily or some other equally reliable social arbiter.

"I still think you should say "optional" in the invitations," Ald. Hamilton advised as he last word to the discussion.

"We'll take your word for it, but we'll leave it as it is," Mayor Macdonald decided, and "informal" it will be.

The sub-committee in charge of the dinner arrangements is composed of Mrs. Joseph Mills, Mrs. W. H. Morris, Miss Thirza Pearson and Alderman Cotton.

CITY COUNCIL REDUCES RATE TO 36.4 MILLS

Peterborough's 1937 Tax Rate Becomes One Mill Less Than Last Year

FIRST STRUCK AT 37

City Engineer's Recommendation Re Assistant Sent Back To Committee

At a special meeting Friday night the city council reduced Peterborough's tax rate to 36.4 mills, conveying to the taxpayers the net advantage of the contribution from the Ontario government equivalent to one mill.

The race has been struck at 37 mills, and Premier Hepburn's announcement of a mill subsidy presented for a few days the prospect of a substantial cut to 36 mills, but in the meantime it was learned that the government's assumption of the entire cost of old age pensions and mothers' allowances did not take effect until April 1. The council had anticipated release from that expenditure for the entire year, and in the final readjustment of the rate Friday night two-fifths of a mill had to be added to provide for the city's part of the cost of these services for the first quarter.

The net gain to the ratepayers of the government's assistance is three fifth's of a mill, and Peterborough's rate thus becomes one mill less than last year. The city hall staff can now proceed with the clerical work of preparing the tax bills for the first instalment of taxes due on July 2.

Back to Committee

A clause in the Board of Works report approving City Engineer Parsons' recommendation for the appointment of an assistant for the vacant position of street commissioner was referred back to the Board on Alderman Hamilton's amendment, seconded by Alderman Wilson. Ald. McIntyre had proposed to the Board meeting that Fred T. Rugey be appointed street commissioner. He objected to the adoption of Alderman Sloan's report on the ground that all the aldermen were not present at the meeting of the Board. Alderman Gordon was not present Friday night.

"I don't see any harm in this matter going back to the committee," Alderman Hamilton said.

"Are you going to send things back because some member is absent," Mayor Macdonald commented.

"I think it is too serious a question to jump at, especially according to opinions expressed by citizens," Alderman Wilson said.

The McIntyre-Wilson amendment carried.

Let Painting Contract

With several extras increasing the cost by $15, the contract for painting the public rest room at the market was let to F. R. J. McPherson and Son for $178, Alderman McIntyre informed the council. As chairman of the property committee he was given authority earlier in the week to consult four of the painters who submitted tenders and get their prices for the extras which supplemented the proposed work.

Alderman Sloan was authorized to call for tenders for the construction of a dressing room at King Edward Park. The bids will be invited for the general contract, plumbing and wiring separately. Aldermen McIntyre and Sloan and City Engineer Parsons were also empowered to revise the plans of the building.

CHRYSLER STRIKE INVOLVING 60,000 NEAR SHOWDOWN

Union's G.M. Settlement Fails To Include Minimum Hourly Wage, 30-Hour Week

WALKOUTS DOT NATION

CHICAGO, March 13 (AP).—The Chrysler Motor Corporation's dispute with union leaders, major eyesore in the United States industrial landscape, approached a showdown today.

Sixty thousand idle workers were involved in the Corporation's projected injunctive proceedings aimed at removal of 5,000 strikers who have held its eight Detroit plants for a week.

Insistence by the United Automobile Workers of America on recognition as exclusive bargaining agency and a thirty hour week with $5 minimum daily wage and a 30-hour week. It arranged for a "grievance procedure" under which plants would be operated pending adjudication of future disputes.

Sit-down strikes arising from the U.A.W.A. demand for exclusive bargaining rights kept the Hudson Motor Company plants at Detroit and the Reo Motor Car Company plants at Lansing, Mich., closed. Ten thousand Hudson workers and 2,200 Reo employees were involved. There was no settlement in sight for either dispute.

The impasse in the dispute at the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, Akron, O., persisted, keeping 11,500 workers idle.

Strike leaders planned to push their fight for union recognition as sole bargaining agent through a seven-man strategy board.

Chicago was plagued with 12 sit-down strikes and walkouts. Two non-strikers were injured and an oil-soaked cab was burned in clashes with striking taxicab drivers, who were among more than 9,000 per-

FOUND IN HORSE STALL

Bloodstained Hammer And Rock Are Nearby—Motive a Mystery

SARNIA, Ont., March 13 (C.P.). — John Luckins, seven-year-old victim of an assault at his Sarnia Township home, is not expected to survive the day, it was learned today, Dr. Gordon Scarrow, attending physician, said the lad had a fracture on the right side of the skull, three other deep gashes in the head and one over the eye.

SARNIA, Ont., March 13.—(CP)— Provincial Police to-day arrested William Labadie, 17, at the home of his grandfather, one and a half miles east of Brigden, in connection with an assault on John Luckins, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Luckins, Sarnia township.

Labadie, a farm hand employed on the Luckins farm, was brought to the city police station. Police said he had two shot guns in his possession.

Meantime Luking lies in a critical condition at Sarnia General Hospital with head injures, believed inflicted with a rock and a hammer.

A worker on the dairy farm, Labadie was missed yesterday when an older brother found John's bleeding body in a horse stall, his hands and feet bound with rope. A blood-stained hammer lay in a nearby manner.

In announcing the disappearance of Labadie, police said it was believed a shotgun and a supply of ammunition had been taken from the farm. Labadie was alone on the premises when young John came home from school. Attracted by moans, Tom Luckins, 20, found the boy when he returned from work late yesterday.

Four Deep Gashes

Brought to hospital here, the boy was found to have suffered three deep gashes on the head and another over the left eye. No motive for the attack was known. The telephone in the Luckin home had been ripped from the wall and Tom carried John nearly a mile to another farm, from which a doctor was summoned from Brigden.

Earlier in the day, Labadie and the older Luckin boy worked together in a gravel pit. After lunch, Thomas returned to the pit alone, leaving Labadie on the farm to attend to the chores. The parents were absent. Thomas was unable to locate Labadie when he came home, and found the youngster semi-conscious, buried in straw in the horse box of the Luckin stable.

The injured boy lapsed into unconsciousness when brought to Sarnia General Hospital. Police said that as far as they know, the boy had not been criminally assaulted.

BRITAIN FIXING AIRCRAFT PRICES

Aim To Ban Profiteering During Expansion Of Royal Air Force

By George Hutchison
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, March 13 (CP Cable)— The air ministry agreed with aircraft manufacturing firms today on procedure for fixing aircraft prices during the period of expansion of the Royal Air Force. The purpose is to bar profiteering.

In the case of new airplanes, earlier deliveries under contracts will be paid for at actual cost plus an agreed rate of profit of not less than five per cent. If sufficient information is then obtained or is available, a fixed price will be agreed upon for the remainder of the contract. When this is not possible the price will be based on the actual cost in a manner designed to control the rate of profit and also give incentive to economy.

The agreement provides the air ministry shall have full access to a firm's books and cost records. It also makes provision for payment of fair and reasonable compensation in the event of loss to the contractor either (1) through exercise by the air ministry of its agreed power to terminate expanded contracts or (2) in connection with capital assets acquired for the expansion program but proved to be surplus after its completion.

Coronation Memorable Day For Canadian Municipalities

Nationally-Proclaimed Holiday Held Certain With Celebrations In Every Town

FIRST IN 26 YEARS

TORONTO, March 13 (C.P.). — For the first time in 26 years Canada will unite on May 12 to celebrate the Coronation of a new King, George VI., first crowned successor of his "country-squire" father, George V., whose death on January 20, 1936, grieved an Empire and the world.

In Ottawa, the nation's Capital, and most other centres plans remained in formative stages, but most provincial and municipal governments appeared determined to make the occasion a memorable one for citizens and children especially.

The Dominion Government has not yet proclaimed the day a holiday, but it has decided to send a considerable parliamentary delegation to the ceremonies in London and to the Imperial Conference that will follow the Coronation.

Church authorities already have indicated bells will ring throughout the land and worshippers flock to offer prayers for the reign of the slim young man who will head the Empire in place of his kindly father and the elder brother who rent the title of King for a few months before abdicating.

Cutting Edward Off Cashless Branded Height Of Meanness

Scandalous Says Lloyd George About To Protest To Civil List Officials

"VINDICTIVE TORCH"

LONDON, March 13 — (AP). — David Lloyd George characterized the Duke of Windsor's financial future to-day with the assertion that cutting him off from the royal purse would be "the height of meanness."

The News-Chronicle said the elder statesman would protest to the committee which is to consider the King's civil list against any lack of provision for the abdicated monarch.

Lloyd George, who will be a member of the committee, said: "It is scandalous if the ex-king is left out," adding:

"All the members of the royal family have been provided for except the ex-king, who, it is generally admitted, behaved very decently.

"He abdicated in order to make no difficulty for the reigning king; if there is made an invention of any sort for him—well, it is the height of meanness. There is a touch of vindictiveness about it."

The Duke, meanwhile, was reported to have decided to purchase a $30,000 airplane after selling a $250,000 steam yacht which he had won 26,000 miles cost $25,000 in 1929.

The new ship is being tested at Portsmouth by Captain Edward Fielden, who was "Captain of the King's Flight" when Edward was king. It will have a maximum speed of 216 miles an hour, and a "bachelor cabin monoplane with two engines and seats for six."

Unanimous Approval Is Given Bill To Set Up Industry, Labor Board

Chief Duty Will Be To Regulate Wages Of 400,000 Employees

SEVEN MEN IN CONTROL

Bill To Abolish Speed Limit In Ontario Is Introduced In House

TORONTO, March 13 (CP)—Legislative action was complete today for establishment of an industry and labor board to have general regulation of Ontario industry. Unanimous approval was given on third reading by the Ontario legislature yesterday.

Hon. David Croll, Labor Minister, on his 37th birthday, had the pleasure of seeing the important social legislation pass without opposition. Chief duty of the new board will be to set minimum wage rates for 400,000 Ontario workers who will come within the scope of the minimum wage bill now before the House.

The government will keep control of the board and be responsible for it. Three of its five members will be named by the cabinet. Labor will name one and employers one.

Recently - negotiated agreement between the Ottawa Valley Power Company and the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission was introduced for approval. Mr. Roebuck said its constitutional validity was open to question but provided for mutual action in case difficulties should arise.

The new agreement amends one originally made in 1931 for 40 years. Life of the agreement remains the same but many of its terms have been altered. The original agreement was declared null by the legislature but upheld in the courts. The amending agreement ended litigation between the two parties over the original contract.

End Of The Speed Limit

Next week the House will have a debate on abolishing the 35-mile speed limit on Ontario highways. A bill to abolish the limit was introduced by James Clark (Lib., Windsor-Sandwich). The government has refused to sponsor the measure but may permit a non-party vote on it.

The municipal franchise would be taken from those who obtained it because they paid income tax under a government bill brought in yesterday. Mr. Croll said assumption of the income tax by the province means payers of it made no direct contribution to municipal treasuries and there was no reason left for giving them the municipal vote.

The House passed a measure to enable municipal councils to exempt farmers and others from assessments made to provide public sanitary conveniences at summer resorts.

Hon. W. D. Smith (Lib., Dufferin-Simcoe), father of the measure, cited Wasaga Beach as a place which has worked an injustice on farmers in the townships in which it is located. The farmers seldom use the beach but have been assessed to provide conveniences for the thousands of city-dwellers who do. Under the amendment a municipal council will be enabled to make holders of property in the area particularly benefitted pay for such conveniences.

SMALL LOAN BILLS BITTERLY SCORED IN HOUSE DEBATE

One Sponsored By J. J. Duffus To Come Up Later—Be Referred To Committee

BRAND INTEREST TOO HIGH

OTTAWA, March 13. — (CP) — Small loan companies were described as "sharks" and their conduct as "legalized robbery" as members of the House of Commons last night divided on a motion for the second reading of a private bill respecting the Industrial Loan and Finance Corporation. On a non-party vote of 53 to 48 the motion for second reading was adopted after considerable debate.

Two bills of a similar nature were up for second reading and the debate was on both. Finance Minister Dunning suggesting that they be given second reading and sent to committee. Sixteen Liberals voted with the opposition which urged no further legislation be given these companies pending passage of a general act dealing with small loan companies.

Only the bill first moved was officially dealt with on the records of the House. The second will be moved when private bills are up for consideration again, and probably will go to committee without debate. The hour for private bills had expired when the first measure had been dealt with.

Bill of J. J. Duffus

Both bills had passed the senate before coming to the House of Commons. One sponsored by Thomas Vien (Lib., Montreal - Outremont) would modify the rights of the Industrial Loan and Finance Corporation respecting loans and charges, making the aggregate charge not more than two per cent per month. The other, sponsored in the Commons by J. J. Duffus (Lib. Peterborough West) would also fix a flat monthly rate of charges and increase the capital of the Central Finance Corporation. It also provided for a change in the name to the Household Finance Corporation.

When Mr. Vien moved second reading of his bill Finance Minister Dunning suggested that both be considered together and that, without committing the House, they be

Chicago's Underground Freight System Tied Up

While a taxi-cab tie-up still hampered the city's street transportation system, 450 underground tunnel workers went on strike in Chicago, paralysing the city's $30,000,000 underground freight transportation network and leaving thousands of dollars worth of perishable goods standing on warehouse terminals. Huge quantities of ashes, cinders and garbage usually removed from hotels and restaurants by the underground method were piling up while the strikers, clad in heavy clothing to resist the underground chill, held the freight system idle. A group of strikers are shown here munching sandwiches and drinking coffee supplied by sympathisers.

SHEA HOME SCENE OF FINE MEETING

Members Of Fleetwood United Women's Association Are Hospitably Entertained

(Examiner Correspondence.)

FLEETWOOD, March 13. — The Women's Association of Fleetwood United Church were entertained on Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Shea with an attendance of twenty-five members and friends. The ladies assembled early in the evening for their regular monthly session with the president, Mrs. Clare Staples in the chair. The regular devotional period was conducted including hymn, prayer and responsive reading of a psalm.

The treasurer gave a detailed report regarding the pot luck dinner held in connection with the annual church meeting in February. It was found that a balance of over eight dollars remained over, all expenses to be added to the W.A. treasury.

It was unanimously agreed that the April meeting be dispensed with owing to customary bad road conditions. Mrs. Albert Sutton's invitation to hold the May meeting at her home was gratefully accepted, the topic to be used for roll call answers to be "Gift."

By motion of Mrs. Grandy and Mrs. Armitage it was decided to send a treat to a youth of the community who has been confined to hospital for several weeks.

At the conclusion of this business session, the pastor, Rev. Ferguson, acted as chairman for a very interesting program. A pleasing quartet was rendered by Mr. and Mrs. Victor Grandy and Mr. and Mrs. Ted Welsh.

A harmonica duet was played by Miss Evelyn Tinney and Ted Welsh. Mrs. A. Sutton contributed a fine reading.

A duet was well received from Mr. and Mrs. T. Welsh. Two delightful novel contests had been arranged by the ladies and were much enjoyed. The quartet favored the gathering with a second number. The pastor, assisted by Mrs. Ferguson led in community singing of Negro Spiritual and other appropriate songs. At the close of the program a liberal silver collection was received.

The sponsoring society then served lunch which had been brought in generous quantities and appetising qualities. All enjoyed a jolly sociable time over the cup of coffee.

Mr. and Mrs. Shea were warmly thanked for their kind hospitality in opening their home for this happy social occasion which is eagerly anticipated each year at this particular season.

CO-OPERATIVE PLAN GROWING

NOVA SCOTIA AREA

CHARLOTTETOWN, March 13 (CP)—The Co-operative Movement had made considerable progress in Nova Scotia during the last seven years, Prof. C. C. Eidt, Assistant Superintendent of the Dominion Experimental Station at Kentville, N.S., said at a meeting here.

There were three plants canning beans; four plums on an extensive scale, while raspberries, pears, apples and vegetables, such as carrots and beets, were being put up, he said. Beans were canned commercially and semi-commercially.

"In 1930 there was only one plant canning apples, but now there are seven, the pack having increased from 10,000 cases in 1930 to an estimated 30,000 this year.

"It is proposed to have the canning done co-operatively, the product to be up to the Government standard, sold on Government label and under Government inspection with Government supervision.

"Better beans can be grown in the Maritime Provinces than in any other part of Canada, and so far there has been no difficulty whatever in selling the product," Prof. Eidt said.

"In view of the fact that a great deal of our canned fruit and vegetables are now imported from Upper Canada, the possibilities in developing this industry in the Maritime Provinces are quite obvious," he said.

TOP HAT IS FINE UNDER THE LADDER

Eton College Paper Rises To Defence Of Traditional Apparel

LONDON, March 13 (CP)—The Eton College Chronicle has had something to say on top hats, jackets and tails. So far from making men look as much alike as a pack of hounds, they are "really very individual."

To quote The Chronicle on the "toppers": "As a covering for the head it is well suited to the pavements of Eton, which seem continuously to be spanned by ladders. It is quite a long walk around the foot of all these ladders, and as Etonians rarely find their superstitious fears equal to their dislike of wasting energy, they pass underneath in a continuous stream, knowing well that several inches of top hat stands (or does a hat only sit?) between their head and the proverbial paint-pot."

And on other items of dress: "The Eton society...tell each other by their waistcoats. Strangers motoring along towards Windsor are often seen to swerve involuntarily when confronted by a row of 18th-century figures so gorgeously clad round the middle... The waistcoats are of all shades and materials. Those who like stroking their stomachs after meals wear velvet, and those who take a pride in their figure, satin. One gentleman, no doubt a lover of wine, keeps the memory of Bacchus alive during the half by wearing a claret-colored emblem ever round him."

TWEEDSMUIR WILL VISIT ROOSEVELT

First Canadian Governor-General To Officially Call At White House

WASHINGTON, March 13 (A.P.). —The coming White House visit of Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General of Canada, brought renewed speculation to-day on the possibility of a St. Lawrence Waterway agreement.

Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir, it was announced in Ottawa, will be overnight guests of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt on March 31.

The Governor-General's call follows a recent visit by Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King. President Roosevelt said afterward that they had discussed the St. Lawrence proposal, as well as matters of world interest.

Mr. Roosevelt added, however, he did not know whether the St. Lawrence Treaty would be submitted to the United States Senate at this session. Ratification was defeated in 1935. The waterway would connect the Great Lakes with the sea and provide water power as well.

Lord Tweedsmuir will be the first Canadian Governor-General to make an official call at the White House. The Marquis of Willingdon, Governor-General from 1926 to 1931, made a private trip to Washington but stayed at the Canadian Legation.

Chicago, March 13

JOHN Weigan, 31, sat in a cell today trying to think up a new twist for a sit-down strike which would bring a reconciliation with his wife, Elizabeth, 28.

His first attempt, in which he placed his four children on the doorstep of his mother and father-in-law, ended in his arrest for disorderly conduct.

It seems Weigan's wife went home to mother, leaving the children behind. John took Jack, 3½ years; Fred, 2½; Dolores, 1½, and Robert, 6 months, to their grandparents' home. He placed them on the porch in the hope, he said, that their wailing would soften his wife's heart. Instead it further estranged the grandparents, who caused Weigan's arrest.

EVANSVILLE, Wis., March 13.—(CP).—What probably could pass as the youngest known strike on record was reported by Miss Phillips, kindergarten instructor.

Questioned, the tots explained they were having a sit-down strike "for fun." Negotiations were suspended.

SOCIAL CREDIT LURE

Foreign-Born Seek Naturalization In Alberta.

EDMONTON, March 12.—Demand for naturalization, much greater in Alberta since advent of Social Credit is reviving again, following a slump during November and December. In January 178 foreign-born residents made applications.

Prospect of social credit dividends —and to a lesser extent desire for protection against deportation—resulted in an unprecedented wave of applications starting early in 1935 and reaching a peak in September, 1936 when 300, an all-time record, was made.

In August and October residents made 250 and 219 applications, respectively, but following the September record, applications fell off to 116 in November and 97 in December.

Sabbath Message For the Shut-Ins

THE LORD'S PRAYER.

We have two accounts of this prayer in the Gospels. St. Mark 6, St. Luke 11. St. Luke's is the shorter. According to conservative modern critics St. Luke may have copied it from a wonderful little book which was probably written by St. Matthew during the days of Our Lord's ministry. It was a sort of diary. It has been lost. The Emperor Diocletian about 300 A.D. ordered the Christian Scriptures and writings to be burnt. Very probably the last copy of this precious book, which scholars call "The Discourses," was then destroyed. On the other hand it may be discovered some day and then it will be News on the front pages of our papers.

The Prayer is very short — 39 words in St. Luke's and 55 in St. Matthew's accounts. It is at the same time very simple. It was intended for plain, everyday people. It is a very human prayer. It centres around the home and family. Our age looks upon the home as merely a place to eat and sleep and to get away from as soon as possible. There is very little home life, and this Prayer is a call to return. A great student of mankind has pointed out that man's rise from savagery has been largely due to the human babe. Its weakness, its helplessness has naturally developed care, love, gentleness, unselfishness on the part of parents. "For his sake I consecrate myself" has been the uppermost thought in the heart of a man as he looked upon a little bundle of humanity, his son, his daughter.

This Prayer, being a family Prayer, is divided into two simple, natural parts. "What the father expects of the son" and "What the son expects of the father." Next week we hope to develop the second part.

What the Father Expects of the Son.

1—Reverence. "Hallowed be Thy Name." Reverence for authority is the rock upon which the best and highest family and social life is built. The family is the unit of true civilization. The unrest and revolutionary ideas all around us are due to the breakdown of authority in the home. There never was a time when parents did so much for the children and received so little respect in return. Perhaps the parents are to blame. It was the reaction from the harsh and bitter rule of our parents whose motto was: "The child should be seen and not heard," and the daily proverb: "Spare the rod and spoil the child."

The Chinese have for centuries developed a great and extraordinary respect for their parents. Reverence for the father's will was instilled into the child from a very early age. Perhaps when the Chinese as a nation becomes Christian this will be its contribution to the Universal Church; its reverence for parents, for authority. This naturally implies the widening of the Father's rule: "Thy Kingdom come."

2—Obedience. "Thy will be done." Obedience is the natural law in the family. There must be harmony and all true harmony comes from obedience to rules. Every musician and artist knows this. The wise and loving parent's expect obedience. "You can bend a twig without breaking it."

This obedience must have two parts. There is the active obedience. "Son, go work to-day in my vineyard." "This is the way; walk ye in it." Do you go to church to worship the Heavenly Father? "Thou shalt worship the Lord Thy God." Do you give heed to His written Word? "Thy Word have I hid within my heart that I might not sin against Thee." The voice of the Spirit is daily telling you your duty. He has opened your ears morning by morning that you may be growing in the likeness of the Father and proving your appreciation of the Father by your obedience. "Not everyone that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the Kingdom of Heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father." Are you holding up the Father's reputation by "magnifying His Name," by letting others see how much you think of Him through your loving obedience? There were two boys in a home. One of them was tired of the obedience and discipline of the home. He asked his father for his share. "Give me the portion of the goods that falleth to me." The father knew the character of the son, yet he gave him his share. You know what he did with it.

There is passive obedience. "Lo, I come to do Thy will, O my God; I am content to do it." The very expression "content" implies that the obedience is not easy or pleasant. "Nevertheless, not my will but Thine be done" is the prayer of Our Lord in Gethsemane. Some great sorrow may come into your life, some long sickness, some disaster. You have to be still, to drink the cup of pain and woe. His hands as he holds the cup to you are wounded hands, the wounded hands of the God-Man. He knows, He understands how hard it is to obey. You drink. This is passive obedience. It is harder to bear than to dare and to do great things for the Lord Christ. On the Cross the Lord faced the horror of apparent failure. "He trusted in God, let God now deliver Him, if He will have Him," cried the Scribes and Pharisees as they looked upon the Innocent Victim.

"The healing of the seamless dress
Is by our beds of pain;
We touch Him in life's throng and press,
And we are whole again."
—Whittier.

A National Message

Speaking to a group of some thirty-five clergymen and ministers some time ago, our amusement was aroused when a highly placed ecclesiastic, opposing, said: "He talks of Isaiah as though it were a precipitity book, whereas everybody who knows anything knows that the Isaiah literature was produced after the captivity."

We accepted the challenge. We said in effect: "You, sir, are quoting from a ready-made form of interpretation. This is not the result of your own investigation, nor of the investigation of any Anglo-Saxon school. Your position may pass among theologians, for the logical faculty is not as highly developed among them as is the critical faculty, so-called. I meet you with the results of personal investigation, among a school of those who personally investigate that which they hold and teach. While your position may pass, and indeed does pass among many theologians, it cannot endure for a moment, under the investigation of scientists; or of theologians using the methods of science."

"There is built into the literature of Isaiah, absolute demonstration of the period of history during which that literature was produced. From the demonstration so included in the literature, it is impossible for the scientific mind to escape. Such tests are many, and they are mostly simple. We shall take time to mention two.

Take up the book of Isaiah, even casually, and there appears on the face of it, as the foundation and background of what has been written there, the political geography of the world as then constituted. It is not necessary to go farther than to read the names and addresses of the rulers, governments, and peoples, to whom the various messages are sent. It will be found that there is a distinct measure for each nation then on the political map of the world. One can reconstruct that political map of the world from such messages.

That political map of the world existed from about 850 B.C. to 740 B.C. (circa). After that, the political map of the world was changed. The including of these things in the Isaiah literature was accidental and invisible. Rulers and peoples were addressed as they stood forth before the mind of the prophet.

Therefore we know that the literature was produced DURING THE LIFETIME OF THE NATIONS REFERRED TO; and during the continuance of the political map of the world therein portrayed. Because that political map of the world ended in the eighth century before Christ. The whole political map of the world was changed by the expansion of Assyria; and thereafter by the overthrow of Assyria and the rise of Babylon. (Reprinted from the "National Message.")

"Jesus Praying for His Disciples"

"BRASS TACKS" ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for March 14 is the sixteenth and seventeenth chapters of John, especially John 16:5-7; 17:14-24, the Golden Text being 17:22: "That they may be one, even as we are one.")

JOHN 16 18 the Bible's greatest chapter on the Holy Spirit and his ministry, and John 17 is our Lord's great high-priestly prayer. Both are a part of his last words spoken before going out to Gethsemane and on to Calvary.

The Spirit's Greater Ministry.

Our Lord did his utmost to prepare his disciples for the time when they would no longer have his bodily presence as their comfort. He did this by revealing to them how the Holy Spirit's coming would much more than make up for the removal of his bodily presence. As Jesus had been called to their side and had been a genuine "standby," and "advocate" and a comforter to them, so he would pray the Father to send them "another comforter," even the Spirit of truth who would be with them forever. "I tell you the truth; it is expedient for you that I go away; for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you; but if I go, I will send him unto you." His ministry would be to convict the world of its sin of unbelief, and of Christ's righteousness, available through faith for the covering of sin, and also of Christ's complete triumph over Satan not only for himself, but for all believers as well. Our Lord had been unable while with his disciples in bodily form, to make these truths as clear to them as he wished. Now the Holy Spirit would "guide them into all truth," and thus truly glorify Christ, and make his spiritual presence mean more to them than his bodily presence ever had meant or ever could mean.

The High-Priestly Prayer.

Standing before his cross as a high priest before the altar, our Lord offered up the great priestly prayer of John 17. Here he prays, sins for himself, that he might glorify God; "Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that the Son may glorify thee." Then he prayed for his disciples: "I pray for them.....I pray not that thou shouldst take them from the world, but that thou shouldst keep them from the evil one.....sanctify them in the truth; thy word is truth." He prayed that they might be missionaries as he had been: "As thou didst send me into the world, even so sent I them into the world." He prayed also for the church that should follow his disciples: "Neither for these only do I pray, but for them also that believe on me through their word." He prayed that his church might preserve the divine harmony and unity seen in him: "That they may all be one; even as thou Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us, and the world may believe that thou didst send me." So he prayed for the world for which on the next day he was to die on the cross: "That the world may know that thou didst send me, and lovedst them, even as thou lovedst me." He prayed that all might be saved and brought into eternal fellowship with him: "Father, I desire that they also whom thou hast given me be with me where I am, that they may behold my glory." What are we doing to speed the answer to this our Lord's great prayer in our behalf and the world's?

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

"It is the teaching of financiers and statesmen, and of those who make laws, and of most religionists, that of all things a man should first seek safety—for his own skin—for his own money—for his own soul. Yet I find this teaching strange; because of all the dangers in the universe, the greatest lies in self-preferment." (From the Book of the Sayings of Tsiang Samdup.)

It would be well to meditate upon this extract from the ancient teachings because strange as it may seem to us in these days, it is true. Jesus taught it, Gautama, the Buddha, enunciated it centuries before, and the sages of India and Egypt in the dim ages past also taught it. As they received it so also did they hand it on. Nor could they do otherwise for it is a primal truth based securely upon the fundamental and mutual relationship of God and man. "He that loveth his life shall lose it" and he who seeks the safety of his soul (to use popular terms) for selfish motives only, is in truth the farthest away from God. The motive power of the soul is love but if our love is motivated by self it is not and cannot be a true reflection of the Love of He who is in Himself Light, Life and Love for it is but a mockery. To love all men, good or bad, friends or enemies in the same way as we are loved is but the A, B, C of those who seek the mystic path. Freedom is not attained in any other way. It is difficult but the Master never implied that the Way of the Cross was easy, in fact quite the reverse for "few there are who find it," but the difficulty is in self not in God. Man is either a child of God fitting himself for his inheritance or he is just plain brute, often even lower than the brute.

It is said in the East that when a man has trodden the way life after life, and has by stress and trial successfully overcome, at least reached such a stage of perfection that he may be freed from earth life, he undergoes one last subtle test. Shall he enter into the endless bliss of Nirvana, of conscious unity with God, or shall he renounce heaven for himself and return to earth there to serve humanity until the last human being is redeemed. Whether this be literally true or not, it serves to illustrate in no uncertain way, the selfless love which is of God. You see it is not a question of belief in this or that, it is a matter of being a servant, not because one loves to serve but because one loves those he serves. It is a vital distinction. Love is the only sanity in an otherwise insane world. We may say Lord! Lord! We may pride ourselves upon our orthodoxy, our fundamentalism, our modernism or whatever theological bee we may have in our bonnets, but all that is nothing. If we are Christ-like we must necessarily be brothers to all men and love the sinners even more than the saints, for they need it more. The only thing that matters is not what a man has nor what a man has done, but what he really is and what he may become.

Plenty of room for dives and dens

Plenty of room for prison-pens
(Let our young criminals in)
Plenty of room for jails and courts
(We're willing enough to pay)
But Christ and His Church are left in the lurch
We haven't got time to pray.

Plenty of room for schools and halls,
Plenty of room for art;
Plenty of room for teas and balls,

But God help her for her indifference
When she gets the bills to pay.

Oranges And Browns General In Television 'Stars' Make-Up

NEW YORK, March 13.—(CP).—The television beauty is on the way and, thanks to make-up, she may surpass even the comeliest movie queens. She will have an exaggerated sun tan with a luscious mouth, gorgeous hair and large lustrous eyes. She is developing in the experimental field tests which engineers are conducting.

Oranges and browns predominate in television make-up which has to be different because the electric camera is choosey about certain colors. Red shows up white, hence brown lipstick is used with just enough red for feminine vanity.

Betty Goodwin, writer used considerably in the tests, tells how the make-up man prepares her for the air: "First, he places an even coating of orange-tinted foundation cream all over my face. Then my mouth is pencilled in, a bit larger than natural and with a dark reddish brown lip rouge. The outline is made with a fine brush, then the color is solidly filled in.

"Of course, nicely-shaped black eyebrows are essential to accentuate the eyes, even for blondes like me. A brush puts them on. This part completed, a heavy layer of orange-tinted powder goes on, with the surplus brushed off. There must be no shine on my face, or the camera will pick it up. After that, a final patting to be sure the surface is evenly powdered.

"Finally, my hair is brushed and fluffed out, to catch the studio lights. Tightly-combed hair makes one look bald."

When she acts, she must go through her part without a stop, for there can be no retakes in television as in the movies.

Even the male announcers must wear make-up.

Jesus Praying for His Disciples
Scripture—John—Sixteenth and Seventeenth Chapters.
By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

As Jesus sat with his disciples about the table he told them he was going back to his Father in heaven. This made them sad, for they felt they would be helpless without his presence with them.

He promised to send upon them the Holy Spirit as an ever present "Comforter" to guide them into all truth, and make Christ more real to them than when he was with them in bodily form.

Then Jesus prayed, first that he might glorify his Father by his death on the cross. Then he prayed for his disciples that they might be kept from evil by his word.

Then he prayed for the church to years to follow that it might be kept in unity and in harmony with God, and for the world that it might be saved. (GOLDEN TEXT—John 17:22)

Matches Get the Blame

Ontario Brotherhood of Threshermen in session at Waterloo heard interesting figures regarding frequency and extent of threshing fires. During 1935 season there were 62 fires and property loss was $108,000. In 1936 there were 33 fires and property loss of $113,000.

A reduction of that sort might be considered satisfactory unless one heard also that in United States last year there was but one fire during a threshing while in our province alone there were 33.

Something more: The number of threshing fires in Ontario is greater than the total of all other provinces combined.

There was a time when there was always doubt regarding the manner in which these fires started. In nearly every case it was in the mow and there was always some person ready to say that what looked like a ball of fire came out of the blower. With dust and loose straw and the wind from the blower it was impossible to check such a fire and workers had trouble enough making their escape.

At the Waterloo convention it was stated that 90 per cent. of the fires during threshing came from matches. If the cause can be as definitely stated as that the cure should be comparatively simple. Simply this: Get rid of all matches before going to a threshing and have no smoking in or around the barn. That would not be much to ask, and any farmer going to a threshing would be willing to abide by such a ruling rather than endanger his neighbor's property. If it is known that 90 per cent. of fires start from matches, then it should be possible to eliminate 90 per cent. of the fires.

Forecasting the Weather

Dr. J. Patterson, director of the Meteorological Service of Canada, told Peterborough engineers it was not possible to predict weather more than 24 to 36 hours in advance. It is more correct at 24 hours than at 36. A statement from such a recognized authority cuts deep into the confidence which once was placed in the almanac. That little book used to tell the weather for an entire year in advance.

It may be difficult to tell what the day will bring forth, but now and then one encounters an outdoor person who can predict weather with a degree of accuracy which is surprising. We have in mind a fisherman on one of our Great lakes. During one of the dry summers he contended it was not going to rain even when the clouds rode heavy in the sky. Then one day he came out with the statement there would be rain inside of 24 hours. How did he know? There was a railway bridge a few miles distant over which a train passed at the same hour each morning. When he was able to hear the rumble of the train going over that bridge he was certain rain was not far off. And his method was correct on nearly every occasion. He gained quite a reputation in his own locality and seemed to enjoy it.

Other people who live in the open have their own reasons for anticipating weather changes. An Indian from Burleigh Falls informed an Examiner man on an early June day last year that it would be safe enough to start off on a day's trip, although it looked like thunder storm weather. Throughout the day one could hear the rumble of thunder, but there was no storm and no rain. The same Indian was in this office about three weeks later and volunteered the information it would rain the next day. It did. Asked how he could tell weather in advance, he said plainly he did not know how to explain it, but his two samples of weather prophecy had been unfailingly correct.

The service which comes from the department over which Dr. Patterson presides gives accuracy in prediction as far as it is humanly possible to do so. In Peterborough it has never been definitely determined whether predictions for Lower Lakes and Georgian Bay affect us entirely, or whether we come in the area described as Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley. Probably we are somewhat in between.

If They Would Keep Quiet

The Examiner has stated before that certain people could perform a greater service for society and friendly feeling by keeping silent instead of breaking forth in inflammatory speech. On that occasion this paper had reference to the address which Mayor LaGuardia of New York made regarding Hitler of Germany. It is worth considering once more.

The German government, through its embassy in Washington made complaint, and explanation and apology were offered through recognized channels, and in due course reached Berlin.

The fact that apology was made annoyed many people in United States, and that number included all Jewish residents. They wanted the remarks of New York's mayor to stand; they endorsed every word he had said.

Meantime German newspapers grew increasingly bitter toward Mayor LaGuardia and toward United States in general. United States government agents compiled a folio of such newspaper utterances, and they were so bitter that U. S. Secretary of State Cordell instructed the U. S. ambassador in Berlin to protest at once and directly to the foreign office and ask for an apology from Germany.

The result of that one speech has been that thousands of people in United States and thousands in Germany have been stirred up and riled up to the point of hatred, of which thing there is far too much in the world at any time. And particularly now. We might get along with the day's business much better if many of our world speakers would be content to sit back on their haunches and keep their wiggling tongues within the limits of their cheek.

If Jim Had Been There!

Just when Jim Curran of the Sault Ste. Marie Star was getting ready to celebrate the 25th anniversary of his paper things began to go haywire. The wolves in the pen at the park broke loose. We read they shoved so hard on the gate that the thing either opened or fell down. We can understand how that might happen, having seen in other days hens and pigs and even cows come through gates of our own strengthening.

For years the Sault Star has maintained the wolf is harmless. Jim Curran has never been et by a wolf himself, therefore he assures the world that no person else would be et. He has posted an offer of $100 for any person who has been et and no person has ever claimed the reward.

But when these wolves started to move about in their new-found freedom at the Sault the natives reached for their muskets, and five Lupuses (that is plural of Lupus) were bowled over. The man who fed the wolves every day met them out in the open and he climbed the first tree in sight and the speed with which he shinnied up will be the talk of the town for a long time to come.

We notice too that some person by the name of Curran encountered the wolves but it wasn't Jim Curran. The initials are not his. It is too bad he was not there because it was one of those crucial moments in the history of men, communities, animals and tradition when the testing point had come. Something like the boy who found the leak in the dyke and put his finger in the hole and became a national hero. In that case the leak in the dyke and the boy were there at exactly the same time. In the Sault the wolves were at liberty but Jim was not there at that moment. Had he been there with his $100 to say no man had ever been et by a wolf things might have been different; the game warden might never have limbered up his artillery and cut off Lupus before he went over the top. If ever there were an hour in the history of the Sault when a steady hand and a commanding presence was needed it was right then when the wolf pack kicked the hinges off the gate.

It does look as though Jim Curran will have to start all over again. People in his own bailiwick fear the wolves, whereas Jim out in the open puts salt on their tails and feeds them molasses candy from his left side coat pocket. But the whole affair may not be without purpose. When a man celebrates a 25th anniversary in business he may need a further objective toward which to work, and there it is right in front of Jim Curran. He has within a few blocks of his office a large number of doubting Thomases, sufficient material to call forth greater efforts than have been made in the 25 years now under the process of celebration.

Rail Fences and Stump Fences

When some person makes a speech it is often interesting enough to read the report of it. We noticed one a few days ago in a weekly paper from Western Ontario. There was a debate going on regarding the farmers of today compared with the farmers of pioneer times, and one speaker was of the opinion that farmers of today were backward. This he said:

"When I go through the country today and see old stump fences I am moved to wonder who they are belonged. And there are many farms where the rail fence of the zig-zag type is still in existence. The progressive farmer has scrapped all this long egg and gone in for wire fencing."

Perhaps that is so, and no doubt there is a good reason for changing to the wire fence. It was beginning to invade the Tenth Concession a good time back. There were posts then along the lane which had to be taken out because they were decayed near the bottom, and taking out a post is a mean sort of occupation because the thing never seems to want to come out. It dislikes being disturbed.

And there were stretches of stump or root fences that had been there since the land was cleared. We believe they are still in existence. Often did the older folk used to talk about the amount of work and planning and hard labor which had been put into one of those stump fences. The fence itself told pretty much the whole story of great trees which had been taken down one at a time, of the amount of labor with primitive equipment which must have been called for to take out the stump and roots so the land might be cleared for cropping. And those old roots in fairly straight and firm alignment have stood for over a century. They have seen men putting in grain broadcast and raking it over with branches; they have seen men reaping the ripened grain with sickles and with cradles, or if there has been hay the old fence has watched the farmer with his scythe (heel always well down) as he garnered fodder for the coming winter. And the same old fence saw the coming of the mower and the binder; it has seen the hay tedder and the loader. Yes, it has watched the history of progress, and at the same time the old upraised roots have been the ever-present token to the hardihood and ingenuity of the great men of other days—the pioneers.

Nor can we grow enthusiastic over an attack on the old rail fence. There may have been reasons why it should have been unpopular. On the Tenth Concession the lesser man in the tribe was always supposed to take the scythe and cut the hay out of the corners of the rail fence. And in the corners there were apt to be stones. People used to keep on throwing them there from the land. And in other corners there were wild raspberry bushes. It was not a pleasant place to cut hay or grass or weeds. But the old rail fence was such a splendid place on which to sit. One cannot sit on a wire fence at all, and on a hot day there was even a degree of shade from bushes and the like where one could sit down for a while in the corner of the rail fence.

We have nothing at all against the wire fence; it is a great thing, but when one wishes to extol wire fences there should be no attack on the stump fence or the rail fence. They had and they have a great deal of farm history in them and there was an air of friendship about them which the wire fence cannot boast.

NOTE AND COMMENT

If a few more provinces succeed in balancing their budgets Canada will not look so much like an all-red route.

When Chief Draper of Toronto issued a statement condemning rackets he was not as might be thought referring to Toronto street cars at intersections.

That English corporal who served tea to his men before they got out of bed in the morning—at two cents per person per day, would undoubtedly make a better business man than a soldier.

We notice where they have cut a melon at Ottawa. The members of the Federal cabinet are each to receive an additional four cents in a bookkeeping adjustment of their automobile expenses.

Ontario legislators have found it impossible to agree upon a suitable floral emblem. We would suggest that in view of the Premier's attitude toward sitdown strikes the Scotch thistle would have a very suitable choice.

Premier Hepburn has had an official letter of thanks from the Toronto city council, following his announcement of a subsidy. He will undoubtedly have the thing framed and given a prominent position in his office.

Uncle Sam has opened the door of the blinded Canadian who fought for the United States in the world war and then was refused re-admittance when he tried to return after a recent visit to Canada. Common sense has triumphed over red tape in this case.

M. J. W. Coldwell, C.C.F. member of Parliament, has been asking the question as to what would have happened to the West if Mr. Bennett had not stabilized wheat prices for five years and up to the present he has had no answer.

Grimsby has passed a vote of thanks to the Hepburn government for its municipal subsidy but New Toronto declined to do so on the ground that the action might prove embarrassing politically. The latter municipality will, however, have no conscientious objections to accepting the grant.

RAINBOWS

(By A. E. K.)

¶ When I was young then I was told, the rainbow had a pot of gold, right where it touched the ground; if I could travel fast enough, and over fields and fences rough, why then it could be found.

¶ That pot of gold appealed to me, it seemed as easy as could be, a fortune would be made; but I would have to almost fly, and keep on looking at the sky, before the thing would fade.

¶ I've followed rainbows much since then, and joined with other anxious men, some young and others old; and every one of them was bent, from youth down to the crippled gent, to reach the pot of gold.

¶ And I bought mining stock one year, the way to riches seemed so clear, I'd loaf when I grew old; the rainbow colors seemed so gay, and they were pointing down my way, it was my pot of gold.

¶ I tried in oil and silver too, they seemed to bear the rainbow hue, I counted much on each; but when I'd close in on this stuff, which seemed to me all sure enough, it was beyond my reach.

¶ Yes I've chased rainbows through the years, now hair is grey above the ears, and I am rather bent; the rainbow hues begin to fade, because each month I'm much afraid—that I can't pay my rent.

RURAL MAIL CARRIERS.

(Chatham News)

FOR some years the rural mail carriers have been urging upon the federal government the necessity of doing something to adequately remunerate them for their labor. Up to the present, little, if anything, has been done, and the same methods of inviting competition from a class of people who evidently do not know the responsibilities or the difficulties attending the performance of the work continues.

It has been shown conclusively that hundreds of these men are really out of pocket at the end of a year's labor, but also in the peculiar predicament that they cannot quit as other men do work that is unprofitable, because they are bonded, and the bondsmen would have to carry on under the same conditions.

Not Handy For Farmers.

(By Rusticus in the Stratford Beacon-Herald.)

ON THE FARM—Judging by page headlines, strikes are about the most important news of the day. The great motor workers' strike in the U. S. A. led the way and now we have many smaller walkouts in various industrial centres right here in Ontario. Of major importance is the threatening railway strike in Canada. Some of these worker groups have our sympathy. No farmer desires that any worker should be paid a wage that prevents the worker from paying a fair price for farm produce. We realize well enough that the worker must be assured a steady and fair income before he can buy foodstuffs in the quantity he needs, even at present moderate prices.

Everyone expected butter prices to advance sharply this winter. True, storage stocks were rather heavy but after a season of poor pasture, and with feed costs that made the production of churning cream unprofitable, it was generally considered that production would drop enough to offset the increase in storage holdings. On the contrary, butter prices have not advanced according to schedule. Lack of urban buying power is probably the chief factor.

Potatoes recently advanced to two dollars or more per bag. The potato crop would normally move into consumption at this price. There are not too many potatoes but the consumer apparently could not afford that price and thus it will probably prove a sound policy on the part of producers to accept a price that will ensure the consumption of the whole crop, rather than hold out for a slightly higher price and have part of the crop left on their hands next June.

Just about the time when potatoes were rapidly advancing to the two-dollar mark, we heard a good deal about a farmers' strike and we have that farmers were deliberately and collectively withholding their potatoes so that they might obtain higher prices. It just happened that a larger than usual number of farmers were of the opinion that potatoes might advance in price. There was no organized strike. The farmer is not so fortunately situated as the factory worker from a strike standpoint.

Our sympathies are not with the railway men. It seems to us that their hourly wage is quite high enough.

Trucks may never carry all the freight but they could gain even a larger volume to the detriment of the rail worker. The railway debt is a problem that will have to be tackled and rail workers would be better advised to press for a reduction in the railway debt so that the roads might become more prosperous and able to pay higher wages.

A word about farm wages. Many of us are employers of labor, and we realize that the average farm worker is getting a very small hourly wage, if you care to reckon it that way. On the other hand, he is getting a lot more than the farmer if interest on investment and depreciation are considered. Now wouldn't we like to pay the wages we did in 1929 and get the returns for our produce we did then? If the farmer dickers a bit when he hires his help he doesn't do it to squeeze his hired man. He does it because he knows that the dollars to pay the wage bill are going to be hard to get.

Do as you like, all you workers who contemplate going on strike! Now, since sit-down strikes are so popular, we might vote in favor of a strike ourselves. Wouldn't it be nice to just sit down and let the work go hang?

300 Years of Brandy.

(From the St. Thomas Times-Journal.)

THE drink which Dr. Johnson described as fit for heroes—many people may think one has to be a hero to be able to drink it—cognac, which did not come to be known as brandy until many years later, is 300 years old this year, and special celebrations will be held in the French city of Cognac probably in June, nobody knowing the exact month, week or day when the blend was actually discovered.

Three persons in particular will be celebrated because of their part in giving cognac to mankind. Strangely enough only one of them is French; the second came from the Island of Jersey, and the third from Ireland. Nobody can name the first, for he was the obscure peasant who, while blending his distilled wines by accident or design, "invented" cognac on an undetermined day in 1637. The other two benefactors of Cognac via cognac were John Martell and James Hennessy.

A drink believed to be a species of brandy was known long before cognac became famous. It was then, however, a chemical concoction made in Germany and France, strong in alcohol and few people were able to drink it. A little over 300 years ago the wine industry in Cognac was nearly killed by taxes and in order to avoid the sale and chemical taxes the grape growers began the process of distillation. One of the peasants hit upon the blend which came to be known throughout the world as Cognac.

In 1715 John Martell went from the Island of Jersey to Cognac and founded the firm which is still carried on to this day. Shortly before the first Martell died in 1753, an Irishman named Hennessy took up residence in Cognac. He already knew the region, for he had been stationed there as an officer of the Irish Brigade, serving the King of France, Louis XV. Chiefly to render a favor to his Irish and English friends, he became an exporter of cognac and, in 1765, with his son, he founded the firm of James Hennessy & Co. At first cognac was shipped only in oaken casks; in 1800 the Hennessy Company started shipping it in bottles, and in 1865 the system of marking bottles with stars, to indicate the age of its contents, was adopted. Another James Hennessy is today the head of the firm; in addition, he is a member of the French Senate.

Kill! Kill! Kill!

(From the Kiwanis Magazine.)

ON WITH the dance! Step on it; we are late! Hello, there are a couple of cars that have run into each other head on! Hurry past! There are dead and wounded people there on the grass. We might have to go to court as witnesses, or carry them to a hospital! Shoot the gas to her. You can pass that truck before we get to the top of the hill. Hurry! Gosh, you almost hit that old lady! Why do people allow women as old as that to get out on the highway? They are all ten-minded. We might have hurt her. There is a hole you can break through in that line of traffic. Give her the gun! Gee, that was close! Did you hear that fellow swear? We didn't hit him. What's he got to complain about? Blow that horn and make that guy get over where he belongs! Why, the fool won't give us the right of way! He can't be going more than forty-five. How can he expect to stay on the pavement at that pace? Hit her up around the right side there! Boy, that scared him! Maybe that will teach him to keep over where he belongs! I thought for a minute we were going to turn turtle. Look, there is another accident! That car is on its top with its wheels in the air! Looks like a bug on its back, doesn't it? There was blood on the grass. Some one must have been badly hurt. Crazy fools, they don't know how to drive, yet they get right out into traffic. Watch that woman! She is driving all over the road! Run up alongside her and give her a blast on the horn! Whew! Didn't her fender nick ours when she swerved? I believe it did. Thank heaven she didn't lock fenders with us! It might have caused an accident. I hate women drivers! Cut around that fellow. Never mind the curse. There isn't anything coming. Crash!

Where am I? What has happened to me, doctor? My leg has been taken off? My God!

To The Editor

REVISION OF THE BRITISH NORTH AMERICA ACT

Editor Examiner:

Sir: The "birthday suit" of an infant is "dynamic," keeping pace with the development of the body, permitting the utmost freedom of action, the maximum of protection, fulfilling its functions to the last day of life. The swaddling bands of an infant are "static," cramping and preventing freedom of action, designed chiefly to facilitate handling of the infant with ease and safety. All external clothing is "static" requiring frequent changes and enlargements as growth demands.

A written national constitution will be "dynamic" if it is based upon broad general principles of justice and equity, for these having fixed moral qualities, are always applicable, passing of time or growth of nations do not affect them. As illustrating this, consider the economic laws of Moses or the moral law or Ten Commandments, both dealing with principles, both valid and binding upon us to the present, and both, after thirty-four centuries, needing no revision to bring them up-to-date.

When a written national constitution busies itself with rules and regulations concerning future possible events, which must be judged in the light of circumstances beyond human power to visualize in correct proportion, we have a constitution that is "static," speedily out-dated and unworkable, such is the B.N.A. Act. It is therefore apparent that a successful and workable revision of it must be in conformity to fixed moral principles. A knowledge of those principles is available to our legislators, but they make but little use of it, being obsessed with the belief that a parliamentary majority is sufficient warrant for ignoring them. To entrust the revision of the B.N.A. Act to them, is to ensure disaster and disruption to the Dominion of Canada.

FISTS FLEW HARD AFTER BIG GAME

Fight Developed When Barrie Hockey Sticks Returned To Rink

Four or five policemen were called to Brock street rink around 11.30 Friday night to break up a clash between Barrie and Peterborough hockey fans that had little or no connection with the game except the sharp disappointment of the visitors. It is told that Barrie hired Oddie Gorman, taxi man, to take their hockey sticks to the station, and when he got there they refused to pay him the charge of fifty cents. So he took the sticks back to the rink, followed by ten or twelve of the Barrie stalwarts. By that time most of the local troops were gone, and the remnant were just about evenly matched by the visitors. An argument about the six bits broke out into a fracas, and fists flew. Pat Calladine came out of it with a split lip, and it was reported that rink attendants swept up two foreign teeth this morning. Apparently the Barrie detachment were looking for trouble, and they handed out quite a lot of it before the police arrived. It was rumored to-day that Barrie has refused to reserve any seats for Peterborough at the return game.

CITY COUNCIL REDUCES RATE

"We intend to call for tenders early so we can get the building up before the summer is over," Ald. Sloan remarked referring to the restroom at Inverlea Park which was not completed last year until long after the swimming season ended.

Alderman Wilson, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee was given authority to advertise for tenders for 1,000 feet of new hose to be bought for the fire department.

A resolution by Alderman Glover, seconded by Alderman Hamilton, expressed on behalf of the citizens sincere sorrow to the bereaved family of the late Dr. M. A. Morrison, a former alderman.

New Wharf To Be Built On Little Lake At a Cost Of $10,000

Appropriations by the Federal Government for work in Peterborough total $25,000, J. J. Duffus, M.P., informed The Examiner to-day.

For the completion of the first section of the Crescent Street bank of Little Lake $5,000 has been allotted for expenditure this year on grading and filling, and also the stone riprap. The rest of the work will be undertaken later.

The Government has granted $10,000 for the wharf in Little Lake, and $5,000 for a permanent surface on the canal road from the old Norwood Road to the end of Maria Street. This was one of the improvements requested by a recent deputation from the City Council, and had been discussed in other years without any resulting action.

"Changes that are under way at the Armouries for the accommodation of the new Prince of Wales Rangers will cost $1,000, and a further sum of $1,000 has been granted for paving the road at the rear of the Armouries.

some idle in the rig's labor troubles. A sit-down strike involving 1,500 Chicago Mail Order Company employees ended after an agreement on wages. So did a sit-down of 450 employees of three De Mets, Inc., loop restaurants.

A strike for higher wages by the composing room force caused the Daily News of Miami, Fla., to suspend publication. Typographical employees of the Miami Herald voted against a strike, but the newspaper missed at least two editions while they argued the issue.

A group of 250 girl workers started a sit-down strike for wage and hour concessions at the Standard Cigar Company at Pittsburgh. Shorter hours and higher wages were also the objectives of 450 workers who struck at the Memphis (Tenn.) Furniture Manufacturing Company, and 150 employees in a walkout at the Harwell Brothers Company, Memphis handle makers.

Six hundred employees of the Lafollette, Tenn., shirt maker, will resume work on Monday after a strike which started on January 27. Forty-six auto-mechanics and shopmen at two Duluth, Minn., plants resumed work after a one-day walkout.

GREAT BRITAIN IS LIKELY WINNER SPANISH CRISIS

Even If France Wins Italy And Germany Have No Money To Lend Him

MUST TURN TO BRITAIN

Despite Germany's soldiers and machine guns and Italy's tanks and planes, Great Britain may win the last battle in the Spanish civil war, Professor N. A. MacKenzie, noted Toronto University observer of international affairs, told an audience in the Y.M.C.A. Friday evening. This view has led many in Great Britain to view with equanimity the German and Italian interference on behalf of the Fascist cause, he said.

"If Franco wins, he will have a tremendous job on his hands in undertaking to organize and rehabilitate Spain," Professor MacKenzie said. "He will need money and Germany and Italy have no money to lend. Britain will have the money and many believe that Britain will be able to secure her interests in the Spanish peninsula through that avenue."

Speaking as a University Extension lecturer, he analyzed the international situation of to-day. The world has changed fundamentally in the last 18 months in respect to the matter of peace and war. The reason for the change was the temporary failure of method of international co-operation tried out in the fifteen years following the Great War. The world has returned the pre-war principle of "power politics," he said.

It looked as though methods of international co-operation for achievement of the common ends of society and methods of collective action for control of outlaw nations would prove an adequate substitute for "power politics" until 1931 saw the fact, he said. Since 1931, the world has reverted to the accepted practice of thinking in terms of protection and power. War was the accepted final instrument of national politics.

"The measure of this change can be seen in comparison of the world arms expenditures," he said. "In 1928, the nations of the world spent between three and four billions on arms. The present annual expenditure is in the neighborhood of twelve billions."

He gave particular consideration to Canada's position in discussing the choice which lies before the nations which wishes peace. Through its policy of isolation, the United States stands a fair chance of avoiding participation in war, but Canada was in a different position from the United States. Canada was more dependent on foreign trade and Canada was a part of the British Empire. "If we want to remain a part of the British Empire, it is essential that we think of our security in terms with our participation in the Empire," he said.

CORONATION DAY MEMORABLE ONE

certainly in perpetuation of the Coronation tradition, and it is believed none but essential work will be done the day the King mounts the Coronation Chair to receive the homage of the world's biggest Empire.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King will lead Canada's delegation to the Coronation. Opposition Leader Bennett has been invited to attend as have Government and Opposition Leaders in the Senate and Speakers of the two Houses.

Nine House members headed by Justice Minister Lapointe will attend as guests of the Empire Parliamentary Association.

Accompanying Canada's official delegation will be almost 250 officers and men of the military, naval and air services and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

All nine provincial Premiers have been invited to attend and some cities have decided to send their mayors.

Word has been still from Ottawa that all municipalities, public bodies and societies may send greetings on the King through the Governor-General.

Special programs for school children are planned in Nova Scotia. Governments of that province and New Brunswick plan sending 14 school children each to the Coronation in co-operation with the National Council of Education. Prince Edward Island will send four.

Marbles in Ferse

Premier Angus L. Macdonald of Nova Scotia, Premier A. A. Dysart of New Brunswick, Mines Minister Michael Dwyer of Nova Scotia and Hon. B. W. LePage, President of the Prince Edward Island Executive Council will attend the London ceremonies.

Montreal's City Council has decided to send Mayor J. Adhemar Raynault and perhaps another member to the Coronation. At home it plans invitations a military tatoo and fireworks display.

Ontario Department of Education will promote special programs for children throughout the province. The provincial government already has proclaimed Coronation Day a holiday. In addition it will observe May 24, Victoria Day. Numerous clubs will promote such observances as specially held out gardens, fireworks on Coronation Day itself, parades and the like.

Some Ontario cities plan competitions to enable students to visit London for the ceremonies, even allowing credits for the year's work for those who win the trips.

Prairie celebrations plans are still in formative stages, but transport company officials estimated about 1,000 midwesterners would go to London to see the ceremonies for themselves.

SLUMP GENERAL IN ALL ISSUES GOLDS IN LEAD

Strong Advance In Eldorado Kept Slump From Becoming Unanimous

LOSS NOT LARGE

TORONTO, March 13 (CP)—Gold stocks skidded downward with barely a pause in the last week, trailed at a more leisurely pace by the industrial issues, the base metals and the oils. A strong advance staged by Eldorado, the silver leader, kept the slump from becoming unanimous.

Traders on the "long" side of the market were encouraged by the fact that the selling was at all times orderly, with no excessive pressure of offerings. Volume on both the mining and the industrial sections of the Toronto market held around the average for recent weeks. The absence of sharp breaks even in the stocks that by slow movement registered quite wide declines, may, however, signify nothing more than that the bears are showing a little more finesse than in the rough and tumble days of '29.

Gold listings of the Toronto market have declined in every one of the 13 sessions since February 25. On March 3, the exchange index credited them with a minor gain of .07 but the board ally on that day showed 53 golds closing lower against 37 closing higher. The index at the close yesterday stood at 146.90 compared with the high for the year at 168.59, registered on February 3. About eight points of the 21½-point decline were boarded in the last week.

Loss Small in Senior Golds.

Senior golds cut only a minor figure in the week's adjustments. Lake Shore declined $3 to $85, its lowest price since October, trading in small volume. Dome added $1, and McIntyre, Hollinger, and Wright-Hargreaves weakened only a few cents each. Teck-Hughes slipped back 35 cents to $5.60.

O'Brien set the downward pace with a drop of $1.30 to $7.80, while $7.50 its low price on Friday. Macassa lost 60 cents, MacLeod-Cockshutt 30 cents, Pioneer and Central Patricia 40 cents each, and Sylvanite and Preston East Dome 25 cents each. Losses of 10 to 35 cents were boarded by Read-Arthier, Chibougamau, Francoeur, East Malartic, Canadian Malartic, Reno, Hard Rock, Mackenzie, Siscoe, San Antonio, Pickle Crow, and Bralorne.

Some of the cheaper base metals held to the up side, including Sudbury Basin and Pend Oreille. Noranda was sold for a drop of $1.55 and losses of less than $1 each were boarded for Hudson Bay and Falconbridge.

The decline met with some resistance from the steels and metals. Announcement of new munition orders gave National Steel Car a net 10½ of 75 cents and the week brought net gains for Canadian Car and Foundry Common, Dominion Steel and Coal B, Dominion Bridge and United Steel. Consolidated Smelters led the upward movement with a rise of $6.10 to $95.00.

BERNARD E. PARK IS LAID TO REST

Interment Made Briar Hill Cemetery Near Sutton, Ontario

Wreaths and floral tributes testified to the loss felt by community groups and a large circle of personal friends as the simple funeral rites of the Anglican Church were observed for the late Bernard E. Park Friday. A private service was held at the home in this city, 116 Bethune street, at 11 a.m. and a public service in St. James' Anglican Church at Sutton, Ontario, followed in the afternoon.

Rev. J. D. Paterson of All Saints' Anglican church in this city officiated at the private service, members of the family attending. He conducted also the service at Sutton, assisted by the rector of St. James', Rev. E. O. Twiss. Interment was made in the family plot at the Briar Hill Cemetery, Sutton.

Serving as pall-bearers were two brothers, Robert Park of Windsor and M. F. Park of this city, a nephew, Allan Park of Peterborough, two cousins William Park and Harvey Taylor of Sutton and Lee McLeod of Bradley, Ontario.

Among the floral tributes tendered, in addition to those of personal friends, were those of the Peterborough Law Association of which the late Mr. Park was vice-president, the Prince of Wales Peterborough Regiment, the Municipal Rifles and the Peterborough Normal School staff.

Persons Rescuing Their Relatives Not Given Humane Society Awards

HAMILTON, Ont., March 13—(C.P.)—Four-year-old Benny Jones of Peterborough, who rescued his six-year-old brother Gary from the icy waters of Otonabee River Thursday, will receive no award from the Royal Humane Society of Canada, it was learned at the office of the society here today. This is not because the society does not appreciate the unselfishness of his act but because it does not make awards to persons who rescue their relatives.

"When a person rescues a relative this is not considered an act of bravery but a natural human impulse," explained R. E. McLaren, honorary secretary of the society. "Along with the Royal Humane Society of Great Britain and the Carnegie Hero fund of the United States, the Royal Humane Society of Canada considers that the rescue of a relative does not require the unselfish sacrifice that is required to rescue a non-relative," he said.

WHEAT PRICES SET NEW HIGHS

Highest Peaks In Seven Years Reached When Sales Are Heavy

WINNIPEG, March 13—(CP)—Encouraged by big export sales, wheat futures prices climbed to highest peaks in seven years on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange this week and, despite bear attacks, showed net gains at the opening of trading today.

Gains in the United States Winter wheat belt and profit-taking at the peaks combined to reduce the full margin of advances and values were cut 4¼ to 2¾ cents from their high levels.

At the close of trading Friday a gain of 1¾ cents during the week was shown for May wheat at $1.30¾. July gained 3¼ to 3 cents at $1.27¾ and October was 4¼ to 4¾ cents higher at $1.17¼-¾.

World wheat purchases by Germany, the United Kingdom and other Continental countries were estimated at more than 13,000,000 bushels for the week. Most of this buying was uncovered during Thursday and Wednesday, when 8,000,000 bushels were purchased, chiefly from Argentina and Australia.

This was believed to be the largest volume of wheat to change hands for export in any two consecutive days since Dec. 2, 1933, when the Argentine market sky-rocketed more than 19 cents a bushel.

Argentine shipments for the week totalled 7,229,000 bushels. Australia cleared 3,512,000 bushels and export of Canadian wheat was estimated at 2,000,000 bushels.

Germany took approximately 8,800,000 of Plate wheat from Buenos Aires as well as quantities of Australian, Canadian and Indian varieties.

WARSAW COUPLE HONORED BY CHOIR

Mr. And Mrs. George Taylor Celebrate 46th Wedding Anniversary

(Examiner Correspondence.)

WARSAW, March 13.—Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor celebrated their forty-sixth wedding anniversary on Thursday by having their only family relatives near here, Mr. and Mrs. David Taylor and Mr. and Mrs. Allan L. Payne, also Rev. L. W. and Mrs. Wilkinson, in for tea.

The United Church choir members, with husband or wife or brother or sister, were invited there for choir practice and a social evening but they got wind of the wedding anniversary.

As the guests were asked to take places at the supper Rev. J. W. Wilkinson made a little speech to Mr. and Mrs. Taylor and read an address. Mr. David Miller presented the bride of forty-six years with a vase and a bouquet of daffodils. The host and hostess were puzzled to know how the choir had found out about the anniversary. Mrs. Taylor expressed thanks, supper was served. A few other games followed and a sing-song wound up a happy evening.

A feature of the decorations was the top layer and flowers of the wedding cake of forty-six years ago.

A most delightful evening was spent. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor are charming host and hostess.

Social Evening Held

The Presbyterian Young People held a social evening on Wednesday in the Town Hall. A fifty-cent banquet was served to a large audience. Rev. J. W. Wilkinson greeted them. Young Raymon Clements did his part splendidly as chairman. Mary and Jean Watts sang and also gave a piano duet. There were several numbers of assembly singing. The children's orchestra: Milo and Meta Payne, Ivan and Mary Hendren, Jean and Mary Watts, with Miss Jean Hendren as pianist, delighted the audience. Mrs. Munro and Mrs. Frank Davis sang. Raymond Clements recited a comic selection.

A most amusing number was an emergency operation. Kenneth McQuay was surgeon and Ivan Hendren his assistant; Jean Munro anaesthetist. Beulah Russel her assistant, Ted Rose and Russel Greystock attendants, and Earl Digweed, patient.

A merry social time was spent when lunch of sandwiches, cake and tea were served.

Warsaw Tennis Club plan to put on a play, "Ruth of Smoky Hollow" on March 29.

Is Now Ordained

Those who remember Billy L. Lloyd as a mischievous little schoolboy in Warsaw may be interested to know that he has attended Ridley College, near Melbourne, for some years, and has been ordained in the Episcopal Church and has a curacy in a large parish in a suburb of Melbourne, Australia. His mother is keeping house for him. His sister, Katharine, lives with them, but keeps her job in the Can. Trades Commission Office in Melbourne.

Conducts Choir

DR. H. A. FRICKER.

A student of classical composers and their music for many years, Dr. Fricker (ABOVE) will conduct the Toronto Mendelssohn choir in their program presentation here on Tuesday, March 16 in St. Paul's church auditorium.

CHOIR WILL SING FAMOUS NUMBER

Geoffrey O'Hara's Setting Of 'Annie Laurie' To Be Rendered

Geoffrey O'Hara's setting of "Annie Laurie" which will be sung by the Toronto Mendelssohn Choir on their appearance here on March 16th, was especially written by the Canadian composer for the choir and is a delightful novelty for an eight-part chorus. In the first verse the melody is allotted to the contraltos, basses and sopranos in turn, with a humming accompaniment in six-part harmony. The second verse features arpeggio-like phrases for the contraltos and tenors, the first sopranos maintaining the humming accompaniment. In the final verse the first sopranos sing the air against varied effects from the other parts. The song ends with a pianissimo for the basses. On the occasion of its first presentation by the Choir in Toronto it was the only selection of the night for which an encore was given and the audience was so insistent that it was sung a second time. The tumult continued and then Dr. Fricker cast his commanding eyes to the balcony and from the front row there rose a pleased looking, slight, red-faced young man who bowed to the plaudits. It was Geoffrey O'Hara himself acknowledging the praise of his fellow countrymen and thus some more musical history was made.

MOUNT PLEASANT

Mr. and Mrs. James Paul of Ida celebrated quietly the fifty-first anniversary of their wedding day on Wednesday, March 10.

Mrs. H. Seney of Ida accompanied her sister, Mrs. Parker, as far as Ottawa on Sunday. Mrs. Parker left for her home in California on Wednesday.

Mrs. M. Handley is with her sister, Mrs. Cecil Argue, at Ballyduff.

Mrs. Argue was removed to her home on Tuesday from Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough.

Friends of Mrs. Melville Johns will be sorry to hear of her illness, and hope for a speedy recovery.

Peterborough Is Fourth Canadian City Visited By Famous Toronto Choir

Montreal, Ottawa And Kingston Have Acclaimed Choristers In Past Performances

WELL-KNOWN IN U.S.

In view of the approaching visit to Peterborough of Toronto's famed Mendelssohn Choir it is interesting to note that, over the period of forty years of the Choir's history, only three other Canadian cities have been visited. Montreal, Ottawa and Kingston have acclaimed the virtuosity of this remarkable organization which, through the years, has presented programs in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit, Cincinnati, and Chicago, in some of these several times. Acclaimed by world famous musicians and orchestra conductors as the Choir supreme on the American continent. Its fame has travelled all over the world.

The organization of the Choir dates from 1894 when Dr. A. S. Vogt, then organist and choirmaster of Jarvis Street Baptist Church in Toronto, conceived that the time was ripe to put into effect ideas which he had conceived as a student in Canada and Europe. His belief was that if choral music was to receive its proper public appreciation, it must be by giving the public something better than in the past. His aim was to create a singing society whose tonal quality and expression should approximate to that of a fine orchestra. In a first class orchestra there is no jarring tone; every performer must be a trained musician, and by this means exquisite finish and shading are obtainable.

Last of "Originals"

Mr. Owen Staples, O.S.A., the only member of the original choir who is yet singing with the present organization and is a member of the Committee of Management, contributes the following notes relating to the early years of program presentation in Toronto:

"The first program given by the Mendelssohn Choir was presented in Massey Hall on January 15th, 1894, and instantly demonstrated that here was something new. The choir of seventy-five voices sang "a cappella" or without accompaniment and with much effect of tone and nuance that a large and discriminating audience acclaimed the introduction into Canada of a new force for vocal expression.

Concerts were given in Toronto in 1896 and 1897 to ever larger and more enthusiastic audiences when, to the surprise of everyone, Dr. Vogt disbanded his choir and it remained quiescent for three years, during which period a new constitution and by-laws were framed which permitted the removal from the ranks of the choristers of voices no longer true and fresh of tone and the substitution of voices selected after suitable tests for quality. In 1900 the choir was re-organized and incorporated under letters patent, and its first concert took place on February 16th, 1901.

"The wisdom of Dr. Vogt's ideas were instantly demonstrated in a flood of applications for membership in the chorus and the choir was gradually built up to numbers in excess of two hundred and the resulting appreciation by the public demanded not one concert appearance in a season but as many as four or five. A new path had been blazed and unaccompanied work had been tested with the largest chorus ever devoted to that sort of work in Canada.

Opinion Grows

"In the succeeding years public interest continued to grow and appearances in the American cities brought forth plaudits from distinguished musicians and critics alike.

"In 1913 Dr. Vogt visited Europe and all arrangements were completed for a tour of the Mendelssohn Choir during the spring of 1915 covering the leading musical centres of Great Britain, France, Germany and Belgium. The World War put an effectual end to this great project.

"On February 6th, 1917, the Choir had completed its twentieth season of actual performances under Dr. Vogt's baton. At this time pressure of other duties made it imperative that Dr. Vogt resign as conductor of the famous organization he had built.

"By a stroke of good fortune it was found possible to secure the services of another conductor in the person of Dr. H. A. Fricker, who had been building up fame in Great Britain and France as the conductor of the Leeds Choir, and Dr. Fricker has continued and advanced the great work of the Toronto Mendelssohn Choir since that date.

"Since Dr. Fricker took up his station as conductor of the Choir it has advanced from height to height of choral supremacy and in its supreme artistry in the presentation of unaccompanied works such as will form the Peterborough programme, has also sung the greatest choral works extant, in conjunction with the finest orchestras on the continent, such works as the Bach, "B Minor Mass" the Beethoven "Choral Symphony", Walton's "Belshazzar's Feast."

Toronto Mendelssohn Choir Program Taken From Large Library Of Choral Works

SATISFY EVERY TASTE

The program to be presented by the Toronto Mendelssohn Choir in St. Paul's Church on Tuesday next, shows very thoughtful planning on the part of Dr. H. A. Fricker the eminent conductor.

Only experience in program building enables a conductor to unerringly select, from a library such as is owned by the Mendelssohn Choir, choral numbers which give the utmost in pleasure to every taste represented in an audience.

Over forty years of the choir's existence it has accumulated one of the most comprehensive and valuable libraries of choral works owned by any choral organization on this continent. It consists of nearly three hundred and fifty numbers representing the choice of the whole field of choral music from Palestrina to Healy Willan and William Walton, and, to replace today, would cost approximately $50,000.00. Its bulk occupies the space of two large rooms in the Toronto Conservatory of Music.

The task of selection from this extensive collection the fourteen or fifteen numbers possible of presentation in a program of a little over two hours duration is not an easy one.

Reviewing the program to be presented here we note, following the National Anthem, a group of four motets, beginning, as seems proper, with a composition by Mendelssohn, after whom this famous Toronto choir is named. Also included in this group are three chorales from Bach's "Jesu, Joy and Treasure" sung with great success at the choir's recent concert in Toronto.

As a white candle in a holy place
So is the beauty of an aged face.
As the spent radiance of the winter sun
So is a woman with her travail done.
Her brood gone from her and her thoughts as still
As the waters under a ruined mill.

The third group, consisting of Scotch and English airs, such as the wonderful choral arrangements of "Annie Laurie" and "Drink to me only with thine eyes", concludes with the jolly part-song "Bold Turpin" supposed to be sung by famous Dick Weller out of "Pickwick Papers" and the lilting, tinkling "Dance the Cachuchus" from Gilbert & Sullivan's "Gondoliers".

A most pleasing interlude for all lovers of great organ music will be Dr. Fricker's presentation of Bach's "Toccata and Fugue in D. Minor" played between the first and second groups of choruses.

While attempting to take milk and letters to the marooned inhabitants of Bisern Island, Mayor Kierkind of Paaborg, Denmark, was dumped into the water when the ice broke, and he was not found for several hours.

PRESS COMMENTS ON FAMOUS CHOIR

All Writers Are Loud In Their Praises For Mendelssohn Chorus

Press comments on the Mendelssohn Choir are quoted as follows:

Music week finished with the work that concludes probably the one greatest Chorus in the world, sung by the greatest choir in all America: Bach's B Minor. As sung by the Mendelssohn Choir, this "Sanctus" goes on record as one of the most prodigious performances of anything by this choir in its whole history.—Augustus Bridle, Daily Star.

Music week in Toronto came to a glorious close in Massey Hall with a magnificent performance of Bach's B Minor Mass by the Mendelssohn Choir under Dr. H. A. Fricker. The large audience attending applauded enthusiastically, both at the intermission and at the close.—Lawrence Mason, The Globe.

The Mendelssohn Choir sang the Mass magnificently. It is still the "first" Choir. Added to the glory of the music itself, there were the deep integrity and the burnished heights of the Choir's seal, making a scale of human endeavour as impressive as the range of notes in the musical scale.—Pearl McCarthy, The Mail and Empire.

The Choir was in magnificent voice and, of course, this means also that Bach's awful intervals, endless runs, tremendous climaxes, and profound prayerfulness had well nigh perfect expression. Saturday evening's singing was the noblest done by the Mendelssohn Choir in two decades.—Edward Woodson, The Evening Telegram.

They were taken to Trenton by Sergeant H. Thompson and Constable J. Whittey of the Provincial Police and Constable J. Taylor of Trenton.

AGED HARBOR CHIEF IS CONGRATULATED

Prime Minister And Minister Of Transport Send Best Wishes

RICHIBUCTO, N.B., March 13 (C.P.).—Letters of congratulation from Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Transport, have been received by Rodecler McDonald, 104, believed to be the oldest harbormaster in the world.

The Prime Minister wrote:

"I have just learned from Mr. L. P. A. Robichaud, the member of Parliament for Kent, N.B., of the interesting fact that, although 104 years of age, you are continuing to fulfil your duties as harbormaster at Richibucto.

"This is just a line to extend to you my sincere congratulations, and to express the hope that whatever may be decreed by Providence as the balance of your long and useful life will be greatly blessed with health and peace and sweet content."

Mr. Howe said:

"My attention was called to an article in the press referring to your services at Richibucto and mentioning your age.

"You are undoubtedly the oldest member of the staff of the Department of Transport, and, as such, I wish to extend my sincere congratulations to you on being able to discharge your duties so efficiently.

"I hope that you will have many more years of service with this Department, and wish you every happiness."

BLUE FOR KHAKI CORONATION DAY

Regiments Will Spruce Up For Event With Smartly-Cut Uniforms

LONDON, March 13 (CP)—Production of the new blue uniforms to be worn by troops at the coronation is well under way. King Edward approved the uniform December 2, subject to a few minor alterations, and King George has recently approved the amended model.

The new uniform will be issued to regular line regiments and territorial troops of the British army. The Household Cavalry and Guards will continue to wear their existing uniforms and the rifle regiments will revert to their dark green.

The new uniform may become the permanent ceremonial and walking-out uniform for the British soldier. It will not be worn in public until the coronation. It is made of plain pine serge without facings on collars or cuffs and in a smart cut to fit the figure more closely than the khaki jacket. Buttons are brass.

Regimental facing colors will be worn on the cap and incorporated in the trouser stripes. Scottish regiments will also wear blue tunics, cut away at the front for wear with the kilt or trews.

STILL NEGOTIATING

DETROIT—Announcing they still had several minor details to "iron out," General Motors and United Automobile Workers Union representatives adjourned this afternoon until tomorrow their negotiations for a final settlement of issues that precipitated the recent General Motors strike.

NASSAU BOASTING ISLAND PARADISE

Harry Oakes, Canadian, Developing Private Estate Of 1,200 Acres

NASSAU, Bahamas, March 13 (C.P.).—Harry Oakes is using part of the wealth he wrung from Canadian gold-mines to build an island paradise in this part of the British Empire. A tract of more than 1,200 acres is being developed as a private estate, bordered by the ocean to the north and by the so-called lake country to the south.

Surrounding the house, built of multi-colored native stone, will be such means of pleasure as bridle paths hewed in virgin forest, a course for polo golf, a small lake and swimming pool. A cave in the centre of the tract—it is known as the cave property—will be used as an aquarium.

"We are trying to restore to this property some of its pristine glory," Mr. Oakes said. "We want to make it as much like an old plantation as possible. We are going to introduce new tropical plants and fruits to the estate, and will try to make it a point of interest in the island."

Mr. Oakes brought the idea of polo golf here from Florida, where he maintained a winter home formerly. The course is laid out like a regular golf course. A player follows the ball on horseback whacking it with a mallet until it is holed. It is popular among former polo players who are no longer up to withstanding the strain of the vigorous game.

JERSEYVILLE, Ill., March 13.—(CP).—The hen that wouldn't stay stolen is dead of natural causes.

IMPROVEMENT WEEK

Feature of the National Campaign For Home Repairs

Plans for a Home Improvement Week are being outlined by the Ontario Advisory committee as one of the high lights of the campaign which has been launched throughout Canada to create new employment in all branches of the building industry.

Co-operation of Canadian home owners is sought by the terms of the Plan affording easy loan terms at the banks payable in monthly instalments over an extended period up to three years.

The present campaign, which is gaining volume as the Home Improvement Plan becomes better understood will lead up to the special week which will be one of the peaks of publicity and promotional effort.

Equipped with a refrigerating plant a "factory ship" will accompany the fishing fleet off the north-west coast of Australia, and the fish caught will be filleted and packed ready for sale.

COMPOSER PENNED FAMOUS OVERTURE AT AN EARLY AGE

Created 'Midsummer Night's Dream' While Studying With Great Masters

TOURED EUROPE

Jakob Ludwig Felix Mendelssohn-Bartholdy (1809-47) German-Jewish composer, was born at Hamburg, Feb. 3, 1809. His father was Abraham Mendelssohn-Bartholdy, who assumed the compound patronym upon his conversion to Christianity, and his grandfather was Moses Mendelssohn, the philosopher and friend of Lessing.

As a youth he studied the pianoforte with his mother, Leah Salomon, working afterward under Berger, Hennings, Zelter and Moscheles. His precocity was such that he played in public at the age of nine, composed fluently at the age of 11, and created the overture "A Midsummer Night's Dream" at the age of 17; his genius, therefore, had little need of formal guidance. At the age of 20 he directed Bach's "St. Matthew's Passion," which had been wantonly neglected, and ever afterward was an active propagandist for Bach's music.

For two years in 1830-32 he toured Europe extensively, in 1833 settling temporarily in Dusseldorf, where he conducted the Lower Rhine festival, and became general director of that city's musical activities. Two years later he was appointed director of the famous Gewandhaus concerts in Leipsig, and in 1837, during one of his ten visits to England, he conducted the Birmingham festival.

The same year he married Cecile Charlotte Sophie Jeanrenaud, who bore him three sons and two daughters. In 1842 the Leipsig Conservatory, which he had aided in organizing, was opened; and there, as frequently as his duties permitted, he served as member of the faculty. In 1847 his sister Fanny, whom he idolized, died; and this shock, shattering his nervous system, proved a fatal blow to a constitution that had already been undermined by excessive labor.

Few composers have suffered both from such lavish praise and hostile criticism as Mendelssohn, and only the passage of the years has permitted the musical world to view him, in sober perspective, as the composer of one of the world's major choral masterpieces—Elijah—and of other works, choral and instrumental, which range from sublimity to triviality. Facility was perhaps his chief handicap and his worst enemy; the very dexterity of his technique, in short, released his emotions so quickly that they often passed off into music under minimum pressure. Nevertheless, his music as a whole bears the imprint of the hand of a genuine master, and among the romantic composers of Germany he occupies a secure position. Some of his chief works were: three symphonies, the concert overtures "The Fair Melusine", "Hebrides," "Ruy Blas," and the "Calm Sea and Prosperous Voyage", and incidental music to "A Midsummer Night's Dream", a violin concerto, seven string quartets, the pianoforte sonatas "Variations serieuses" and "Songs Without Words," six organ sonatas, twenty-one male quartets, and twenty-eight quartets for mixed voices, two oratories, "St. Paul" and "Elijah", and "The Hymn of Praise," Christus and First Walpurgisnacht. The latter was first performed in 1846 at Birmingham under his baton. He died at Leipsig November 4, 1847.

STUDENTS ENJOY HOUSEWIFE ROLE

LAKEWOOD, N.J., March 13. — (CP). — First hand experience in running a home of their own is provided for students of Home Economics at the girls' college here.

When the theory of domestic science has been mastered through lectures and class-room demonstrations, the girls go, four at a time, to spend six weeks in a six-room apartment on the campus. Here they cook meals, sleep, dust and sew. Two meals are prepared daily on a budget permitting each 40 cents a day. Some groups have found they can feed well on even less than that sum.

Since installation of the "Practice House," enrolment in the Home Economics course has increased 50 per cent, according to the instructor. At the end of their six weeks, the students undergo an examination which takes the form of a dinner served to four members of the faculty.

Although they are allowed to spend only 50 cents for each guest, the latest menu included: Fruit cup, consomme, creamed crab flakes, squab, buttered potatoes, spinach, lemon sherbet, pear salad, fresh strawberry ice cream and demitasse.

Use of canned fruit or vegetables is considered "cribbing."

COMPETITION KEEN FOR CHOIR PLACES

Past Success Of Great Choir Made Possible Its Continued Success

"Listening to the Mendelssohn Choir the thought comes to mind that it is the past success of this organization that makes possible its continued success. Only constant systematic practice could secure the perfection that the Mendelssohn singers have attained. It has become an honour to belong to the Mendelssohn Choir and accordingly every singer is present in his or her place for every possible rehearsal in order not to run the risk of losing that place. One ventures to say that there is no chorus of its size in existence anywhere that has its rehearsals attended so faithfully. That explains the perfection of their singing. It is said that the players of the Moscow Art Theatre have to rehearse a part as many as three hundred times before being permitted to play it. Thus does the Director make certain that even the most delicate nuance will be almost second nature to do it properly. The parallel may not be a perfect one but the constant practise of every unit in the Mendelssohn Choir is responsible for a precision that is just as noticeable in its way. When they sing a complicated composition the parts blend, fit and balance in a manner that amazes even those persons who have heard them year after year. It is in the handling of the great vocal organ that Dr. H. A. Fricker shows his skill as a musician."

Few men have been placed in a more serious predicament than was Joseph Sisson, an employee of Hoge & Leslie's grain elevator at Port Perry. He had been bagging corn on the floor below the bin, when something went wrong with the chute. He went upstairs to investigate, and when climbing in he slipped and fell, striking one of the cross pieces and breaking his leg in two places. He shouted loudly for help, but no one heard him. Fearing he would be left in the elevator all night, he climbed out of the pit and came down six flight of steps to the bottom of the elevator, where he was found by other workmen.

Retaining Health and Beauty

The woman who does not wish to be loved and admired doesn't exist. And why shouldn't she wish to be admired? Yet long before middle life many women show the effects of shattered health. Cosmetics, "permanents" and stylish clothes without a basis of real health will not preserve the desired charms.

The Spinal Column

is the place where science now finds the cause of many ailments. A vertebra out of alignment interferes with the transmission of nerve energy. This may be manifest in the tissues where constricted nerves end as in the arm, the knee or the stomach but the real cause is at the spine. Correct the cause and health returns. Many women who were discouraged because of poor health have regained strength and vitality through the use of spinal manipulative treatments.

500 Public School Students Heard In Spring Festival In Collegiate Auditorium

Very Fine Work Accomplished In Schools Strikingly Illustrated

G. R. FENWICK PRESENT

The very fine work being accomplished in the way of musical education in the Public Schools of Peterborough was strikingly illustrated at the "Spring Festival" held in the Collegiate Auditorium on Friday evening, before a packed audience, under the direction of Miss M. R. Rannie, Supervisor of Music, and the auspices of the Women Teachers' Guild.

The Festival marked the culmination of the year's work, and since it is true that music is necessary to a child's general education, it was apparent that this cultural subject is being given ample attention in the lives of the local public school pupils.

A hearty welcome to the large audience was voiced by Miss F. D. Walker, President of the Teachers' Guild, who urged the necessity of music in a child's education declaring "it produces a more reflective, cultural, and yes, religious frame of mind." Fully five hundred pupils took part. Miss Walker stating that "while all the pupils in the grades represented have had this instruction, owing to lack of stage space, only a limited number from each class could be used in the entertainment."

Violin and Piano Taught

A. Howat, B.A., P.S.I., also briefly addressed the gathering, pointing out the need of a study of music for the development of the whole child, and also the added advantage of having both violin and piano now taught in the Public Schools of the city, under the able instruction of Ernest Maynes for the former, and Mrs. R. T. F. Brain and Miss Laura MacFarlane for the latter.

The sea of happy faces when the curtain was drawn disclosing the massed pupils, in tiered rows, ready for the opening chorus, "A Toast to Canada." Miss Rannie conducting, gave the audience its share of the thrill of enjoyment which the boys and girls themselves were evidently taking in the pleasing occasion. The three-part song, "When the Roses Bloom" by the Central School choir, was sung with a fine modulation of volume, and remarkable sweetness of tone,—attention to the leader, harmony, correct time and rhythm, with clear diction being a standard that uniformly prevailed throughout the program, giving evidence of an intensity of training under capable leadership, and a foundation well laid for more advanced work.

Novelty Number.

All hearts were won by the novelty number presented by the Kindergarten Rhythm Band, from the King George and Prince of Wales schools, teachers, Misses M. Wilson and I. Connolly. The tiny tots, marching with precision and pride on to the platform, made an attractive picture with their red silk capes and pill-box hats, outstanding being the tiny miss conducting, Sylvia James, who made an elaborate bow and announced in her childish treble "The band will now play 'Amaryllis'." The instruments included wooden blocks, sticks, triangles, tambours, bells, cymbals, castanets, bells and drum, and childish fingers handled them all skilfully; there was no doubt about this being one of the highlights of the program.

Unison songs again brought a demonstration as Miss Rannie came on to conduct the massed pupils. The sustained tone in the low notes of "The Leaves' Party" (Gaynor) was particularly noticeable, and a word picture was conveyed of dancing feet in "The Fairies," when again the accompaniment noticeably aided the singers. This however was a feature of the entire evening, Mrs. G. Wilson Craw presiding at the piano.

Appropriate to the approaching Easter season, and indicative of its joyous nature, was the next group of unison songs which included an "Old Easter Carol," and Davidica's "Jesus Christ is risen today," the audience being asked to join in the latter; it is doubtful if many acceded to the request, however, owning to the pleasure in listening to the sweet young voices leading. Unison singing was unmarred by either too great volume of tone, slurring of words, nor any inequalities of expression. A noteworthy feature of the program was the precision of marching and the orderly manner in which the hundreds of children made their way from the platform, going to alternate aisles.

Unaccompanied Choir.

An entirely different group of songs was given by the Queen Mary School choir, O. M. Steer conducting. These were sung unaccompanied and included only sacred numbers, and the harmony and atmosphere would have done credit to a church choir. The hymn trios were "Now the day is over," "Angelic Songs" sung in two parts, and the well-known Nun Danket, "Now thank we all our God." A pleasing variety was provided by the violin trio, Jim Hooper, Donald Mackavish and Colin Jack, pupils of Mr. E. Maynes, with Mrs. Percy Hooper accompanying, the listeners according them a well-deserved meed of applause. A special choir from the Prince of Wales' School, Mr. Arnold Nottal conducting, was introduced at this point, their selections showing careful and intensive training and being worthy of the highest praise; they were "Twinkle, Twinkle, Little Star," in two parts, with an echo distinctly emphasized, an old English folk song, "Something in the dew makes the milkmaid's hair," and "Lift thine eyes" from Mendelssohn's "Elijah." From this choir twelve boys and girls will be chosen to go to Toronto and take part in the Provincial choir during Easter week.

Another treat was provided by the King Edward School choir, with Miss Margaret Dickson as conductor, a distinct hit being scored with its interpretive song, "In the Boat" (Greig), and "The Jolly Miller," particularly suited to children's voices; the rendition showed time and painstaking effort expended upon the training and could hardly have been improved upon, this being equally true of "The Joyful Easter," its concluding offering. A lovely sheaf of roses, presented to Miss Dickson at the close, was expressive of her pupils' appreciation.

Supervisor Present.

A distinguished visitor, G. Roy Fenwick, of Toronto, Provincial Supervisor of Music, introduced by Miss Rannie, gave unstinted praise to the high quality of the entertainment, and also to Miss Ramsay, "whom I assure you is known and loved for her professional and personal qualities beyond your city limits. If I were a doctor I would advise a music festival as a spring tonic so highly beneficial do I believe this training to be to a child's health and development." The real reasons for music, apart from many others listed, were stated to be its value as a means of self-expression, a safe outlet for the emotions, and for the use of leisure hours. "I am sure the Department of Education will back up any move to improve the cause of music in the schools of Peterborough."

Illness prevented Miss Littlefield's pupil, Catherine Turvey, of Queen Alexandra School, from giving the Highland Fling dance number she was to have presented, and following another seasonal group of songs of which "Tara's Hall" especially captivated the audience, Miss Ramsay was presented with a basket of flowers, and given a great hand from the big gathering. In voicing her thanks for the fragrant offering, the recipient emphasized the help "given by the seventy-seven teachers who are in this building tonight, and without whose help this entertainment could never have reached success." The merchants who had advertised in the programs, and all others who had assisted with the Festival in any way were also thanked, and applause testified to the unusual enthusiasm as the patriotic note was struck in the closing unison song, "Our Flag," platform and audience seeming to unite in its stirring measures. The National Anthem closed a program that never lagged for a moment and was enjoyable from every viewpoint and from its beginning to its end.

TO LOSE TRADE ON CORONATION

Regent Street Business Firms Anticipate Tie-up For Days

LONDON, March 13 — (CP) — Tailors, dressmakers and other tradespeople of Regent street must cheerfully face the prospect of an almost entire loss of business during several days around Coronation, says the report of the governing council of their association.

"These things are mentioned, not in any spirit of industrial, but to correct any impression that Regent street will be making money out of the Coronation," the committee says.

Active Participation In Sport Strongly Commended Builder Of Happier And Healthier Lives

Alderman R. M. Clover Addresses Kiwanis Club At Weekly Luncheon

COLLECTIVE EFFORT

Active participation in sports was strongly commended by Alderman R. M. Clover in a striking address as guest speaker at the Kiwanis Club luncheon meeting, as a means through which young men and women might learn to lead happier and healthier lives; develop initiative and quick thinking; learn the value of individual and collective effort; and find out that fast living makes slow athletes.

Introduced by William A. Richardson, who made reference to an association of over forty years standing, Alderman Clover was a popular choice of the Sports Committee as guest speaker, the meeting being under auspices of that committee with Ed. Smith in the chair.

Sporting Guests

Other guests of the sporting fraternity who were introduced at the luncheon included: Frank Buckland, manager of the Peterborough Junior Hockey Team; Max Swanston, president of the Central Ontario Baseball League; and Ed. Riley, president of Peterborough Baseball Club.

Cliff Hall had charge of the group singing, while those who featured in the program of entertainment were: Miss Gwen Farnell, recitation; and Leslie Unitt, vocal solo "There's a Land," accompanied at the piano by Harry Northrop.

Laurie Mitchell voiced thanks of the club to the guest speaker and entertainers and the applause that greeted his remarks was evidence that the program was regarded by the members as one of the most outstanding in recent months.

Remarking on the fact that he had been asked by Percy Bond to say a few words on sport to the club, the speaker said he felt that he should do so because, "Percy and I have for a number of years been both playing members of teams and active officers of the Ontario Hockey Association."

While he spoke more particularly of sport, as it is considered in towns and cities of the type of Peterborough, Mr. Glover made brief reference to the opportunities in professional sport which is now "big business" offering opportunities in various countries throughout the world.

Offers Opportunity

"Open professionalism is not frowned down on any more. It offers opportunity in this country to boys of strong physique and natural ability to play hockey, for good remuneration under well-conducted auspices, but the player should keep in mind that the earning years of professional career are few. He should save his money and as well insure himself secure in a steady position or in a business that he can drop into after his playing days are over," he said.

Mr. Glover made some comparisons between sporting events locally of twenty-five years and more ago and the present day, and expressed the opinion that so many young men were to be found actively engaged in sports in the old days because they had fewer distractions to divert their attention and energies.

In Reminiscent Mood

When he was a boy participation in sports was practically all there was for a boy to do. There were no automobile, no summer dancing and no picture shows. A visit two or three times a year to see the Sparks brothers, Harry Lindley or the Guy Brothers minstrels constituted the year's entertainment, "and how we did enjoy ourselves," Mr. Glover exclaimed in reminiscent mood.

His first real connection with sport, he said, was with the Ashburnham Public School baseball team as catcher. The pitcher of that time was the late Sam Adams, a brother of Frank Adams, former city treasurer.

Mr. Glover believed Frank Adams had in him the makings of a great pitcher had he continued in the game, but he turned to hockey and was one of the best hockeyists Peterborough ever had.

The speaker said, he did not stay long at baseball himself, because he cracked up so many fingers. The club, he recollected, had only a pair of harvest mitts without padding as their sole catching equipment. Turning to lacrosse, which at that time was the most popular sport in the city, Mr. Glover said he found a great fascination in the game of life.

Should Be Encouraged

"I have always contended," Mr. Glover declared, "that a boy with natural ability for games, living in a small community where opportunities for getting on are very limited should be encouraged in his efforts to allow his playing ability to advance him. If he has an eye to the future, he will realize the effective life of a player in practically all strenuous games is a short one, but by the time his sports career is ended, he should be well established in whatever life work he might take up. In all my connection with sport, I believe in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, sport has done more for the man than the player has for the sport. There is a great fraternity in the sporting world."

Mr. Glover paid a tribute to the service clubs of the city for their support of various sporting activities in sponsoring teams of younger players and believed this line of endeavour to be one of the greatest works a service club could undertake.

In conclusion, the speaker made reference to the sudden death of Howie Morenz, "an athlete that every boy should emulate." He thought that if it had been written of Howie Morenz, nothing more applicable could be said, than the quotation:

"For when the one Great Scorer comes to write against your name,
He writes
Not that you won or lost, but how you played the game."

GAS DEPARTMENT SHOWED SURPLUS ON OPERATIONS

Surplus However Wiped Out In Heavy Debenture Responsibilities

ANSWER ALD. GORDON

Despite an operating profit of $8,271.57, the Gas Department's heavy debenture responsibility resulted in the showing of a net loss of $6,406.43 for 1936 as the Department's annual report was tendered the Utilities Commission Friday afternoon.

The statement showed operating revenues for the year as $71,797.61 as against operating expenses totalling $40,846.07. Debenture interest payments were $11,840 and debenture principal required $7,000. On the depreciation account, $9,677 was charged.

The Commission meeting considered a request by Alderman G. N. Gordon, K.C., for information concerning payments by the C.G.E. per horse power since 1930 under its lease of the Waterworks Dam; the horsepower generated each month since 1930 at the dam; the normal flow of the dam and "what percentage of efficiency of the Waterworks Plant is considered as existing by the Commission," and the normal flow for power purposes in cubic feet per second. The secretary was instructed to reply, explaining that the Commission has not this information at its disposal and suggesting that the data might be obtained from the Canadian General Electric Company and the Trent Canal authorities.

The Electrical Department reported the peak power demand here during February was 7,600 horsepower, an increase of 500 horsepower over February 1936. Ten flat rate water heaters were installed during the month, bringing the total number in the city to 1,034 and the total capacity to 656.66 horsepower. Four new range services were installed, bringing the total to 64 since the campaign for range installation was begun last May.

The department carried on rebuilding activities on Benson avenue, McDonnel and Downie streets, Romaine and Park streets and Hunter street east.

Two Cars Damaged On Park Hill Road

Cars owned by A. L. Stedham, 300 Elias avenue and K. S. Wightman, 47 Robinson street, were damaged after being involved in collision shortly after six o'clock Friday evening at Park Hill and Armour roads.

According to police reports Mr. Stedham was proceeding north on Armour road when the other car driven by Mrs. Lillian Wightman swerved to the wrong side of the road when the car was about to turn west on Park Hill road on to Armour road.

Mr. Stedham assessed damages to his car at seventy-five dollars, while Mr. Wightman estimated damages to his vehicle at thirty-seven dollars.

SCRAP COPPER WIRE SOLD.

The Electrical Department is now faced with paying greatly increased prices for its copper wire supplies, but the rising price of copper has also proved a boon. Twelve tons of scrap copper wire were recently sold at a price of more than 14 cents a pound, Utilities Manager Ross Dobbin reports. The scrap had been accumulating for more than two years. The sale netted a sum in the neighborhood of $3,600.

ORDERING MORE COAL.

Fearing further rises in the price of coal, the Gas Department of the Peterborough Utilities is ordering immediately a 300-ton shipment from the mines in Kentucky and further orders will likely be placed within the next few weeks, Manager Harry Beal reported to the Commission on Friday coal has advanced from $2 to $2.30 a ton at the mine head since last year, and said he expected a rise to $2.50 soon. The coal costs around $2.50 f.o.b. Peterborough.

Among the Barrie fans who accompanied their team to Peterborough last night for the game with the local Colts were Mr. and Mrs. Bogardis, parents of "Babe" Bogardis, the sterling little forward who helped Peterborough win the O. H. A. Senior championship 11 years ago.

FRUIT OF PERSISTENCE.

Alderman Juby's one-man campaign for traffic lights at Park and Charlotte streets seems to be making some headway. It is in the books of the fire, water and light committee, but Ald. Wilson wants to know where the money is coming from. The progress is something more than negative in the fact that the Park street lights have been turned out for another year.

Carefully Fed And Trained On Spinach Lindsay Curling Rink Trims Opponents

LINDSAY, Ont., March 13.—(CP)—Chief of Police Ralph Lawler's curling rink, carefully fed and trained on spinach for the battle of the century with Nicholls Hankers, hitherto unbeaten tankard and bonspiel winning rink piloted by Percy Skitch, went over the top in a game here witnessed by hundreds of enthusiastic fans. Lawler's rink defeated the Skitch rink 13-12.

The rink, known as the Town Hall Foursome, composed of Chief Lawler, skip; Magistrate A. E. Gee, R. Wareham, tax collector and "Pepsi" Corbbett, secretary of the Lindsay water board, ate a pork of spinach provided by Magistrate Gee, previous to the game to give them the added punch necessary for such a strenuous encounter. The game was tied 12-12 at the last end.

Chief Lawler had the last shot which was to mean victory or defeat for the rink and for the reputation of spinach as a curling constitutional for all time. Taking a huge leaf of spinach from his pocket, carefully preserved for such an emergency, Chief Lawler held up play until he had consumed the last nibble of it and all and let go a mighty heave. His stone weaved its way through several carefully placed guards to rest directly on the T, thus winning the game by one point. Spinach had done the trick.

The Rambling REPORTERS

PUMPAGE IS DOWN.

It looks very much as though Peterborough people took fewer baths last month than usual, for the total pumpage recorded at the Waterworks during the month was only 72,000,000 gallons as compared with 82,000,000 gallons during February, 1936.

Utilities Manager Ross Dobbin has, however, a more pleasant explanation for the decreased water consumption. He states: "This decrease may be attributed to the mild weather as householders had no occasion to keep their taps running to prevent the pipes from freezing."—C.P.R.

CLYDE AND MORTON ENTER SEMI-FINAL OF SCOTTISH CUP

Arsenal And Charlton Both Win In English League

BOLTON BEATEN 2-0

GLASGOW, March 13.—(C.P. Cable).—Clyde and Morton gained entry to the semi-finals of the Scottish Football Cup competition with victories in the fourth round to-day. Morton, only second-division entry left in the cup, blanked Queen of South, 4-1, and Clyde shut out St. Mirren, 3-0. The Celtic-Motherwell and Hamilton Academicals-Aberdeen ties were postponed because of unfit grounds.

Travelling to Shawfield Park Clyde chalked up their fourth victory in cup starts, including the scoreless draw at Dundee in the third round and their subsequent 1-0 victory over the Dens Park squad. Their previous victims were Vale o'Caba and St. Johnstone.

Played Five Games

Morton also had to play five games to get through the fourth round and gain semi-final status, having been held to a 1-1 draw in their first encounter with Partick Thistle, whom they subsequently ousted by a 2-1 count. In the first round Morton tied 3-3 with Murrayfield Amateurs, minor league outfit, and in the replay drubbed them 6-1. They had a bye in the second round.

Heavy favorites to capture the trophy, Celtic and Aberdeen will play their fourth-round matches during the week.

The second-division team's win over Queen of South was the surprise of the day, the latter squad having eliminated Rangers 1-0 in the initial round. St. Mirren had a fairly easy path through the cup until to-day's defeat by Clyde.

English League

Arsenal and Charlton Athletic, bracketed at the top of the championship section of the English Football League, both won victories, and each remained three points ahead of Middlesbrough, which jumped into third position over Brentford.

Arsenal went to Leeds United and came out on top of a 4-3 score, while Charlton Athletic, playing at home, triumphed over Manchester United, bottom-place eleven, 3-0.

Middlesbrough gained two points with a 2-0 victory at home over Bolton Wanderers. Brentford, losing 4-0 at Birmingham, slipped back into a tie with Manchester City, Portsmouth and Derby County for fourth place.

The City beat Huddersfield Town, 3-0; Portsmouth gained a 3-2 decision over Sunderland, and the County beat Stoke City 2-1, the four fourth-place teams all being two points behind Middlesbrough.

BOY IS DRAGGED FOR THREE BLOCKS

Believed To Have Been Playing On Back Of Car While Driver Stopped

Marvin Buchan, 4, 294 Lake street, who was playing at the back of a motor car on Friday afternoon, was dragged for three city blocks when Leon Guerin, 281 King street, started off without being aware of the lad's plight.

Mr. Guerin reported to city police that he came out of his store at Park and Lake streets and jumped into his car and drove away and did not know the child was in any danger until his attention was called to the fact after he had gone about three blocks.

Suffering from bruises about his face and knees and with his clothing badly torn, the child was taken for treatment to the clinic by Frank J. Goselin of Park and Romaine streets.

It was believed by police that the child climbed on the back of the car while it was standing outside the store, and that he was dragged after trying to jump from the vehicle as it moved off.

Collegiate Notes

WINNERS ANNOUNCED

The prizes for the art contest held recently in connection with the school Echoes were awarded to the winners Thursday morning from the Assembly Hall platform by Miss Mayme Montgomery. Hugh Kenner received the award for the best assortment of pieces handed in. Don Duncan won the prize for the best comic sketch. Edna Borland won the first prize and Ralph Johnston the second prize for best illustrations. The cash award for the best tail piece and linoleum cut went to Jean Johnston. Miss Montgomery remarked that many excellent entries were submitted and that competition was very keen.

ENTERTAINMENT

The morning entertainments continued anew on Wednesday after a week's intermission. Walter Crowter of First Form, Academic, sang, "Who is Sylvia." Fred Mooper was the accompanist. Walter is a member of St. John's choir and has won prizes for his singing in Toronto and Stratford. Bill Moorhead of 4A Academic, was well received by the student body when he played as a violin solo, Friday morning, the well known "Csardis" by Monte.

Officers and N.C.O.'s, members of the First Aid Corps, Bugle Band and Signallers are the only sections of the Cadet Corps who will benefit this year from the grant of money given to the school by the Board of Education for uniforms. This week the members of the Corps mentioned above were fitted with old uniforms to be sent away and dyed. The uniforms will be navy blue with the tunics trimmed with garnet.

CULINARY DISTRACTION

The sweet aroma of freshly cooked doughnuts drifted through the corridors of P.C.I.V.S. last Tuesday. The girls of the Household Arts department were possibly trying to carry out the old slogan "the way to a man's heart is through his stomach," but the whole school benefited by their experiment. One Fifth Form girl was overheard to say while talking to two of her friends, "Smell the doughnuts! boy their good! I just had a couple." It is hard to say how many boys were looking for samples.

DOUBLE SUCCESS

The operetta is a thing of the past but what a success it was! Dr. Kenner congratulated the students' Council and all members of the cast on the excellent work they did. He said it was the best production in the history of the school.

Many may think the cast would be glad the operetta is past. On the contrary most of the members seem to regret it so they must have enjoyed the hard work entailed in its preparation after all. It is reported that, as well as being an artistic success, the show was also a financial success.

P.C.V.S. ALUMNI

Miss Margaret McCulloch and Miss Barbara Foster are two Alumnae who have done well for themselves since leaving P.C.V.S. halls.

Margaret McCulloch left school in 1930 and went to St. Hilda's College for girls. She won a gold medal for her excellent work in French and German in which she specialized. After graduating from St. Hilda's, she accepted a position in Hart House, Toronto, as secretary-treasurer to A. G. MacDonald, head of the Students' Administrative Council of the University of Toronto. Miss McCulloch is now engaged as private secretary to Provost Cosgrave of Trinity College. She was a Nichols scholarship winner while attending P.C.V.S.

Miss Barbara Foster graduated from P.C.V.S. in 1930 and continued her studies at Oberlin College, Oberlin, Ohio, where she was awarded a Bachelor of Arts degree. Later she attended Simmons College at Boston where she got a B.S. degree. She spent a year on the staff of the Peter Bent Bringham Hospital and is now doing secretarial work at the Lakeside Hospital in Cleveland.

ODDS AND ENDS

Pictures of the Boys' and Girls' athletic associations, the teaching staff, field day winners, orchestra, Echoes staff, typing and advertising staff, Nicholl's Scholarship winners, Industrial and Commercial scholarship winners, "eighty-per center" students, and Student's Council, were on display this week in the photography show case. . . . The P.C.V.S. hockey team is still waiting for their final playoffs in the South End League. . . . Several camera enthusiasts have been practising a bit on candid-camera photography this week and have some true-to-life classroom snapshots of teachers and classmates to show for their work. Some of these are to be included in the Echoes.

LORD TWEEDSMUIR UNABLE TO VISIT CITY AT PRESENT

Governor-General Thanks Mayor And Council For Its Invitation

TO SEE KAWARTHAS

A letter from the Governor-General, Lord Tweedsmuir, to the council Friday night thanked the city for the invitation to visit Peterborough, and announced that on account of many other engagements already scheduled, that an official visit would have to be deferred until later in his term of office.

J. J. Duffus told the Examiner today that he made his official visit, as representative of the citizens of Peterborough West, to the Governor-General on Wednesday and was most cordially received.

"It was a privilege which I very deeply appreciated," Mr. Duffus said, "and I think the people of the city and county would be interested in knowing that the Governor-General is well informed about Peterborough. He mentioned many topics about industries and the size of the city and the country round about it that were certainly surprising to me. His Excellency spoke of the Kawartha Lakes, and said he hoped to see something of them on his visit to Peterborough. I told him that it has been said they were the world's most beautiful chain of lakes and rivers. Lord Tweedsmuir said they must be a great natural asset to this community, and he wondered whether it would be possible for him to make a trip through them. He told me that a canoe trip would particularly appeal to him, but because of the time element I suggested that it would be better to go by motor boat.

"I have my own motorboat, and I think that perhaps I might bring it along with me when I visit Peterborough. Shall we consider that is already settled, and we shall be able to see the Kawarthas?"

Mr. Duffus said that it was his second annual call on the Governor-General on Wednesday.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, March 14.

Sunday's horoscope points to a rather lively year, especially for affairs of the church and ecclesiastics. Yet, it would be well to refrain from strife, rashness and impulsive conduct. There may be intriguing circumstances in private relations.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a lively year, in which big business should prosper. There is a menace of tangling up matters by impetuosity, quarrels and reckless conduct.

For Monday, March 15.

However, financial matters are under promising sway. Beware of intriguing situations in the personal affiliations.

Miss Chiang is the principal of the Union Normal School for Young Women at Chengtu. Having received the degree of Bachelor of Arts in China, she is now in Canada to take two years of post-graduate study in educational work at the University of Toronto, leading to the degree of Master of Arts.

In the Normal School at Chengtu of which Miss Chiang is principal, three churches unite in educational work: the United Church of Canada, the Baptist Church of the United States, and the Anglican Church of Great Britain.

Hobby Fair Is Successful.

The tea and Hobby Fair held on Thursday in the Sunday School auditorium of St. Andrew's United Church, under auspices of the Elizabeth Bell Auxiliary was a highly successful and very entertaining event.

The guests were received by the president, Mrs. J. G. Wharry, and the pastor's wife, Mrs. C. V. McLean. Co-hostesses were Mrs. A. Moir and Miss Elizabeth Scott.

Tea was poured in the afternoon by Mrs. R. H. Kenner, Mrs. H. Wightman, Mrs. R. M. Waddell and Mrs. W. J. Thompson. In the evening, Mrs. G. H. Roper and Miss Effie Munro presided. Mrs. A. C. Gray was convenor of arrangements for tea, assisted by Mesdames W. J. Thompson, R. M. Waddell, C. R. Stone, C. B. Waite, F. Morrow.

The table was arranged attractively with an embroidered cream cloth done with Spring flowers and silver candelabra holding cream and yellow candles.

During the tea hour, piano music was played by Miss Margaret Palpoine and Miss Merrill Smith.

The Hobby Show, which was in charge of Mrs. J. O. Wharry, Miss Christena Hall and Miss Grace Reinhardt, illustrated various aspects of adult handicraft, in quilts of many types, needlepoint, fancy work, pictures and pewter pieces.

Golden Jubilee Fittingly Celebrated.

The completion of half a century of labor for the furtherance of missionary endeavors was celebrated in fitting manner on Friday afternoon by the members of the Women's Missionary Society of George Street United Church, who were hostesses at a delightful tea held in the Sunday School auditorium and attended by some three hundred ladies who came to meet their friends, enjoy a pleasant musical program and admire the decorations. Scots were present from Lakefield, Keene and Millbrook.

Words of welcome were voiced by the president, Mrs. W. H. Morton, and greetings from the Presbyterial by Mrs. C. M. Scott. The presentation of special gifts given by W.M.S. members for missions was carried out by Mrs. C. McGhee, who recited some verses composed especially by her for the occasion, and who was assisted by two members of the Baby Band: Connie MacPherson and Mary Uhler. Rev. Mr. Parr dedicated the gifts.

A Candle-Lighting ceremony, the "March of Time," was a feature of the opening of the tea hour. In this, various members represented deceased presidents of the organization, Mrs. O. D. Carlisle representing the late Mrs. J. K. Davidson (1887-1889); Mrs. J. C. Wood represented the late Mrs. J. B. Dixon (1889-1892); Mrs. J. Spencer represented the late Mrs. James Kennedy, who was president for a quarter of a century, from 1892 to 1917; Mrs. H. E. Foote represented the late Mrs. A. E. Thomas (1917-1920); Mrs. H. Dalmage represented the late Mrs. S. J. Armstrong (1921-1927 and 1931-1932).

Mrs. S. W. Coon, the only living past president, whose terms of office included the years between 1928 and 1931, also 1932 and 1934, took part in the ceremony. Also Mrs. W. H. Morton, who has presided over the society's endeavors since 1936.

In this ceremony, the Rev. M. C. Parr, pastor of the church, represented the Spirit of the Past and Present, while Miss Marion Coon, missionary home on furlough from China, was the Spirit of the Future, wearing Oriental costume and presenting a challenge to endeavor in her brief talk about her work. The Rev. Mr. Parr was chairman for this ceremony.

The only living charter members of the society, Mrs. J. Carlisle and Mrs. A. E. Meeks, who joined the W.M.S. a few years after its organization, were honored guests of the afternoon. Mrs. Carlisle was presented with a corsage of roses and pansies by Mrs. S. W. Coon.

Mrs. W. H. Morton also mentioned the late Mrs. Curtis, a charter member in whose honor a daughter, Miss Alberta Curtis, presented a beautiful basket filled with daffodils which formed one of the decorative adjuncts of the platform.

This was attractively arranged with a table covered by bread and centered by a large three-tiered birthday cake on which fifty tiny gilt candles were later lighted by Mrs. Morton. There were gold candles of graduated sizes in silver holders and crystal bowls filled with golden daffodils. From above, pendant over the table, was suspended a slender cord holding a gilt circle centered by large letters forming the symbol '50.' The tables at which ladies sat to enjoy tea and delicious refreshments were centered by flower-filled vases and the tables for the sale of home-made candy and cooking were decorated in mauve and yellow.

General convenors of arrangements were Mrs. H. Parnall and Mrs. H. G. Walker. The reception committee included Mrs. W. H. Morton, Mrs. M. C. Parr and group leaders. The decorating committee members were Mesdames E. E. Harvey, J. W. Kelly, A. M. Weldon.

Hostesses of the afternoon at the tables were Mesdames Harvey, Jowett, McKee, Coon, Strock, Wood, Morrow, Nelson, A. I. Brown.

The table committee was comprised of Mesdames Manning, Lyons, Wilkman, F. Stevens, G. Armstrong, Stevens, Hales, Barrett, Routley, McMillan, Bethpalh, Hetherington, Tinney, McGhee, Vance, Wiley, Cunningham, Latimer, Kingdon, Douglas, Mofford, Hagerman, Clegg, Carlisle, Foote, Kelly, Brenton, Barrows, Hall, Smith, Olin, McGinnis.

Ladies looking after the replenishment of refreshments were Mesdames Frederick, Ward, Dalmage, Boorman, Kingdon, Burns, Armstrong, Burnham.

The sale of candy was supervised by Mesdames Baird and McIntyre; the sale of cooking by Mesdames E. Brown and W. H. Dyer; the guest book by Mrs. M. C. Parr and Mrs. F. Westwood; the entrance by Mesdames J. Spencer and Rogers.

A very pleasing musical program was arranged by Mesdames W. Purdy and M. C. Parr. Those taking part in instrumental and vocal selections included Mesdames A. B. Burrows, Rose Williamson, W. Heyburn and C. Telford (the two latter giving a vocal duet in Oriental costume and white wigs); the Misses Helen Ludbrook and Merrill Smith. Accompanists were Mrs. M. C. Parr, Mrs. W. A. If You Have a Child

ASK YOUR DOCTOR THIS

Ask Him Before Giving Your Child an Unknown Remedy

Practically any doctor you ask will warn: "Don't give your child unknown remedies without asking your doctor first."

When it comes to the widely used children's remedy — "milk of magnesia," the standard of the world is established. For over half a century many doctors have said "PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia." Safe for children. No other is "quite like it."

Keep this in mind, and say "PHILLIPS' MILK OF MAGNESIA" when you buy. Now also in tablet form. Get the form you prefer. But see that what you get is labeled "Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia."

ALSO IN TABLET FORM: Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of regular Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

QUEEN SELECTS FAVORED WOMEN

Her Majesty Will Be Attended By 17 Titled Persons At Coronation

LONDON, March 13—(C.P.)—Seventeen noble-women will attend Queen Elizabeth when she walks through Westminster Abbey for her coronation, May 12.

When the Queen enters in her coronation robes from the robing annex, which has been built just outside the Abbey, her train will be born be six daughters of earls. Behind them will walk two ladies-in-waiting, six maids of honor and two women of the bedchamber. In close attendance upon her Majesty will be her mistress of the robes.

Although no appointment of these favored attendants have as yet been made, it is freely speculated that the most important place, that of mistress of the robes, will be filled either by the Duchess of Buccleuch, sister-in-law of the Duchess of Gloucester, or by the Duchess of Northumberland, a girlhood friend of the Queen.

SAYS TOO MANY STICK-WAGGERS

British Conductor Wants His Audience To Look For Good Music

BOURNEMOUTH, England March 13. —(CP)— Sir Henry Wood, the noted British orchestra conductor, believes the present-day "flash conductors" has gone a bit too far.

"By all means have guest conductors, but do not make them the center of your attraction," Sir Henry advised. "We suffer from stick-waggers nowadays."

The observation was made at the opening of the Bournemouth music festival and he confided to the audience it was the first time he had attempted an address. "I am rather against it," he said, "because I like my public to come and hear the music. It is not for the conductor, either before or after the concert, to amuse the public by saying funny things."

He maintained the craving for a variety of conductors was not good for the discipline of an orchestra or for its performances. The greatest orchestras in the world had been made and established by one permanent conductor.

INDIA'S WOMEN GAINING PLACE

Bombay Paper Points To Larger Part Taken In Public Service

BOMBAY, March 13 — (CP). — The Times of India says editorially: "Competent observers are agreed that one of the most encouraging signs for the future of India is the increasingly large part women are playing in public life. A case in point is the success which has attended the Bombay Presidency Women's Council both in its conference and in its efforts throughout the past year.

"During the 18 years of its existence the Council has worked for the amelioration of woman's lot, and while even in its early stages it was a thriving movement, it is only of late that it has expanded rapidly and taken it due place in the public eye. The reasons for its success are not far to seek. They are to be found mainly in the spirit of service inspiring its members and in its refusal to stultify itself or reduce its representatives character by taking sides in party politics.

"The strength of the case for the women's council is essentially this—that it is non-sectarian and non-political, that it exists not to beat government or any other body with this or the other stick, but simply to espouse women's interest and advance their welfare."

SCREEN EDITOR NOT REAL TYPE

He Could Not Get Out a Paper, New York Newspaperman Says

NEW YORK, March 13.—(CP)— The excitable individual in shirt sleeves and eye-shade who grabs three telephones at once and yells into them "City Desk!" has no being outside the movie newspaper, says Neil MacNeil, assistant night managing editor of the New York Times.

In a talk on the functions of the city editor, MacNeil, who formerly was night city-editor of The Times, told the New School for Social Research that "the loud-mouthed, two-fisted, strutting city editor of the stage and screen could never get out a paper."

"The city staff wouldn't work for him," he declared. "Truck drivers cannot edit modern newspapers. The morale of a news staff is a delicate and fragile thing—and the pride and joy of the city editor."

Whereas the police reporter was the star of the staff before the war, crime news now constitutes less than three per cent of a leading modern newspaper, the editor said. The war had caused a shift in emphasis in news values that dwarfed ordinary crime and "resulted in social and economic problems making page one."

The great problem of the modern newspaper is not in filling up its columns, MacNeil continued, but in making room for worthwhile news while avoiding sensationalism, pressagentry, propaganda and other evils.

Just Between Us Women

FAITH is a big word, and means so much. It is the inward acceptance of God, confidence in the medicine man, trust in your partner, belief in your goods. It is the continuation of reason. Without faith, the bottom of your plans would fall out.—Van Amburgh.

Dear Friends:

When we think of faith, we generally connect it only with faith in our Father. But we must have faith in ourselves, in the power He gave us, else we shall do little with our lives.

When you 'phone in an order to your grocer, you have faith that he will send it. (that is if you keep your credit good.) When you go to bed, you have no doubts at all that the sun will rise on the morrow. In fact, the faith in its rising is so ingrained in you that you have no doubts at all about it.

If you think your favorite drug store will not fill your prescription accurately, you have no faith in him, so you go elsewhere. But how many of us doubt that he is capable of doing what he was trained to do?

If you have no faith in your partner, you might as well dissolve the partnership, for you will never do any good together, and if you lack belief in the thing you are selling, how can you convince anyone that it is good for them to use it. When you look at it rightly, there is very little in life that can be accomplished without faith. Why the whole world hangs together on the faith we have in one another, in the teachings we receive in youth, in the love our parents have for us, in our friendships with one another.

You cannot utter a word without believing you can speak, yet you have never seen your own voice, and I doubt if you would recognize it, if it were reproduced on a record, or if you heard it over a microphone of a telephone. (Mouthpiece to you).

Lack of faith in anything can hold us back, and is often the chief hindrance to anything we want to do. When someone calls you by 'phone, you have faith that it is really them, yet you cannot see them at all.

Sometimes our faith is taxed to the limit, when someone comes on the radio, and makes claims that certain drugs or merchandise will cure everything from hang-nails to a bald head. But it is your own silly credulity that gives you false faith in what people like that say.

Everyone of us must somehow, in some way, "sell" ourselves to one another, so that they have faith in us, in our sincerity, in our love for them, in our devotion, and in our need of them. If they have no faith in us, how long will the friendship last?

We have faith that our employers will pay us at the end of the week or month, else we would refuse to go on working for them. And did you ever see faith? You may have seen the effects of it, you certainly have seen the good it can do, but as something to be handled, you never have seen it.

What is there so lovely as the faith of a child in its parents, and when those same parents destroy that faith they do an ungodly thing. Anyone who destroys the faith that someone has in them, does the worst days work for themselves that they could possibly do. And once it is destroyed, it can seldom if ever come alive again.

So, give your faith a chance to work for you, and you will be amazed at the betterment in your life. Faith in God your Father, that He made no empty promises, and that it is only the lack in yourself which keeps the good you desire from coming to you. Faith in yourself, which will clear your eyes to see opportunity coming towards you. Faith in your fellow-men, for they are facing the same problems that you are, and faith in your work, else it will be shoddy stuff. Nothing good can be accomplished without it.

Your friend,

ROBERTA.

1937 is HOME Improvement YEAR

The Year For Putting Men Back to Work

SAYS $100,000 SHOULD BE AIM OF HOME LOANS

Alderman Dutton Urges Home Improvement Plan To Large Audience

SAW "ANN'S HOUSE"

Peterborough's objective of Home Improvement Plan business should be at least $100,000, Alderman James Dutton suggested in moving a vote of appreciation of the constructive idea recently presented to the Canadian Johns-Manville Company's program at the Collegiate Institute Thursday night.

Their talkie film, "The House that Ann Built," was replete with ideas for transforming the average home, outside and in, by adopting the very favorable loan features of the Home Improvement Plan as an easy means of paying by instalments for improvements to any or every room of a house and also to its exterior.

To the audience of five or six hundred men and women, Alderman Dutton spoke of the campaign when the Peterborough Advisory Committee of the Home Improvement Plan has undertaken.

"The government is providing for loans totalling $50,000,000 under this plan," Alderman Dutton said, "and is guaranteeing the banks up to 10 per cent. of this amount. It is entirely up to the citizens now they respond to this plan of assisting home-owners to proceed with necessary repairs and improvements. Peterborough has already made a very promising start, but the question is how far are we going. If the people of this city are to be satisfied with a total of $50,000 in loans the Plan will be only a partial success here. Some of us are hoping for an objective of $100,000, and more than that is possible."

Eager To Explain.

Alderman Dutton urged his audience to enquire into the details of the Home Improvement Plan. The members of the advisory committee, tradesmen and bankers were all eager to explain how money can be borrowed on easy terms of monthly payments.

A. J. Masson, Toronto, assistant sales manager of Canadian Johns-Manville Company, touched upon the revolution in financing any building or improvement through co-operation with the banks. He advised persons interested in this advantage of the Plan to consult the local agent of the company. Fred Lee, field supervisor of the company, described many of the Johns-Manville products, such as rock wool, asbestos shingles, tiles of many colors for bathrooms, insulating boards for inside walls and so on. The meeting was sponsored by the Peterborough Lumber Company and Gordon Munro, vice-president of the company, was chairman.

New Resources Offered.

"The House that Ann Built" was a picture of actual modernization of an old house that had fallen behind the developments in present-day building ideas, the new resources of beauty that are available, more convenience and economy in home planning, and generally the broader range of attractiveness which the building industry offers to home owners and home builders.

No Increase In Assessment On Minor Repairs To Homes

Permissive Instructions Coming To All Assessors In The Province

ALD. DUTTON'S REPORT

Combining a personal business trip to Toronto with enquiries at the headquarters of the provincial advisory committee of the Home Improvement Loan on Tuesday, Alderman Dutton interviewed Ryland H. New, general chairman for Ontario, in regard to phases of the Plan's operations which have recently been discussed by the Peterborough committee.

Incidentally it was learned that the Ontario committee is highly satisfied with the progress of the promotional work in this city and district. Organization in Peterborough is considered to be as well advanced as in any other municipality in the province, and is far ahead of most other cities and towns.

One of the questions mentioned by Alderman Dutton referred to assessment of homes on which improvements are made under the Improvement Plan. Some home owners in the city have asked for definite assurance that there would be no increase in assessment if they went ahead with repairs which would come under the notice of the assessment department.

Mr. New's statement to Ald. Dutton was to the effect that notices are being sent to all local assessors throughout the province instructing them of official permission not to increase assessment of properties for any minor work to homes.

This information would have been forwarded ere if sessional duties of the Legislature had not taken up so much of Departmental time during the last few weeks.

Obviously assessors will have to exercise discretion in determining what are minor improvements, and it is understood that they include alterations to rooms, plumbing, lighting, verandahs, new roofs, and so on. Major alterations involve larger expenditure, and may be indicated by the conversion of a house into a duplex, for example, where the owner gains an advantage in value which should reasonably call for some increase in assessment.

Alderman Dutton said he had discussed details of local organization, and was informed that Peterborough's committee was moving along sound lines. Committees suggested by Mr. New were publicity, finance, a women's auxiliary and also an adjustment committee.

Spending $30,000.

"I was informed that plumbing and heating organizations are contributing $60,000 for the purpose of making the Home Improvement Plan a success," Ald. Dutton said. "Newspapers are being used extensively in giving publicity to the Plan, and on March 25 at 10.30 p.m., Mr. Purvis the national chairman, will give a radio address.

Plans to obtain helpful publicity in the motion picture theatres are on the way, and use of slogan will appear in the near future. The provincial committee is also arranging for publicity by cards in street cars and transport buses. Every contributory agency of publicity will be tied into the general scheme by which the people of Ontario are to be fully informed about the Plan.

THREE ENQUIRIES IN THE PAST WEEK

Fred. O. Goodfellow Asked About Jobs For Other Trades

Fred O. Goodfellow, a member of the local advisory committee for the Home Loan Plan, told the Examiner today that he had three enquiries about work which applied to trades other than his own.

"One was a bricklaying job, the other was for carpenter work involving some plumbing, and the third was some general work amounting to $250," Mr. Goodfellow said. "I got in touch with a bricklayer and a carpenter, and in the last case the home owner wanted definite assurance that if he went ahead with the expenditure of $250 his assessment would not be increased by that amount. I feel that we are now in a position to give that assurance as this seemed to me to be only a minor improvement which the assessor would not notice. There is a lot of work of this kind cropping up and I think the volume is going to be well worth while to everybody. All we need is to get the citizens to understand how the Plan works, and that a permissive assessment policy provides a lot of latitude to our assessor."

BINGO PARTIES.

AURIE RELATIVES GREATLY WORRIED OVER HIS INJURY

Coulter Believes Detroit Star Caught His Skate In The Boards

BRUINS PEEVE ADAMS

By George Maguire
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

NEW YORK, March 13 (CP)—Interesting conversational pieces on the National Hockey League front:

Sudbury relatives worried all Thursday night over Larry Aurie, the league's leading sniper, who suffered a broken ankle in the game here with New York Rangers. Before breakfast Friday Lester Patrick, Ranger chief, received a telegram from Aurie's folks asking for full details.

Art Coulter, Ranger defence star who checked Aurie when the double fracture occurred, believed Larry's skate caught in the boards as he fell. The check was a mild one and Aurie seemed alright until he fell. Aurie was the third player to break a leg in Madison Square Garden this season.

Jack Adams, usually a genial person, was annoyed at the 6-1 pasting Boston Bruins handed Detroit last Tuesday. Before the Ranger game Manager Adams gave his wings a severe tongue lashing, charged them with abandoning teamwork in quest of individual glory and declared next season's contracts would stipulate no Detroiter was eligible for the Hart Trophy, Lady Byng Cup or the Vezina award.

Smith To Join U.S.

Normie Smith, wing goaltender and leading candidate for the Vezina Trophy, has taken out United States citizenship papers like many of his team-mates.

"I can stay in Detroit all summer earning $6.50 per day at an auto factory by getting my papers," he explained. "That's better than going home (Toronto) and idling the time away with a car and spending $10 a day."

Butch Keeling, Ranger's best sniper, had Aurie tied for league scoring honors Thursday night. Then seconds after "The Butch" notched his 22nd goal of the season, however, Aurie banged in his 23rd. Keeling smashed the goal-post twice afterward which prevented him taking the lead.

Neil Colville, young Ranger pivot, returns to the ice wars against Montreal Canadiens tonight. Neil has been out with a badly wrenched shoulder. The elder of the brothers Colville says young Westerners are not like those in the East who pattern themselves after major league stars. "In the West," quoth Neil, "we just grow up into hockey players either good or bad but I guess you could get a pretty fair all-star Western league from the N.H.L. right now, eh."

C.G.E. JUNIORS WIN CAGE GAME

Increase Lead In Girls' League With a 7-3 Victory Over The "Y" Quakers

In a lively junior ladies' Basketball contest in the Y.W. gym last evening, C.G.E. increased their lead in the standing with a 7-3 decision over "Y" Quakers. The winners had a little edge on the attack but the "Y" girls made it interesting from start to finish. The count was 4-0 at the breathing spell for the young Electrics but the losers held them on even terms through the last frame. Both sides counted once on penalty throws, only a few personal fouls being called during the fray. E. Lynch led the snipers for C.G.E. with five points and Z. Birkhoff got two. D. Bestard scored a basket for the Quakers while M. Kingsbury ringed the ball on a free toss. The teams:

C.G.E.—M. Cumminskey, P. Nolan, P. Baxter, E. Foster, Z. Birkhoff, V. Barsley, M. Heard, E. Lynch.

"Y" Quakers—V. Woods, M. Sullivan, M. Bovie, D. Frost, D. Bestard, B. Frost, E. Alexander, E. O'Leary, M. Kingsbury, R. Dalliday.

WESTCLOX JUNIORS DEFEAT ST. JOHN'S

Get Second - Place Tie In Ladies' Cage Loop With 8-5 Decision Over Saints

Westclox Juniors moved into a second-place tie in the Ladies' Basketball League last night at the Y.W.C.A. by pulling out an 8-5 win over St. John's. After a close-checking first half which saw the East City team score the only point, both teams opened up with a smart tussle to make it interesting. Westclox had a slight edge in scoring to grab the verdict but had to battle all the way. There were few personal fouls called and the winners cashed in on two to their rivals' one. J. Crowe led the winners with four points while A. Flynn had three and A. Walsh one. J. McIlwain collected four points for St. John's and L. Bowler got the other one. The teams:

Westclox—J. Crowe, A. Walsh, D. Dawson, M. Pannett, Z. Florence, A. Flynn, L. McNaughton.

St. John's—J. McIlwain, J. Coleman, E. Gynane, E. Craig, B. Castle, I. Young, G. Varty, A. Bowler.

ELECTRICS WIN OVER WESTCLOX

Upset Dope With 15-10 Nod Through Strong Drive In First Half Of Game

C.O.E. Seniors handed the league-leading Westclox squad an upset in the Ladies' Basketball Loop at the Y.W. last night by copping a 15-10 decision to move up into a virtual tie. Turning on the heat from the first whistle, the Electrics piled up a big early lead and stayed off a strong second-half rally by Westclox to come home in front. The victors had a 12-0 lead at the halfway mark and held the battling Clockmakers to 10 points through the second chapter of an exciting and speedy fixture before a good crowd of rooters. Play was clean all the way and the winners got the only free throw. M. Hodson led in scoring with five points while A. Craig and M. Woods had four each and E. Bradley two. For Westclox, G. Hunter and B. Blade had four apiece and C. Whalman two. The teams:

C.O.E.—E. Hodson, M. Hodson, J. Alexander, A. Craig, E. Bradley, M. Halliday, M. Woods, D. Schutz, K. Rogow.

5 HOCKEY PLAYERS ARE IN CAR CRASH

On Way To Lindsay To Play In Exhibition Game Car Skidded

LINDSAY, Ont., March 13—(CP)—Five Toronto hockey players, en-route to Lindsay where an exhibition hockey game had been billed between Reinhardts and Copelands of Toronto, figured in an automobile accident just south of Manchester last night.

Hurrying to Lindsay to engage in the hockey game which had been waiting for them for some time, the car containing the five players skidded on the highway, took the ditch and rolled over. Bill Steen, Tom Lally and Bob Mitchell were injured seriously while Roy Farnum and Bob Wisner were cut by glass.

Norwood Juniors Win Over Intermediates

(Examiner Correspondence.)

NORWOOD, March 13—The light, speedy Norwood Juniors defeated the Intermediates by a 7-3 score here before a fair crowd. The older squad could not keep pace with their young rivals who finished some fine passing plays. Near the close of the tilt, the junior goalie was cut over the eye and left after a fine performance. R. Manchester took over and also stood out in his play. A big crowd cheered the winners along. The teams:

Intermediate: Goal, R. Imes; defence, R. Weth, L. Rogers; centre, C. Fuller; wings, H. Rogers, E. Godin; alternates, W. Rogers, K. Fuller, J. Rathwell.

UP AT the "Y" tonight, St. Paul's and Neill's tangle at 8.15 with Dominion Life meeting C.O.E. at 9.15 in Senior City Basketball League battles. With only a few games left in the schedule, and St. Paul's safe in the top slot, there is a merry scramble on for the other playoff berth. The P.C.I., C.G.E. and Neill squads are pretty well-matched and dish up a lot of keen action. So, if you like the hoop game, drop around and give a gander at these two games this p.m.

* * * * * *

FIVE TEAMS—and maybe Trenton Airport—will be represented today at the C.O.B.I. meeting in Belleville. Kingston, Oshawa, Napanee and Peterborough will send delegates. And Belleville will have a few on hand though things do not look promising for a team there this summer. Unless it's a combined outfit with Trenton. Frexy Max Swanston, Jim Dorris and your scribe will go in the Peterborough party. Won't be such a great deal doing at this first meeting of the year, but a good line on the situation and a lot of interesting rumors should be obtained.

* * * * * *

KINGSTON WILL send Art Casterton, Howard Byron, S. Corbett and Wally Elmer. The writer in Kingston says the club will suggest that pros and amateurs be allowed to play exhibition games as in hockey. If the loop okays it, the proposal will be forwarded to the O.B.A.A. He adds: "Kingston has most of last season's team, with the exception of Howitt Smith, who has moved to Ottawa; but at least four new players are expected if arrangements are completed. Other players may also be in the neighborhood with many more men working here since the different industries increased their employees. A few days will decide the question."

* * * * * *

MONDAY EVE at 8.30 in the Brock St. rink, if there's ice, the first game of the Senior City Hockey League finals will begin. Lakefield and Westclox tangle in the Blood and Thunder Loop playoffs, two games with goals counting. We hope the ice holds out for these important brawls. A lot of interest is apparent and we wouldn't be surprised to see quite a raft of rooters from the northern village on deck and maybe with a bundle of shekels to back their boys. However, the Clockmakers have a smooth outfit and any team that takes 'em will have to hustle every minute.

* * * * * *

SOME RATHER hunky lads from Barrie had a hockey game here last night and the local Colts slapped 'em over with a 7-2 setback. Which means our crew carry a five-goal lead to Barrie for the return number Monday. It should be sufficient to tuck the series in the well-known gunny sack. No doubt Barrie will be harder to take on their own ice—a large surface it is, too—but on their showing yester gleaming the young Petes have the better team. The Buckland boys had more speed ,teamplay and rounder checking. They deserved a bigger score and, had the ice held up better, could most likely have tacked on several more markers. It looks like the Peterborough juniors are money players—they go best when the chips are down, or they have so far in their last three series.

* * * * * *

DESPITE HEAVY ice and some slow spots through the game—and the rather one-sided count—it was a tidy tussle. Lots of speed most of the time, some rugged hockey and plenty of thrilling spots. The Colts were fairly flying in on combination rushes and rattling the rubber off the goalie's pads—with seven going by him. The forwards checked back well and the defence looked steady for the most part. Harding had some nice saves, too. It was a pretty clean contest. We liked the work of Art Heal and Eddie Starr up front and Don Crowe on defence; these in particular but the whole squad went good.

* * * * * *

BARRIE HAS a fair goalie, though he looked weak on some of the drives that beat him. He had little chance on others as the vaunted pair of defencemen, Jones and Dyte, proved fine puck-carriers but only so-so in guarding the blue line. "They're back there just for their size," Coach Buckland said; "they are really better forwards." He was satisfied with the locals' showing after the first period. Scott at left wing and Bowen at centre also went well for the losers. They tired faster than the young Petes last p.m. but no doubt will shoot the works in their own arena on Monday. At that, our team should win the game that evening.

* * * * * *

REFEREE ALLEN of Toronto is an efficient arbiter but doggone it he should get to games on time. The fray last p.m. was an hour late in starting—the second time he has been late arriving here. An impressive one-minute of silence ceremony was held for the late Howie Morenz. The rink was packed with a noisy crowd. Some 100 Barrie rooters arrived and brought a lot of enthusiasm and jugs of kiscups along, but both were down by the third period. They weren't taking any bets beforehand, either. It's been years since we've seen ladies parked on the east side of the rink but there were plenty for this game. Some of the scalpers took a beating on the sale of seats, too. Ah, yes, it was quite an affair, quite an affair.

Manager Art Ross Of Boston Bruins Asks N.H.L. Cancel Chicago Franchise

DETROIT, March 13 (CP)—Manager Art Ross of the Boston Bruins today demanded that the National Hockey League cancel the franchise of the Chicago Black Hawks on the grounds of the latters' "All-American" game Thursday night.

Ross, whose own team won the game 6-2, charged that "never in hockey's history has such a farce been perpetrated on a National League crowd." Chicago's use of the five American-born recruits, Ross said, made the game a "laughing stock."

Besides asking cancelation of the franchise, Ross said he would suggest to the league's board of governors that the Chicago management be ordered to refund admission fees to the game's patrons.

The Black Hawks used the five rookies under an announced future policy of playing only American-Born athletes. Ross referred to them as "poor kids who did not get a single shot" at the Boston goal while the Bruins counted all six of their scores during the regular

SNAPPY PASSING

Before a crowded gallery P.C.I. defeated Bowmanville last night here by a score of 49 to 9. Displaying a smart brand of basketball with sharp-shooting and snappy passing the P.C.I. lads advanced to provincial playoffs. The winners led by Sedgewick, who scored 10 points and went well on defense, outplayed in all departments the weaker Bowmanville team. The points were evenly distributed with Weir and Gillespie notching seven each. Cutting, Dougherty, Foster, got 6 points each. Johnston who went well on defense also scored 3 points. Weir's ball-handling was the cause of many baskets as he set them up for the boys.

Locals Grab 7-2 Verdict In Fir st Of Home-And-Home Series Before Roaring Throng Of 2,000 Fans With Fine Display Of Hockey

FAST, CLEAN AND EXCITING

About 2,000 fans packed the Brock St. rink last night and saw the local Colts cop a 7-2 verdict over Barrie in the first game of their O.H.A. junior "B" playdowns. The young Petes will carry a five-goal lead to Barrie Monday for the return game of what may prove to be the Ontario semi-finals.

It was an exciting fixture on heavy ice before a noisy throng. The game was an hour late starting due to the late arrival of Referee Allen from Toronto. In an impressive ceremony at the start, the two teams lined up and the fans stood up for a minute's silence in memory of the late Howie Morenz of Montreal.

Colts Look Better

The Colts earned the victory all the way last evening, turning in a smart performance. They outskated their huskier rivals, flashed better combination and a more effective brand of checking. Repeatedly, Barrie players shot the puck down the ice to relieve pressure and the homesters should have won by a larger score on the play. They had a 2-1 lead in the first and the score was 5-2 going into the third. Play was fast and thrilling most of the distance but slowed down some in the third with the players tiring rapidly on the heavy ice. It was a clean contest with the locals drawing three of the six penalties.

Heal and Starr were outstanding for the winners with Crews best on defence. Harding kicked out some tough stabs and the whole team looked good. The alternates worked their heads off and, while not quite as effective as the first string line, they checked back well to hold the big Barrie boys all the time. Neither side did much on ganging plays. For the losers, the defence pair of Jones and Dyte proved chary puckcarriers but only fair defensively. Bowen and Scott shone up front.

BARRIE SCORES FIRST

The Colts showed an edge in play almost from the start, and when Scott went off for elashing, they pressed dangerously. Kingdon missed an open net in close and then A. Clark got the gate for tripping. Barrie bored in quickly to tally, Jones rapping home Scott's passout. It was fast and hot for a time and halfway through G. Clark poked in Kingdon's rebound to tie the count. Jones went off for tripping but was back before Heal showed in Wright's pass with the goalie out of the cage after blocking his first drive. The frame closed with the Colts up 2-1.

Harding had to jump to stop two early in the middle inning. Then Starr backhanded home Heal's pass on a nice effort. Kingdon came close and a Starr-Brady combination was robbed as the Colts kept play in the Barrie end of the rink and blasted rubber at the goalie. Barrie shot the disc the length of the rink to get a breathing spell. Starr ripped down the left boards fast to blaze in an angle shot and make the count 4-1. G. Clark almost tallied and then Heal worked his way out of the corner to give the netminder no chance on his drive. Shortly before the end of the chapter, Bowen got one back for Barrie on Jones' rebound at close range.

Locals Get Two.

Four Barrie players began ganging up to start the third but within five minutes the Colts counted again. Connolly checked in close to recover and weave in rapidly and hoist the disc into the twine. Half a minute later, Heal took Starr's pass in close and drew the goalie out to notch a neat one and end the scoring. The Colts continued to have a margin on play and the pace was slowing both sides up somewhat. Brook went off for tripping and A. Clark followed for a trip. The latter was back but a short time when he drew the finger again for chargling. Play was hot and had the fans yelling in the final few minutes.

AMERICAN LEAGUE LEADS NATIONALS IN HOLDOUTS 13-8

All In Majors Except Giants, Tigers, Senators Have At Least One Rebel

BOSTON RED SOX, FOUR

By Scotty Reston
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, March 13—(AP)—The American League, traditionally the timid sore of the baseball world, has 13 rebel holdouts to the Nationals eight, an Associated Press survey revealed to-day.

Every club in the majors except New York Giants, Detroit Tigers and Washington Senators has at least one belligerent and the wealthy Boston Red Sox have more than anybody else with four.

The two most serious holdouts are of course, Jerome Herman Dean of the Cards, who is the loudest, and Lou Gehrig of New York Yankees, who is the quietest. Dean, the only Cardinal not signed, is financially farthest away from signing. Dean already has, he has demanded $50,000, and has been offered $32,000 by Sam Breadon.

Ruffing Down to $18,000.

Another new revelation was made in the Yankee situation to-day. Owner Jacob Ruppert said Pitcher Red Ruffing had lowered his demands from $30,000 to $18,000 and was offered $15,000. The other agitating Yankee is Joe Dimaggio, who is said to have been offered $15,000, which is $8,000 more than he got last year. He wants $17,500. Gehrig is asking $50,000; has been offered $36,000.

The four Red Sox holdouts are Eric McNair, who was given a slight increase over last year's salary; Roger Cramer, who was asked to take a slight cut, and Johnny Kroner and Jack Russell, both slashed badly.

Cleveland Indians are the only other American League team with more than one holdout. They have three: Earl Averill, who thinks his 1936 batting record of .378 entitles him to $17,500; Pitcher Johnny Allen and Catcher Billy Sullivan.

St. Louis Browns, Philadelphia Athletics, and Chicago White Sox each have a single headache. Beau Bell wants the Browns to pay him $15,000, and they have offered him exactly half that much. Merrill (Sugar) Cain has asked the White Sox for $8,000, and they have countered with $6,000. And Wally Moses of the Athletics wants $10,000, which is $2,000 more than Connie Mack says he'll pay.

Majority Are Stars.

In the National, practically all the holdouts are stars. First Baseman Buddy Hassett and Brooklyn officials are only $500 apart. Hassett wants $8,000 and the Dodgers raise on $7,500. In Cincinnati the only holdouts are the irrepressible Floyd (Babe) Herman and Pitcher Don Brennan.

Paul Waner, Pittsburgh's batting champion, is the only holdout on his club. Chicago Cubs' star outfielder, Frank Demaree, is also out. Dolph Camilli, Phillies' first baseman, is a holdout for $15,000, just $3,000 more than offered. Buck Jordan, Boston Bees' rebel, wants $4,000 more than the club's $3,000 offered, and has been told he can trade himself—if he can.

OSHAWA SCHOOL DEFEATS MADOC

Rough Battle Sees Plenty Of Penalties In 4-3 Battle

MADOC, March 13.—The Oshawa High school team won their first victory over the Maroons 4-3 on Friday on the Madoc rink.

Hodgson scored for Oshawa from an assist by McMaster. The play was quite rough and five penalties were handed out when C. O'Neill and N. O'Neill each received one for Marmors and Daniels (2) and Wilson against Oshawa.

Wilson of Oshawa was the offender when a free-for-all started, but was soon stopped by Referees Pollard of Oshawa and Holloway of Belleville.

The Score in Second.

The second period both teams were playing hard and McMaster scored for Oshawa after making a lone rush through the Marmora defense. J. Loveless came back to score Marmora's first counter, and O'Neill tallied, tieing the score at the end of the period. Oshawa were the penalty setters when Morris went off for cross-checking and Hodgson and McMaster each received one. Kourj went off for tripping and was Marmora's lone penalty during this period.

Both teams came out in the last period determined to break the tie. Daniels for Oshawa did the trick when he was assisted by Haines, putting Oshawa one up. Hodgson came back to put Oshawa two up. Marmora were making many rushes but Salter in the Oshawa nets seemed to be determined to keep them out. However, N. O'Neil succeeded in tallying and although they tried hard to even the tally, the score was unchanged when the final gong rang. Kourj for Marmora, received the only penalty of the period.

Line-up.

Marmora—Goal, Hart; defence, N. O'Neill, C. O'Neill; centre, Leonard; wings, Kourj, McLaren; alternates, F. Loveless, J. Loveless, Reynolds, Gray, Prentice.

FRACTURED ANKLE PUTS AURIE OUT FOR THE SEASON

Removal Of Detroit Star Gives Adams Only Ten Days To Revamp Line

TEAM'S THIRD BROKEN LEG

DETROIT, March 13.—(CP).— A fractured ankle removes Larry Aurie, Detroit Red Wings' great little right-winger and leading scorer of the current National Hockey League campaign, to the sidelines last night.

Aurie's injury left Jack Adams's Detroit outfit shorn of their best offensive weapon and gave them only ten days in which to revamp their attack for the league championship playoffs which open here March 23.

The injury jinx which has knocked out two other Detroit stars with broken legs this season, caught up with Aurie in New York Thursday night, as the Red Wings clinched the United States sectional title with a 4-3 conquest of New York Rangers.

Aurie, dynamic 146-pound cog in the Wings' Marty Barry-Herbie Lewis line, scored his twenty-third goal of the season before he was injured in a collision with Art Coulter, Rangers' defenseman, in the second period.

Two Bones Broken.

X-ray examination showed two bones above the ankle were broken, prematurely ending Aurie's tenth season in the big time. Just as injuries and illness have taken out twelve other hockey greats this year, including Charlie Conacher of Toronto, Pit Lepine of Canadiens, and Doc Romnes of Chicago, Aurie has been able to get back in the game. Others will not be seen until next season and possibly never again.

Only this week, the league lost Howie Morenz, one of hockey's all-time greats, who died in hospital a few weeks after fracturing a leg while playing for Montreal Canadiens.

Captain Doug Young and Orville Roulston were the other Detroiters who suffered broken legs. Elsewhere in the major circuit, injuries and illness took these stars out of play for part of the season at least: Charlie Conacher of Toronto, broken wrists; Russ Bolt of Toronto, broken arm; Eddie Shore of Boston, hip injury; Roy Worters of New York, hernia; "Doc" Romnes of Chicago, Art Chapell of Maroons, Harry Oliver of Americans, "Pit" Lepine of Canadiens, Jimmy Ward of Maroons, ho.

2 WORLD MARKS ARE TOPPLED OFF AT LEAF GARDENS

Both 60-Yard Hurdles And Sprint Fall To U. Of T. And Philadelphia Men

HAMILTON NEXT

TORONTO, March 13 (CP)—Touring track stars moved on to Hamilton, Ont., today, taking with them world records garnered in thrilling competition at the Maple Leaf Gardens here last night. A third Canadian record was smashed as the athletes did their part to score for the 100-aggregance of Arctic Sea Rovers.

The withdrawal of the young Italian from the featured mile removed much of the drama from that event, but sterling performances in other competitions sent the fair-sized crowd home satisfied.

Lanky Larry O'Connor, University of Toronto timber-topper, clipped one-fifth second from the world 60-yard hurdle record by leading Eugene Record of Montreal and Jim Worrall of Toronto over the jumps in 7.3 seconds.

Another college athlete was responsible for the second world record. Elinee Peacock, student at Philadelphia's Temple University, sprinted 60 yards in six seconds flat to trim Jesse Owen's mark by one-tenth of a second. Two Toronto boys, Bert Richardson and Jack Brown, chased the versatile negro into the record-smashing performance.

Cunningham Pushed.

Without Sam Bonsani in the race, observers had anticipated an easy win for Glenn Cunningham in the mile feature. Leaping forward United States star stepped up their pace and the former Kansas Collegian was far from alone at the finish line. Unable to force Cunningham to a Canadian record, Detroit's Bill Daly nevertheless threw a scare into him and was only three feet behind at the finish.

Cunningham's time of 4:18.2 was two seconds slower than Joe Maegan's winning effort last year. Joe McCluskey of New York finished in third position.

Frank Cheman, Toronto's most jubilant pedestrian, captured the 3,000 metre walk for the third consecutive year. The Canadian Olympic representative started from scratch in the handicap event and passed the field to whistle his own record down more than six seconds to 13:7.6. Don McRae and Cec Wass, both of Hamilton, Ont., were second and third.

Wallace Brown, virtually unknown University of Toronto athlete, sprang the biggest upset on the program. The stocky student jumped 23 feet 7 inches to defeat Richardson and Peacock, ranking negro broad-jumpers and former winners. His best leap was more than a foot short of the Canadian record.

Elden Stutzman of Buffalo and Al Threadgill of Philadelphia, repeated their 1936 victories in the pole vault and high jump but couldn't equal their previous records.

Inside Sportin' Dope

BY A. WISE-CRACKER.

Mister Sporting Editor:

Seeing this is wrote Fri. p.m. they aint nothing much I can say about this Barrie-Colts clash except the game oughta be a lulu and I for 1 am going to be disappointed if the customer aint already read in this here issue about our lads pulling off a neat win over the boys from the north.

The only fly in the ointment was that 2 week lay off just after the young Petes was really hot and all ready for further triumphs after pinning the tears of the Kingston Indians.

It's true they got into action twice against the Lindsay Juniors but exhibition games aint the real thing. The youngsters looked mighty good in them clashes but when the checks aint down it's not the same.

They has been sad news this week. Mac in the death of Howie Morenz. The Mitchell boy who played his amateur hockey in Stamford and then went in the Canadiens to become the apearhead of 1 of the most celebrated squads what ever flashed up and down the professional ice lanes was the player who more than any 1 else made hockey the fastest game in the world. At the top of his form there was a flash and a dash to the work of Morenz that thrilled every spectator. When old "No. 7" grabbed the rubber, shrugged his shoulders in his own unmistakable style and then was in full flight, with 1 stride the crowd was up on its feet like one man to watch that comet-like dash through the defence. That sharp swerve at top speed that if successful carried the Stratford flash around the rear guard and then that lightening shot into the corner of the net as the Canadiens are fired while going at top speed. Sometimes he didn't get through and then there was another thrill for the fans for Morenz used to take some of the most sensational spills in the history of hockey. He often said a hockey player had a learn to fall like a cowboy and so when he was hit with a body check and spilled he just let himself go rolling over and over three or four times and then up again to tear back for another play. There will be other great hockey players but we doubt if there ever will be another just like Morenz.

The Playoffs is Upon Us

Well, Mac, it aint long till the play offs and it looks very much like all the positions was pretty much decided now, the shellacking the Leafys took from the Maroons in Montreal Thurs. night about definitely stocking the Semi-Pro game in the 3rd slot with the Maroons now a side seated and a faint chance of nailing the Canadiens can be place although I doubt very much whether they will try that stunt. In the other loop Detroit Red Wings has copped the top niche and it looks like plain pop for Boston 2nd and the Rangers 3rd.

The Red Wings is still the Wise Crackers selection for the big end of the playoffs even though they may lose Mister Larry Aurie, the leading scorer of the loop. Mister Adams team has been able to wear up and they will be able to go into the money series in good shape.

Well that seems to be about the case for now.

Sportingly Yours,

COBOURG JUVENILE SQUAD TUMBLES TO CAMPBELLFORD

"Bugs" Reddick Slaps In Six Counters In Team's 11-6 Victory

HAVE ONE-GOAL LEAD

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, March 13—Defeating the Cobourg Juveniles by a score of 11-6, the Campbellford youngsters turned in one of the finest games of the season before a large crowd at Davidson's Arena on Thursday night. This was the second of a series of home-and-home games in the playoffs in the Juvenile series and the local boys had a four-goal lead to overcome at the outset since they lost in Cobourg 7-3.

The star of the game was "Bugs" Reddick, who was easily the best man on the ice, displaying not only expert stick-handling but good checking as well. To him goes the credit for six of the locals' ten goals.

The game opened with the locals apparently determined to overcome the lead which the visitors had, and although both teams carried sticks rather high at times, both teams obviously gave their best. At the end of the first period the score stood at 4-1, with Aboud and Blake each getting one and Reddick two for the locals, while Greer scored the visitors' single goal.

The second period saw Reddick add three more to the credit of the homesters; two of these were echo efforts, and the third with Free getting credit for the assist. Winter scored twice for the Cobourg team and stood out among the visitors along with Markle who did a good deal of back-checking which affected a serious threat to the locals' chances of winning.

With the opening of the third period the visitors made a determined effort to overcome the lead of 8-3 but even with the Campbellford team playing two men short, were unsuccessful as the shots at the locals' net were from beyond the blue line. However, Markle slipped one past Seguire from close range but Reddick and Blake clinched the game with two counters, which ended the game 11-6.

The teams:

Campbellford—Goal, Seguire; defence, Keeshen, Aboud; centre, Keating; wings, Reddick, Free; subs: Farrell, Blake, Kennedy, Bell, Nicholls, Jarvis.

Cobourg—Goal, Shaw; defence, Blastorah, Woods; centre, Winter; wings, Barr, Markle; subs: Coulborn, Payne, Talbot, Greer, Dove.

STARTED FLYING FROM BARN ROOF

Colorado Girl Made First Flight On Home-Made Wings

MIAMI, Fla., March 13—(CP)—Crystal Mowry, holder of four world air records for women, entered flying by way of the barnloft on her father's Colorado farm.

Leaping off the low barn roofs with home-made wings didn't satisfy either Miss Mowry or her parents. She saw a plane for the first time in 1914, and had her first ride with Pilot Eddie Stinson in 1921.

From then on the problem was how to finance flying lessons. Her family was inclined to back such aerial ambitions. They moved to Miami and she found the solution—parachute jumping.

When Crystal asked fliers here in 1928 to let her "bale out" before Sunday crowds to pay for her flying lessons they laughed, but she went on. That was the first of about 30 jumps—jumps that sometimes sprained her ankle when she landed, but which paid for her learning to fly a plane.

She borrowed two planes of different types, and proceeded to stack up four Miami records in classes where none existed previously for women.

The records include a speed of 79.2 miles an hour for 100 kilometres in a three-place open airplane (Kittyhawk); a speed of 66 miles an hour for 100 kilometres in a multi-seated plane weighing less than 771.61 pounds (Aeronca) and two altitude marks.

Saskatchewan Coal Production Higher

REGINA, March 13 (CP)—Saskatchewan fuelite coal mines produced more than 1,000,000 tons in 1936 as compared with 240,000 tons in 1915, government statistics show.

The coal found a market as far east as White River, Ont., and as far north as Flin Flon, Man. Large quantities were also shipped to Southern Alberta.

Most of the production was from the Souris Valley. The largest mine at Estevan uses a 600-ton electric shovel for strip-mining to remove top-soil 20 to 60 feet deep from the coal seams. It scoops ten tons of earth in each load and can remove 10 cubic yards a minute.

Coal reserves in this area are placed at 2,400,000,000 tons. Community mines of the shaft type were in vogue until 1920, when the field was commercialized.

The Day That I Forget

By MARIE BLIZARD

CHAPTER 34

Janet flung her wrap off with gay abandon and ran to her husband when he had expressed jealousy upon her return.

"Darling," she asked a little breathlessly, "were you really jealous?"

"Sure I was," he answered obligingly. "What man wants to see his wife flirting with a handsome guy who has everything he hasn't got."

"I wasn't flirting," she said sedately. "And he hasn't got anything you haven't got. He's one of the nicest men I've ever met but that's all. I haven't told you for a long time now but I still think you're the handsomest man in the world—by my standards, not by Hollywood's. I think you're the most lovable person in the world, Mr. Paynter, and I thank you for marrying me."

He tilted her chin up and looked into her eyes with tender mockery. "Did I really make a respectable woman of you, Mrs. Paynter?" he asked.

"Sometimes I think I'm so respectable I'm dull," she said. "Sometimes I think I'm not very interesting to you."

"There never was a girl before you, Janet, who could keep me interested for a week. You've made a swell job of it for three years. I wouldn't be surprised if you were to do it for the rest of my life, if you'll always feel that way."

"You wouldn't doubt that, would you?" Janet's voice was deep with seriousness.

He laughed softly at her concern. "I mean it, Joel," she persisted. "I mean that I want you always to feel that I...well, that you don't need to be jealous of me. I don't suppose you really were. I wouldn't want you to. Jealousy is a horrid poison that does demeaning things to you. It twists your mind into distorted pictures that become so real you accept them for truth. Then it outs and twists your heart. It changes everything, transforms one completely."

"Look here," he said, "what do you know about jealousy?"

She pleated the edge of her handkerchief silently. Inside of her she was debating whether or not this was the moment to tell him how she had often felt. And never more strongly than she had this night! Perhaps if she were to tell him what she had done to herself thinking of him with Nina Harley, it might clear up those things between them forever.

On the otherhand, it might implant the idea in his head that she was jealous. It would make him wary and uncomfortable and conscious of her possessiveness, the thing that he had most hated in marriage.

"Come on," he urged, "what does Janet know about jealousy?"

"Personally, not a thing!" she protested. "But I read, don't I? And I'm a ver observant girl, Mr. Paynter."

He was easily satisfied. "Then supposing you observe what hour it is, young woman." He yawned comfortably and got up.

"Hard day tomorrow?" she asked when they had reached her bedroom.

"Beastly. We're doing retakes on the snow scenes. I'll be late for dinner. Probably won't get here at all."

A little later she said, "Joel, I'm having a guest tomorrow."

"Good," he said sleepily. "I'll stay at the studio then and you can take her somewhere to dinner and catch a show."

"It isn't a 'her'," she said.

"Umm..."

"It's a man."

"Umm...yeah."

"It's Russell Bede. Do you mind? He asked me if he could call and I thought it was all right. You never seem to mind when Larry or Vernon or Tim drop in and I thought..."

Joel hadn't heard a word she said. He was sound asleep.

She fell asleep a few minutes later thinking that Caroline Maynard's party had probably been as hard on her as it was on her hostess.

She dreamed of an avenging sea monster clutching at a mermaid with slumberous eyes and a tail of shimmering black satin.

Russell Bede said that he'd call around 5. At half-past 4 Janet took her basket out to the garden and cut some fresh flowers. Everything that she did that day made her happy because Joel had made her happy the night before.

Her garden had a freshness to her view. Her house looked cool and sweet. Everything about her reflected her happiness and her ease.

She thought that had Joel not smoothed away her fears the night before, she might have been looking forward to Russell Bede's visit with more embarrassment than pleasure. She was aware that there had been something electric, something more personal in their slight relationship than she had ever felt for any man other than Joel.

She was also aware that she had, in her own words, "led him on." She had picked him out of all the men she knew to treat as though she were a complete person by herself and not a wife.

But now she felt very much like a wife and it protected her. She told cook to ice some small cakes and make lettuce sandwiches.

She was already back of her tea table when Russell Bede arrived.

He looked freshly scrubbed and happily anticipatory when he arrived promptly on the stroke of 5.

"I've been riding around trying to kill the last hour," he said.

"You shouldn't have done that." Janet answered easily. "You should have come as once and I would have made you help me gather flowers. I should have put you to work."

"I'd have liked it," he said. "I probably wouldn't have known a weed from a flower but it would have been a good time anyway. I've always wanted a garden but I haven't had time for it."

It was easy then for Janet to get talking, to get over the first few awkward moments. Now that he was there, she was glad to have him, knew that he was happy to be with her. She realized that it was dangerous and not quite fair but she pushed the thought aside as though it were not there.

He talked to her as he had seldom talked to any other woman. He told her that he did not own a string of stores but that he had "a merchandising interest" in several. He had a large "directorial and buying office", if she knew what he meant.

"Of course, I do," she said at once. "Because before I was married, I was in that business, too."

Then it was he who drew her out. Before she realized she had told him about her job in New York, her early days as a salesgirl and later her promotion to an assistant buyership and her plans and hopes for one day being a full time buyer.

Russell drank three cups of tea and gobbled up sandwiches without having the least idea of what he was doing. This girl was not only attractive and had some sense but she talked his language.

Before they knew it, they were arguing about an idea he had for introducing a new line of furniture and Janet was trying to tell him what was wrong with it.

The clock struck the half hour.

Guiltily, he put down his cup. "I must go," he said reluctantly. "It's time you were...Shot is, it's dinner time. I've enjoyed it so much I didn't realize time was flying."

Janet was surprised to find that he had been there for over two hours.

"Don't go," she said, "unless you have another engagement. Stay and have dinner with me. Joel will be in a little later. You don't know how much you have re-awakened in me. It's so stimulating to talk about things I used to want to do. Please stay."

"If I do," he answered sitting down again, "I'm liable to offer you a job."

Janet laughed. "My husband doesn't believe in wives having careers," she answered and wondered if perhaps by now Joel had changed his mind.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S VISITORS

"Snow cream! Snow cream! We're going to have snow cream!" sang Baby Bunny, the little orphan rabbit in the Hollow Tree School. She was dancing happily around the basement kitchen of the school cooking class.

The Lady Mouse Teacher was helping Uncle Wiggily get out the milk, eggs, sugar and vanilla flavoring. There, the rabbit gentleman had said, were all he needed to make snow cream. Miss Minnie thought to teach the cooking class (though it wasn't the day for it) because the boy animal pupils were cutting up so.

But when she found there was no flour, lard, butter and baking powder, she thought she couldn't have the regular cooking class. Then in popped Uncle Wiggily, who promised to show how to make snow cream.

"Does he mean ice cream?" asked Jennie Chipmunk.

"He said snow cream and when Uncle Wiggily says a thing he means it," said Jackie Bow Wow. "We're all ready to eat the snow cream after you girls and Uncle Wiggily make it," he barked magnanimous like and hungry.

Is He Fooling

"Oh, is that so?" asked Baby Bunny. "Aren't you smart?"

"Hush!" hissed Jennie Chipmunk. "Don't start any more trouble."

But then Buster, one of Uncle Wiggily's boy rabbits, whispered:

"Maybe my daddy is playing a joke on us with his snow pudding."

"What do you mean?" asked Sammie Littletail.

"Well, the other day daddy was caught by the Fox, the Wolf and the Bob Cat," said Buster. "He fooled them by sending them to gather icicles to make a pudding. When they came back with a lot of icicles daddy had hopped home. He fooled 'em.

"Do you think he might fool us by pretending to make snow cream and then slip away?" asked Jackie.

"He might," said Buster. "My daddy is very clever."

"Don't be silly!" laughed Baby Bunny. "Unkie Wig wouldn't fool us. He only teases Bad Chaps. If he said he would make snow cream he will make it."

"And not ice cream?" said Susie. "Snow cream—not ice cream," said the orphan rabbit. "They are very different. Leave it to Unkie Wig. He knows how to do it."

"He and the Lady Mouse Teacher are getting out a lot of things, and how," said Susie.

Uncle Wiggily was having lots of fun. When Miss Mouse put out the sugar, eggs and milk, Uncle Wiggily beat them all up in a big pan. Soon they were ready.

Just Wonderful

"Now for the snow!" cried Mr. Longears. "Let the boys bring in some pans filled with clean, white snow." Buster and the other boy animals did this. Into the eggs, milk and sugar Uncle Wiggily stirred the snow. Soon he had a large pan filled with a cold, half-frozen custard that was snow cream—almost like ice cream.

"Oh, how good it is!" cried the animal children when they tasted.

"It is wonderful, Mr. Longears!" said Miss Mouse, nibbling hers.

Just then there was a noise at the door.

"Visitors for Uncle Wiggily!" cried a loud, harsh voice and behind the Woosie Wolf in came stalking the Fox and Bob Cat. They had seen the rabbit gentleman enter the school and had followed.

"Visitors, eh!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "Well, here is something for you!" With that he made a ball of some left-over snow and threw it at the Wolf. He hit him on the nose. Then he also hit the Fox and Bob Cat on the nose with other snowballs.

"Wow! Wow! Wow!" howled the Bad Chaps as they ran away. Then the snow cream was eaten all up by the children and they were happy.

And if the milk bottle will put some roller skates on the ironing board to make a sidewalk scooter, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's Spring flowers.

committees of both House and Senate.

A bill from the Senate was up for second reading and the 16 Liberals voted with the combined forces of the opposition in an effort to kill it pending the introduction of some general legislation dealing with this subject. Such legislation has been contemplated by the government since last session but Finance Minister Dunning said investigations had not yet reached the point where positive conclusions could be taken.

Conservative leader Bennett made it clear Conservatives by opposing the budget were not to be accused of opposing the new trade agreement. They supported the latter as it was but a renewal of the 1932 agreement. Mr. Dunning assured him the budget and agreement had not been combined with a view to embarrassing the opposition and that later on the House would have a chance to vote on a bill to ratify the agreement.

At least one member objects to a $300 increase in his sessional indemnity. He is Percy J. Rowe, member for Athabaska who was recently read out of the Social Credit group.

Mr. Rowe declared it was "unchristian savagery" to increase the indemnities of members and senators when so many Canadian taxpayers were suffering from poverty and unemployment. Yet he told J. J. Duffus (Lib. Peterborough) he will accept the increase coming to him and use it to inform the people of the infamies of the present monetary system.

Yukon Paying Way

The Yukon Territory has made a good return to Canada for the money the Dominion Government had expended there, Mrs. George Black, Conservative member for that area, told the House. Its contribution to the national wealth far exceeded expenditures and its wealth had as yet been only scratched. She asked the Dominion Government to pay the whole cost of old age pensions for residents of the Yukon in order to put them on an equal basis with residents of other parts of Canada.

Ralph Maybank (Lib. Winnipeg South Centre) expressed gratification for the action of the government in co-operating with western provincial governments to reduce the burden of farm debt.

There was a "buoyant" feeling of hope on the prairies, Mr. Maybank said, that they would soon regain a prosperous state and become "the salvation of Montreal and other eastern cities."

J. S. Woodsworth CCF-Winnipeg North Centre) said some parts of the budget were good and some unsatisfactory. He congratulated the Liberal member for Ontario (W. H. Moore) for the stand he had taken on the Canada-United Kingdom trade agreement. His group had taken a similar stand in 1932. Economic imperialism was designed to interfere with good relations and contribute to the causes that led to war.

In 1932, Mr. Woodsworth said, "the Liberals voted solidly with us" against the agreement. They now presented an agreement "not very different" from the one they opposed. He asked if the Liberals had changed their minds or had been converted to the Conservative idea.

"I think we have a right to that information from the government," he said.

Sales and sugar taxes remained and there was no material lowering of the tariff in spite of bad conditions in the textile industry which are known without any commission bringing in a report. Mr. Woodsworth said he could not see how any independent member could vote for the budget.

TRENT RIVER W.I. MARCH MEETING

Women Deal With Business Items And Enjoy Excellent Program

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TRENT RIVER, March 13.—The March meeting of the Women's Institute was held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fred Scott with an attendance of 32.

The secretary, Doris Scott, read the roll call, which was responded to by an Irish joke or story.

Communications were received as follows: A letter from R. W. Umphrey acknowledged the refilling of the first aid kit at the school. Letter of appreciation from one who had been ill and had been remembered by the Institute. Letter from the General Director of the Health League of Canada, organized by Canadian Social Hygiene Council, requesting subscribers to their Health Magazine. No action was taken.

The same committee was appointed as before to interview the Township council re street lights.

The secretary reported the membership of the Institute to be 42. A new member joined.

Mrs. George Dart gave a two-minute talk on the slogan "Early and provident fear is the mother of safety." Mrs. Thos. J. Brown read an article on health. Reading "Don't let on", Mrs. James Longmuir, Mrs. Longmuir gave a further interesting talk on the "Taymanship" course and demonstrated Rayon products before manufactured and process rayon goes through. Miss Doris Scott was in charge of a "Household contest." The members grouped according to their birthday month. The October-November group won, and each was treated to chocolates.

The April meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. John H. Scott. After singing the National Anthem the hostesses served dainty refreshments in keeping with St. Patrick's season.

Do This For a Cold

1. Take 2 "ASPIRIN" tablets and drink a full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 2 hours.

2. If throat is sore, crush and stir 2 "ASPIRIN" tablets in ½ glass of water. Gargle twice.

The Modern-Day Way to Ease Cold and Sore Throat Quickly

The modern way to curb a cold is: Two "Aspirin" tablets the moment you feel a cold coming on. Repeat, if needed, according to directions in box.

At the same time, if you have a sore throat, crush and dissolve three "Aspirin" tablets in one-third glass of water. And gargle with this mixture twice.

The "Aspirin" you take internally will act to combat fever, cold pains and the cold itself. The gargle will provide almost instant relief from rawness and pain, acting like a local anesthetic on the irritated throat membrane.

Try this way. Your doctor will endorse it. It is quick, effective and ends the taking of strong medicines for a cold.

● "Aspirin" tablets are made in Canada. "Aspirin" is the registered trade-mark of the Bayer Company, Limited, of Windsor, Ontario. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every tablet.

HOME IMPROVING PLAN GETS START IN CAMPBELLFORD

T. L. Diamond Is Elected Chairman Of Citizens' Committee At Organizing Rally

J. E. JONES SPEAKS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, March 13.—The Home Improvement Plan got under way in Campbellford when on Thursday night at a meeting held in the council chambers in the public library, Mr. T. L. Diamond was elected chairman of the citizens committee.

The meeting, which was planned nearly a week ago, was addressed by Mr. John E. Jones, Northumberland and Peterborough County representative who explained the advantages of this type of loan which cost the borrower only 3¼ per cent. By this act which was the outcome of the studies of the National Employment Commission, who carefully studied the Federal Housing Act of President Roosevelt passed in June 1934, the government has authorized the loaning of up to 50 million dollars and has agreed to stand behind the lending institutions to the extent of 15 per cent thus making it easier for the potential borrower to obtain credit from the bank under the terms of this Act.

The speaker further pointed out that on loans totalling nearly 600 million dollars in the United States under the Federal Housing Act, defaulted loans amounted to only 1.09 per cent. The speaker emphasized that it was the chief duty of the committee to educate the people of the community to the advantages of the plan and to give it as much publicity as possible in order that everyone might be made familiar with it.

Mayor F. P. Long presided over the meeting and following the election of the chairman, J. D. Mills, A. G. Thompson, F. G. DeCarrol, and Harvey Donald were elected to the committee to which it is expected to add several members at the next meeting.

The series of euchres being held under the auspices of the L.O.L. in their lodge rooms was continued on Wednesday night when eight tables of players joined in the playing. Mrs. M. Peeling took the prize for the ladies highest score and Mr. C. Roach won the gentlemen's prize. Mr. N. Nicholas was the lucky winner of the door prize. Following cards lunch was served.

sent to the House banking and commerce committee for examination and report.

Mr. Thurston said he was of the same mind regarding these companies as a year ago when he said he hoped to design a general statute dealing with operations of small loan companies. These bills proposed lowered charges to borrowers and for that reason, he felt, he was warranted in suggesting they be sent to committee.

Dunning Not Ready.

A considerable amount of work had been done toward framing the proposed measure but he was not ready to present it to the House, Mr. Dunning said. In the meantime the demand for this type of small loan was increasing and one chartered bank had been making them under better terms than provided in any existing statute. But the experience had not been sufficient as yet to base any definite conclusions.

Hon. R. H. Stevens (Rec. Kootenay East) said it had been suggested and greatly elaborated before previous committees that these bills were designed to benefit small deserving borrowers and "a halo of righteousness has been spread around them."

In his opinion, after 26 years of experience, Mr. Stevens declared, "if parliament passes these bills or entertains any general legislation that will permit companies to charge an interest rate of around two per cent. per month it will be sanctioning extortion."

People Least Able to Pay.

Borrowers from these companies were the most needy people and those least able to pay high interest rates, Mr. Stevens said. He could not see why the rates were so high because there was little element of risk. Companies exacted the most substantial security.

W. R. Macdonald (Lib. Brantford) asked Mr. Stevens if he would have it made impossible for any but the rich to get loans. Was it not fair, he asked, that poor people should have an opportunity to borrow?

"Certainly," replied Mr. Stevens, "but at a rate of interest they can afford to pay. I would like to see Parliament turn thumbs down on this sort of legislation," he concluded.

Paul Martin (Lib. Essex East) and E. J. Deachman (Lib. Huron North) although not supporting the loan company legislation, urged that the Bills should go to committee for study.

D. McIvor, (Lib. Fort William) said that he personally would "vote these Bills sky high because sharks of this kind should not be tolerated."

Conservative Leader Bennett said he sympathized with the Finance Minister because he had been in the same position during his term of office. Small loan companies had long been a problem. Their history was not creditable, nor was it desirable to continue them.

An About-face?

The Finance Minister, Mr. Bennett said, had personally condemned these companies and now he was asking the House to endorse the principle of the Bills and send them to committee.

Robert Fair (B.C.-Battle River) described the operations of small loan companies as "legalized robbery." He urged that "instead of helping those fellows increase their profits we should pass legislation, and quickly, to get rid of these cultirors organizations that are bleeding poor people."

Liberal members voting with the Opposition included E. G. Bertrand, Prescott, W. F. Maloch, York North, J. F. Barry, Northumberland, and W. R. Macdonald, Prescott.

Insurgent-Held University City Posts Are Mined, Rocking Capital

MADRID, March 15—(CP-Havas)—Spanish Government infantry, tank and airplane units to-day hammered at retreating Italian continentals in Guadalajara after seizing Valdearenas and Trijueque in a counter-offensive.

The columns smashed their way into Valdearenas, two miles north of Trijueque, yesterday in a counter-attack which claimed to have disorganized the insurrent lines 40 miles northeast of Madrid. Valdearenas is close to the Brihuenga-Guadalajara-Madrid road and lies about 16 miles northeast of Guadalajara city.

Meanwhile a series of terrific explosions rocked Madrid's Northwestern University City sector at 6.30 a.m. to-day when Government units touched off a number of mines due under insurrent positions in the sector.

No Bombs Dropped

Details of this action could not immediately be obtained. A squadron of insurrent aircraft droned over Madrid but did not drop any bombs.

Two insurrent columns yesterday sought to encircle the government positions at Trijueque, a strategically-important point dominating a large sector of the surrounding region, but met with ironclad resistance.

Large quantities of war material including twelve 75-millimetre guns with tractor carriages, 100 machine guns, thousands of cartridges and gas masks, fell into the hands of the government, it was asserted.

Many Italians were reported slain in the Trijueque fighting, while 141 additional Italian prisoners were taken.

Government forces to-day encircled by boisterise their positions in the Trijueque-Valdearenas sector, while artillery pounded retreating insurgents.

CITY MAY SHARE HOUSTON ESTATE

Over Seventeen Million To Be Split Up After Lawyers Fail To Find Will

LONDON, March 15 (AP) — The fortune of the eccentric Lady Houston, estimated between $17,000,000 and $25,000,000 may be divided among six relatives, her solicitors announced today.

Though it was stated after Lady Houston's death in December that she left no will, her solicitors disclosed a will had been found bequeathing the entire estate to Miss Juliana Hoare, an aunt of Sir Samuel Hoare, first Lord of the Admiralty.

Miss Hoare, a close friend and confidante of Lady Houston for many years, died a year ago at the age of 80, however, thus invalidating the bequest.

Legal advisers, after a fruitless search for another will, said they were convinced none exists and they would apply for letters of administration to divide the estate among six relatives.

Lady Houston, ardent patriot and militant believer in rearmament, inherited the fortune from her husband who amassed his wealth largely in shipping.

EDWARD'S FRIENDS FIND NO WELCOME IN COURT CIRCLES

Smart International Set, Denounced By Archbishop of Canterbury Replaced By Nobles

OLD FRIENDSHIPS STAND

LONDON, March 15 (AP).—Three months of the new reign have made it clear to Great Britain that what its critics termed the smart international set—the group denounced by the Archbishop of Canterbury—is no longer welcomed by the court.

The set was close to Edward VIII during his brief reign and was called by the Archbishop "alien to the best traditions and traditions" of Britain.

The same small circle that moved around King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth when, as Duke and Duchess of York, they lived at 145 Piccadilly, are now intimates of the royal family. Most are members of England and Scottish noble families.

The King has received and talked with countless subjects since his accession, but the business of kingship makes difficult the formation of personal friendships.

Usher, Closest Friend.

Probably his closest friend is Wing-Commander Sir Louis Greig, Gentleman Usher at the court, at whose home His Majesty stayed as an undergraduate at Cambridge University. With Sir Louis, the King once entered the all-England tennis championships at Wimbledon in pursuit of his favorite sport. Now the Buckingham Palace hard courts are being prepared for use of His Majesty.

Another friend, who also has known the King since his youth, is Rear-Admiral Sir Basil Brooke, one of the four Grooms-in-Waiting and scheduled to be appointed treasurer to the Queen. Sir Basil instructed both Edward VIII. and George VI. in the arts of seamanship when they were cadets at the Royal Naval College at Osborne on the Isle of Wight.

Several of the King's close friends are men of his father's generation, such as Baron Clive Wigram, who was an intimate of George V. Baron Wigram was recalled from retirement to act as permanent Lord-in-Waiting and principal adviser to George VI.

Railway's Figure Is Over Four Million Better Than Last Year

SHOW SLUMP EASING

377,705 More Passengers Carried, And 1,625,336 Tons Freight

OTTAWA, March 15 (C.P.) (Advance). — Net revenue of $15,132,790 on 1936 operations was shown in the annual report of the Canadian National Railways tabled in the House of Commons to-day by Transport Minister Howe.

After provision for taxes, rentals and interest there was a cash deficit of $43,303,393, a betterment of $4,118,070 as compared with the previous year.

At the same time the Minister tabled the annual report of the Canadian National (West Indies) steamships Limited showing that for the first time since formation of the company it earned a surplus after meeting interest on bonds in the hands of the public.

An income surplus of $27,309 is to be paid to the Government by the steamships company. Its accounts are kept separate and are not included in figures for the Canadian National Railways.

Taxes, rentals, and other cash requirements of the railways amounted to $8,723,803, and interest on funded debt held by the public was $49,184,629.

The report was presented to Mr. Howe by S. J. Hunderford, president and chairman, on behalf of the board of directors which took office on October 1, replacing the trustees previously in control.

Depression Slackening.

From the low point of $142,519,742 in 1933, revenues of the C.N.R. increased progressively up to $161,610,489 in 1936.

"These figures," the report added, "would indicate that the severity of the depression is gradually easing."

Railway operating revenues were $186,610,489 and operating expenses were $171,477,699.

"A survey of business conditions in Canada leads to the conviction that progress will continue to be made during 1937, probably with accelerating momentum," the report said, "and every effort will be made to secure for Canadian National Railways a full share in the additional traffic thereby created. The directors hope that such increased activity will be adequately reflected in increased net earnings."

Effect of the economic disturbance on railway earnings might be judged from the fact that for the seven-year period 1923-1929 inclusive the gross revenues of the system averaged $278,024,509, while for the seven-year period 1930-1936 inclusive the yearly average was $183,684,370. During 1936 all branches of the system, including both freight and passenger business, mail revenues, express, telegraphs, and hotels, showed an increase in revenue.

Increase in freight revenues is shown by the report to be $11,660,585 or 8.73 per cent. All regions of the system reported increases in tonnage in practically all of the principal commodities. The increase in agricultural products carried

DRIVE TO TIGHTEN SECURITIES LAWS ON OVER DOMINION

Provinces Work With Ottawa To Have Uniform Act In Force By 1938

U.S. TO ASSIST

TORONTO, March 15 (CP)—Provincial and Dominion governmental authorities were united today in a drive for uniform securities fraud-prevention laws, with a companies act, effective throughout Canada by 1938 the objective. All were opposed to establishment of a Dominion securities commission.

Co-operation between existing provincial securities commissions and the Dominion as the best means of protecting the investing public was decided upon at a conference here last week of officials from every province in Canada and the Federal government. Representatives of the United States securities exchange commission attended.

The results of the meeting, called by W. F. J. O'Meara, assistant undersecretary of state, were made public last night. The conference was the result of last November's session in Ottawa of the Dominion-provincial committee on company law in Canada. At that time, the first steps were taken toward obtaining uniformity in existing legislation.

Sub-committees were named to draft legislation for a uniform companies act, it was learned, to be submitted to parliament and the various legislatures in 1938. Decisions arrived at during the conference and to be offered as suggestions to the governments will, in the meantime, offer increased protection to investors.

The provincial governments will be asked to enact legislation to bring the dominion companies act under the jurisdiction of each provincial commission for administration purposes in its region.

CANADA INVITED SEND PILOTS OVER TRAIN IN BRITAIN

Sassoon Points To Scheme In Force In New Zealand, Australia

100 ALREADY ACCEPTED

LONDON, March 15.—(CP Cable.) Sir Philip Sassoon, Undersecretary for Air, introducing the air estimates in the House of Commons this afternoon, invited Canada to cooperate in the supply of pilots.

"I want to say a few words about Dominion cooperation," Sir Philip said. "There is already in operation a scheme whereby pilots are trained as cadets in the Royal Australian Air Force and then serve a term of years with the Air Force of this country. Afterwards they revert to the Royal Australian Air Force Reserve.

New Zealand is establishing a similar scheme and also a system whereby candidates who apply for the Royal Air Force are medically examined locally so as to ensure that they are not turned down when they come to this country.

"We should welcome adoption of a similar system by Canada, from which Dominion no fewer than 100 young men have come on their own and have been accepted for short service commissions. We welcome these pilots. They are first rate young men and we wish to do everything in our power to facilitate their entry.

RETAILERS WANT HOURS REGULATED

Put Case Before Croll—Also Urge Door-Door Canvassing Controlled

TORONTO, March 15—(C.P.). — Hon. David A. Croll, Ontario Minister of Labor, Welfare and Municipal Affairs, to-day promised to consider requests placed before him by a delegation from the Retail Merchants' Association of Ontario.

Orrese S. Houghan, secretary of the Ontario body, headed the delegation which sought legislation for early closing of stores, and it recommended the government go to proposed legislation, giving a minimum wage level to men. The merchants urged a law to compel early closing except on Fridays and Saturday nights and on nights preceding holidays.

Members of the deputations also urged Mr. Croll to enforce regulation of door-to-door canvassing.

Mr. Houghan told the minister the deputation represented an association membership of 3,000 retailers in 250 Ontario towns. It represented all types of stores from the corner grocery to industrial or department stores employing several hundred persons, he said.

"The association's presentation in regard to early closing," he said, "represents an effort to end the present chaotic conditions with regard to closing hours of retail food stores throughout Ontario, a situation which has been brought about by an exemption in the present provincial statutes which provides that no municipal by-law dealing with early closing may apply to the sale of fresh fruit."

Half-Pickled Mouse Has Teetotal Spouse?

Edmonton, March 15—(CP)

EMPLOYEES of an Edmonton store wondered today about the domestic happiness of a mouse which was imprisoned last week in a whisky bottle in the store for two days until someone broke the bottle.

After enduring the two-day enforced "sit-down," the rodent, according to a store employee, stood in the middle of the floor—unconcerned about watching clerks—and cleaned himself like a cat, "apparently to make sure he wouldn't smell of liquor when he returned home."

After making himself spick and span, the mouse scampered away.

DOWAGER QUEEN OF THE BALKANS IS SERIOUSLY ILL

61-Year-Old Marie Suffers Partial Paralysis After Attack Of Flu

HOLDING HER OWN

BUCHAREST, Rumania, March 15 (AP)—Marie, dowager Queen of Rumania and Queen Mother to the Balkans," was reported holding her own today after being suddenly stricken with a serious illness that developed into a partial paralysis.

The 61-year-old Queen, whose children through their marriages had virtually linked the Balkan states in a family alliance, became ill Thursday night at the opera.

Her illness was described by a member of the royal household as an attack of influenzas complicated by an intestinal inflammation.

Saturday morning her condition was said to have taken a turn for the worse and a high fever developed, "somewhat over 100 degrees," the official said.

Two physicians were in constant attendance on her and a Vienna specialist on disease of the alimentary tract was reported enroute to Bucharest.

Court circles, while making no effort to minimize the seriousness of the Queen's illness, said she was not considered in immediate danger.

Shortly after the lifting of a stringent censorship that had been in force throughout the night, her condition was described reliably as "stationary."

A Reassuring Sign

The fact Premier George Tatarescu left Bucharest for a three-day stay at his country estate was considered a reassuring sign.

Queen Marie's youngest daughter, the Archduchess Ileana of Austria, at Castle Sonnnern, her residence near Vienna, said the latest report she had received was sufficiently favorable for her not to plan to go to Bucharest immediately.

King Carol and his sister, the Queen Mother Marie of Yugoslavia, were in the sick-room most of the time, however, the member of the household said.

The opera, writing and charities have filled the dowager Queen's life during the last few years.

Part of the time was devoted to a large correspondence with Canadian and American friends, many of them made on her five-weeks tour of North America in 1926 when she was royally feted from coast to coast.

Taximan Last Seen Saturday 10 p.m., Leaving Home On Five-Minute Call

$17 STILL IN POCKET

Cigarette Butt Of Home-Made Variety In Car One Of Slender Clues

KITCHENER, Ont., March 15.—(CP)—An unknown man and woman were sought today by police in their investigation of the mysterious murder Saturday of Lawrence "Dick" Hewitt, whose bullet-pierced body was found in a ditch by his taxi-cab five miles from here.

Police have few clues to aid them in their investigations, being made under supervision of Inspector A. Boyd of the Criminal Investigation Branch of the Ontario police. They were told a passing motorist had seen Hewitt's car at 11 p.m. with a man at the wheel, presumably Hewitt, and two persons—a man and a woman—standing outside the car.

It was at this spot near Centreville, R. Copeland, a Brantford bank clerk, saw Hewitt's body sprawled out in the ditch a few feet from the standing machine. He had been shot through the heart. The discovery was made at 2.10 a.m. Sunday, three hours after Eric Delta, Waterloo motorist, had seen Hewitt's car at the side of the road and recognized it as one he had rented several times from Hewitt's taxi stand.

Possible Clues.

A cigarette butt found in the front seat of Hewitt's car was of the "home-made variety" but Hewitt was a non-smoker. A woman's handkerchief was found in a compartment of the car, but police deny it had significance in the case and said it was not unusual to find handkerchiefs in taxis.

There was no sign of a struggle or powder marks on the man's clothing. The death weapon was missing and absence of bloodstains in the car and the fact he had been shot on the driver's side of the car led police to believe Hewitt had been lured from the machine then shot.

Near his hand were the keys to his car whose light switch was turned on and the battery dead. Robbery as a motive for the crime was discounted when $17 in cash was found in the man's pockets.

Hewitt was called by telephone shortly after 10 o'clock Saturday night. He told his wife and a friend, Bernard McClinnis, he had to go after a fare because one of his two drivers was out and the other off duty. He did not say where he was going.

Just A 5-Minute Job.

"I'll be back in five minutes," he said, then left. It was the last heard of him until 2.30 yesterday morning when his body was found in a ditch on the Kitchener-Preston highway.

R. Copeland, Brantford bank clerk, found the body and notified authorities. Efforts to trace the phone call proved fruitless and a check-up of his taxi showed he had travelled 67 miles that could not be accounted for.

At a post mortem examination conducted by Dr. Ward Woolner, chief coroner of Waterloo county; Coroner Dr. J. F. Horsberger and Dr. C. L. Fisher it was found the 32 calibre bullet entered the left side of the chest and lodged under the fleam of the right armpit, after piercing the heart and both lungs.

The physicians estimated Hewitt had been dead about nine hours, indicating the shooting took place shortly after midnight. Police were unable to determine if the shell had been discharged by a revolver or a rifle.

Hewitt, who would have been 38 years old in May, was a former city league hockey player. He had conducted his taxi business here for seven years and owned five cars. Besides his widow he is survived by two children, Lorraine, 8, and Marjorie Helen, 16 months old.

AN ALARMING EXPERIENCE

Occupants of Car Have Narrow Escape at Scott's Corners.

William Wright, 27 Dalhousie avenue, Hamilton and his young son William Junior, had an alarming experience which was fortunately without serious consequences, when the motor car in which they were riding went into a skid at Scott's Corners on Highway 35, and after turning a somersault came to a perfect four-point landing right side-up. The occupants escaped with a shaking-up although the car suffered slight damage, it was reported.

Who Is Christian and Who is Not?

Chinese Visitors To Canada Are Often Perplexed Over Question

STUDENT VISITS CITY

MISS MARION OOON MISS PEARL CHIANG

Was the first time in her experience Miss Pearl Chiang, B.A., principal of the Union Normal School for Young Women at, Chengtu, China, witnessed exhibitions of skiing in this district on Sunday afternoon.

As the week-end guest of Miss Marion Coon of 589 Aylmer Street, Miss Chiang motored to Omemee and took keen enjoyment out of watching members of the Peterborough Ski Club stage an interesting program of cross-country, downhill and slalom races, for the club championships.

It was the second new experience that fell to the lot of Miss Chiang in a single day. On Sunday morning she spoke on the subject, "What Christ Means to China," from the pulpit at George Street United Church.

Introduced by Miss Coon, who first met her in China while engaged in missionary work for the United Church in Szechwan Province, Miss Chiang held the closest interest of her listeners, notwithstanding the fact that it was the first time she had ever spoken in English to an English-speaking audience.

Brought Freedom.

She asserted Christianity had brought to those in China who had come within its influence, freedom from superstition, fear, wrong and sorrow, and had given to many people an opportunity for self-development especially along educational lines that was formerly denied them. In addition, she declared Christianity was helping to bring about the emancipation of China's womanhood and was developing the spirit of love and service.

Having received the degree of Bachelor of Arts in China, Miss Chiang is now in Canada to take two years of post-graduate study in educational work at University of Toronto, leading to the degree of Master of Arts. She arrived in the Dominion last August on a scholarship given by the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church in Canada.

In a very naive manner, Miss Chiang told a reporter one of her greatest difficulties in Canada is to distinguish between the Christians and non-Christians.

Her grandmother was the first of her forbears to adopt Christianity thirty years ago, and mindful of the oppressive restrictions surrounding Chinese women, the old lady, who could not read or write, vowed that her grandchildren should walk with unbound feet and learn to read and write.

Pledge Was Kept.

That pledge was kept and of the old lady's four granddaughters, one is a graduate of Religious Education and wife of a professor at West China Union University; the second graduation in medicine in June next to become a full-fledged doctor; the third is head nurse at the Women's Hospital at Chengtu; and the fourth (Miss Chiang) is head of the Provincial Normal School at Chengtu.

Miss Coon, who spent twelve years in Szechwan Province (the furthest Western province in China), said who expects to return to the mission field in August next, related the following incident as an example of the speed at which present-day China is moving.

Five years ago, Miss Coon declared, it took her 11 days to make the 300-mile journey between Chungking and Chengtu by sedan chair; three years ago she did the same trip by motor bus in 1½ days; and twelve months ago on her return home she did the same journey in 1 hour and 30 minutes by airplane.

Woman, Jailed To Peeve Hubby Finds Now She Can't Get Out

Tells Police She Is In Detroit Illegally—And Her Schema Works Too Well

RESULT OF SPAT

DETROIT, March 15. — (CP). — Getting into jail here was part of a plan to frighten her husband because of a spat, Mrs. Mary Wheeler, 30, Detroit, admitted, but she was still confined to a jail cell today — which emphatically did not figure in the arrangement.

Mrs. Wheeler first told her story to members of a police scout car Sunday after calling the police department from a gasoline station and saying she had no money and no home. To clinch the case and make sure she would be arrested, Mrs. Wheeler told officers she was in the United States illegally. She was born in Ottawa, Ont., she said.

That fixed things. Police took her at her word and will have immigration men check her story. Meanwhile she must remain behind the bars.

"I got myself in jail and now I don't know how to get out," Mrs. Wheeler said. She claimed that although she was born in Ottawa, her parents were American citizens.

Mrs. Wheeler said the argument with her husband, Rene, started in the home of a friend and that "she decided to get even with him" by getting arrested.

Thos. Windrem Fails Judge Reach of Tree Skull Is Fractured

Although Warning Given Man Thought He Was Beyond Reach Of Tree

STRUCK ON HEAD BY LIMB

Coroner Dr. Smith Investigates And Decides An Inquest Not Necessary

Misjudging the reach of a falling tree which a companion nearby had just topped, Thomas Windrem, 64-year-old woodsman, was struck on the head by a heavy limb and killed instantly at Blezards Station in Otonabee township Saturday. Coroner J. C. Smith of Lakefield investigated and announced no inquest would be held.

The accident occurred on the farm of Harry Seaburn. Working with Max Redmond, Windrew was cutting logs for Charles Stenhirst, Otonabee lumber dealer.

Redmond reported he cut through the base of a tall tree and, when it began to fall, warned Windrem who was working about 60 feet away. Windrem apparently saw the tree falling toward him but thought himself beyond its reach. One of the heavier top limbs struck him on the head, killing him instantly.

Coroner Investigates

Redmond hurried to a nearby farmhouse and reported the accident. Dr. H. Wright of Keene was summoned and found the woodsman had died with a severely crushed skull. The body was left where it had fallen until the arrival of Coroner Smith at five o'clock in the afternoon. It was then removed to Omemee by C. L. Morcombe, undertaker. Police were notified but did not investigate.

Windrem was a native of Cavan and was an experienced woodsman. He had been working for Elmhurst in the Otonabee district for several months, boarding at the Seaburn farm. He was a veteran of the Great War, having enlisted at Lindsay.

He was unmarried. A brother William, resides in Emily township, and two brothers, Albert and Norman, live in Western Canada. Elmer and Walter Windrew of Cavan and Gilbert Windrem of Peterborough are half-brothers. Three half-sisters remaining are Mrs. Lou Barnes of Beaverton, Mrs. Foster Eagleson of Mount Pleasant and Mrs. Amy Parrott of Emily.

Funeral Today

The funeral will be held today from the farm home of William Windrem in Emily to the Emily Cemetery at 2 o'clock.

"It was purely a case of accident," Dr. Smith said today. "I investigated the circumstances at the scene and decided there would be no need of an inquest. The man died instantly from the severe skull fracture he sustained."

FALLS SOUVENIR DEALERS ARE SAD

Complain River's Weak Scenic Effort Sent Tourists To Callander

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., March 15—(CP)—Niagara Falls souvenir dealers complained to-day that Niagara's brief scenic offerings this winter "drove the thrill-seeking tourists to Callander, Ont., to see the Dionne quintuplets."

"Last winter's have happened in the good-old days when a trip to the Falls was an excursion and not just an afternoon automobile jaunt, stirred Canadian and United States dealers collectively.

Even so, thousands of automobiles invaded both sides of the border over the week-end attracted by a belated display of Winter ice formations beginning two weeks ago with an ice jam that formed a solid ridge across the gorge.

"Why, sightseers in the old days brought their families, and a trunk, and settled down for three or four days," complained Paul H. Garos. He ran a curio shop for 28 years before turning to the restaurant business.

"And souvenirs—say, they wouldn't think of leaving without buying a Niagara Falls memento for each of their friends."

But the modern day sight seeker whisks around the reservation in his car and is gone in four hours.

TWO MEN DROWN IN HARBOR CRASH

Schooner Sinks As Banker Rams Her In Halifax Waters

HALIFAX, March 15 (CP)—Two men were drowned here today when the Halifax fishing schooner Flirt was rammed at the harbor mouth by the Lunenburg Banker Marshall Frank.

A brief message from Chebucto Head said Captain Jake Weymouth, skipper of the Flirt, and the cook of the vessel were lost in the collision. Four other members of the crew of the Halifax vessel were picked up by the Marshall Frank.

It was not immediately known whether the Marshall Frank, a fishing schooner, was seriously damaged in the collision.

The Morning After Taking Carter's Little Liver Pills

Railways Protest Donkey Competition

Johannesburg, (BUP) March 15

THE humble donkey, an institution of the veldt roads, is such a serious competitor to South Africa's railway that the Railway Board wants its activities checked.

If the donkey is simply used by a poor man to eke out a bare living, the railway has no complaint, but it alleges that donkey transport is becoming "big business" and that fleets of donkey wagons have been launched on the roads by one man.

The Central Transports Board declares that "the problem is as much social as economic," and suggests that it is possible that legislation may be introduced to control all road vehicles, and particularly donkey carts.

HOUSE CONSIDERS TARIFF CHANGES IN NEW BUDGET

OTTAWA, March 15.— (CP).—The House to-day will begin consideration of tariff changes involved in the new Canada-United Kingdom trade treaty with indications major objections had been swept away in the budget debate that ended Friday night without a vote.

As the House prepared to go into committee and consider the changes hope of an Easter adjournment vanished. Those who would like to see the session short predicted prorogation would probably take place about mid-April after a long week-end Easter recess.

This week will see House members enjoy their last free Wednesday night. The Government proposed last week that Wednesday night sittings be held hereafter and Irish parliamentarians faced the prospect of celebrating St. Patrick's night by listening to speeches. They were rescued by Conservative Leader Bennett who drew Justice Minister Lapointe's attention to the fact next Wednesday was a festive occasion for those who wear the green and won his point that no sitting should be held.

Observers predicted the House would pass all budget resolutions, that is the tariff changes, this week and expressed belief it would also have time to consider other government business.

No one could be found willing to guess what will happen when the government bill to create a Board of Transport Commissioners reaches the House. It was attacked bitterly in the Senate Railways and Shipping committee and amended considerably before it was reported back to the Red Chamber last Thursday. The Senate will receive the redraft to-morrow night.

The bill plans giving the new Board, a substitute for the present Board of Railway Commissioners, wide powers over air traffic, inland shipping, some types of commercial highway traffic and railways. It will be sponsored in the House by Transport Minister Howe.

Another Howe Bill

Mr. Howe, kept busy last week explaining the Transport Bill to the Senate Committee, is expected to produce another bit of legislation

MORE ATHLETICS, SPORT IN SCHOOL TO BE ADVOCATED

LIMIT NOW $150

TORONTO, March 15 (CP)—Ontario Department of Education will ask the legislature to enable school boards to do more than is now being done for the promotion of sports and athletics in Ontario schools.

Hon. Dr. L. J. Simpson, Minister of Education, today will bring down the school law amendment act and it will have a clause to allow school boards and boards of education to appropriate up to 25 cents a pupil for sport and athletic purposes. The amendment will chiefly affect urban school boards, the present limit for such appropriations being $150.

Second reading debate will be resumed today, it was expected, on the government's bill to give legislative sanction to the revised power contract negotiated between the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission and the Ottawa Valley Power Co. George Challies (Con., Grenville-Dundas) will lead off.

Attorney-General Roebuck, Hydro Commissioner, said frankly the contract was open to doubt on constitutional grounds but this objection was met by a clause binding each party to join the other in application for any necessary legislation.

Probe "Tied" Hotels.

Reports have been current the Opposition will inject Liquor Control Board subjects into the Budget debate which resumes Tuesday. An investigation may be asked into the question of "tied" hotels to see if rumors breweries are linked to certain hotels are true.

When a case of a "tied" hotel was brought to Premier Hepburn's attention some time ago he acted promptly and the hotel's license was suspended until its financial affiliation with brewing interests was ended.

No date has been set for calling the Committee on Privileges and Elections. The committee will look into charges made against Dr. A. Duncan Roberts, Sault Ste. Marie Liberal member by Premier Hepburn when he expelled Dr. Roberts from the party and moved him to the Opposition side of the House.

Premier Hepburn accused the Doctor of using farm position as a member of the Legislature in an effort to "blackmail" the Algoma Steel Corporation to put him on its payroll as medical director. Dr. Roberts denied the charge and moved the committee be called.

At the Premier's request, the House decided to give the committee power to sit beyond the close of the Legislature and to report back next session.

OTTAWA, March 15 (CP). — Eyes of the nation turned to-day to two Dominion constituencies where nominations will be held preparatory to March 22 by-elections which will give the Government its first popular test since the parliamentary session started.

MAN IS MURDERED

Young Honeymooner Dies After Car Is Wrecked—Bride Survives

TORONTO, March 15 (C.P.). — Ontario's toll of sudden deaths over the week-end stood to-day at seven, including the murder of a taxi driver near Kitchener, whose death gave Ontario Provincial Police a mystery assignment.

Other deaths were by violence and accident. David Messecar, 68-year-old Waterford farmer, and his wife were killed when Messecar drove his motor car into the side of a Lake Erie and Northern Railway radial at Bloomsburg, near Simcoe, late on Saturday.

The accident occurred in daylight at a crossing which provided an unobstructed view for several hundred feet. The Messecars knew the highway well.

The body of Ernest A. Crouch, veteran Toronto business man, was found beside the Darling Building in North Toronto on Sunday. It was believed he fell from a nine-storey window.

Sudbury police investigated two deaths. The body of Dr. C. M. Burroughs was found in an automobile in a garage under the doctor's office. The car motor was running. Police said they learned Dr. Burroughs had been despondent.

Peter Kuzar was found dead in a swimming pool owned by Louis Prete. It was believed Kuzar drowned a short time after a group of bathers left the pool. He was alone, the body being discovered an hour later.

Starting on a honeymoon trip with his bride, Glen Curtis, 24, of Windsor, was fatally injured near Tilbury on Saturday when the car in which he was a passenger skidded on icy pavement and plunged into a ditch. His bride suffered only minor injuries. Police held the car driver, Clare Jewell of Windsor.

Mrs. Allen, member of one of the oldest pioneering families in Carleton county, emphasized that hard work, particularly, was largely responsible for her reaching the century mark. "Why the people of to-day don't work half as hard as we did 75 years ago on the farm," she said.

"In the old days we had nothing else to think about but do lots of hard work and raise our family," contented Mrs. Allen, who raised 11 children, seven of them living.

Are you riding a roller-coaster through life?

If you are like the average man or woman you make an effort to save money. You save according to your ability until some happy day you discover you have $100 or $500, or perhaps even $1,000.

But you are human. You want a new car, or a trip, or perhaps out of the kindness of your heart you make a loan to some out-of-luck relation. Your money is gone!

Nothing daunted, you start in again to save and, in months or years, you have saved another substantial sum. Then again the big temptation comes.

Up and down your savings go—like a ride in the roller coaster. Up and down, up and down—building up slowly and tearing down swiftly. And when you come to the end of the ride, you discover you are at exactly the place from which you started.

The Imperial Life will help you save, will remind you when deposits are due, will protect your dependents with the full amount of your intended saving (in case of your death) and will have your money for you when your policy matures.

"Financial Security through Life Insurance", by Paul Speicher, an international authority, is an interesting book which should be read by everyone who plans to provide financial security for himself and family. Your local Imperial Life representative will make a copy available to you without cost.

Toronto Guest At Local Y.W.C.A.

Miss Ethel Law of Toronto, who came from New Zealand six years ago to assume the duties of Conference and Training secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association and who is returning to New Zealand this summer, where she will be the National General Secretary of the Y.W.C.A. there, was an honored guest at the local "Y" on Friday.

The Membership Committee of the Y.W.C.A. entertained the Board members and friends, at a pleasant tea hour, when Miss Law spoke to the ladies. Mrs. C. V. McLean, convenor of the committee, was in charge of arrangements, and tea was poured by Mrs. A. R. Kennedy and Mrs. F. M. Somerville, assisted by Mrs. G. E. Porter, Mrs. Rom Thompson, Mrs. C. G. Collins, Mrs. A. C. Gander, Mrs. G. Henderson and Miss Mary Elliott. Mrs. A. Moir supervised the arrangement of the table, which was prettily done with spring flowers.

Miss Law, in a pleasing speech, emphasized the necessity in Y work of adult education and provision for unemployment. She spoke of the excellence of the course for training household workers, which is being promoted just now at the local "Y", and went on to praise highly the general how-do-you-do of the Peterborough Y.W.C.A., the splendid program, or endeavor of varied types, the keen enthusiasm taken by the members in the activities and the loyalty and activity of the staff. She stressed the real purpose of the association as being character building.

In the evening, Miss Law addressed members of the Girls' Council of the "Y" and met a number of other young women who came in later.

Mission Work Is Described

Members Of W. M. S. Of St. Paul's Church Listen To Addresses

Several interesting brief talks on subjects allied with the endeavors of the society were heard at the March meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, held on Friday afternoon in the church parlors, with the president, Mrs. James Dutton, in the chair.

Mrs. Dutton read a letter from Mrs. Davis, in far-away Manchuria, telling of her life there and the progress which is being made in the mission field and another letter described Mrs. C. Hagerman's efforts among the children of the Mission Band, where small models of the various countries and national homes are used to interest the juniors in missionary work in various parts of the world.

Continuing the course of study for this year, Miss Erskine read a paper describing the work of the W.M.S. among the Hungarians in Canada. The work is well established in the larger cities and much is being done for the young people. Social activities are planned to offset the inroads of Communism and Christian literature is distributed to those unable to attend the services. In Toronto, a missionary-nurse visits newcomers to the country, co-operating with the Welcome and Welfare Department.

Mrs. J. P. Pukinghorn told of work among Ukrainians. Earnest efforts are being made to bring these people under Christian influences to prevent them from becoming Communists. In Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Pesenko (Ukrainian) are in charge of the ever-increasing work. The sick are visited and some, who are very poor, are grateful for clothing given them. These gifts are made possible only through basis contributed by the Auxiliaries.

The meeting was enlivened by music, a sacred song by Miss Olive Cullen, with accompaniment by Mrs. Ed. Barrie, being much enjoyed.

Don't Miss This

Bringing the Mendelssohn Choir to Peterborough is an ambitious undertaking, but it is evidence of ambition properly directed. If there were an auditorium large enough for all the people of Peterborough to gather and listen to this choir then that would be the happy solution to the problem of how many should attend.

The choir which Dr. H. A. Fricker is bringing to Peterborough is so outstanding that it is doubtful if there is in the world a finer singing organization. That is a large claim, but it will stand a great deal of disproving before being withdrawn.

It started in the mind of one of Canada's great musicians, Dr. A. S. Vogt. He was organist and choir-master of Jarvis Street Baptist Church in Toronto when he became certain the time had arrived for a greater choir than had ever been brought together. Dr. Vogt it was who used his own setting of the Lord's Prayer chant. His own explanation was that it was something which must be so subdued, prayerful and musically perfect that it would be as a breath which passed over the congregation following the prayer from the pulpit. It was a common occurrence for visitors in Toronto from points far distant to inquire the location of the church where they sang the Lord's Prayer. It was with that inborn sense of musical beauty that Dr. Vogt began the building of Mendelssohn Choir.

When he could no longer continue as its conductor Dr. Fricker came. In forty years of existence there have been only two conductors. Both these great musicians, working in far-separated fields, had been adhering to and striving for similar ideals and standards in choral beauty, so there was no period of transition due to the change of conductors. There is a constant change of personnel; one must not only be musically fit to gain entrance, but it is necessary to remain in that state. The test is applied each season as though the applicant were a stranger. In no other way could this choir maintain the standard it has achieved.

Peterborough welcomes this great organization. It congratulates also the men of St. Paul's church who were possessed of the courage and vision to make possible the visit to Peterborough. The advice of the Examiner is "Don't miss this."

For 74 Years

Mr. Peter A. Maybee of Bloomfield, Prince Edward County, is 95, and his wife is 92. They have been married for 74 years, the ceremony taking place in 1863, at which time the bride would be 18 and the bridegroom 21. As we look at such things today we might be inclined to think that was a trifle early in life, but apparently Mr. and Mrs. Maybee have never looked at it that way. For almost three-quarters of a century they have gone along together and they have been very happy together. They still are.

Confederation as a date in Canadian History may seem a long way back, but Mr. and Mrs. Maybee were married four years when Confederation came along. Their married life has covered the span of all the efforts, victories and defeats of all Canadian Premiers. Five years after their marriage they were living in a country where the total expenditure by the Dominion government was $14,071,089, and they lived until it increased to $532,531,508 in 1936. They began their married life when divorce was virtually unknown, and have lived to see the figure for 1936 established at 1,376, but the divorce business has never come nearer to them than its statistical existence in government publications.

Together Mr. and Mrs. Maybee have gone farther along the sunset path than most people have been spared to explore. Their son has passed by two years the mark of three score years and ten. It is a remarkable and a wholesome thing about which to read in the somewhat muddled and confused state of the world today.

Not a Sound Method

Controller Day of Toronto informed City Council he would ask the Ontario Legislature to pass legislation enabling Toronto to take surplus earnings from municipal sinking funds and place it in the current revenue fund. There it could be used for a reduction of tax rates. The only fly in the ointment at the moment is that Toronto has no surplus in its sinking fund account, but Controller Day would be pleased to have some legislative authority so he could watch for the first signs of a surplus and then demand immediate possession.

We doubt whether he will ever secure such authority from the Legislature. If Toronto has many sinking fund debentures outstanding it will be necessary to have the sinking fund investments earning 4 per cent. in order to break even with the basis on which they were issued. Today it is stated that money placed in investments to which sinking funds are restricted is earning just 3.05 per cent., and there will be no surplus growing out of that. Rather a deficit. Toronto would be safer if it owned a surplus in its sinking fund account and then left it alone.

There is more to it. When a municipality seeks to use such surplus for the reduction of a tax rate, the ratepayers may secure a little assistance for the time being, but they are not getting a true picture of their municipality's finances in their tax bill. The one real test is that the amount of money for which the municipal council is calling should be decreasing. If it stands on that basis then the taxpayers know definitely that debt is being discharged and that practical economy is being put into effect.

Municipalities generally would be well advised to get away entirely from the sinking fund system of issuing debentures. There are sections of United States where the custom is no longer permitted, and the serial debenture is now favored. By that method there is a definite payment of capital and interest each year, and when the date of maturity has arrived there is neither surplus nor deficit. It ends even. That is by far a more desirable method of financing.

A Useless Sort of Life

It must have been thirty years ago since the name of Harry K. Thaw first appeared in the newspapers, and that was when he shot and killed Stanford White because both men were interested in the same girl, Evelyn Nesbitt.

Thaw had plenty of money to fight for his life, and he was placed in some sort of a mental institution instead of being treated as an ordinary murderer. He also had enough money to fight his way out of that place, and at one time made a landing on Canadian soil He was promptly ushered out of this country.

At intervals he gets into the newspapers, his latest appearance being in court where he was fined $2,300 for hitting the waiter of a hotel in the eye following an argument over the quality of a bottle of champagne.

At no time can we recall reading of anything worthy which Harry K. Thaw has done. His is an example of a meaningless, useless sort of life, and he is permitted to go his way because he has sufficient money to pay for the damage he does.

Just Plain Rot

Most folk prefer to see a dumb animal getting fair treatment, but we are certain there is not much worrying going on about what happens to snakes. But here is one case which is different.

A young woman in Toronto owns a snake eight feet long, and calls the thing Gordon. And right there all men who are possessed of that name are entitled to protest.

The reptile had a sore throat and its owner asked several veterinaries to look at the thing to see what should be done. They refused. Finally a man was found who knew something about snakes and he fixed the thing. Now it is recovering, and while doing so is kept in a baby basket with pink ribbons attached, and there are several electric light bulbs in the basket to make certain the snake does not suffer from a chill.

Pardon the outburst, but we consider that the damnest bunch of tripe yet recorded.

Getting a Lighter Sentence

Two women in London, Ont., married, and sisters, have been sent to Reformatory. Some time ago a man from out of town reported he had visited a tourist camp in their company and had been robbed of a sum of money after a needle had been used on his arm.

When it came time for the naming of sentences representations were made on behalf of the two women by the pastor of a local church, who was certain the two sisters had repented, "intended to go straight and take some interest in religion."

The magistrate in giving sentence remarked that had the pair been sentenced before representation was made on their behalf they would have received much longer terms.

And right there is the point worth considering. The original offence had not been changed at all, and the offence in any case is the basis of the action and the measure of the punishment. The appearance of a minister of the Gospel saying he believed the women had repented and intended in future to take what he called an interest in religion made the original offence no greater or no worse.

If there had been no such representations made for the accused they would admittedly have received a longer sentence. The magistrate himself said so. There may be much or little about the case which we do not fully understand, but as a rule it is not wise for court to have too many people making what they call representations for guilty people. The extent of the offence is what the court has to consider and from that basis the degree of punishment should be imposed.

That Part Is All Wrong

A bill is before the Ontario Legislature to do away with the speed limit on highways, and that same measure proposes a 30-mile speed limit for cities, towns and villages and a 20-mile limitial intersections.

Right there the thing goes wrong, and it should never be allowed to become law. There is no need to increase the speed limit in municipalities. If it is raised to 30 miles, then it will be only a short time before drivers are going 35 and 40.

This paper considers 20 miles just about the right speed for a car to travel in a municipality, large or small. That speed makes for safety and for ability to keep an eye on intersections, and pedestrians have a much greater margin of safety when a car is going 20 miles an hour than they would at 30 or 35. Running a car at 20 miles an hour is a common sense practice and increasing that speed to 30 miles is not common sense, and we do not believe the people want any such thing done.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The Globe and Mail proposes a Royal Commission to re-establish Confederation. There are some 61 Commissions operating in the Dominion now.

"End of speed limit urged" reads a news story heading. We had an idea that it was ended years ago with the introduction of master cars.

There was a banquet in Brantford for a champion Jersey cow, but we notice that silver service presented at the function went to the cow's owner.

It is idle to think of the relief problem as having been solved when Montreal alone has over 166,000 persons depending upon public money.

Bloomfield couple have been married for 74 years which figures out as about 72½ years longer than the average Hollywood matrimonial venture.

The Budget debate in the House of Commons lasted only nine days which will probably inspire a general wish that there could be something in the nature of a coronation every year.

Advertisements of gas masks in English papers advise that beards must be cut off to make the protection effective. In that case what is going to become of George Bernard Shaw?

Boston man has been arrested for operating a fake lottery. That is the kind in which the customer has no chance while in the legitimate lottery he has about one chance in a million.

A deer that wandered into Parry Sound found the traffic too dangerous so he swam the river and escaped. If one of those animals can't take care of himself on the street what chance has a pedestrian?

The leader of Canada's Hart House string quartette has been invited to play with the Coronation orchestra during the ceremony in Westminster Abbey. It is interesting to note that no swing band maestros have been so honored.

Montreal, according to a member of the House of Commons, has 200 active Communist clubs. It also has, he might have mentioned, a few hundred thousand inhabitants who have no sympathy for Communism.

Having failed to cut debts in a legal way Alberta now proposes to swing the axe even harder and at the same time remain within the constitution. That would seem to be almost as difficult a trick as making social credit work.

There are said to be two divisions of Italians fighting for the Spanish insurgents. If they do not soon capture Madrid we imagine the messages they receive from Rome will not all be congratulatory in nature.

Canadian families on relief in February were 17 per cent. less than in the same month a year ago. However, before the cheering gets out of hand it is well to remember that about one in every ten Canadians is being taken care of out of the public purse.

THE SINGER

(By A. E. K.)

¶ I heard a man who sang a song. It went all right and not too long, no punk notes did I hear; piano sounded fine and right, was catchy like and fairly bright, and pleasing to the ear.

¶ The singer stood like how he should, for all I know did fairly good, he held his music right; he seemed at ease the whole way through, he knew exactly what to do, in him there was no fright.

¶ And he had sweetness, he had power; he could have sung for half an hour, and he had wind to spare; and people clapped their hands with glee, 'twas easy for the folk to see, that he had rooters there.

¶ They stamped and called to him encore, so he came back and sang some more, it caused some folk to weep; the second song was filled with woe, his voice ranged down so soft and low, for it was very deep.

¶ And though I sat and heard him sing, it meant to me not anything, it touched not heart or head; I listened when he came down low, and followed high as he could go, I knew not what he said.

¶ He may have sang of brooks and trees, or soup made from shin bones and peas, or warriors much stirred; perhaps he sang of ancient Greece, or Islands filled with sun and peace—I never caught a word.

PARLIAMENTARY DEBATES

Mr. COLDWELL: Mr. Speaker, usually I am very courteous to hon. members opposite who rise for the purpose of making correction. But if the hon member wants to make a speech I think he should take time to do so after I get through. Yesterday I had fourteen interruptions.

Mr. McLEAN (Melfort): Mr. Speaker, on a question of privilege—

An hon. MEMBER: Order.

Mr. SPEAKER: The hon. member has risen to a question of privilege.

Mr. McLEAN (Melfort): Mr. Speaker, on a question of privilege, I have said that there is not the slightest truth in the assertion. The hon. member has referred to his courtesy. On this matter no hon. member of the house needs the courtesy of the hon. gentleman, because it is a matter of right. Withdraw.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Withdraw.

Mr. COLDWELL: Mr. Speaker, I am not withdrawing the statement which I read—

Mr. McLEAN (Melfort): The hon. member must accept my statement.

Mr. COLDWELL: —which I read in the public press. My authority was The Western Producer, published at Saskatoon, Saskatchewan. If the hon. member says that that is not correct, let him correct it through the newspaper.

Mr. McLEAN (Melfort): Surely the hon. member knows better—that on a question of privilege, on a matter within my knowledge, he must withdraw his published presumption. I was one who talked on that occasion. I did not vote; I addressed the meeting by invitation.

Mr. SPEAKER: If the hon. member says he did not attend the meeting or that he did not vote, his statement must be accepted and the suggestion withdrawn.

Mr. COLDWELL: I made the statement on the authority of the newspaper.

Mr. McLEAN (Melfort): The "statement"!

Mr. DUNNING: The hon. member for Rosetown-Biggar must take the responsibility for it.

Mr. COLDWELL: I was quoting from a newspaper. However, I accept the statement of the hon. member.

Mr. McLEAN (Melfort): On a question of privilege, the hon. member for Rosetown-Biggar read a statement which was in the paper and which was absolutely correct, and then he added of his own volition these words, "I presume that was the vote of the member for Melfort"—who did not vote on that occasion. What I am asking him to do is to withdraw his presumption: that is all.

Mr. COLDWELL: That is different. The statement I read from the paper, then, is correct. I assume therefore that the gentleman remained silent, and silence gives consent. Therefore in effect he voted for the resolution.

Mr. McLEAN (Melfort): Entirely presumption. That is all.

Mr. COLDWELL: On September 21 a meeting was held at Saskatoon to which the Hon. J. G. Gardiner, and other western members were invited. This was the only meeting which I attended. I arrived in Saskatoon from the east on September 21, and I went to the meeting at the invitation of the citizens' committee which organized it. I might say that I went because the Minister of Agriculture was to be there. He had other engagements and was not able to attend.

Mr. GARDINER: Mr. Speaker, as a matter of privilege may I call the attention of the hon. member to something that he must have known if he was at that meeting—that I sent a wire to the organizers of that meeting before it was actually called—

Mr. HEAPS: That is not a matter of privilege.

Mr. GARDINER: —indicating to them that I could not be there.

Mr. COLDWELL: I was not aware of that.

Mr. GARDINER: The message was read at the meeting.

Mr. COLDWELL: I arrived late and left early, because I had to address a meeting 130 miles away the same evening, and I attended for a short time only. May I ask, what of the statement of the hon. member for Melville (Mr. Motherwell)? The hon. member for Lake Centre (Mr. Johnston) may remember the statements made at the meeting at Regina. Also the hon. member for Swift Current (Mr. Bothwell) was at the Cabri meeting, which was attended by a large number of persons and the town band. He contended that the board should be continued and heard the resolution condemnatory of the government. At this point may I say that the resolutions, as my files testify, were quite evidently drawn by a large number of different people. There are differences in the phraseology and in terms; sometimes even slightly different things are asked for; but they all criticize the government on two grounds, first, the discontinuance of the wheat board method of marketing grain, and second, the setting of a minimum price which they regarded as being too low.

Mr. SPEAKER: Order.

An hon. MEMBER: Sit down.

Mr. COLDWELL: May I be permitted to continue?

Mr. SPEAKER: With the unanimous consent of the house.

An hon. MEMBER: Go ahead.

Mr. DUNNING: Give the hon. member five minutes.

Mr. COLDWELL: I thank the house for that courtesy. What I want to ask is this: where now are all these protesters? If those protests are to be made effective, this is the place to do it.

"Gimmie a nickel's worth o' cheese," said the small boy to the clerk.

"Don't sell nothin' less'n a dime's worth," said the clerk.

"Well, leggme see it."

No sooner had the man exhibited the dime slice than the boy snatched out his finest knife, and cut the cheese in two. Then he picked up one half, laid down his nickel and sailed out, remarking: "Trouble with you, our man is—you're lazy."

More About Good Music.

(By Mrs. Joseph Hamilton.)

AFTER having read a few articles in the Examiner of correspondents who expressed their views on what is or is not to their liking in music, I wish to extend that, which I hope may help toward a progressive interest in good music, better known as classical.

I shall give a background for this interest in the best music that can be produced as I have enjoyed it.

I came from a section where all who enter even from the kindergarten are taught music as one of the major subjects. I not only had it through the twelve grades, private tutoring by noted European professors, but studied it as a major subject in two colleges. Through all these years, training was given correlating the history of the life of the composers, with that of their works, study of the technique, theory, etc., till it seemed a pleasure instead of work to delve into the depths of the subject to gain a deeper knowledge and understanding.

During this stated career and that of teacher of this subject while teaching school in two large cities, which were noted for their progressive education, I was privileged to see and hear some of our most noted artists of the time, namely Schuman Heink, Paderewski, Heifetz, Kreisler, Caruso, Rachmaninoff, McCormick and Galli. In most cases, as was also done before seeing a grand opera, we studied much concerning the artist and those compositions or the opera to be presented, before the big event took place. This better prepared us to have a greater understanding appreciation.

I have travelled from east to west in both U. S. and Canada and as music or schools have always been of greatest interest to me I have taken every opportunity to visit schools or attend where knowledge on these subjects could be obtained.

I have found through these travels that the subjects of music and art are little known by most people of Canada. Only a few months ago I read an extensive article in a Toronto paper where the people of that city are just awakening to the appreciation of high class music. This was duly Yules for such a great exhibition. You need not be surprised when it is written here by another correspondent.

"Why continue to annoy us with such as Bach and Mozart and their silly symphonies, that very few of us wish to hear any longer."

ONE who really knows thoroughly of Bach or Mozart and their works can clearly see that writer knew little or nothing about music for even in this article I have not mentioned all the musical professors I have studied with and not one taught more than a few days till the name of Bach and Mozart were frequently spoken of.

I do not mean to censure that correspondent alone, for, from by observation, there are many from most walks of life here in Canada who are of the same class. Why? First, I have observed that music has been a much neglected subject in our schools throughout this country. I have learned this fact by actually visiting schools. I have found that in many cases the teachers knew little or nothing of the subject from a technical standpoint, and no doubt have had their own interests and a suitable subject to use in conversation most frequently.

Many such great living artists as Mme. Flagstad, whose superlative voice, exceptional intelligence, and modesty having perfect control of voice giving expressiveness and dramatic spirit is one long to be remembered after hearing her even once, Mr. Melchoin who is considered the foremost Wagnerian tenor of today gives a masterly and thrilling interpretation in expression. Just to see and hear even these two nationally known artists would give the eye and the ear facial expressions, tenderness and majesty of demeanor and with that sensibility on the part of both performers when seen and heard would establish a complete understanding and increased artistic stature of the said performers. Ones appreciation of the great works depends upon the interpretations expressed by the performer.

Now it is my impression we have others who can help to produce that talent just as good as any obtainable. There are many who are deeply interested in the best obtainable and talent in these where talent activity, art and fame which may stand the test of time is yet unexplored.

Why not stop criticizing, boost the best, show it in every way possible, present it so much and so pleasing and in such a tactful way that that inspiration may last. It is only the material with the highest standard of quality which endures through all ages and eternity.

I hope these discussions may help some to see if they have the desire and will power in working consistently to have the children know when the teacher did not know or understand music. This fault does not lie wholly with the children or teacher but the curriculum of the schools.

Having taught music to all grades up to college work, I know how children and even a teacher looks toward the music period as one of pleasure rather than work when they have learned the art of appreciation. It is a subject that many can take part in unison and all learn the same at one time. It gives a way for expressiveness toward feelings or emotions which otherwise could not be indulged in with the desired results.

Going to various types of churches you will find a wide range in the line of music but that is a feature I cannot appreciate or enjoy when I enter most of our churches here in Canada.

Music in our churches reminds me of the way the Bible was originally taught. There were many years after Christ died before the New Testament was written when only the Monks were privileged to see the Book and the people only knew their interpretation of it. Later the priests were giving out their interpretation and at last the people were given an opportunity to see the Bible and form their own interpretations, thus more interested. Likewise with our churches and music. The organist and a select few have a book with music. They lead and the crowd comes in late on each note, making repeated refrain for the audience for if they get a book at all the book only has the words. Even people don't like to act the part of a parrot and repeat that which is given before and to me that is just how it appears. If the best of music is to be appreciated by all why not put books with music in the hands of all the audience. It is my opinion if put had music books with the words of each verse so arranged with the note and soprano above the words corresponding to those notes and the bass and tenor below as you would find in most any church where music is used in the TOSSING of a burning cigarette stub from an automobile window will make South Dakotans subject to fine and imprisonment if the state senate and Governor Jensen approve a bill adopted by the House of Representatives.

The bill provides a fine up to $50 or jail sentence up to 30 days, or both, for "any person who shall drop or throw from any vehicle or other means of transportation any burning match, cigarette, cigar, ashes of pipe or other burning substance of any kind."

A Face Covered With Pimples Causes Much Embarrassment

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

There is little doubt but that impure and impoverished blood in the soil on which thin red, white, pus filled pimples develop and thrive, and that nothing short of a vigorous, persistent blood purifying treatment will eradicate them from the system.

Try a few bottles and be convinced.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, March 15. — Weakness of outside markets, coupled with reports of rain in the United States winter wheat belt, sent wheat prices to a new low record on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

Export of Canadian wheat was estimated at 500,000 bushels, chiefly to the United Kingdom. Liverpool closed 1d to 1¼d lower. Prices on the English market slipped off due to weakness at Winnipeg and Buenos Aires on Friday, combined with bearish news from the United States wheat belt.

Buenos Aires, however, registered gains of ½ cent a bushel in both May and July futures. The Argentine market was influenced by decreasing stocks in the country.

Cash wheat trading was dull. In the coarse grains millers were reported to be buying various grades of oats for movement to Eastern Canada.

amounted to 719,786 tons; in animal products to 143,138 tons; in mine products to 1,850,442 tons, and in manufactures and miscellaneous tonnage the increase was 1,636,339 tons.

More Passengers Carried.

The increase in passenger revenues amounted to $3,397,917 and there were 377,705 more passengers carried than during the previous year. There was a reduction of approximately 13 per cent. in basic passengers fares effective on June 1, 1936.

Operating expenses for the year increased by $10,551,442 or 7.9 per cent. In addition to the increased transportation expense necessitated by additional business, there were heavy extra expenditures necessitated by reason of ice, snow, and floods, while the policy of restriction of general maintenance of way was, of necessity, relaxed to take care of expected traffic increases. Increased expenditure was also made on maintenance and rolling stock in order to bring a larger number of units to a state of efficiency on account of increasing traffic in anticipation of continued improvement.

The report showed the Canadian National Railways' tax bill during the year amounted to $9,742,147. Of this nearly $7,000,000 was paid in direct taxes and the remainder in sales taxes added to the cost of materials purchased.

Refunding at Less Interest.

The total requirements in 1936 for interest on funded debt held by the public were $49,164,925 compared with $53,468,782 in 1935, a decrease of $4,364,189. This was brought about to a large extent by refunding operations at lower rates of interest.

In co-operation with the Dominion Government some 5,000 men from relief camps were employed on track work during the summer months and in addition the railroad employed upwards of 1,000 men in the operation of steam shovels and in work train service in connection with the relief program. The Government assumed the charge for wages and transportation of the relief workers, and the railway assumed the charge for supervision, timekeeping, train service and conversion of equipment units into boarding and sleeping cars for the workers. This charge amounted to $1,136,000. The plan did not reduce the normal seasonal program of work by the railway's regular maintenance staff, the report said.

Under the various pensions plans in effect on the C.N.R. 894 employees were retired during the year. Pensioners decreased during the year numbered 416 and the number on pension at December 31, 1936, totalled 8,382.

JUNIOR FARMERS ROTARY GUESTS ANNUAL SESSION

L. C. McQuat, C.P.R. Agricultural Agent, Stresses Importance Of Faith In Agriculture

INSPIRING ADDRESS

The Peterborough branch of the Canada Packers and the hog-producers of Peterborough county had made a very valuable contribution toward agricultural progress in Canada by being the first to test and demonstrate the efficacy of the rail-grading of hogs, L. C. McQuat, agricultural agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway told the members of the Peterborough Rotary Club and their guests, forty representatives of the junior farmers of the county, at the Empress Hotel today.

Mr. McQuat was the guest speaker at this annual event, one of the notable days in the Rotary calendar when the club plays host to representative young farmers from all over the district, and delivered a very interesting address on what he called "Green Pastures" stressing the importance of what might be termed "rugged individualism" as a means of restoring Canadian agriculture to its place in the sun. Other guests today included Agricultural Representatives Martin of Northumberland, Summers of Durham and M. H. Winter of Victoria, who were in town to help Rotarian Art Runions stage his annual junior farmers' field day.

President Chris Graham was in the chair for the luncheon and Rotarian Runions introduced the young guests, calling each one by name from memory.

Advanced By Stages

Pointing out that Canada's progress had been marked by a series of stages, Mr. McQuat who was introduced by Rotarian Runions, said that the first great cause of her advancement had been the influx of the United Empire Loyalists, the second the opening up of the Canadian northwest and the third the great war with its demands upon Canada for vast quantities of foodstuffs and materials. In his opinion the impetus that would be responsible for the next surge of progress would come from within the country, from the restoration of agriculture and a proper appreciation of our position in relation to the rest of the world. It was necessary, the speaker maintained, to get away from the idea that there was over-production in the world. The reverse was the truth. Agricultural production had decreased in the United States, Italy and Germany in spite of their efforts to subsidize production were short of food stuffs and the agricultural production of Russia was less now than in the days of the Czars. There was not too much food but the situation was that the distribution was faulty.

Canada's Problem

The problem in Canada, he said was to avoid being led into anything that approached a limitation of production. On the contrary the goal should be to maintain the volume of production with the cost reduced as low as possible. Conditions were changing. Wheat had long been king and while it probably would remain so, it would certainly not to such an extent as had existed in the past and Canada would have to adjust itself to that condition seeking to maintain and develop the markets that were open to it by keeping up the quality of its products and acquiring a reputation for dependability.

In this connection Mr. McQuat pointed out that Danish bacon sold at 60 shillings on the British market while Canadian bacon brought only 70 shillings. That spread was too great and various agencies were working together in an effort to reduce it. If these efforts were successful and five or six cents were cut off the spread it would mean a difference of a cent a pound in the price received by the Canadian producer and that difference might go a long way toward Canada taking up the full quota allowed her under the British-Canadian trade pact.

Should Be Independent.

Mr. McQuat emphasized the desirability of Canadian farmers maintaining a self-reliance and independence and not relying upon governments or other agencies to boost their industry. Pride in farming as occupation, confidence in it as a sure means of a comfortable livelihood were urged by the speaker as essential to the restoration of Canadian agriculture. The fine work done by young farmers' clubs was eulogized and Mr. McQuat brought forward the idea that the winning of prizes was not the chief objective. If the work among the farm boys and girls had the result of inspiring among the farm youth of Canada a confidence in their own occupation and a realization of the fact that much depended upon the way in which the individual job was done, then the clubs would have abundantly justified their organization.

Rotarian Fred L. Roy for the club and M. J. Cavanagh of Ennismore for the young farmer guests expressed thanks to the speaker, while Mr. Cavanagh's motion also included appreciation of Rotary's hospitality.

There is little doubt but that impure and impoverished blood is the soil on which those red, white pus filled pimples develop and thrive, and that nothing short of a vigorous, persistent blood purifying treatment will eradicate them from the system.

Try a few bottle and be convinced.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, March 15. — Weakness of outside markets, coupled with reports of rain in the United States winter wheat belt, sent wheat prices ¾ to 1 cent lower on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

Export of Canadian wheat was estimated at 500,000 bushels, chiefly to the United Kingdom. Liverpool closed 1d to 1⅝d lower. Prices on the English market slipped off due to weakness at Winnipeg and Buenos Aires on Friday, combined with bearish news from the United States wheat belt.

Buenos Aires, however, registered gains of ½ cent a bushel in both May and July futures. The Argentine market was influenced by decreasing stocks in the country.

Cash wheat trading was dull. In the coarse grains millers were reported to be buying various grades of oats for movement to Eastern Canada.

STEAMSHIP LINE SHOWS SURPLUS

amounted to 719,786 tons; in animal products to 143,134 tons; in mine products to 1,880,462 tons, and in manufactures and miscellaneous tonnage the increase was 1,658,336 tons.

More Passengers Carried.

The increase in passenger revenue amounted to $367,917 and there were 277,705 more passengers carried than during the previous year. There was a reduction of approximately 13 per cent in basic passengers fares effective on June 1, 1936.

Operating expenses for the year increased by $10,561,443 or 7.9 per cent. In addition to the increased transportation expense necessitated by additional business there were heavy extra expenditures necessitated by reason of ice, snow, and floods, while the policy of restriction of general maintenance of way was, of necessity, relaxed to take care of expected traffic increases. Increased expenditure was also made on maintenance and rolling stock in order to bring a larger number of units to a state of efficiency on account of increasing traffic in anticipation of continued improvement.

The report showed the Canadian National Railways' tax bill during the year amounted to $9,743,147. Of this nearly $7,000,000 was paid in direct taxes and the remainder in sales taxes added to the cost of materials purchased.

Refunding at Less Interest.

The total requirements in 1936 for interest on funded debt held by the public were $63,184,688 compared with $63,468,782 in 1935, a decrease of $4,094,160. This was brought about to a large extent by refunding operations at lower rates of interest.

In co-operation with the Dominion Government some 5,000 men from relief camps were employed on track work during the summer months and in addition the railroad employed upwards of 1,000 men in the operation of steam shovels and in work train service in connection with the relief program. The Government assumed the charge for wages and transportation of the relief workers, and the railway assumed the charge for supervision, timekeeping, train service and conversion of equipment units into boarding and sleeping cars for the workers. This charge amounted to $1,126,000. The pay did not include the normal seasonal program of work by the railway's regular maintenance staff, the report said.

Under the various pensions plans in effect on the C.N.R., 624 employees were retired during the year. Pensioners increased during the year numbered 410 and the number on pension at December 31, 1936, totalled 6,382.

JUNIOR FARMERS ROTARY GUESTS ANNUAL SESSION

INSPIRING ADDRESS

The Peterborough branch of the Canada Packers and the hog producers of Peterborough county had made a very valuable contribution toward agricultural progress in Canada by being the first to test and demonstrate the efficacy of the railgrading of hogs, L. C. McQuat, agricultural agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway told the members of the Peterborough Rotary Club and their guests, forty representatives of the junior farmers of the county, at the Empress Hotel today.

Mr. McQuat was the guest speaker at this annual event, one of the notable days in the Rotary calendar when the club's guests are the representative young farmers from all over the district, and delivered a very interesting address on what he called "Green Pastures," stressing the importance of what might be termed "rugged individualism" as a means of restoring Canadian agriculture to its place in the sun. Other guests today included Agricultural Representatives Martin of Northumberland, Summers of Durham and M. H. Winter of Victoria, who were in town to help Rotarian Art Runions stage his annual junior farmers' field day.

President Chris Graham was in the chair for the luncheon and Rotarian Runions introduced the young guests, calling each one by name from memory.

Advanced By Stages

Pointing out that Canada's progress had been marked by a series of stages, Mr. McQuat who was introduced by Rotarian Runions, said that the first great cause of her advancement had been the influx of the United Empire Loyalists, the second the opening up of the Canadian northwest and the third the great war with its demands upon Canada for vast quantities of food stuffs and materials. In his opinion the impetus that would be responsible for the next surge of progress would come from within the country, from the restoration of agriculture and a proper appreciation of our position in relation to the rest of the world. It was necessary, the speaker maintained, to get away from the idea that there was over-production in the world. The reverse was the truth. Agricultural production had decreased in the United States, Italy and Germany in spite of their efforts to subsidize production were short of food stuffs and the agricultural production of Russia was less now than in the days of the Czars. There was not too much food but the situation was that the distribution was faulty.

Canada's Problem

The problem in Canada he said was to avoid being led into anything that approached a limitation of production. On the contrary the goal should be to maintain the volume of production with the cost reduced as low as possible. Conditions were changing. Wheat had long been king and while it probably would remain so, it would certainly not to such an extent as had existed in the past and Canada would have to adjust itself to that condition, seeking to maintain and develop the markets that were open to it by keeping up the quality of its products and acquiring a reputation for dependability.

In this connection Mr. McQuat pointed out that Danish bacon sold at 86 shillings on the British market while Canadian bacon brought only 70 shillings. That spread was too great and various agencies were working together in an effort to reduce it. If these efforts were successful and five or six cents were cut off the spread it would mean a difference of a cent a pound in the price received by the Canadian producer and that difference might go a long way toward Canada taking up the full quota allowed her under the British-Canadian trade pact.

Should Be Independent.

Mr. McQuat emphasized the desirability of Canadian farmers maintaining a self-reliance and independence and not relying upon governments or other agencies to boost their industry. Pride in farming as occupation, confidence in it as a sure means of a comfortable livelihood were urged by the speaker as essential to the restoration of Canadian agriculture. The fine work done by young farmers' clubs was eulogized and Mr. McQuat brought forward the idea that the winning of prizes was not the chief objective. If the work among the farm boys and girls had the result of inspiring among the farm youth of Canada a confidence in their own occupation and a realization of the fact that much depended upon the way in which the individual job was done, then the clubs would have abundantly justified their organization.

Rotarian Fred L. Roy for the club and M. J. Cavanagh of Enniskillmore for the young farmer guests expressed thanks to the speaker, while Mr. Cavanagh's motion also included appreciation of Rotary's hospitality.

Special Celebration At Holyrood In Honor Of Queen's Northern Birth

FULL EVENING COURT

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

EDINBURGH, March 13 (CP)—The Scottish capital is planning a season of festivity on a scale unknown in the northern country since the crowning of George V in 1911.

Chief second the high events in Scotland's celebration of the Coronation of George VI and Queen Elizabeth will be the evening Court at the Palace of Holyrood House in July. Such a function has not taken place at Holyrood since the war, though in other years when King George and Queen Mary visited Edinburgh they held afternoon drawing rooms when the presentations by the King's command were considered equivalent to presentation at Court.

That the Court at Holyrood on this occasion is to be an evening Court is taken as possible due to the fact the Queen is a Scotswoman and is desirous to gratify her countrymen in enabling them to have the Court at Edinburgh organized on the same lines as those of London.

King Edward VII and Queen Alexandra made the only Court they held at Holyrood an afternoon affair. It was ever afterwards referred to as "The Bonnet Court." King George and Queen Mary held one full-dress Court in the old Stuart Palace at the beginning of their reign but for some reason their Courts in Edinburgh were afternoons always held in the afternoon.

In any event the Scottish Court will differ from those of London in several details. The Royal Company of Archers, the King's bodyguard of Scotland, will be on duty in the State Rooms in their uniforms of green cloth embroidered with golden thistles and rocked hats of black silk with a plume of green cockatail feathers.

The two Peers of Honor who attend the King and Queen will wear different dress, too, with steel-pleated fronts of green moulin and three-cornered hats trimmed with green feathering.

Edinburgh is planning her scheme of entertainment after a careful investigation of the carnival methods of several continental towns. In place of bunting and other artificial ornament Princes Street is likely to be garlanded with millions of real flowers. Triumphal arches will be placed at several points both in Princes and other streets.

It is hoped their Majesties will make a State entry into the capital with an escort of Life Guards, and that the King will receive the city keys actually on the road, instead of at the railway station, as in previous royal visits.

On Coronation Day a special service will be held in St. Giles' Cathedral, followed by a distribution of gifts to scholars and the aged poor. Entertainments are also to be arranged for the Prime Ministers of the Dominions, and for troops from overseas who are expected to visit Edinburgh.

As recently as last December... within a fortnight of their accession, their Majesties visited Edinburgh. The Duke of York, as he then was, attended a luncheon to Grand Lodge Masonic delegates, and the Freedom of Edinburgh was conferred upon the Duchess. The reconstructed Deaconess Hospital was opened by the Duchess.

Soviet Navy Chief

[illegible] that Russia will considerably enlarge her navy, this man, Admiral Orlov, new vice-commissar for war, will play an important part in the new preparations. In past years Soviet Russia has not bothered with a naval program, depending more on land forces and aeroplanes.

MARMORA

Flowers were placed on the altar at St. Paul's Church on Sunday in memoriam of Canon C. M. Harris who passed away on March 13, 1923, after being rector of Marmora for 44 years.

Mrs. James Benor of Campbellford visited relatives here on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Thompson of Eldorado visited relatives here on Sunday.

Misses Olive and Iladelle Airhart of Belleville visited relatives here over the week-end.

before the session ends, a bill to establish the company which will operate the Trans-Canada Airway.

This measure was reported ready several weeks ago. Delay in its presentation has gone unexplained officially, but rumors have been current the delay was occasioned by incomplete solution of questions regarding the Trans-Canada Airway in which Canada will be a partner with the United Kingdom and the Irish Free State.

The Trans-Canada Airway in original plans was to connect with the trans-Atlantic service at Montreal, but reports were current negotiations were still in progress regarding operation of a winter service via Bermuda and possibly New York. The summer service will be flown between Galway, Irish Free State; Gander Lake, Northern Newfoundland, and Montreal, according to latest information.

The House must also consider a contentious piece of legislation in the measure to revise the capital structure of the Canadian National Railways. It is designed to remove duplication of a $1,500,000,000 item in liabilities appearing on both the railway balance sheet and the public accounts. It would also write off worthless capital stocks.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King somewhere on the Atlantic coast pondering the summer's Imperial Conference problems, is expected home around the end of the week. He said before he left he would probably stay away during the budget debate.

BANCROFT MEN HELD FOR THEFT

Pair Arrested After Cottages Found Entered, Smashed, Goods Stolen

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, March 15. — Culminating a series of investigations conducted by Provincial Constables Everett Smith of Belleville and A. E. Dymond of Madoc into depredations in summer cottages in Faraday Township in the vicinity of the villages of Bancroft, David and Elmer Woodcock are being held in custody to answer charges arising from vandalism and removal of articles from several of the summer residences.

Cottages were broken and entered, with interiors in some of the cottages destroyed by means of a pick and axe. Searching the woods in the vicinity of the cottages the police officers discovered a cache of articles, which had been identified as those taken from the summer homes. It is the belief of the police that with the arrests of these men they have broken up a gang which have been operating in the north country for the past few years.

May Represent The Dominions

STANLEY BRUCE

GENERAL JAN SMUTS

Mr. Neville Chamberlain, according to the London Daily Mail, will include a dominions representative on his cabinet should he become premier, when Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin resigns, probably after the coronation. Stanley Bruce, Australian high commissioner in London, and General Jan Christian Smuts of South Africa have been mentioned as possibilities. The new minister, the Daily Mail said, would probably become chairman of an Imperial defence board, to which Dominion representatives would be appointed to share in the formation of empire defence strategy. He would also handle trade discussions between Great Britain and her dominions.

States in preventing security frauds was desirable. Securities commissions in both countries will exchange information if the suggestion of the conference that the Dominion government establish a central bureau is adopted. This bureau would compile information on promotions, records and various activities of security vendors.

Suppression of "boiler rooms" was unanimously decided upon. It was recommended that when securities are sold over the telephone in a province in which the one using the telephone is not registered, the registering authority, on receipt of an objection from the complaining province, shall proceed against the operator.

A curb on fraudulent or objectionable advertising was urged by the conference. It was decided that no standard formula could be laid down, the registering authority in each province should exercise his powers to protect the public. Where necessary, the provinces would cooperate to curb advertising matter that promotes the sale of issues in contravention of provincial laws.

It was recommended that all advertising be dated and contain the name of the person, firm or corporation issuing it. Where advertisements show the results of drilling or other operations, it will be required, if the meeting's suggestions are embodied into legislation, that the results of all operations be disclosed.

Favor Surprise Audits.

Whether brokers should be held financially responsible to their customers was productive of much discussion but no agreement was reached. It was suggested, however, that the system of "surprise audits" now being carried out in Ontario and some other provinces should be generally adopted.

It was recommended that steps be taken in co-operation with all stock exchanges to determine whether there is a public market on any unlisted security. In the event of there being no public market, it was suggested the quotations on that issue should not be furnished to the newspapers.

Recommendations concerning mining issues covered a wide field. One of the more important was that no public offering of mining shares should be permitted until the ownership of properties is clearly vested in the company. It was urged that sale of oil royalties should be discouraged and that vendors should not receive more than 33 1-3 per cent of the authorized capitalization, except in special circumstances.

HE KEEPS HIS JOB THOUGH TURNED 70

House Painter Who Takes His Kruschen Every Day

How many painters can continue to work when they are over 70? Here is one who does—and he still does some of the most trying jobs in his trade. How does he do it? He tells us in this letter:—

"I have been in the habit of taking a few grains of Kruschen Salts in every cup of tea I have had for a great number of years. I may state that I am turned 70 years of age, being born on July 22nd, 1866. I am a house painter by trade and still at work. I can work off any ladder, no matter what height, or in cradles which are hung outside high buildings. I have been asked many times how I carry my age so well, as I really look about 50. Well, I tell them all that I take Kruschen Salts regularly every day."—J. S. A.

Kruschen is a combination of numerous mineral salts which assist in stimulating your liver, kidneys and digestive tract to healthy, regular activity. They ensure internal cleanliness and so help to keep the bloodstream free from impurities.

HUNDREDS MOURN AS DR. MORRISON IS LAID TO REST

Largely Attended Public Service Held In Trinity United Church

"WALKED WITH GOD"

Amid many manifestations of the esteem in which he was held, the funeral took place on Saturday afternoon of Dr. Matthew Albert Morrison, prominent Peterborough dentist, who died suddenly after an illness of a few hours duration at the age of 59 years.

A widely attended public service representative of the many and varied community interests with which the late Dr. Morrison was actively associated during a residence of forty-four years here, was held at Trinity United Church.

His pastor, Rev. George S. Easton, officiated, being assisted by the Rev. Dr. C. V. McLean, pastor of St. Andrew's United Church who led the large congregation in prayer, and the Rev. J. H. Sinclaire, pastor of Murray Street Baptist Church, who read portions of the Scriptures.

There was a fully surpliced choir in attendance, and Mrs. Richard Cowan sang a sacred solo entitled: "The Lord Is My Shepherd," while hymns used during the service were "O God Our Help In Ages Past" (which Dr. Morrison had been singing in his church on the day of his death), and "Abide With Me."

Wide Representation

Interment was made at Little Lake Cemetery under Masonic auspices. Active pall-bearers were: R. J. Kidd, Dr. F. C. Neal, R. F. Downey, Dr. R. C. Honey, W. H. Morphet and E. B. Fowler. Past Masters of Corinthian Lodge and Lodge of Perfection A.F. and A.M., and members of the official board of Trinity Church were among those who acted as honorary pall-bearers. They were: Thomas Sargent, A. R. Gates, S. A. Peck, K.C., Dr. R. E. Kenner, J. F. Allin, W. D. Campbell, Dr. J. A. Middleton, Alexander Mowat, W. R. Morris, W. R. Reynolds, the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., Thomas Brown, W. G. Morrow, H. E. Hoderna, Dr. H. V. Dobson, F. D. Kerr, K.C., Thomas Barrie and Dr. R. Irvine, Lindsay.

There was a particularly large representation from Peterborough Board of Education of which body the late Dr. Morrison was former member and chairman. The Board was represented by Dr. G. R. Scott, chairman; H. O. Walker, John R. Marshall, W. A. Richardson, D. G. H. Melton, Dr. A. Moir, and G. Harry Thompson, secretary.

"Walked With God"

The Rev. Mr. Easton who spoke of Dr. Morrison as a man who walked with God throughout each day, declared, "We can best show our appreciation of his life and enshrine his memory by following his precept and example. We should emulate his ideals of citizenship and service in the home, on the street, and in office, factory and church."

"Dr. Morrison loved his fellow men and because they knew and felt that, they loved and trusted him. His whole life from his mother's knee to this day when the city mourns his loss was a life of devotion to his fellow men. This church of which he was a member and this community in which he labored found Dr. Morrison, a faithful, kindly man who attained to a place of strength and leadership in the city."

Mr. Easton asserted it was such virtues as those possessed in large measure by the late Dr. Morrison that pointed the way of salvation for men and nations and humanity itself, and he stated the source and fountain of his inspiration was found in his religious life which was both deep and sincere.

For twenty-five years, the late Dr. Morrison was superintendent of Trinity Sunday School and for many more years was on the official Board of the Church. He was also interested in the wider work of the church, and made splendid contribution to the city as a member of the Board of Education, and in social reform work particularly in connection with the Temperance Union.

"He was always a servant who set honor and virtue above external advantages of life and above all put first things first," the speaker observed, "and so long as we have that type of man walking among us we do not need to worry about the worth of Christianity."

Leaving Canada

Lieut.-Commissioner Wm. Dalziel who for the past six years has been the chief secretary for the Salvation Army in Canada, Newfoundland, Bermuda and Alaska, Has been promoted to the rank of commissioner and appointed to take charge of the work of the Salvation Army in Australia. CHURCH TEACHES MAN HAS RIGHT TO OWN PROPERTY

Communism Claims All Property Belongs To State Congregation Told

SEVENTH COMMANDMENT

The church teaches that a man has the right to own property, whereas communism claims that all property belongs to the state, Rev. J. C. Maloney said in a sermon Sunday on the seventh commandment at the church of the Sacred Heart. Man's right to property and the fruit of his labor springs from the necessity for self-preservation, the duty of providing for his family and also for his own future when he is no longer able to work. Because of these needs and duties a man has as much right to things justly acquired, as to life itself. Things are acquired justly by gift, inheritance, and by the fruits of labor, Father Maloney said.

It would be absurd to say that the pioneers who cleared the land of the forest, and broke ground, could not own it, but that the government could step in and take them hold-ings away from the people. Cain was a farmer and Abel a shepherd, and each offered of his possessions as gifts to God. A government had a right to impose taxes that the surplus of the rich might became the bounty of the poor; also to impose minimum wages, and to prevent child labor, because of the government's duty to protect people. It could regulate the disposal of surplus wealth of which rich men have no need.

The 7th Commandment forbids stealing, defrauding and cheating and also requires that restitution be made. Some persons who would never commit a theft, have no scruples about going into debt and not paying it. Living above one's income and neglecting to pay grocers and others was just plain robbery. He who has cheated his neighbor and will not restore will die forever, Father Maloney quoted, and again "the eyes of God are on the just and his ears unto their prayers."

Jack Lowe Comes Through With One To Qualify For The Annanias Club

Jack O. Lowe, 748 Water Street, is the most recent addition to the membership of the Peterborough Annanias Club. He tells a lie to end all lies.

His yarn concerns the doings of a friend by the name of Archibald. The friend—but let Mr. Lowe tell it himself:

"My friend Archibald drives to the hockey games in Toronto each Saturday. Last week, he was detained later than usual while his car was being tuned up in a local garage. The garageman has an oversized funnybone, and for a joke, doctored Archie's gasoline for super-power.

"Archie, usually a most cautious driver, struggled against the desire to speed, even though he couldn't hope to be in Toronto in time to see the first period of play. Around Welcome the road straightened out and Archie threw caution to the winds, stepping full on the gas. To his horror, the accelerator jammed wide open. The doctored gas developed a compounding power output which drove the car ahead with a speed beyond human comprehension. The surrounding country became a mad blur with the meteoric speed burning the window glass to a white heat. Desperately, Archie stared at the dashboard clock, and noted that time was standing still. As though Mr. Einstein rode with him he remembered 'time, space and speed are related.'

"Now the clock was reversing till the hour had spun backward crazily. Frantically, Archie switched off the ignition and with the clock still spinning, came back to normal speed.

"In front of him was a car—his car. Drawing alongside he saw himself sitting at the wheel of this car. Surprise was evident on this other face, and he noted the different clothing. His other self broke the spell, saying: 'Hey, you aren't due down here again for a week. Go on back, you caught up with me.'

"Archie, an opportunist, realized his excessive speed had created a time reversal to his previous weekly trip, jumped into the other car, made his previous self jump back, drove leisurely on to Toronto, and arrived in time to take a week's holiday before preparing to see the game next week, which he had started out to see that night."

Prisoner Is Given Three-Month Term For Shop-Lifting In Peterboro' Store

Declaring he could not consider a request for suspended sentence in view of the prisoner's former prison record, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this (Monday) morning sentenced Victor Bertrand to 4 months determinate and one months indeterminate in Ontario Reformatory when he appeared on remand and pleaded guilty to charges of stealing a pair of gloves from a local store, and obstructing a police officer in the execution of his duty.

Speaking on his own behalf, the accused declared as far as the charge of obstruction was concerned, he had merely told the officer to keep his hands off a woman, and "They gave me the suit I am standing up in and twenty-one dollars."

Bertrand urged that he had sought for employment all the way between Montreal and Toronto before he recently obtained a job in a local bakery. He took the gloves, he admitted, because he needed them to work in and could not afford to buy a pair as he owed a large board bill here.

"I did intend to go straight, but a man doesn't have much chance to re-establish himself on twenty-one dollars," Bertrand enjoined in requesting the magistrate to permit him to go on suspended sentence.

Canadians Living In Cleveland Offer Aid To Goodwill Tour

Glad To Have Opportunity In Helping To Plan Tour In Ohio

BE AT LEAST 100 CARS

As proof of the widespread circulation of the Peterborough Examiner and the general interest that has been created by the proposed goodwill motor tour from this district to points in the United States, Secretary-Manager James J. Dorris recently received an interesting letter from C. H. Patterson of the Canadian-American Society, Cleveland, Ohio.

Mr. Patterson states:

"As a member of the executive committee of the Canadian-American Society of Cuyahoga County with headquarters at Hotel Cleveland, my attention has been called to an item in The Peterborough Examiner.

"The article mention an executive meeting of The Kawartha Lakes and Haliburton Tourist Association held at Lindsay and that you contemplate a motorcade over the week-end of May 24, making Cleveland one of your objective points.

"The Canadian-American Society is composed of Canadian-born residents of this county and we would be glad to have the opportunity of arranging or cooperating with you in any contemplated entertainment you are proposing for your members at this point. We could meet the motorcade with an escort as the Canadians are doing at Toronto making your stay here in Cleveland more profitable and enjoyable.

"At least one hundred cars will leave this district, carrying upwards of four hundred citizens, officials and their wives. Could you arrange to have a preview at the Exposition grounds, I presume. The Canadian-American Society is getting behind a big rally of Canadians at the Great Lakes Exposition for Dominion Day, but no doubt you have taken many of these things into consideration in setting your date, and perhaps, as that will be about a month later, arrangements might possibly be made for a second visit from your Canadians or a second group.

"However, I shall be glad indeed to hear from you outlining your plans more in detail and as to how we can be of service to you in making your tour."

FIRE THREATENED REID STREET HOME

Shed At The Home Of John Grimison Is Destroyed

Three hundred dollars damage was done by a fire which destroyed a shed at the rear of the home of John Grimison, 192 Reid street, early this morning. Occupants of the home were forced into the street by the threat the flames offered to the main portion of the house.

The cause of the blaze is unknown. It apparently started in a corner of the wooden structure. By the time it was discovered, it had gained great headway.

The Fire Department used one water line and a chemical line and had the fire under control within ten minutes after their arrival. The house proper was undamaged by the flames but suffered from smoke. Insurance covers the loss.

Peterborough's celebration of the coronation of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth will be discussed at a meeting which Mayor Macdonald is calling for Wednesday evening at 7.30 in the council chamber. Service Clubs, the Canadian Legion, Board of Education, Separate School Board, Ministerial Association, Local Council of Women, Boy Scouts, Prince of Wales Rangers, Y's Men's Club, and others are being requested by letter to send representatives to this preliminary meeting.

BLACK AND WHITE.

Gulls and geese along the outer edge of the ice in the river fronting George street wharf seemed a rather unusual association this morning.

HEROES OF THE RESCUE.

Mrs. Eric Jones informs The Examiner that it has now been definitely ascertained that there was no fourteen-year-old boy involved in the rescue of her little son Gerry from Little Lake last week. The heroes of the occasion were the lad's small brother Bennie and Thomas Douglas six-year-old son of Joseph Douglas, Young street.

OUT FOR NEW MEMBERS.

The Peterborough Vegetable Growers' Association announced they would strive to increase their membership this year at a meeting in the Agricultural office on Friday evening. In past years the Association has had as many as 60 members, but the roll fell as low as 16 last year. George Rush of Toronto Association field man, reported on the program for this year. Prizes are being increased in the garden competition and potatoes added to the list, he said. Frank Kinney reported on the recent convention. Seasonal supply orders were taken by Norman Mitchell.

FINED $15o AND COSTS.

When he appeared on an adjourned charge of unlawful possession of liquor before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this (Monday) morning, and pleaded guilty, Raymond Love of North Monaghan was ordered to pay a fine of $100 and $5.50 costs. The charge was laid on the information of Provincial Constable David Silvester.

LADIES' QUARTETTE.

At the Sunday morning service in Murray Street Baptist Church a ladies' quartette sang 'Briar,' a beautiful number written by the great Indian poetess, Pauline Johnson, and the music by Arthur Collison, organist and choir leader. Members of the quartette were Mrs. Percy Johnson, Mrs. Harold Scott, Misses Marjorie Stenton and Phyllis Rose.

SUPPLYING OF MILK AS PUBLIC UTILITY BEING CONSIDERED

Safety Of Milk Supply One Of Foremost Public Problems

OPEN FORUM TOLD

The safety of the milk supply is one of the most important problems calling for public attention today, Dr. J. B. Reynolds of Port Hope, former president of the Ontario Agricultural College, declared in an address to the George Street United Church Open Forum Sunday. So closely is public welfare concerned in a pure and unfailing milk supply that the question of making milk distribution a public utility is foremost in the minds of many governmental authorities, he said.

Milk is one of the most essential of the stable foods demanded by modern civilization and an absolute necessity for children, Dr. Reynolds said. Evidence that present distribution of milk fails to meet the needs of modern community life is the fact that the consumption of milk in Canada, the United States and Great Britain per capita is but two-thirds of a pint a day, he asserted.

Milk is not reaching the poorer families, Dr. Reynolds claimed. He declared the desirable per capita consumption is one pint a day or 45 gallons a year. When the average is below this rate, the system of private distribution is shown to be remiss, he said.

Fifteen times the domestic milk consumption is produced in New Zealand each year—435 gallons per capita, he continued. He cited other national productions by way of comparison: Denmark, 300 gallons; Australia, 150 gallons; Canada, 144 gallons; Holland, 109 gallons; United States, 82 gallons, Germany, 77 gallons; Belgium, 75 gallons, France 75 gallons and Great Britain, 31 gallons.

Canada annually produces 1,800,000,000 pounds of milk, he said. Of this, 700,000,000 is used in butter, 100,000,000 in cheese, 750,000,000 in milk concentrates and the remainder is used as fluid milk.

Urging the national importance of pure, safe milk, he endorsed pasteurization as the final guarantee to the consumer that he is getting safe milk. He lauded the progress in the interest of pure milk that is being made in the modern community through systematized inspections of milk sources and dairies and through elimination of diseased milk cattle.

The Rambling REPORTERS

PLENTY OF BUNS

A certain Lakefield housewife will forever more view with suspicion the recipes she reads in farm magazines.

The other evening she decided she would make some buns for her family of four so turned over the pages of her favourite household periodical until she came to a bun recipe which appealed to her. Religiously she followed each step detailed in the recipe, following through with unswerving faith. She would have a nice plate of perhaps a couple of dozen buns as the result of labor, she hoped.

True, the batter did seem unusually generous to supply a family of four but she had no idea just how large it was. When she finally took the last bun out of the oven, she had counted 200.

"I never saw so many buns outside a bakeshop," she declared. "There were buns everywhere — enough to feed an army of hungry harvester. There must have been something wrong with the recipe." —C.P.K.

BUYING OLD CARS FOR SCRAP IRON

Unloading Cranes Are Choked In Foundry Yards At Hamilton

Homing to a new Valhalla at the Hamilton Steel Works, the bodies of old automobiles are being disinterred all over the country to be returned to dust from whence they sprang, rather to their original element of the extremely prosaic name of pig iron.

A C.N.R. traffic agent reported to-day that when he was in Hamilton recently nearly sixty freight cars loaded with scrap metal that once was trucks and pre-streamlined automobiles were standing on railway sidings waiting delivery at the Steel Works and several other foundries. Deliveries have reached a volume that chokes the unloading cranes in the foundry yard, a business recently born of the heavy demand for steel even in the secondary grades of quality.

Robert S. White Celebrates 81st Birthday Anniversary

ELECTED IN 1888

OTTAWA, March 15 (CP)—Robert S. White, Conservative House member for St. Antoine-Westmount who has known every prime minister since Confederation, today celebration his 81st birthday anniversary with a cold.

"Bob" White, oldest man in the House of Commons, was first elected in 1888, but he had sat in the House since 1883 as a press gallery reporter. He represented Cardwell, Ont., constituency till 1896 when he was appointed collector of customs for the port of Montreal, a position he held for 21 years before re-entering politics.

Native of Peterborough where his father, Hon. Thomas White, founded the Peterborough Review, Mr. White went to the Montreal Gazette as a cub reporter in 1874.

When Mr. White was first elected he took the seat held for the previous 10 years by his father, Minister of the Interior in Sir John A. Macdonald's cabinet. Between them they held that Orange constituency for 17 years, although both lived at the time in Montreal.

After the interval during which he was Montreal customs collector and editor-in-chief of the Montreal Gazette, Mr. White returned to the House of Commons for his present constituency. He has been back 11 years.

When he retired from his customs post Montreal citizens presented him with a purse of $21,000, or $1,000 for each year he held it.

Mr. White became ill last Thursday and was sent to bed at his hotel. He had the grippe and a high temperature, but his physician today reported him cheerful and recovering rapidly.

REV. A. C. REEVES OF NORWOOD DIES VERY SUDDENLY

Presbyterian Minister Of Norwood Succumbs To Heart Attack

42 YEARS IN MINISTRY

NORWOOD, Ont., March 15. — Ministers from several centres in the Peterborough Presbytery of the Presbyterian Church will join in paying a final tribute to their late brother, Rev. Archibald Campbell Reeves of St. Andrew's Church, Norwood, when funeral services are held on Tuesday morning. Rev. Mr. Rhodes of Cobourg, Presbytery Moderator, will officiate.

A sudden heart attack is believed to have caused the sudden death, which has been a shock to the entire Norwood community. Rev. Mr. Reeves was believed to have been in excellent health and had carried on his regular duties conducting services as usual in his church a week ago on Sunday. He collapsed and died with unexpected suddenness at his home on Saturday morning. He was in his 69th year.

His passing terminated a career of 42 years in the Presbyterian ministry. He was born in Crowstown, Quebec, son of the late Thomas Reeves and Agnes McCormack, and gained his early education at the Huntingdon Academy. At McGill University he obtained a theological degree and was ordained to the ministry in 1894. Subsequently, he took a post-graduate course in the Theological College at Chicago.

His first charge was the Lakefield Presbyterian Church. A charge in Campbellford followed, and he then went west to serve in a pulpit in Moose Jaw. In 1925 he returned to Ontario, and, choosing to stay with the Presbyterian Church after union, continued his ministry in the Oshawa Presbyterian pulpit. He came to St. Andrew's Church, Norwood, in 1930.

A leading figure in the Peterborough Presbytery, Rev. Mr. Reeves served a term as Presbytery Moderator. He was active in the community interests of Norwood and the district.

Surviving is his wife, formerly Belle Dickson of Packenham, Ontario, one daughter, Mrs. H. W. Nesbitt of Winchester, Ontario, and two granddaughters.

The funeral service in the church will be held at 10 a.m. under the Presbytery auspices. Interment will be made in a family plot at Prospect Cemetery, Toronto.

KEEN COMPETITION IN CHAMPIONSHIPS AT SKI CLUB MEET

Andy Rutter Leads Events As Local Skiers Stage Hard-Fought Finals At Omemee

LADERACH WINS

Skiers and spectators alike who did not attend Sunday's championship events at Omemee missed one of the most exciting competitions the club has held in some time, although the course was crowded and the snow fast there were no accidents and no one hurt. The first event of the day was the 12-mile cross-country over a very gruelling course up and down hill, across farm and field, woods and stream, south of Omemee to Anthony hill then west to the old Lindsay railway track and back via the Gregor swamp. Going out the course was in good shape and the fleet skiers in startling position until the half way mark at which point (Ironman) Laderack passed (Downhill) Rutter closely followed by (Boots) Holland, who took and held second place at the ½ mark. Results:

	Hour	Min.	Secs.
Otto Laderack	1	28	3
Jack Holland	1	36	0
Andy Rutter	1	47	45
Joe Bliland	1	49	44
Don Shiner	1	53	0
Howard Shields	2	4	56

A number of other skiers started the course but failed to finish.

The Slalom race the first of the afternoon events brought out some splendid skiing and keen competition. Over a standard flagged course laid out by Don Mackay, Jerry Duffus and Jim Parsons to the complete satisfaction of all racers.

Results (in seconds):—

	1st Heat	2 H.	Tot.
1 Andy Rutter	34.3	33.1	67.3
2 Otto Laderack	31.6	36.2	67.8
3 Bob White	33.0	36.2	69.2
4 Joe Bliland	37.3	34.4	71.7
5 Don Mackey	38.2	34.4	72.6
6 Don Shiner	39.0	34.2	73.2
7 Jack Holland	41.0	33.2	74.2
8 Eric Snuner	39.4	37.2	76.6
9 Karl Duffus	47.1	36.2	80.3
10 Howard Shields	49.0	53.1	94.1
11 Geo. Cook	53.3
12 Jack Edgar	40.2
13 Ken. Gadd	38.2
14 Ron Stuart	51.3
15 Doc Judy	54.0

All others not timed.

Bob White was the dark horse of the event having had little or no practice he showed up well in front of the field. Jack Holland and Karl Duffus, positions in the first four ran into slag trouble on the first heats leaving Laderack and Rutter to settle alone for first place.

The men's downhill provided plenty of speed without an accident and the most surprisingly close finishes and it was only with the greatest of care that Official Timer Eastwood finally separated the winners. In the first heat Laderack, Holland and Rutter tied for first place with a showing of 17 seconds flat each. With D. Shiner at 17.2 and K. Duffus 17.4 in 4th and 5th positions. In running the second heat Laderack, Holland and Rutter again ran the course in exactly the same time, 17 seconds flat each, with Duffus beating Shiner by a hair at 17.1. The three tied then ran a special three man and by a remarkable coincidence all three ran again at 17 seconds on the dot. This made necessary a change in the course and a sharp left angle turn was made into a fence at the bottom of the run. In the fourth and final heat Rutter beat out his teammates with a run over the new course of 18.6 seconds, against Holland's 19.2 and Laderack at 20.5. The results show the relatively close position of these skiers to one another considering the times are taken to 1-10th of a second.

Results of men's downhill (in seconds):—

	1st	2nd	3rd	4th
1 Andy Rutter	17.0	17.	17.	18.6
2 J. Holland	17.0	17.	17.	19.2
3 O. Laderack	17.0	17.	17.	20.5
4 K. Duffus	17.4	17.1		19.2
5 D. Shiner	17.2	17.2		20.1
6 J. Bliland	17.8	17.3
7 B. Stark	18.0	17.4
8 D. Mackey	19.0	17.0
9 J. Travis	19.0	18.1
10 H. Shields	19.2	18.2
11 J. Edgar	19.4	18.2
12 B. Judy	20.0	18.2
13 K. Gadd	25.3	16.3
14 A. Ackerman	31.1	18.4
15 McIntosh	20.4

Results of combined events:—

	Points
1 A. Rutter	10
2 O. Laderack	7
3 J. Holland	4
4 Bob White	3
5 K. Duffus	2
5 J. Bliland	2
6 D. Shiner	1
6 D. Mackey	1

The results of the ladies' races are not available but will be published at a later date. Miss Norma McIntosh headed the field in the ladies' events.

Timekeepers and judges were: Miss L. Parsons, G. Eastwood, J. Parsons, J. Duffus, K. Wilson and J. Langley. The events were run off as smoothly and efficiently as desired and with a minimum delay. The competitors were completely satisfied with the decisions given.

Digests Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

(C.J.P.)

SENIOR CITY Hockey League finals start tonight at 8.30 in the Brock St. rink with Lakefield playing Westclox. It is a two-game aerial with goals counting, so cannot go overtime this p.m. These teams should dish up a thrilling playoff battle and you can take your choice on how to lay your wagers—or just keep your trousers in the jeans. No doubt, a flock of followers of both squads will be on deck to yodel for their favorites. A few weeks ago we'd have picked the Clockmakers to cop city honors but, after seeing Lakefield improving in the hectic semi-finals, we don't feel so sure. Anyway it ought to be quite a Blood and Thunder loop scramble in these next two tussles.

* * * * * *

ANNUAL MEETING of the men's City Softball League will be held tomorrow e'en at eight in Duffus', preceded by a short executive session. All those interested are urged to be on hand to get things going for the year. The league will require a bit of re-organizing as some of last year's teams may not return this summer—or so they say now. Dave Leether will be nominated as second vice-prexy and to the executive of the O.A.S.A., its annual meeting being Good Friday. Lots of business on the books at this local gabfest tomorrow night.

* * * * * *

A GOOD turnout at the C.O.B.L. meeting in Belleville Saturday. Looks like all of last year's teams will be back stronger than ever, but Belleville—which is a very dreadful starter now—and Trenton will be tough. Cobourg and Oshawa are seriously considering entering. They'll decide in the next few weeks. The loop will nominate to O.B.A.A. office Ernie Gibbard of Napanee, Bob Elliott of Deloro and Max Swanston of Peterborough. And will make efforts to have a big vote from the east. They'll also ask that amateur and pro clubs be allowed to mix in exhibition games, and this should get support from the border towns. It's allowed now in hockey, and baseball should swing into line even if it means a break with the A.A.U. of C.

* * * * * *

LOTS OF rumors floating around before and after the meeting. We shook hands with Joe Daley of Kingston. He said they'd miss Hewitt Smith plenty but expected a strong team. "You lost Foley to Oshawa?" he said, "He is a smart fielder and a good clubber, though he never could hit in the pinch." Walter Gerow played his cards close to his vest, not saying much about building up, but he'll have a good team, Oshawa admitted they'd have a few new faces in their lineup, and so did Peterborough. Harry Carmichael may be president of the GM-men this year, Kingston are still kicking about that taped finger of Biddle's in last year's playoffs. But it wouldn't be the Ponies if they weren't arguing about something. A good meeting, though.

YE WIREMEN copped the first of the home-and-home C.G.E. Shop Hockey League playoffs Saturday afternoon in the Brock St. rink. They took a 1-0 nod over Fractional Motors and will tote this slim lead into the return fixture. Dunno yet when it'll be held. Heal scored on Pammett's pass late in the fray for the only marker of a tidy hi-de-ho. Plenty of close and rugged checking between the well-matched teams and one fist fight. Two referees handed out a total of seven penalties, including majors for the pugilists. It is anyone's serious yet and the final meeting ought to be something of a warm one.

* * * * * *

OUR COLTS left early this afternoon for the return O.H.A. playdown game in Barrie, carrying a five-goal lead with them. They and their followers sort of expect a rough passage this eve from disgruntled Barrie players and fans—but the locals expect to win the series handily. They'll be at full strength and in good shape. There was some talk of staging the fray on Midland's artificial ice but Barrie decided to hold it at home. A number of Peterborough fans expect to go along, even though they were told no seats would be saved for 'em at the rink. Scores will be relayed back both to this office and the Brock St. rink at the end of each period.

UP AT the "Y" on Saturday evening before a fair crowd, two good Senior City Basketball League games were run off. St. Paul's copped the first by a 38-21 score from Neill's, being a bit too strong for their rivals; and Dominion Life nosed out a 23-17 verdict over C.G.E. in a scrappy setto. The second struggle was something of a surprise as the Electrics were generally called to put the clutch on the decision. Some dope on the playoffs in this loop should be available through the week.

AT THE Ontario Bowling Championships in St. Catharines Saturday, Toronto bowlers swept everything but the singles, which went to Reg. Mackie of Oshawa with 918. Our C.G.E. champs finished seventh in a large field of classy pin-spillers. They had a total of 3493 while the Toronto champions collected 3676. Local bowlers were Fred Hickey, Bud Weese, Tommy Miller, Reg. Dyer and Fred Martin. The latter led C.G.E. in singles with 737 while he and Weese rolled 1437 in doubles. The entry was so large that they were still bouncing the balls down the alleys at three Sunday morning. The C.G.E. boys did okay against such competition. Local City 5-Pin Loop annual banquet is Wednesday night at the Paragon Hall.

ST. PAUL'S CAGERS WIN SENIOR TILT

Score 38-21 Victory Over Neill's In Lively Basketball Contest At Y.M.C.A.

The high-scoring St. Paul's squad of the Senior City Cage League took a 38-21 win over Neill's Saturday night in the "Y" gym. They piled up a big lead in the first half to have a 24-12 edge. Neill's made a better showing in the second stanza. But the Saints had too much class for the Shoemen, all their starting lineup being dangerous on the attack and strong defensively. Thorburn and Sedgewick each got 10 points and McIntyre eight. All the losers had a hand in the scoring with Stanger leading with six points and Wolstenholme getting five. The marksmanship of the team was poor, and the losers lost Holmes midway through the tilt via the four fouls. Fullingham and Stanger left late in the game for the same reasons. The teams:

St. Paul's: Fullingham, Thorburn, Sedgewick, Marsh, Arnott, McIntyre.

Neill's: Holmes, Taylor, Stanger, Wolstenholme, Gadd, Hunter, Broadley.

Referees, R. Dickey and C. Davern.

Remember When—

Manitoba and Saskatchewan Hockey Association officials declared they were through with seven-man hockey and two 30-minute halves 10 years ago today. After watching Kitchener defeat Typees, Manitoba champions, at their own game in the Allan Cup finals, they were convinced the six-man game adopted in the east four years earlier was superior. They also decided three 30-minute periods provided better hockey.

ONTARIO SENIOR AMATEUR SCENE TO CLEAR UP FAST

TORONTO, March 15 (CP)—Dominion amateur hockey title-seekers will fall thick and fast from now until the end of the trail. Most of the sectional scrambling is over and the interprovincial playdowns that lead to the Allan and Memorial Cups have begun.

Favorites already dropped by the way include McGill University and Regina Aces among the seniors and Winnipeg Falcon-Rangers and Toronto Oneida among the juniors. Today's fields consisted of 17 senior and 18 junior teams, and about half the goals could be regarded as serious contenders.

Moncton and Berwick will clash for the Maritime senior throne this week and Quebec Aces are expected to represent their Provincial association by pushing aside the intermediate champions. Hull Volants are favored to come out of the Ottawa district.

The Ontario senior amateur picture will be clearer after tonight's games, when Toronto Dominions meet Goodyears and Sudbury Tigers oppose Port Colborne. Dominions hold a 2-1 lead in games in their best-of-five series, and by winning tonight would become eligible to play the winner between Port Colborne and Tigers, whose total-goals round starts at Sudbury.

Victors have been named in all five Western senior divisions. North Battleford completed the list Saturday, beating Regina Aces 6-3 and taking Saskatchewan Murals. Winnipeg Packers play at Fort William tonight, starting the quest of the Manitoba and Thunder Bay titlists for the Allan Cup. North Battleford will be matched against the successful team in an Edmonton-Nelson round.

Ontario and Manitoba are the only provinces in which the Junior battle is not clearly defined. But three of eight Ontario teams will be out when half the week is past and Portage La Prairie and Winnipeg Monarchs start a series to-night for the right to face St. Boniface in Manitoba finals.

Ottawa Rideaus and Port Arthur are marking time. Timmins and Copper Cliff will conclude their total-goals Northern Ontario play-off to-night—Copper Cliff has a two-goal edge. Stratford has a 2-1 lead in games over St. Michael's College of Toronto and can win out at home to-morrow night. Perth and Renfrew to-night start their fight for a crack at Ottawa Rideaus. They eliminated Ottawa Fishers and Berry's Bay respectively Saturday.

Charlottetown and Amherst will begin a total-goals round to-night to decide which will come out of the Maritimes in Junior play. It was Amherst last year. The winner will be pitted against Montreal Royals who were awarded the Quebec title yesterday after drubbing Quebec Beavers, 10-2.

For the fifth successive year, Saskatoon Wesleys have won the Saskatchewan Junior championships and to many followers this looks like a Memorial Cup season.

Edmonton Rangers and Medicine Hat have won a game each in their best-of-five Alberta finals. The deciding games is listed for to-night. British Columbia champions are Trail Tigers.

HAVE DEBT PAID AT 10¢

Only Able to Pay 60 Cents a Month On $150 Debt.

LONDON, March 15 (C.P.) — A man summoned at Brentford County Court recently for a debt of about $150 said he could not offer to pay more than 60 cents a month as he was unemployed.

"That's all very well," said his creditor, a white-haired old man. "I am 65 now, and at the rate you propose to pay me, I shall be 105 before the debt is settled."

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

The annual meeting of the club takes place tonight (Monday) at 8 o'clock. Be sure and be here, and on time.

Tuesday night we intend to run an "after supper library." The draw will be made at 7.30 p.m., and we will play three 4-end games. The fee will be 25c, and the first 56 players will be accommodated.

And then on Wednesday night, March 17th, we expect to have an old-time "Irish and Scotch" contest. Arrangements are now being made, and the players will be notified in good time.

Four mixed rinks from the club paid Lakefield a visit on Saturday night and were up two points: C. Giroux up six, N. Hamley up four, T. Holyman up two, C. Westbrooke down ten.

The winning skips in Saturday's bonspiel were C. Giroux, C. Westbrooke and J. Sedgewick.

Our boys had a good time up at Hamilton Saturday, and that's about all the news we could drag out of them. We later found out that they lost two games and tied the third. It's funny how these reports do spread.

DOMINION LIFE DEFEATS C.G.E.

Upset Senior City Cage Loop Dope With 23-17 Decision Over Electrics

Howard Hammell's Dominion Life team of the Senior City League pulled a basketball surprise Saturday evening at the Y.M.C.A. by copping a 23-17 win over the classy C.G.E. outfit. The Electrics had a 9-6 lead at halftime when the Insurance boys took the offensive to yank out a badly needed victory. C. G. E. missed Don Crowe, ace guard and fell down in shooting on eight free throws in the second half. Richardson was their best player, getting three field baskets for Cliff Dodd's outfit. McArthur led the winners with six points, while Smart, White and Giroux got five apiece. The latter tallied off of his on free throws. The teams:

Dominion Life: Moldaver, White, Smart, Giroux, McArthur, Ellis, Hunt, Weese.

C.G.E.: Richardson, Magee, Palmer, Holmes, Watts, Hunter, Williams, Archibald.

Referees, G. Davern and D. Charlton.

Greenberg Takes A Mighty Cut

Giving out strong proof that the arm injury that put him onto the sidelines last year is now cleared up, Big "Hank" Greenberg, who hopes to hold down the regular first base job with Detroit Tigers again this year, slugs out a long one at the Tiger training camp. Tigers can use the big Jewish boy's power at the plate, as well as his efficient coverage of the initial sack. Back of the plate is Roy Hayworth, reserve catcher.

HIAWATHA INDIANS COP HOCKEY TITLE

Win Rice Lake League Championship With 4-2 Nod Over Elizabethville Squad

Hiawatha took the Rice Lake Hockey League championship over Elizabethville last week at Bewdley before a large crowd with a 4-2 victory. They had won the first game of the playoffs in Keene by a 3-2 count, and the title goes to the Indians for the second straight year. They had to come from behind to win the final fixture, being down 3-0 in the first period and 3-1 going into the third. They battled hard and ran in three goals on the tiring Elizabethville squad in the third.

It was a fast, exciting contest with the winners deserving the nod on their staying power. A free-for-all started in the final stanza with Mercer and Goalie Bill Howard of the Reserve team tangling. For the winners, the two Anderson brothers played fine hockey and had a goal each, Bill Woods and Reg. Pardash scored the other two. Gillespie and Nelson shone on defence. All the losers worked hard and looked smart for the first and second innings, but slowed up toward the end. Ivan Fletcher of Keene refereed this playoff tilt.

PORT HURON, Mich., March 15 (C.P.). — About 200,000 milk bottles belonging to dairies in Michigan are left in Canada annually by tourists, the Port Huron Milk Bottle Exchange claimed to-day. United States dealers find it cheaper to buy new bottles than to pay the cost of returning the containers and the high import duty on them, it said.

WIRE DEPT. WINS IN PLAYOFF TILT

Defeats Fractional Motors 1-0 To Start C.G.E. Shop Hockey Loop Finals

Wire Department took a 1-0 win over Fractional Motors in the first game of the C.G.E. Shop Hockey League playoffs Saturday afternoon in the Brock St. rink. The game, played before a good crowd of fans on ice that became heavy, was the first of the home-and-home finals and the Wiremen have a one-goal lead for the return tilt.

The first two frames were close-checking affairs as the squads battled hard but were cautious about taking chances. It was more open and quite speedy and exciting through the third. Some heavy checking was dished up by both teams and Higgins and Pammett swapped blows in a battle in the final frame. Williams penalty shot in this inning went over the net.

Luck Team Play

Fractional Motors did not show their former teamplay against the battling Wiremen but play was quite even and exciting with some neat hockey shown. Field, Courney and Whatman looked best for the losers; while Heal, Pammett and Williams stood out for the victors. Harding had an easy time in goal. Heal tallied the lone counter late in the third frame on a nifty passing play with Pammett. Fractionals tried hard the rest of the way to even it up but were checked closely. The teams:

Fractional Motors: Goal, Clarke; defence, Bailey and Spencely; centre, Whatman; wings, Field and Courney; alternates, Jobe, English, Higgins and Roberts.

Wire Dept.: Goal, Harding; defence, Williams and Aikens; centre, Birkhoff; wings, Heal and Pammett; alternates, Freeman and Millard.

PIGS THRIVE

SASKATOON (CP) — The mild weather of last fall saved the lives of 40,000 pigs, agricultural authorities believe. Higher survival rate per litter compared with 1936 was due to late snowfall. When snow comes early pigs do not get enough iron from the soil and suffer from anaemia.

LEAFS BARELY BEAT HAWKS' YANKEE SQUAD

All-American Outfit Plays Shinny And Toronto Follows Suit

SCORE ENDS 3-2

Jarb-Wire" Entanglement Of Legs, Sticks, Bodies Before Karakas Is Hard To Beat

TORONTO, March 15. — The regular soldiers can go back to Stanley Barracks, and the militia can return to keep the home fires burning, says Corporal Smythe's All-Canadians repelled the first invasion of Major McLaughlin's All-Americans in the shinny battle of Maple Leaf Gardens on Saturday night. In plain hockey language, Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Chicago Black Hawks before a crowd of 8,623 cash customers.

Final score in the scrambly skirmishing was only 3-2 for the defending forces, and this might cause a lot of folks to figure that the regulars and militia had better keep their powder dry and their guns oiled....the Meeting Major may not be so far wrong in his tactics after all, and he may yank away our hockey laurels with an All-Yank squad on a not-too-distant day.... Leafs certainly did not look like potential Stanley Cup winners while eking out a slim victory, etc., etc.

True, very true, but if the Major's Yankee Doodle boys can't soon show something that more closely resembles hockey, they may as well stay on their own side of the immigration officers. Toronto folks are not likely to pay good money to see more of Saturday's dating silliness. The Meeting Major is only a menace to good hockey at this stage of his scheme.

No Windfall of Scoring Points.

Leafs did not look good and did not cover the official score sheet with the expected windfall of points because they followed the style of the United States born army and played slappy-sappy hockey all over the ice. A shinny team can make a good hockey team look bad any time the hockey team gets shinnying, too. And the Yankees repeatedly used tactics whereby they crammed their horse, foot and artillery in a small sector around Fort Karakas, the objective of the All-Canadian corps. Legs, bodies, sticks were just about as impenetrable as barbed wire.

The Major, just like a brass hat, wasn't on the battleground on Saturday, and Lieutenant Loughlin was in sole charge of the invaders' operations. When he sent the Hawks (pardon....the Yankees) over the boards and over the top into action to the strains of Yankee Doodle from the Gardens' music box, nine of the fifteen were United States-born, viz., Reames Trudel, Karakas, Levinsky, Klingbell, Buoni, Schaefer, Brank and Lapraire. The last-named five were new to Toronto ice, but decidedly not new to hockey. They are not quick products of the McLaughlin school of physical jerks—instead, all have been playing minor or pro hockey on senior calibre sandbar for some seasons.

Out of uniform and back in rest billets for his hockey laboratory test were five Canadian-born Hawks, Siebert, March, Larochelle, Blair and Palangio.

Zero Hour Arrives

Came zero hour—and your war correspondent will try to shorten up the despatches from the front.

The Leafs' shock troops stormed in from the start, only to find they were up against a foe that was soldierly entrenched in front of Kernel Karakas's fort. Kernel should be spelled "Colonel," at that, for Karakas was a hard nut to crack all evening.

Sapper Schaeffer of the Yanks was wounded early, and got three stitches over an eye back in the dressing station. Bombardier Boll was all set to fire a gutta percha serenade into Fort Karkas, but tripped over his spurs and fell on the seat of his pants, amid laughter from camp followers on the side lines. Late in the first phase of the battle Pusilier Fowler staged a one-man raid back of Karakas's pill box, fought his way out of a support trench against the end boards and fired into the enemy massed in front of the fort. The shot ricochetted in off a Yankee defender's skate. And that was the only direct hit scored in the first phase. Nobody was sent to the clink either.

Enemy Recips Raiding

Maybe Lieutenant Loughlin issued the rum ration in the rest billets; but, anyway, darned if the beery Yanks didn't begin rallying out of their trenches in the second phase, and it wasn't long until Trooper Thomssen's short-range shot landed on a post of Broda's battle.

(The wartime touch was actually given to this play when Broda turned to the goal judge and inquired: "Where did that one hit?").

But the Yanks kept coming—like George M. Cohan sang about—and the home guards were getting a bit disorganized. At 7.38 Private Peo Kelly got deep into the Canuck lines and slammed a shot into Fort Broda. Gunner Gottselig and Trumpeter Trudel assisted the ex-Leaf who, incidentally, played a fine and hustling game throughout.

Captain Conacher, the Canucks' Big Bomber, zoomed up in front of Fort Karakas, but failed to connect, just as the period ended.

Second and Aviator Are Robbed

Only a few seconds later the General raided back to slam an Aces pass into the fort. It appeared to hit the centre point of the back bar and then carom off a post on the way out. And why Referee Mitchell elected to overrule the goal judge and wash out this goal was one of the screw-ball mysteries of a screwball game!

Anyway, the Canucks were advancing and pressing now, and this third phase was providing all the real stuff. At 11.41 Kolonel Karakas had been knocked over on the doorstep of his dugout and one of his mates was unhappily sitting on him when Davidson made another direct hit from short range. Kendall and Hamilton also are mentioned in despatches for gallant conduct in assisting the sniper.

But, Red h'Airman 'Orner and Sapper Schaeffer were in the clink for engaging in a necking party while on duty when the Yanks answered the Canuck's drive with a surprising counter-attack. Klingbell rang the bell in Fort Broda, assisted by a couple of alleged Scotch-Americans named Levinsky and Kelly. This came at the 18-minute mark, and the battle soon petered out after that.

Queenstone Heights and Lundy's Lane must have been more salla-factory scraps.

C.O.B.I. ASKS PRO AMATEUR TEAMS ALLOWED TO MIX

Will Recommend This Amendment To O.B.A.A. At Annual Convention In Oshawa

LEAGUE HOLDS MEETING

A notice of amendment to the O.B.A.A. constitution to permit amateur ball clubs to play exhibition games with professional teams will be presented to the Ontario Baseball A. A. by the Central Ontario League at the annual convention in Oshawa this Spring. This was decided upon Saturday at the C.O.B.I. meeting in Belleville when several business matters were cleaned up by a large gathering.

President Max Swanston conducted the meeting at which 32 baseball enthusiasts from six towns were represented. Voting delegates were Jim Dorris of Peterborough, Howard Byron of Kingston, Walter Gerrow of Napanee and J. A. Lane of Oshawa. Alex Weir and Messrs. Gross and McKay of Trenton Airport sat in at the meeting with others.

It was decided to nominate Ernie Gibbard of Napanee to the O.B.A.A. presidency and the first vice-presidency; Max Swanston of Peterborough to the O.B.A.A. executive; and H. A. Elliott of Delore to a life membership on the Ontario body. The league secretary and different representatives decided to make a strong effort to get leagues and clubs of Eastern Ontario to have voting delegates at the O.B.A.A. convention. Art Casterton of Kingston and Newt Thompson of Belleville were appointed to represent the C.O.B.I. at this convention.

Play Against Pros

Kingston suggested recommending to the O.B.A.A. that amateur clubs be allowed to play exhibition games with pro teams in order to help finance the amateur teams. After much discussion, it was decided to bring the matter up at the O.B.A.A. executive meeting first and then to the general convention.

Polled as to their intention of entry this year, Kingston, Oshawa, Napanee and Peterborough informed the meeting they would have teams in the league this year. Belleville was a doubtful starter at this time, it was stated, but might still line up a team in time. The Trenton officers wished information on the league and promised to consider the matter and notify the league as to their intentions at the next meeting. The secretary promised them all information in the meantime.

The Kingston delegates stirred up a heated argument by taking up the old controversy over Letty Biddle of Oshawa pitching against them in league playoffs last year with tape on his finger. The argument, as in the past, came to nothing. After voting to pay the Y.M.C.A. two dollars for use of the meeting room, it was agreed to hold the next meeting about the middle of April to take shirts, make plans for the season and draw up the schedule. The session then adjourned.

THREE MAROON GOALS IN THIRD DEFEAT AMERKS

6-4 Victory Allows Montrealers Slim Chance Of Overtaking Canadiens

NORTHCOTT STARS

NEW YORK, March 15—(CP)—A brilliant display of stickhandling and shooting by Baldy Northcott enabled Montreal Maroons to come from behind and defeat New York Americans, 6-4, in a fast National Hockey League match played here last night before 4,000 spectators.

Northcott scored the tying and winning goals in the third frame, after the New Yorkers had led all through the game. Dave Trottier added the sixth and clinching marker for the Maroons with only a few seconds to go by breaking away from an American power-play. It was Trottier's second tally of the game. Jerry Shannon and Paul Runge notched the other Maroon counters.

The victory allowed the Montrealers to retain their slim mathematical chance of overtaking Canadiens for the leadership of the Canadian group and the right to meet Detroit for the league title. To the losers the game meant little, as they have been eliminated from the league and Stanley Cup title opportunities.

Dave Schriner and Joe Jerwa gave the Americans an early lead by scoring in the first period, while Maroons could get but one tally by Shannon. Neil Stewart notched a counter early in the second before Trottier got his first tally.

Bowmanville Wins Final Cage Game

(By Eric West)

Bowmanville senior cagers defeated P.C.I. 30-16, in the local's last game of the season Friday night here. The group champions copped the win—which had no bearing on the standing—after a redhot and exciting fixture, both teams being grimly determined to grab the nod. The visitors got off to a fast start and were leading 10-5 at the half-way mark. In the second canto, the locals got up on even terms, faded for a time, but finished strong to almost sew it up when Spencer hooped the final basket. For the losers, Oakley again shone with four baskets and Divern netted one in each half. Sedgewick, in his second game of the night, looked good on defence till he drew his fourth foul. Only four of the 30 trips on free throws clicked. Turner had two points and Kelly and Gilmour went strong defensively. For Bowmanville, Jackman and Spencer each had six points and Stenson five. Roach got three and the McIvergs were close-checking guards. The teams:

P.C.I.: Gemmell, Divern, Oakley, Wise, Turner, Johnston, Kelly, Smith, Gonnocks, Sedgewick, Laing.

Referee, G. Mainprize; umpire, A. Colville.

Keene Girl Puckists Defeat Lakefield 1-0

LAKEFIELD, March 15. — The girls' hockey team of Keene defeated the Lakefield girls on Thursday evening in the Lakefield rink. The score was 1-0 for Keene. Both teams played hard and were well-matched as the score indicates.

Marion McCarthy for Keene tallied the only goal in the first period, on an assist from L. Short. During the second and third periods the Lakefield girls fought very hard to even it up but failed.

Both Paddy Tampman and Isabel Bullock on Lakefield's defence played well, while M. McCarthy starred for Keene. The line-ups:

Keene: Goal, E. McCarthy; defence, Helen Nelson and I. Short; centre, Irene Short; wings, H. Nelson and M. McCarthy subs, M. McCarthy, E. Nelson, E. Roach and R. Brown.

Lakefield: Goal, L. Spofford; defense, Paddy Tampman and Isabel Bullock; centre, Dorothy Smith; wings, Betty Tampman and Cubby Tampman; subs, R. Lennox, Winnifred Stewart, Helen Kelly, Betty Nichols and Pat Wannamaker.

Referee—Buster Whitton.

THREE MAROON GOALS IN THIRD DEFEAT AMERKS

6-4 Victory Allows Montrealers Slim Chance Of Overtaking Canadiens

NORTHCOTT STARS

NEW YORK, March 15—(CP)—A brilliant display of stickhandling and shooting by Baldy Northcott enabled Montreal Maroons to come from behind and defeat New York Americans, 6-4, in a fast National Hockey League match played here last night before 4,000 spectators.

Northcott scored the tying and winning goals in the third frame, after the New Yorkers had led all through the game. Dave Trottier added the sixth and clinching marker for the Maroons with only a few seconds to go by breaking away from an American power-play. It was Trottier's second tally of the game. Jerry Shannon and Paul Runge notched the other Maroon counters.

The victory allowed the Montrealers to retain their slim mathematical chance of overtaking Canadiens for the leadership of the Canadian group and the right to meet Detroit for the league title. To the losers the game meant little, as they have been eliminated from the league and Stanley Cup title opportunities.

Dave Schriner and Joe Jerwa gave the Americans an early lead by scoring in the first period, while Maroons could get but one tally by Shannon. Neil Stewart notched a counter early in the second before Trottier got his first tally.

CANADIENS BEAT RANGERS BY 1 TO 0

New Yorkers Protest Marker In Second Period, But It Is Allowed

MONTREAL, March 15. — (C.P.) —Montreal Canadiens with three games to play, needed only one point to-night to clinch their sectional championship and a place against Detroit Red Wings in the National Hockey League championship series.

The Flying Frenchmen, taking no chances after getting a lead, defeated New York Rangers 1-0 Saturday night. They just about finished the New Yorkers as far as second place in the American Section is concerned.

A disputed goal by Johnny Gagnon at 2.44 of the second period, brought victory. Canadiens had spent a vicious first-period assault against the brilliant Dave Kerr. They started it again in the second and big Babe Siebert took play around Kerr's cage.

The goalie went down, Gagnon jabbed at the puck and the red light flashed. Rangers protested, Kerr claiming he held the puck out with his elbow, but the goal stood though Rangers forced a change in goal-judges.

Rangers— Goal, Kerr; defense, Coulter, Heller; centre, Boucher; wings, Dillon, Perkins; subs, Johnson, Prato, Schibicky, F. Colville, Murdock, Keeling, Cooper, Watson, M. Colville.

Officials — Odie Cleghorn and Clarence Campbell.

Hockey's Big Seven

(By the Canadian Press.)

National Hockey League scoring leaders—five of the Big Seven—each picked up a single point during the week-end and Syl Apps' goal enabled the Toronto rookie to climb into a first-place tie with the injured Larry Aurie of Detroit. Each had 43 points with Aurie's teammate, Marty Barry, a point behind them and two in front of the defending champion, left-winger Dave Schriner of New York Americans.

The leaders:

	G.	A.	Pts.
Aurie, Detroit	23	20	43
Apps, Toronto	15	28	43
Barry, Detroit	17	25	43
Schriner, Americans	17	23	40
M. Jackson, Toronto	20	13	33
Gagnon, Canadiens	20	13	33
Gracie, Maroons	9	23	32

FALCONS BEATEN BY REDS 3 TO 2

Indians Drop 4-2 Decision To Philadelphia And 4-3 To Syracuse

TORONTO, March 15.—(CP).—It was just about over until playoff time as far as fan interest was concerned in International-American Hockey League circles to-day. There was one interesting struggle to be completed—the Springfield-Providence duel to gain second-place honors in the Eastern division.

Reds pulled even with Indians over the week-end as they downed Cleveland Falcons 3-2 in a Sunday game while the Tribe were taking a pair of beatings. Indians dropped a 4-2 decision to Philadelphia Saturday night and were edged out, 4-3 by Syracuse Stars Sunday night.

All other play-off spots were certain and one of the Saturday battles saw the two outside clubs. Falcons and New Haven Eagles match strides. Falcons won 6-3 and on Sunday night Eagles took their second pasting at the hands of Hornets 1-0. It was the New Haven team's last home game this season.

Lorne Duguid, former Boston Bruins' forward, scored Reds' winning goal in overtime after Red Cook had tied the count for Falcons late in the third period. Duguid also assisted in the second Providence goal while Cook bagged Falcons' first tally.

MARMORA

FRIENDS HONOR DELORO COUPLE

Many Gifts Are Presented Newlyweds, Mr. And Mrs. Norman Smith

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, March 15. — Deloro Hall was the scene of a large enjoyable gathering on Friday evening as residents of that village and Marmora assembled to honor Mr. and Mrs. Norman Smith, newlyweds of the month. Excellent music was provided for round and square dancing. Frank Leal was floor manager.

About 11 p.m. an intermission was called and L. B. Wright, reeve of the village, on behalf of the community, presented the honored couple with a studio couch and a set of silverware. He also presented a radio table on behalf of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Kerr, senior, whose fiftieth wedding anniversary falls next May. Mr. Wright in a few well chosen words voiced the good wishes of the gathering for a long and happy wedded life.

On behalf of the Deloro Trading Company with whom Mr. Smith has been employed for a number of years, F. A. Bapty presented the guests of honor with a cheque and also extended felicitations.

Suitable acknowledgement on behalf of both was made by Mr. Smith.

Later in the evening a table was set in the centre of the hall for Mr. and Mrs. Smith, their wedding attendants Simeon Smith and Mrs. M. J. Corrigan and the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith, senior. Refreshments were served and other gifts were received in the course of a miscellaneous shower.

ASSAULT CHARGED IN SARNIA DEATH

Unlikely To Be Changed Until After Inquest Into Killing Of Boy 7

SARNIA, Ont., March 15.—(CP).—A charge of assault occasioning bodily harm stood to-day against 16-year-old William Labadie and authorities said it was unlikely to be changed until an inquest was held into the death of John Luckins, seven, who died Saturday. Date of the inquest was expected to be announced to-day.

Head bashed in with a claw hammer and stone, the body of the Luckins boy was found Friday on the farm of his parents at Wyoming. Labadie, employed on the farm, had disappeared. He was arrested Saturday.

Labadie walked 16 miles to the cabin home of his grandfather, James Campbell, near Brigden, where he was arrested. Campbell, 74, we raised the boy when his parents were divorced, said William reached his place early Saturday morning.

He had advised the boy, Campbell said, to wait until police came for him. "He seemed excited, but merely said he would stay all night and maybe over Sunday," Campbell said. "Then he went to bed." Labadie will appear in police court Friday.

TICKETS DRAWN ON IRISH SWEEP

Canadian Stub Is Sixteenth Picked In $8,311,165 Prize-List

DUBLIN, March 15—(C.P. Cable) A Canadian ticket was the 16th counterfoil drawn from the whirling drums of chance as the draw for the Irish Hospital Sweepstake, with a prize fund of $8,311,165, started to-day at the Mansion House.

The counterfoil drawn on Spionsaid, a 20 to 1 shot for Friday's Grand National Steeplechase was marked "Badly Needed." The ticket number was L172668.

The names and addresses of lucky Canadians were not announced on account of the Dominion's lottery restrictions. Officials of the sweepstakes, the world's largest lottery, announced the total intake from tickets was $13,292,160, of which $8,311,165 would be distributed in prizes throughout the world.

Holders of tickets on horses finishing one, two, three in the race will receive prizes of $150,000, $75,000 and $50,000, respectively, while those whose tickets draw a horse will receive a minimum of $3,000 each—even though the horse is a non-starter.

Starched Dublin nurses, chosen by lot, paraded to Mansion House with carefully-guarded bags of counterfoils early to-day, bearing the hopes of millions of ticket-holders dreaming of quick wealth.

CHAPTER 35

Janet and Russell Bede were having their coffee on the terrace in the late twilight when Russell returned to the subject they had dropped before dinner.

"I'm surprised that Mr. Paynter objects to his wife having a career," he said. "Most of the women in Hollywood have careers or—" He stopped speaking and stirred the sugar in his cup. He was going to say, "—or children."

With a rare sensitivity he felt that Janet's not having children was a point he could not touch upon. He had seen her with the little children in the wading pool, had recognized the deep maternal quality in her.

"That's true," she said ruefully. "But their careers are in pictures which is an entirely different thing. I'm not beautiful and I'm not clever. I don't act, write or do anything that would qualify me for a studio job."

"What do you girls do with your time?" he asked interestedly.

Janet made a gesture of not knowing the answer. "Oh, we play bridge, golf, tennis. We go to a masseuse, a hair dresser, a gym class. We keep house and do a great deal of playing."

"And you don't really care about, do you?"

"Yes and no," she answered truthfully. "I care about it because it is part of my husband's life and my husband is my whole life." (She thought she was rather putting it on with a lade but it was too late to take back her prissy words.)

"I do get pretty bored with the round of parties that are always the same. And there's little work to do here. My servants take care of details that would ordinarily engage a housewife and I have a lot of leisure time on my hands. Not then, think of the women who 'wang leisure! When I feel discontented, I get so ashamed of myself that my discontent passes quickly."

"I told you that you didn't belong here," he said after a little while. "You aren't temperamentally suited to this atmosphere."

"I suppose I'm not," she said smiling. "But it has never been a woman's privilege to consider where she was temperamentally fitted. I had a Scotch great grandmother who loved Scotland with every breath of her body but she came to American with her little trunk and no other thing to face an unknown future with only love for the Irishman she followed to marry here."

"Yes," he said looking at her long and earnestly. "I can see that grandmother in you. But I'm surprised that you 'Odyssey' would bring you to a movie colony."

"It's really not so bad," she said laughing. "Are you trying to make me feel sorry for myself?"

"No, of course not," he answered immediately. "I was merely thinking that work is the most interesting thing in the world and I don't like to see people deprived of the thing they like to do."

"My husband had strange ideas about those things. Way down underneath, Joel is an old-fashioned person. He thinks a wife should be supported, she should sit on the proverbial silken cushion and sew a fine seam. And I love him for it."

She couldn't see the expression on Russell's face because darkness had fallen swiftly and the lights of their cigarets and the dancing fireflies over the lawn and in the shrubbery were the only lights about them.

"You said something that interested me this afternoon about a budget plan tying up our average priced furniture to a merchandising campaign."

"That was something that was part of Janet's hope for her department store days to further her own position. She had wanted to offer a decorating service along with a budget plan for people with small incomes and good taste. She had worked on it for weeks, drawing plans of rooms, collecting income data and prices. She had thought of young married people, business couples and young career women who hadn't time or knowledge with which to complete their home furnishing problems. She had talked about it a little to Russell Bede in the afternoon, pointing out why selling a piece individually instead of part of a group was unwise.

"I thought it was a good idea then," she said.

"It still is, Mrs. Paynter, and if you'd like to do something with it, I'd like to talk it over with you."

Janet felt the call she had not heard in these three years. She thought of the stimulation of having a job to be done, the satisfaction of seeing it done. She thought, the way only business women would understand, of how much she had liked starting her days at 9 o'clock with a pencil in her hand and a desk piled high with things to do. She missed it now as she had never missed it before.

"I...it's been such a long time! If I can help you, I'd like to but you see...I really can't consider it as a job for me. I just know Joel wouldn't like it. So that's that."

"But it isn't really," he said. "You can gift help me if you like. It wouldn't really be a job. But some day if ever you do want a merchandising job, I'll have one waiting for you."

Janet thought that if that day came, it would be the day after her world came to an end. If Janet ever needed a job, it would be because she no longer had Joel. The thought of it sent a cold little shiver down her back even though the night was warm.

It was warm, pleasant and fragrant there on the terrace. It was pleasant to be talking to Russell Bede. He had been with her for more than five hours and they had talked of nothing personal, yet she felt wrapped in the closeness of understanding. She felt as though he had become her friend.

He was talking now of an experiment that had been worked successfully in one of his stores in Toledo. Janet was not paying strict attention. The lights of a car swung into her drive and she followed their progress thinking it was Joel.

Joel came up to the drive adjacent to the terrace and left his car there for the chauffeur to put in the garage. The car took the lower drive. It was probably one of the servants who had taken a car to do an errand. She returned her attention to her guest.

"Now, you see, if we had used your plan in that shop, it wouldn't have been wise. But I am thinking now of a spot where we're having some difficulty moving some stuff. I really need your help."

"Then you shall have it. I'll dig up some of my old notebooks. I've got them about somewhere and I'll show you how I would have done it. But please don't consider it a job."

"It will be a secret between us."

"I've never had a secret before," Janet said at the exact moment that Joel appeared in the French doors leading from the terrace to the unlighted living room at their backs.

"Oh, darling!" she exclaimed, jumping up hurriedly and was annoyed at her feeling of guilt because she was sitting in the dark with Russell Bede. "You met Mr. Bede yesterday, didn't you? He stayed to dinner to keep me company."

She felt that she was bleating and was relieved that Joel's greeting to Russell was jovial enough. It was jovial but it had an undercurrent that she knew well. Joel was angry.

"How about a highball?" he asked and went back to get a tray from the dining room.

Bede remained for only a half hour after that. He had little to say to Joel's amusing tale of an incident that had happened that day.

"It's getting on," he said rising. "Thank you, Mrs. Paynter, for your charming hospitality and yours, Mr. Paynter."

His car was brought around and they bade him good night.

Janet followed Joel back to the living room. He walked to the tray and poured himself another highball.

"Sorry to break up your little tete de tete," he said coldly.

"You didn't," she answered lightly. She was angry with Joel for acting churlishly with her.

"When's your next date with your beau?"

If he hadn't asked it sarcastically, Janet wouldn't have said, "Tomorrow, I expect."

Bedtime Story
By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SPRING FLOWERS

Uncle Wiggily was hopping around the hollow stump bungalow. He was singing:

"Tra, la, la! Tra, la, la! Tra, la, la, la, la!"

"Is anything the matter?" asked Mrs. Longears, pretending to be serious.

"Why?" asked Uncle Wiggily who was one of the most simple if he was the jolliest rabbit in the world.

"You are making such an odd noise," exclaimed the wife rabbit.

"Oh!" laughed Uncle Wiggily, never one to take offense. "I was just singing."

"Oh, SINGING!" spoke Mrs. Longears. And to Nurse Jane who was washing the hands and face of the clock in the kitchen, the rabbit lady called: "Wiggy was just SINGING, Jane."

"Oh," said the muskrat lady housekeeper. Then she asked in her squeaky way: "Why?"

A Spring Song

"I sing because I am happy," said Uncle Wiggily, gleefully jumping over a broom that was trying to hide under a chair, "I am going out in the Spring. This is my Spring song."

"Nonsense!" laughed Mrs. Longears. Not because she didn't believe her husband but because she didn't want him to think he could sing. Which, really, he couldn't. "Spring doesn't come until March 21. Everyone knows that. There's a verse about it. 'March the Twenty-first is Spring. The little birds begin to sing.' Remember, Wiggy?"

"Oh, yes," answered the rabbit gentleman. "But I'm not going out to hear birds sing."

"Uncle Wiggily is a very good singer himself," spoke Nurse Jane, who was very fond of Mr. Longears in her own way. "But I don't see how he can hope to go out in the Spring when it isn't until March 21 and this is only March 15. Unless," said the muskrat lady, "he means a spring of water. And that may be frozen," she added as she looked at the clock.

"When I said I was going out in the Spring, I meant I was going out to gather some early Spring flowers for you, my dear," Uncle Wiggily told his wife.

Still Nonsense

"Oh, that's lovely of you, Wiggy," said Mrs. Longears and she twinkled her pink nose almost as brightly as did her husband. "But still and the same time, nonsense!" she said again.

"What do you mean, my dear, by nonsense?" asked the rabbit uncle.

"I mean you can find no Spring flowers when there is snow on the ground!" said Mrs. Longears.

"Wait and see!" laughed Uncle Wiggily as, still singing and hopping joyfully, he skipped away from the hollow stump bungalow. Over the fields and through the woods he hopped, his paws making funny marks in the newly fallen snow. It wasn't very deep snow nor was it frozen hard. There had been some warm, sunny days, almost like Spring, then the snow had fallen.

Reaching a patch of woods on top of a hill, Uncle Wiggily began digging under the snow. At the same time he sniffed with his pink nose.

"Yes, here they are!" he whispered, his eyes shining. "The first flowers of Spring, even if snow covers them. Hurray!"

Faster he dug beneath the snow into the dried grass and leaves beneath it. A sweet perfume filled the air around him. And then, all of a sudden he heard a wooing noise. It was a very odd noise.

And if the coffee cup will give the milk pitcher a drink of tea I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's trip.

GOLDEN MILLER AGAIN FAVORITE GRAND NATIONAL

Paget Gelding Alone Sustains Reputation In Pre-Liverpool Trials

HIS FIFTH ATTEMPT

LIVERPOOL, March 15 (C.P.)—Golden Miller in all probability once again will be the public choice on Friday when the pick of the world's steeplechasers go to the post at Aintree for the centenary running of the Grand National.

Miss Dorothy Paget's gallant gelding will be making his fifth straight attempt in the biggest of all jumping events and his record comprises a victory in 1934, a fall, a refusal, and an unseated jockey.

Of all the outstanding hopefuls of a few weeks ago Golden Miller alone has sustained his great reputation in pre-Liverpool trials.

Crossing his fences without effort, without the semblance of a mistake, the veteran 10-year-old often has given his opponents a jumping lesson.

But Aintree is a law unto itself, and Golden Miller is not as young as he was. The difficult course of 4½ miles finds out the weak spots in the best of them, and no matter how brilliant a steeplechaser may be over a park course, if he has not the Aintree style and build he will be lucky to survive.

From time to time there are horses who by make and shape and manner of negotiating fences are rendered particularly adaptable to Aintree, and it is to these that trainers and other experienced judges look for the winner of the most important steeplechase in the world.

Royal Mail Places High.

With the exception of 1934, when he won, Golden Miller's Aintree record has not been impressive. Yet the horse to beat him is hard to find, second to the gelding in the betting is Lloyd Thomas' Royal Mail, the favorite until last Monday when he was replaced because of his poor showing in trial events.

Royal Mail is a beautifully proportioned horse, and shows fine action in all his paces. Yet at Kempton Park early last week he made several particularly bad fencing blunders, and at Worcester a week ago could do no better than third.

Favorite during the interregnum between Royal Mail and Golden Miller was Vivian Smith's Ready Cash, who is now under a cloud owing to a training injury. He ran well in early season trials, but after news of his injury was announced he fell off in the wagering from 12 to 1 to 50 to 1.

Of the other candidates, Sir David Llewellyn's Ego and P. Thiele's Crown Prince came second and fourth, respectively, in last year's National, but lagged far behind the winning Reynoldstown, who is not entered for the 1937 running.

Another veteran of the Aintree course is J. B. Snow's DeLaneige, who has been a gallant but unlucky performer at Liverpool. Last year he fell, in 1934 he placed second to Golden Miller, and in 1933 he was fourth. But this year he is a 12-year-old, and in the long history of the race no horse of that age has won. Two horses were successful at 13—Why Not (1894) and Sergeant Murphy (1923).

Of the American horses, What Have You has attracted considerable attention. This nine-year-old, who is owned by Frank Gould and will be ridden by the American amateur rider, O. Street, is a good-looking chestnut with plenty of quality. He is a free-running horse and as such is unsuited to heavy going. His English debut at Newbury was inauspicious, the horse finishing last in a field of seven.

116 Years Upon Same Farm For Sharpe Family In Cavan

Cleared By Grandfather Of Present Owner—Used Brush Over Window At Night

MUSKET OF '37 ON HAND

LINDSAY, Ont., March 15—(CP)—David Sharpe, his family and friends to-day celebrated the 116th anniversary of the Sharpe family's residence on the same farm. Situated in Cavan township, 16 miles south of here, the farm was one of the first cleared in this district.

Mr. Sharpe has the original deed to the property given his grandfather March 13, 1824, exactly three years after he had first settled the property and built himself a log cabin, whose "window" openings were covered with brush to keep out wild animals.

Another relic of pioneer days prominently displayed in the modern Sharpe home is the musket, bayonet and bullet pouch the original settler used when he marched 100 years ago to York (now Toronto) to help put down the disturbance caused by "the little rebel," William Lyon Mackenzie. The reception was over when he arrived at York.

Three of David Sharpe's daughters teach school in the district. Doris is the ninth Miss Sharpe to teach at Beechwood school, formerly known as Sharpe's school.

KINGSTON PEN GROWING FAST

Experimental Station Operated By Department Outgrows Quarters

KINGSTON, Jamaica, March 15—(CP)—Kingston Pen, centre of the Department of Agriculture's low temperature and marketing experimental station, has outgrown itself in the 18 months of its existence.

Officials have found the experiments being conducted by the department rapidly increasing in size and variety, are being hampered by their small quarters. A larger packing house for vegetables and small fruits is going erected as added space for the department's activities.

During the last year, more than 17,000 packages of fruits and vegetables of Jamaican growth were packed and exported under supervision of the station. Department officials are predicting a tremendous increase, probably nearing the 100,000 mark this year if the station continues to grow.

REMAINS CALM AS DEATH THREATENS

Boy, Near Drowning, Cautions Frantic Father Rushing To Aid

DEER ISLAND, N.B., March 15 (CP)—"Papa, don't hurry! You'll get here quicker! I'm all right!" The words were shouted by cool-headed Richard Cline, 14, to his father when the latter broke an oar while frantically rowing toward the boy. Richard had just been knocked overboard by the swinging boom of a power sloop owned by his father, Captain Audley Cline. At the same time another member of the crew, Irving Greenlaw, was struck senseless to the deck.

The boat was under power and sail. Richard, unable to swim, was left bobbing on waves hundreds of yards astern before Captain Cline could shove a dinghy from the deck. He raced with death, his efforts impeded by poor oars.

The lad managed to keep afloat by kicking and splashing. His father reached him just in time, and before another crew member could bring the sloop back to the scene.

Richard suffered no ill effects from the cold water. He resumed work aboard the boat as if nothing unusual had happened. The crew were on a cramming trip when the accident occurred.

CITY MANAGER RULE FROWNED ON FOR ONTARIO

Kitchener Taximan Slain Hands Up "In Surrender"

Mysterious Murder Leaves Blank Wall In Regard To Clues

Police Admit No Person Under Suspicion At Present Time

NO MOTIVE FOUND

Fail To Trace Call By Woman Asking If Murderer Found

KITCHENER, March 16—(CP)—Lawrence "Dick" Hewitt, Kitchener taxi operator, was murdered Saturday night while his hands were raised above his head, it was authoritatively stated today although police would not comment on this angle. In piercing Hewitt from the left to the ride side, the bullet made a hole in the left chest wall more than an inch lower than the hole in the skin, indicating his hands were raised "in surrender" when the shot was fired, an authority stated today.

KITCHENER, Ont., March 16—(CP)—Police said they were confronted by a blank wall to-day as they searched for shreds of evidence that might lead to solution of Kitchener's murder mystery. Provincial Police under Inspector A. Boyd of the Criminal Investigation Department switched their investigation to outside municipalities for an answer to their puzzle.

Shot through the heart early Sunday, Lawrence Hewitt will be buried to-morrow. A private funeral service for the 35-year-old taxicab proprietor will be held at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Louisa Cabel. This will be followed by a public service at Zion Evangelical Church. Burial will be in Woodland Cemetery.

Foremost among possible clues to the murder was identification of a woman and man seen speeding near Hewitt's car Saturday night at nearby Centreville, about three hours before his body was found in a ditch, Eric Delis, Waterloo, said he saw a man he believed Hewitt sitting behind the wheel while the mystery pair stood on the highway near Hewitt's car.

Handkerchief Identified.

A handkerchief found in the car with the name "Chasey" imprinted on the border lost interest to police last night. A friend of Hewitt's family proved ownership when she produced another with the same identification mark. She said she had both in the car several days ago.

Police checked the scene of the murder but failed to find anyone who had heard a shot or voices at the time it was believed Hewitt was killed. One district resident said he had noticed a car beside the highway as he drove past, but was not certain if it was that of Hewitt.

"Not a person is under suspicion at present," one police officer said. "Nor a motive for the killing has been found."

A telephone to the Hewitt home yesterday puzzled investigators. Answered by a neighbor, a woman's voice was said to have asked: "Have they found the man who shot Mr. Hewitt, yet?"

The neighbor asked who was speaking, was given the name of one of Mrs. Hewitt's friends. The neighbor then conferred with the murdered man's widow and when she returned to the line was dead. Puzzled, the neighbor called the woman whose name had been given over the telephone and was informed she had not called the Hewitt home that day. Efforts to trace the call were fruitless.

An indication Hewitt was familiar with the person who called him out Saturday night ostensibly on business was the fact he drove a south automobile instead of a sedan. It was determined he did not use this type of machine as a taxi. He did not say where he was going, but told his wife he would be "back in five minutes." This was the last heard of him until his body was found.

He Beats The Judge On No Parking Sign

Seattle, March 16—(AP)

POLICE Judge William Bell today ordered no-parking signs changed after F. Wagner, a motorist, successfully defended parking in front of a sign which read "no parking from 2 a.m. to 12 p.m."

"Is 12 p.m. noon or midnight?" Wagner asked.

"I don't know," said the Magistrate.

"On that I rest my case," said Wagner triumphantly. He was dismissed. Encyclopedias said there was no such thing as 12 p.m.

Rogers Hopeful Of Reconciliation As Members Pour Into Montreal

DECISION THURSDAY

MONTREAL, March 16 (C.P.).—Two days away from a momentous meeting on a possible general strike, Canadian rail union chiefs had before them to-day Labor Minister Rogers' expression of hope for a "just and peaceable" settlement of their wage dispute with the railways.

The Minister's belief a reconciliation was possible, voiced yesterday in a Canadian Club address, came as the union heads were discussing the ballots cast by 115,000 members in a strike for higher pay.

It was necessary to speak cautiously, the Minister said, but he trusted there would be "a recognition of the vital interests of the country at large in a just and peaceable settlement of this dispute and the avoidance of an interruption of business...."

As he spoke, railwaymen declared

TIMMINS, Ont., March 16 (C.P.).—Vincenzo De Saverio, 48-year-old miner, died early to-day from injuries received when a barrel of gasoline exploded at the Dasantis Mine.

An inquest will be conducted by Coroner Dr. H. E. Montgomery, the date to be set later.

Dr. William Furtwangler will conduct in the Wagner stadium as summer.

Kitchener Taxi Driver Slain In "Mystery Murder"

Containing all the drama of fictional murder stories, the killing of Lawrence Hewitt, Kitchener, Ont., taxi cab owner and sportsman, is being investigated by Ontario provincial police. Hewitt, called from his home late at night to take a "fare," was found three hours later in the ditch of the Galt-Kitchener highway by a passing motorist. Police began an intensive search for a man and woman alleged to have been seen in the cab parked on the highway in exactly the same spot where the body was found. Lawrence Hewitt is shown at the LEFT while the picture at the RIGHT show's the victim's automobile with a newspaperman pointing to the ditch where the body was found.

Trouble Seen Manitoba Jail

Drug Addicts Protest At Being Kept From Other Prisoners

WINNIPEG, March 16—(CP).—Possibility of trouble among prisoners at the Manitoba Provincial Jail at Headingley because of segregation of drug addicts is seen by Attorney-General W. J. Major.

The minister announced in the Legislature last night that such segregation had been made at Headingley, 10 miles west of Winnipeg, and he said those addicted to narcotics objected to being kept away from other prisoners.

Trouble was likely to result from the change, Mr. Major said, and any reports of difficulties in the near future at Headingley might be attributed to the action.

Mr. Major made the revelation in announcing he intended to recommend isolation of drug addicts in prisons to the Royal Commission investigating Canadian penal institutions when it visits Winnipeg in April.

BORDEN FLIER INJURED IN CRASH

Former Argos And Roughrider Rugby Star Suffers Slight Concussion

CAMP BORDEN, Ont., March 16.—(CP)—Flight Lieutenant David A. Harding, former prominent football player, was injured in an airplane crack-up near here yesterday but is expected to be fully recovered in three or four days, Camp Borden officials stated today.

Squadron Leader O. E. Brookes, officer commanding the Royal Canadian Air Force station here, said Harding suffered a slight concussion but is resting comfortably and will be all right in three or four days. He said no bones were fractured but added he was unaware of details of the accident.

It was understood the crash occurred while Harding was landing at Leach's Field, private field used by Camp Borden flyers. The field is about six miles south of Camp Borden which is about 80 miles north of Toronto.

After landing on the level sandy field, Harding's plane broke into flames, all the fabric being burned, but the flyer managed to leap from the machine before the outbreak. A court of inquiry is considering the crash and will report later.

Harding played with Ottawa Roughriders and Toronto Argos in the Inter-provincial Rugby Union and with Queen's University in the Intercollegiate circuit.

Peterborough Money No Good In Barrie

IT may be adding fuel to the fire, but some of the fans arriving home early this morning from Barrie report that even the restaurants wouldn't take their money; not that the welcome mat was out and hospitality on the tables, but exactly the opposite. To avoid unnecessary provocation some of the Colts' followers let it be known that they were from Midland, but "Scotty" McGrath forgot the unfriendly atmosphere at an exciting stage and rooted so loudly he was nearly thrown out. One of the fans stepped on a cigarette and burned a hole in his shoe, and some how Charlie Lloyd got away with a war dance on the main stem.

Veteran Is Ill Town Tip-Toes

No School Bell Tolls, Traffic Detours As Reeve Aids Doctor

LEAMINGTON, Ont., March 16.—(CP)—Elgie Robinson, 38-year-old war veteran of this Essex county town, was reported to-day in improved condition from a serious heart attack after town fathers and school officials ordered all undue noise in the vicinity of the man's home stilled.

Traffic has been detoured since Saturday on a portion of the street where the stricken man lives while a nearby Public school bell no longer tolls its warning to tardy pupils.

Robinson suffered a heart attack Monday of last week. He failed to rally as the week progressed and a request by his physician for as much quiet as possible in the vicinity was answered by Reeve Dan Kennedy and Miss Olive Walton, principal of the school, who ordered the "quiet" area.

Thory Knight, garage proprietor, has ceased operations and is sliding through the long nights with the axe man. Others have volunteered for night duty.

Native of Merrea township, Robinson was but 18 when he enlisted and went to the front. Two years later he suffered a skull fracture and shrapnel wounds about his head. He lay critically ill for six months, but recovered after 31 pieces of shrapnel had been removed.

Since his return here after the war, Robinson has been engaged as a carpenter. He is married and has two sons, one in High school and the other attending Public school.

Life In Army A Rosy Affair

Britain Offers Troops 4 Meals a Day, Real Butter, More Pay On Leave

By George Hambleton
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

LONDON, March 16—(CP Cable)—The British army is to be made more attractive to the recruit.

The soldier of the future—Alfred Duff Cooper, secretary for war, informed the House of Commons to-day—is to have four meals a day instead of three. At some stations one ounce of butter will be substituted for an ounce of margarine.

The daily ration for enlisted boys will be increase by an issue of milk. The ration allowance to men on leave will be increased by threepence (six cents) daily.

Stoppages from a soldier's pay will be abolished. Civilians will be increasingly employed to do fatigue duties at regimental depots. Soldiers' married quarters are being raised to the level of the best housing standards of the day.

Recruiting for the regular army last year, Duff Cooper admitted in introducing the army estimates, "was worse than in the previous year."

"It is of urgent public importance," he proceeded, "that there should be a very substantial improvement, for if such improvement does not take place the army no longer will be able to carry out its normal duties of furnishing garrisons which are required for maintaining peace and order throughout the British Empire.

OPPOSES ANNEXATION.

TORONTO, March 16 (CP).—Hon. David A. Croll, Ontario Minister of Municipal Affairs, told the Private Bills Committee of the Legislature today the Municipal Affairs Department was opposed to annexation of any defaulting municipality to Toronto until the municipalities' financial affairs were straightened out. His statement came during discussion of a bill respecting the Township of East York. The committee approved a clause in the bill providing no part of the township shall be annexed until July 1, 1938, without the consent of the township.

Belleville's Request Vetoed In Committee By Private Bills' Body

City's Request To Reduce Aldermen 12 To 6 Is Also Turned Down

ALLOW EARLIER ELECTION

Members Oppose Manager Idea On Grounds One Man Has Too Much Power

TORONTO, March 16—(CP)—City manager form of government for Ontario cities was frowned on by the private bills committee of the Ontario legislature today when it struck from an act respecting the city of Belleville power for the city council to appoint such an official.

Belleville was also refused the right to reduce the number of aldermen from 12 to 6 through application to the legislature. Hon. David Croll, minister of municipal affairs, said there was a way Belleville could accomplish this through an application to the municipal board.

Belleville electors voted and carried both propositions. The city manager plan had a majority of 30 but the move to reduce the number of aldermen had ten times this!

A clause in the bill giving Belleville the right to hold its elections the first Monday in December, carried unanimously as did one confirming a by-law for the erection of a public utilities commission.

Sam Lawrence, (C.C.F., Hamilton East) cast the only vote in committee in favor of the city manager clause. He said he was opposed to the city manager form of government but was going to vote to uphold the will of the people.

W. C. Mikel, K.C., former mayor of Belleville, opposed the clauses respecting the city manager and the reduced council.

Their outcome would be to put power in the hands of a small group. A city manager would have nothing to do but draw his salary.

"I am absolutely opposed to this city manager fantasy," said Arthur Ellis, (Con. Ottawa South). "It gives a city official powers which are dangerous."

Harold N. Carr, (Lib., Northumberland), in whose name the bill stood, said he was agreeable to withdrawing the city manager clause seeing it had such a small majority of the electors with it.

Mr. Croll said Chatham was the only Ontario municipality having a city manager and "they are just using the term". He indicated the department of municipal affairs didn't like city managers.

KING'S CIVIL LIST MAKES NO MENTION DUKE OF WINDSOR

Proposes To Care For Princess Elizabeth And Gloucester From Duchy Of Cornwall

HOUSE TO CONSIDER IT

LONDON, March 16—(CP Cable)—The King's long-awaited message to parliament requesting that financial provision be made for the royal family was delivered today.

His majesty's message did not mention the Duke of Windsor, his predecessor, and it was assumed the royal family would make provision for him privately.

At the end of question hour, Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, proceeded to the bar of the House of Commons and in a loud voice announced: "A message from his majesty the king, signed by his own hand."

The chancellor then walked up the floor of the chamber, bowed twice to the chair and handed the message to the speaker, Captain E. A. Fitzroy, who proceeded to read it.

"The demise of the crown renders it necessary that renewed provision shall be made for the civil list," the message read. "His majesty places unreservedly at the disposal of the House those hereditary revenues which were so placed by his predecessor and has commanded that papers necessary for full consideration of the subject shall be laid before the House.

Provision for Queen and Children

"His majesty's government desire that provision shall be made for her majesty the queen and his majesty's children other than Princess Elizabeth corresponding to the provision which the House has been willing to make in like circumstances in the past.

"His majesty also desires that suitable provision be made for Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Gloucester. It is, however, his majesty's intention, so long as the Duchy of Cornwall revenues are vested in himself, to make provision for Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Gloucester and insofar as those revenues are sufficient to provide for his majesty's civil lists and in the event of the birth of a Duke of Cornwall to assent to arrangements similar to those assent to by his predecessor.

"His majesty recommends consideration of these several matters by his faithful Commons and relies on their attachment to his person and family to adopt such a measure as may be suitable for the occasion.

"George."

TORONTO SCOUT DIES OF INJURIES

Hit On Head By Pole At Rink—Made Light Of It At The Time

TORONTO, March 16 (CP)—Eric Chadwick, 16-year-old Scout leader, died today of injuries suffered last night at Varsity outdoor skating rink. Coroner Dr. J. P. F. Williams and police are investigating statements of two boys who brought him home that Eric was knocked unconscious when a light wooden pole fell on him.

Parents of the young Scout leader, who had intended entering the Anglican ministry, said they do not know the names of the young boy and girl who called for him to go skating and then returned with him after his injury.

Death was due to a fractured skull and he died while being prepared at the hospital for an x-ray. The boy and girl said that all the way home Eric kept saying: "I'll be all right when I get home," the parents said today. "We put him to bed and I put his hair and treated the cut on the left side of his head where there was a mark about the size of a 10-cent piece," said the mother, Mrs. Edmund Chadwick.

Police investigation of the accident at Varsity Stadium outdoor rink last night in which 16-year-old Eric Chadwick received fatal head injuries, showed the boy fell while attempting to handle a four-foot rope while on skates. Chadwick died in hospital today.

Continental Cities Propose To Capitalize On Coronation

Majority Of Nations Plan Festivities And Cheap Transportation To Lure Business

BRITISHERS UNEASY

LONDON, March 16 (CP).—Continental cities are showing an increasing awareness of the immense amount of business that is going to flow into Great Britain as a result of the coronation. And they are planning their tourist advertising and festivities with a view to luring a proportion of this business their own way.

Railway fares have been reduced and prominent holiday resorts are boasting gala celebrations immediately after or before the coronation. The International Exposition in Paris was fixed three years ago for 1937, but the opening date has been altered to synchronize with the coronation. Germany, Switzerland, Italy and indeed all countries on the tourists' map are eagerly looking for a great summer. Germany advertises reduced rail fares, special excursion consideration and brilliant festivals.

Meanwhile British travel agencies and hotel-keepers are noting this continental craftiness with mixed feelings. Entertainment companies and merchants are suggesting a more extended coronation celebration period.

On this subject the Daily Express reports: "Apart from Ascot, Henley, tennis at Wimbledon, the Aldershot tattoo and the royal tournament, no special attractions to induce overseas visitors to prolong their stay and spend their money in this country have been organized and the prospects are causing some anxiety."

Fenelon Trappers Bag 24 Red Foxes

FARMERS in the Fenelon Falls district, who have complained for a year of heavy inroads into their poultry flocks made by foxes, are rejoicing at the string of fox pelts hanging on the shed at the home of G. Calder, here.

Mr. Calder, with the aid of his son, was successful in shooting and trapping twenty-four foxes, in the Kawartha Lakes district during the open season, which ended March 1. Other hunters report good catches.

Newmarket To Douse Lights When It Wants A Constable

Town Solves Burglar Alarm Problem—To Discomfort Of Waterworks Official

HE MUST PULL THE SWITCH

NEWMARKET, Ont., March 16 (CP).—After months of thought, Council of the York County town 30 miles north of Toronto last night solved its burglar alarm problem at no cost to the taxpayer. When the town lights go out during the night—it means the police constable is wanted.

When citizens are bothered with burglars or other annoyances during the night, they will telephone the home of the waterworks official, who will pull the switch that cuts off the town lights. The night constable will notice the town is dark, will telephone the waterworks department and find where the burglars is. Mayor Dr. S. J. Boyd explained.

"He can take time to dress—we wouldn't expect him to run out in his nightshirt this weather," said Dr. Boyd, replying to objections the large switch was located outside.

"Besides the alarm will likely be needed only a couple of times a year. After all, what's wrong with making an official get up in the night just to turn off a switch?"

"I wouldn't give the alarm too much publicity," said Reeve Dr. L. W. Dales. "Last time the Council tackled this burglar alarm problem their discussion spread all the way to New York papers who played up the 'remarkable simplicity' of the proposal then made to have the householder telephone an official who would turn off the light in the town clock, which would attract the police, who would telephone and be set on the trail of the burglar."

Stratford Mayor Furnishes License For Holding Keno Party In Parish Hall

STRATFORD, Ont., March 16 (CP).—Equipped with a license furnished by Mayor T. E. Henry, Rev. W. T. Corcoran, pastor of the Church of the Immaculate Conception has announced he will hold a keno party in the parish hall on Friday. Keno and bingo parties were halted here several weeks ago when Chief of Police R. J. Beatty, acting then illegal, said he would prosecute if they were continued.

In order to comply with the law Friday night's affair will be called a "raffle," and all articles will be offered for sale prior to start of the games.

Crown Attorney W. E. Goodwin has said he regarded the games legal and would instruct the police to prosecute if any are operated.

'No Speed Limit' Bill Gets Second Reading Goes To Law Experts

Farm Products Marketing Act, Replica Of Federal Law, Goes Ahead

TORONTO, March 16—(CP)—The budget debate resumes in the legislature this afternoon. There will be a night session as there was last night, Premier Hepburn having announced his intention to drive the House at top speed to assure prorogation before Easter.

Seldom has so much legislation been passed in principle and new legislation introduced as was the case yesterday. But withal, the House had time for three roll-call divisions, two forced by the Conservative opposition and one forced by the government when the opposition didn't want it.

First two divisions were on Premier Hepburn's decision to oppose notices of motion for returns concerning civil service salaries and appointments. The opposition didn't want the information for any useful purpose, he contended. The premier was upheld on votes of 44 to 18 and 47 to 18.

George Henry, Conservative House leader, made some remarks which the premier interpreted as opposition to the bill granting every Ontario municipality a 1-mill subsidy for the tax rate reduction.

More Spending for Councils.

Mr. Henry insisted he wasn't opposing the bill but was pointing out it is "so much more money" for municipal council to spend.

"Now you're on the spot," the premier remarked to Mr. Henry as he forced a division. But Mr. Henry and all his Conservative followers voted with the government. The bill was approved by 53 to 0 on second reading. It was the first time in many moons there had been an unanimous vote on a roll-call division.

The House had a non-party debate on a bill brought in by James Clark (Lib., Windsor-Sandwich) to eliminate the 35-mile-an-hour speed limit on Ontario highways and substitute a safe-driving provision. The bill was given second reading and sent to the municipal law committee.

Premier Hepburn and Mr. Henry agreed second reading was not to be construed as endorsation of the principle. The committee was instructed to call police officers and other witnesses before coming to a decision.

Hon. T. B. McQuesten, minister of highways, opposed the bill. So did Mr. Henry. Premier Hepburn said his mind was open.

BRITISH MARKET IS MAJOR TOPIC IN HOUSE DEBATE

Stevens And Leader Urge Steady Meat Supply Be Assured To Hold Preference

HOGS UNDER FIRE

OTTAWA, March 16 (CP)—Tariff students in the House of Commons have found a wide scope for discussion in the Canada-United Kingdom trade agreement now under consideration by the committee of the whole. Much of yesterday's session was given over to expressions of opinion as to the relative merits of free trade and protection when the committee took up budget resolutions and started with the trade agreement.

Argument was confined chiefly to the Conservative protection advocates and the advanced free trade proponents in the Liberal ranks, but good progress was made with the agreement indicating the possibility that it will have speedy endorsation.

Chief argument grew over the section dealing with the marketing of Canadian meats in the United Kingdom, particularly regarding live cattle and bacon. Conservative leader Bennett argued Canada could not hope to use the British market as a convenience and the United States market as a regular outlet.

Harry Leader (Lib. Portage La Prairie) and Hon. H. H. Stevens (Recon. Kootenay East), argued that the government should ensure that a steady supply of meats would be shipped to the British market so that the preference might be held and justified. Mr. Leader suggested subsidies, if necessary, to enable the livestock growers to meet the demand consistently.

The Hog Situation

An oligarchy in the Department of Agriculture had kept Canada back in hog production, charged Dr. J. K. Blair (Lib. Wellington North). He declared officials in that department were "dead as Caesar's ghost" and about one third of them could be dismissed.

But for these officials he said the former minister of agriculture, Hon. W. R. Motherwell and Hon. Robert Weir, would have imported Danish pigs which were superior to the Yorkshire pigs raised chiefly in Canada.

Mr. Weir deserved congratulations for importing some Swedish Landrace pigs, despite the advice of his officials against it, but should have brought in the Danish. The Swedish pigs while much superior to Canadian were inferior to the Danish.

One Landrace pig had dressed four pounds heavier on a test than a Yorkshire pig 35 days older than it. Dr. Blair read the results of tests as to the two breeds showing the Swedish pigs matured much more quickly than the Yorkshire.

MONGOLS CUT A NEW NATION OUT OF CHINA

Declare Independence For Mongokuo Similar To Jap-Backed Manchoukuo

40,000 SQUARE MILES

Rebel Prince Teh Reported To Have Assistance Of Nipponese Advisors

KALGAN, Chahar Province, China, March 16.—(AP)—The Mongol hordes of Northern China were reported by missionaries to-day to have declared their independence from China and proclaimed themselves a new nation—Mongokuo—"similar" to the Japanese-sponsored State of Manchoukuo.

Wholly unconfirmed reports, brought to this northern outpost of China by missionaries from the snow wastes of Northern Chahar, said the irregular troops of the rebellious Mongol Prince Teh Wang had established the new state with the assistance of Japanese advisors and military men.

The reports said the new nation carved out of Northern Chahar province included an area of about 40,000 square miles.

Bounded on the north of outer Mongolia, on the east by Jehol province, already under Japanese domination, and on the west by the strongly fortified Chinese province of Suiyuan, its southern border was said to follow the great wall extending to within 30 miles of Kalgan.

Perfecting Organization.

Associated with Prince Teh, long an opponent of the Nanking Central Government, at Chapser, capital of the new nation, were reported to be some 100 assistants charged with the duty of perfecting the administrative organization of the government.

The unverified reports said a tariff schedule already had been prepared and printed and that collection of customs was underway. Duties were being levied against all merchandise entering the territory, reports said.

Suiyuan provincial troops four months ago delivered a series of crushing defeats to Teh and his Mongol hordes, reported by Chinese to have been officered and trained by Japanese and Manchoukuoans.

Suiyuan's eastern defences stretch for 100 miles along the reported border of the new nation, manned by some 100,000 first line troops, reported to include 40,000 dispatched from the crack Nanking army.

TWO-HEADED CALF BORN AT GODERICH

Holstein Youngster Also Has Two Tails But Lives Only Short Time

GODERICH, March 16—(CP)— A Holstein calf with two heads and two tails was born at the dairy farm of William Long, near here, yesterday. It lived but a short time.

Calves with two perfectly formed heads are rare—about one in 2,500—but this is the first instance of a calf with two tails of equal size and length to come to the notice of the attending veterinarian.

The calf was otherwise normal in every respect, with four legs, one body and one set of organs, but it had two spinal columns. One of the calf's heads showed signs of life for some minutes.

Mr. Long visited a taxidermist with a view to having the freak animal stuffed and mounted.

ALBERTA DEBATE MAY END TODAY

Two-Day Discussion Would Set Up Record For Shortness

By J. F. Sanderson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

EDMONTON, March 16.—(CP) — The budget debate may end in the Alberta legislature today, after Conservative Leader David Duggan speaks. If it does, it will be one of the shortest on record, a two-day debate.

In the House yesterday Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of mines, predicted Social Credit will be operating in Alberta in the near future but the Aberhart government "is determined to make the change in such a way it will be permanent and beneficial to all."

Economic changes must be made slowly, the minister warned the House. Sudden changes often were dangerous and sometimes upset everything.

"I feel I am safe in saying," he continued, "Alberta Credit will be made available to the people of Alberta in the near future and that it will be made available to all people and all merchants."

The minister announced the government would appeal the judgment of Mr. Justice W. C. Ives invalidating the legislation under which half-interest rates on bonds, debentures and guaranteed securities have been paid. It would be the second appeal filed in a few days, formal notice having been filed last weekend contesting the judgment of Mr. Justice A. F. Ewing outlining the reduction of settlement of debts act.

Liberal Leader John Bowen attacked financial features of the budget yesterday, claiming it gave a false impression of Alberta's position. He claimed it was unfair to rely on a cash statement for comparative purposes because it did not contain accounts payable.

THREAT LETTER SENT TO WOMAN, LITTLE BRITAIN

Two Prowlers Arrested After Warning Given Garage Would Be Destroyed

DEMANDED $100

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, March 16.—A case of attempted extortion, following the sending of a threatening letter has been reported to the police from Little Britain. It appears that during the week-end Miss Whiteside, of that village, received a letter in which she was instructed to place one hundred dollars in the pocket of her automobile. Failure to comply with the demand would result in the destruction of her garage. A watch was kept on the building and last night two prowlers were chased from the yard. The Provincial Police were notified of the affair and took two men into custody today for questioning.

James Lawder, aged seventy-five years, and one of the best known Orangemen in this district, was found dead in his home on Sunday morning. The deceased was down street on Saturday evening and appeared to be in excellent health. The late Mr. Lawder was born in Lindsay on St. Patrick's Day, 1862, and had often expressed the wish that his funeral would take place on that date. His wish will be complied with on Wednesday, March 17. At an early age Mr. Lawder identified himself with the Orange Order.

PRIZE-WINNING PLAY IS WRITTEN BY FARMER'S WIFE

Drama On Drought-Ridden Plains Will Compete At Ottawa

BEST IN SASKATCHEWAN

REGINA, March 16 (C.P.). — Authoress, directress and member of the cast of "Relief," prize play of the Saskatchewan Regional Drama Festival, Minnie Evans Bicknell, grey-haired farm-wife, says "more credit should go to others."

Selected on Saturday night by Adjudicator George de Warfaz to represent Saskatchewan in the Dominion Festival at Ottawa next month, the play was produced by four of the 10 members of the Dramatic Club of Marshall, where live only 75 persons, lying near the Alberta border directly west of Prince Albert.

Struggles of a farm family in the drought-ridden plains of Southern Saskatchewan are depicted by "Relief." A message from two children in British Columbia brings promise of release from the Prairie ordeal, but at the moment the farmer, broken by his weary wait for better times, commits suicide.

Though their home is not in the droughtland, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bicknell who, with 'teen-aged Archie McArthur and Anne McIntyre, form the cast, know the havoc wrought by wind and dust and grasshoppers. They lost three crops farming at Hien River, Alta., between 1917 and 1922.

Club Keeps Interest In Life.

Now they farm near Marshall where the dramatic club has been sponsored eagerly for 12 years. "The dramatic club gives us an interest in life and keeps us from growing old," said Mrs. Bicknell.

In 1935, the club took a play to North Battleford, Sask., for a district festival and there Edward Cohen, Edmonton lawyer and drama student, provided the inspiration for "Relief."

"He told how to develop and write a play," Mrs. Bicknell said, and advised us to try it. That gave me an inspiration. I had heard so much about the drought country in the south, and in the spring of 1933 I wrote this play."

Mr. and Mrs. Bicknell took the script to a drama school at Banff, Alberta, and there Mr. Cohen read the play. It was studied as part of the school's work and there it was staged for the first time.

The Marshall Club took the play to Yorkton, Sask., for a festival last year and won second prize. Their performance brought the invitation to present the play at the Regina Festival this year.

"More credit should go to others," Mrs. Bicknell said. "I've just been pushed into it."

FEWER COLDS—
SHORTER COLDS

For Thousands Who Followed this Guide to Better Control of Colds

1. To Help PREVENT Many Colds

At the first warning sneeze or sniffle or the slightest irritation in the nose—quick!—put a few drops of Vicks Va-tro-nol up each nostril. This specialized medication is expressly designed for the nose and upper throat, where most colds start. Used in time, Va-tro-nol helps to prevent many colds—and to throw off head colds in their early stages.

2. To Help END a Cold Sooner

Of course, some colds strike without warning, or get by even the best precautions. Then you need your dependable Vicks VapoRub. Go straight to bed and massage it briskly on the throat, chest, and back for 3 full minutes. Then spread a thick layer of VapoRub over the chest and cover with a warmed cloth. Long after you relax into restful sleep, VapoRub's famous poultice-and-vapor action continues hour after hour—loosening phlegm, easing your cough, relieving irritation, helping to break up local congestion.

Sickness from Colds Cut In Half!

The two simple steps outlined above, together with a few sensible health rules, are the basis of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds. In the biggest colds-clinic ever held—with 17,353 people as subjects—Vicks Plan resulted in fewer colds and shorter colds. It cut sickness from colds more than half!

Just Between Us Women

Were you ever accused of being too soft-hearted? You knew it was true; you wished sometimes that the springs of your compassion could not be so easily tapped, and you also knew that many times you had been taken advantage of, that nearly everyone who came near you realized that they could arouse your sympathy and get you to do things for them.

And so you wished you were a little harder, that you could shut your ears and your heart to those demands that were being made constantly on you. You made resolves that you would harden yourself and not do as you had been doing, because you were exasperated at yourself and this softness which seemed a part in you, but whenever you thought someone was suffering, even altho' it were their own fault, you found yourself helping them again.

You advised, and it was not followed, and again you had to help, so what are you going to do with yourself? What can you do but follow the dictates of your heart? Hasn't God been good to you, hasn't He helped you even when you have been a fool and made mistakes, and aren't you only passing along some of that goodness when you help some other poor fool?

How little it is understood that if you become hard with one or two, you will be hard with all, and the very ones who counsel that, would resent it if applied to them. The thing is retroactive, meaning that it works both ways.

And how do we know that our Father does not want to have some soft-hearted ones in the world, to counter-act the selfishness and greed that is so prevalent? Because you cannot be like that without having a sort of understanding of what the other fellow is up against, and it is this same understanding, with pity for the other's weakness, which is the basis of all you do for them.

When you see the effects of a weak strain in another, aren't you tempted to say, "I am glad I wasn't born with that." Maybe if you had been born with their disposition, or had had their early training you might have been just like them, so you reach out in compassion to help them to their feet again.

It doesn't matter altho' you may have been gifted with common sense, it does not matter that you get mad to see them make such a muddle of things, you must apparently do your part, whether they do theirs or not.

I know our sort of people must exasperate our friends and relations, in fact they must feel like shaking us sometimes, but when one of the disciples asked how many times he had to forgive his brother who had sinned against him, our Lord said "unto seventy times seven."

Do not think I am counselling you to be weakly soft-hearted, thereby taking the strength away from the other, for there is a compassion which is ruination to all. You see it in a spoiled child, where the mother is too kind hearted to correct him. That way danger lies, so steer clear of it.

But where someone has made a misstep, where their folly has caught up with them, where they are making an effort to get back to where they were before, first you counsel them, and then you help, knowing that the road is slippery, and altho' they may have gone down fast, it is a hard climb upward, for what made it easy to slip down, makes it hard to climb back.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

X.L. Mission Circle Meets

Easter Thankoffering Meeting Held At Home Of Mrs. A. Wilson

The Easter Thankoffering meeting of the X.L. Mission Circle was held on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. A. Wilson, Westcott Street, with a good attendance of members and friends.

The program was arranged and presented by the vice-president, Mrs. R. Kitchen, with the opening devotions, including prayer, by Jean Hammond, and the Scripture lesson read by Jean Rose.

The reception of the thankoffering was followed by the dedicatory prayer offered by Mrs. A. Roxborough. Two fine readings, one of Annie Johnson Flint's, by Doreen Elliot, and another, "Not Omitting the Fourth Stanza," by Nancy Pooley, brought real messages of missionary inspiration. Interspersing these numbers were much-enjoyed musical selections, the first group being a Hawaiian guitar duet by Velma Scott and Gladys Blewett. A piano solo by Jean Meeks was also much appreciated.

The study period for the month was led by Eileen Doig, who gave an interesting interpretation of the chapter on "Women and Children." She told of the conditions under which the women and children of other lands live and pointed out the transformation which takes place when Jesus Christ is known and loved.

The president, Jessie Martin, conducted the brief business session, when the secretary and treasurer presented their reports. Various members expressed appreciation for cards sent during illness.

The singing of a favorite chorus, "Prayer Changes Things," and the benediction closed this part of the program. Two jolly contests followed, with Mrs. F. Vanpelt and Jean Rose as winners. Concluding the social hour, dainty refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mag Welch, Doreen Elliott and Dorothy Drysdale.

Be sure to read the human interest article on Dr. M. W. Locke of Williamsburg, Ontario, Canada, in the April issue of Pictorial Review now on sale. This is one of the most amazing stories of the age.

After years of clinical practice Dr. M. W. Locke discovered that many bodily ailments were caused by unhealthy feet, poor circulation and weak arches—primarily from wearing shoes incorrectly made and improperly fitted.

He developed certain theories concerning the treatment of feet and was so convinced that they were scientifically correct that he put them into practice.

His fame spread throughout the world. Foot sufferers began flocking to his clinic. Hundreds of ailing feet were and still are being treated every day—sometimes as many as 3000. An important part of Dr. Locke's treatment consists of scientifically designed shoes which he prescribes for his patients, as an aid in restoring the bones of the feet to normal—and in keeping them so. Because he couldn't find such a shoe he had one built according to his own specifications.

These are the shoes fitted to his patients. These are the shoes you can now be fitted to at our store.

Will Probably Be Solved

Lawrence Hewitt, 30, taxi-driver of Kitchener, was shot to death about two miles out of the city. He left his home in mid-evening in answer to a telephone call, saying at the time he would be back in about five minutes. He had not been robbed and he was not known to have any enemies. It is stated the speedometer showed the car had travelled 70 miles since the driver took it out. There were no marks of a struggle, and the body of the taxi-driver was lying on the side of the road near the car. Doctors say he had been dead nine hours when found, but it is not likely he would have been on the side of the road for any length of time as it is much travelled.

Early reports say the police have virtually nothing on which to work, and that may mean much or nothing at all. They know the car driver was shot; they know death came from a .32 bullet; and if that bullet was recovered it would be possible to know which one of many weapons fired it. It has all the appearances of a planned murder, and those who do the planning generally forget or overlook something which the officers unearth. The perfect crime is seldom if ever committed. It may take time and patience and careful work, but the history of crime leads to the belief that the Kitchener murder will be solved.

There Is Value in a Snub

T. D. Bouchard, leader of the Opposition in the Quebec Legislature, led his 14 followers from the House on Thursday night, and he will lead them back again. It all happened because Premier Duplessis refused to take seriously something which had been written by Prof. W. B. Pitkin of Columbia University about French-Canadians who settled in sections of United States, particularly the New England States, and worked for low wages. As printed, the article said the Professor would "rather have Alabama niggers than those muskrats," but the Professor says he never wrote such a phrase. Another spot in the letter referred to the French-Canadians as "the lowest specimens of humanity," but the Professor says that too had been "doctored up."

Dr. Pitkin explains he was writing about the serious unemployment problem in United States and the competition offered American workers by laborers from Japan, Canada and Mexico who worked sixteen hours a day for miserable wages, "living at the bottom of the scale, never learning to read. Everybody knows that is true."

What should the Legislature of a French-Canadian province do when such an attack was made on its people? First impulse would be to call for apology and retraction, and that of course would call more attention to the person who had penned the offending article. It is more difficult to exercise the degree of restraint needed to leave the writer of such material alone. An official snub is often more effective than a pointed rebuke.

Baseball Salaries

Professional ball players are putting in time trying to get as much money as possible for the 1937 season. They know they can stay in big league company only as long as they are fit and as long as they can help to win games. Winning games is what draws people to the box office.

Jerome Herman Dean of the Cardinals wants a straight $50,000 for his 1937 pitching efforts; he has been offered $22,500 plus a bonus, and is the one member of the Cardinals not signed yet. Lou Gehrig of the New York Yankees has placed himself in the $50,000 class, and the offer made to him is $36,000. Then there is Joe DiMaggio, also of the Yankees. He can have $15,000, which is $6,500 more than he was paid last year, but he maintains he is worth $17,500.

There was a time when baseball fancy turned to high prices for pitchers, but that idea has been scrapped. The basis of value is the pulling power of the player, no matter where he is. Babe Ruth was the high-priced man of all time in baseball, and he was an outfielder, but he got paid because when he came to the plate he could knock the ball out of the field. A player who is a great batsman has a better chance than others when it comes to the time when salaries are discussed.

Hitting the ball is the thing by which games are won, and people will go to see a winning team when they will not attend a game where the expectation is that the low team is in for another loss.

The Work of a Farm Woman

At a drama contest in Regina the regional award went to a gray-haired farm woman. There were eight contestants, but the play "Relief" was selected as the one which would be presented at the Dominion Drama Festival in Ottawa.

Mrs. Fred Bicknell wrote and directed the play, and participated as well. Her husband also took part in it. There were but four actors in the presentation and they represent a club of only ten members in the hamlet of Marshall, Sask., which boasts a population of 75. George de Warfaz, London playwright, selected it as by far the best presented at Regina, and his remarks were highly complimentary. He does not give praise where it has not been earned, for he told another set of contestants in their efforts "they had bitten off more than they could chew."

One might pause for a moment and wonder how it was that a woman living on a farm 250 miles north-west of Saskatoon would think of writing a play. A good many people imagine that folk who write plays or create paintings must wait until they hear a voice or get an inspiration, and then they depart to a new world of their own. But Mrs. Bicknell wrote the play; she was in it herself and she took her husband along and made an actor out of him. She had the good sense to deal with something of which she was aware, the struggle of a farm family in the drought-stricken region of the West, and with known material she proceeded to weave into the work the tragedy of the present. And after witnessing the finished product a competent playwright from Old London says it is good.

The whole surroundings are interesting and enlightening. As a rule when we think of plays and actors and playwrights we turn our minds toward great cities and great theatres. We do not think much of a prairie hamlet of 75 people producing the work of a gray-haired farm woman. But there it is. The farm-people in this case have been selected as the representative group to enter the final competition at Ottawa. And we hope they do well there.

Is This Another Record?

Always is there a search for a record. Not long ago the Examiner found one in the person of a Peterborough resident who had lived in the same house for 77 years. That one stands.

Looking through the paper, it was seen there had been a family celebration in the Sharpe family of Cavan Township, it having been 116 years since the first members of the family took up residence on the farm which has since remained in possession of the descendents. That in itself would hardly be a record for this district because there were settlers arriving in other parts a few years before that.

But the story went on to state that Miss Doris Sharpe is the teacher of Beachwood school. Two other sisters also follow the same profession. Miss Doris has the distinction of being the ninth Miss Sharpe to teach in Beechwood school, which was formerly, and apparently with good reason, known as Sharpe's school. And right there may be the record. Nine teachers, each of them a Miss Sharpe, and all of them at various times in the same school. Well—we will follow our former custom and refer to it as a record until some person convinces us that it is not.

Holding a Tax Sale

At the County Buildings in London, Ont., 400 parcels of property were offered for sale by the County of Middlesex. There were houses in such villages as Alisa Craig, Lucan and Wardsville; there were farms and building lots in subdivision near the city limits. Of these there were hundreds. There was a time when putting a new subdivision on the market seemed simple and possible. People got the idea they would like to move out of the city and escape high taxes; they would also have a bit of ground to work. There were many such lots on which no bids were received; in one place called Manor Park 100 lots were offered for the amount of taxes, but only a few were taken up.

For property in villages the demand was small, Wardsville being the only place from which buyers presented themselves. Only one 100-acre farm was sold and it went for $300, the amount of four years' taxes. The same buyer secured 60 acres of the farm adjacent for a similar amount. The system used was the same as that followed in most county tax sales. If there are bidders then the auctioneer starts. The property is never sold for anything more than the amount of taxes owing. The bidders offer to take a portion of the property and pay the taxes due. The one offering to take the least amount of property becomes the successful bidder.

The cheapest piece of property went to a bidder who secured a lot east of London for $3.51. There were many properties left on the list and an adjourned sale is to be held later in the month, and the announcement says all "properties will be sold even though the bids are below taxes owing."

It is difficult to say how much of this tax-sale property represents inability to pay taxes. Farms would, and so would houses in villages, but building lots are different. When a subdivision is opened near a city there are those who purchase land because they are going to use it. There are generally many more who go in with the idea of buying lots and then selling them after a few buildings put up by other people have increased the value of the place. No doubt many of the lots offered at London were the result of speculative buying in the first place.

Lethbridge, Alta., has not had a motor fatality since 1933 which speaks volumes either for the carefulness of the drivers or the agility of the pedestrians.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Now that the first robin has been reported it will not be long until some one rushes into the office to announce the arrival of the first straw hat.

Indianapolis reports the theft of numerous manhole covers. A few years ago the explanation might have been that someone was taking them home as phonograph records.

When a driver can be convicted five times for driving a car while drunk there is something wrong. After the second offence it should be made impossible for him to do any more driving.

Belleville is talking about spending $48,000 on flood control which sounds as if the Moira River was losing its chief opportunity of getting its name into the newspapers.

Toronto man visiting in New York has had his trailer stolen by thieves. There is one advantage a house has over these homes-on-wheels; it is not very easy for crooks to haul it away.

The House of Commons will not sit on St. Patrick's night. After all you could not expect the Irish members of the House to have their minds upon political matters on such an anniversary.

Two Edmonton citizens turned in calls for the fire department last year by trying to post letters in fire alarm boxes. Outside of suggesting they might try changing their brand we have no advice to offer.

A Windsor man was fined $166 for distributing information to assist in betting on horse races. If it was the kind of information that is sometimes handed out a jail sentence would have been more fitting.

An American motor cycle champion has succeeded in attaining a speed of 136 miles an hour. At the rate motor traffic is accelerating motor cycle constables will soon be forced to approach this record as part of the daily routine.

Loyalists in Spain say Italian troops were routed in a recent fight. And it is worth noting that the Italians could not be there without the knowledge, sanction and approval of the Italian government.

Apparently W. H. Moore is the only member of Parliament who does not like the trade pact with Great Britain. That fact however will not shake the member for Ontario's conviction that he is right in his stand.

Australia plans to survey her Antarctic possessions and Sir Hubert Wilkins wants Canadian assistance to locate Crocker Land in the Arctic for the Dominion. Evidently the Empire is not destined to remain static.

General Hugh S. Johnson was assigned the job of flaying the Nazis for so-called criticisms of America. When it comes to flaying anybody it must be admitted that the former NRA chief always has a good deal on the ball.

Famous engineer states that the San Francisco bridge accident which took ten lives was an error of human judgment. That is the factor that is responsible for most accidents of all kinds, on the highway and everywhere else.

Town of Strathroy delayed setting its 1937 tax rate until it found out just when it was going to get the equivalent of a mill from the provincial government. Evidently municipal faith has not yet attained the point where it will strike the tax rate one mill lower and be certain the native runner from Queen's Park will arrive in due season.

ON A VISIT

(By A. B. K.)

¶ I went to see my brother Jake, I gave his hand a friendly shake, he welcomed me with glee; his wife and children gathered round, they made a pleasant sort of sound, I was in time for tea.

¶ I talked with brother Jake in there, found comfort in an easy chair, and things were fine and gay; I was just getting used to that, when brother Jake put on his hat, for he was going away.

¶ It was the night he went to lodge, a duty which he could not dodge, he was the king pin there; right on the dot when they'd begin, the whole thing seemed to hang on him, he occupied the chair.

¶ And so I did the chores that night, and banked the furnace nice and tight, and split some kindling wood; at night I fastened all the doors, and helped at shining up some floors, and aided like I should.

¶ Next night my brother Jake lit out, he had a parcel fat and stout, it had impressive looks; another lodge was going to meet, and there Jake had another seat, he also kept the books.

¶ And every night that I was there, Jake raced to fill some kingly chair, he never stayed indoors; I think Jake spoke the truth quite square, when he said I was welcome there—for I did all his chores.

Our Statesmen At Their Labors

(Parliamentary Debates)

YES, GO AHEAD

Mr. SPEAKER: Order, I am sorry to interrupt the hon. gentleman, but he has exhausted his time.

Mr. MATHANK: May I ask the indulgence of the house to present this short argument?

Mr. SPEAKER: With the unanimous consent of the house.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Go ahead.

NOW GET THIS RIGHT

Mr. DUNNING: A moment ago you said a "million."

Mr. WOODSWORTH: Under relief.

Mr. DUNNING: You said, a million unemployed.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: If I said so I correct it. I should have said, in the first instance, "under relief," and I said just now that there were 400,000 unemployed. The minister suggests that these ill effects are very temporary. I suggest that to a dollar, gentlemen—

Mr. DUNNING: I think you interfered a little word "very." I do not think I used the word "very."

Mr. WOODSWORTH: That the ill effects were temporary.

Mr. DUNNING: You said "very temporary."

Mr. WOODSWORTH: The minister said:

Its ill effects are temporary; in the long run it increases employment by cheapening production.

Mr. DUNNING: That is right.

WE ARE ALL WRONG

Mr. ROWE: The first thing I want to condemn is the restoration of the reduction in the indemnity to members and senators. When the low bracketed income people who are rendering indispensable services for our daily well-being witness the spectacle of a group of well-paid people with the power to do it increasing their own salaries while there is a very palpable and evident lack of equity in the distribution of the national income, when the former are compelled to try to balance their personal budgets on a pathetically inadequate income, I say it is an exhibition of unctuous savagery. Again, to any member of the government or of this house who might be inclined to resent that, I say I do not mean it in a personal sense. But it is wrong and unmoral and un-Christian, and I protest against it.

In conclusion, Mr. Speaker, I have been thinking a great deal about the position of this country in relation to the rest of civilization. It seems to me that a civilization founded upon tyranny and injustice has no more right to continue than had the civilizations of Babylon, Nineveh, Rome and Greece. Indeed, a traveller from Mars standing among the ruins of ancient cities and empires, and seeing on every hand the fallen pillars of proletaire walls reminiscent of ancient glory, must ask the question—and this question must be asked by our own civilization—"Why did these cities fall; why did these empires crumble?" The ghost of the past or, if you like, the wisdom of the ages, answers, "These cities, these palaces and these temples, upon the ruins of which you stand, were founded upon tyranny and built upon injustice. The hands that built them were unpaid. The backs that bore the burden also bore the marks of the slave-drivers' lash. Those civilizations were destroyed as this civilization will be destroyed because they bought and sold the bodies and souls of men, women and children." And if there is any lesson to be gained from history, and any challenge to us in this generation, it is that no nation or no institution founded upon slavery or injustice can expect to survive.

Mr. DUPUIS: Mr. Speaker, I did not wish to interrupt the hon. member when he was speaking, but if I understood him correctly he said that the increases in salaries and in indemnities of members was unmoral. I should like to ask him if it is his intention to accept the increased indemnity?

Mr. ROWE (Athabaska): If the house would give me permission to answer the question, I should be very glad to do so. I said that, and I meant it. In answer to the query as to whether I shall accept the increase I say that I will, and I intend to use it in disseminating information among the people of Canada with respect to the infamies of this system.

SOME POOR LOAN AGENTS

Mr. VIEN: Mr. Speaker, I should like to point out to the house—

Mr. SPEAKER: I would direct the attention of hon. members to the fact that if the hon. member for Outremont (Mr. Vien) speaks now he will close the debate.

Mr. MACDONALD (Brantford City): If the Act is not sent to the committee, will the amendment, and the other company dealt with in the next bill, automatically pass out of existence?

Mr. DUNNING: No, they will continue as they now are.

Mr. VIEN: I can tell my hon. friend that they will continue to charge 2½ per cent interest under the general legislation now on the statute books. These bill tend to reduce the rate and to change the basis of their operations.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: They could reduce the rate if they wished to do so.

Mr. ROBERT FAIR (Battle River): This is legalized robbery. Instead of building them fellows increase their profits I think we should pass legislation, and do it quickly, to get out of these corporations which at the present time are bleeding the poor so charging them from 1½ to 2½ per cent per month. It is disgusting, let us do it now. I think we should get busy and cut out this highway robbery.

A Bit of Nonsense

It's On The Envelope

Five-year-old Billy was sent into the Post Office to ask for his father's mail. The postmaster not knowing him, asked, "What is the name, please?" and Billy replied, "Oh, the name is on the envelope."

EXPLAINED

CIVIC SHOCKS

Editor Examiner:

Sir: Sometime like the fuss of an alarm clock awakened the smug complacency of the city when the Rotary Club invited the Mayor of Lindsay to speak on civic reform; but the Club has a way of doing original things when opportunity beckons. Mayor Cecil C. Frost brought a message on November 11th that is well worth recalling at this time, when we need a telescope to look closely into the future.

Mr. Frost is a prominent member of the Bar and formerly of the Provincial Legislature, who has served his town for the last three years, when the public nerve was reduced to a negligible item and, at the same time, a more economic and efficient administration was installed. Lindsay's exceptional achievement was noted widely by the press of Canada, especially in the cities and towns of Ontario.

Neither Lindsay nor Peterborough were referred to by Mr. Frost, who in general described the abnormal increase of expenditure and debt until taxation had become intolerable, fairly overburdening real property. He said "The tendency with rents has been to go down, rather than up.... Real estate has in many ways become a liability, rather than an asset." His belief was that unless corrective measures are sought and gained by the communities many of them will "be forced into bankruptcy" and the national credit thereby endangered.

Incidentally the tables prepared by the City Treasurer show the ascendancy of Peterborough in the last three decades, as follows:

Year	Popula-tion	Tax Levy	Per Capita
1905	14,175	$114,611	$ 474
1915	20,853	339'048	622
1926	31,726	768,540	1,024
1936	33,073	995,809	1,068

Tax inequalities and relief perplexities have become major issues that cannot, in Mr. Frost's view, be met by the "municipal machinery" of eighty-seven years ago.

Soon after Mayor Frost's visit the local election loomed and then one of the most prominent barrister, the Hon. George N. Gordon, was nominated and on election day given a royal welcome into the City Council. He had been Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons, is a member of the Privy Council, and will therefore know what may best conserve the good name of the city to which he owes much and for which he is capable of doing much in the current spending opportunity.

Though Lindsay's information was not invited by the Provincial Legislature, Mr. Frost advised that communities in difficulty should "work through the Ontario Legislature" which in his opinion should appoint a Royal Commission "composed of outstanding and able men—to consider the overhauling of the whole municipal system."

There is some humor in the fact that while Mr. Gordon apparently agrees with Mr. Frost he is not waiting for the Royal Commission, since his first act in the Council was to frame his private bill for submission to the Ontario Legislature, against which protests are said to be pending in the Council and other spending bodies.

HOW MUCH LONGER?

Editor Examiner:

Sir: How much longer is this non-intervention joke going to last in Spain? From all news dispatches flooding the country it is no secret that Italy is still flooding the country with soldiers to defeat the Spanish government, while the rest of the civilized world looks on. Whether or not the legal government is considered "Red" is no excuse for other democratic countries turning their backs on rebel reinforcements. If we refuse assistance to their country we can't expect help ourselves should some nutty nation decide to stamp here. Communism gets rapped daily, while fascism, the real plague, advances unnoticed by many. Should Mussolini decide to attack Canada tomorrow, Canadians will be surprised at the number of fascist sympathizers right within our own borders who will line up behind him. Thanking you for the space in our daily paper, I remain,

CREATE CONFIDENCE

Editor Examiner:

Sir: If ever there was a deluge of empty talk regarding the building industry we are having it now in the exhortations to go in debt all 'o's to help the relief situation and don't hesitate to mortgage your future, etc., "ad infinitum, ad nauseam." It sounds much like the advice city people give to farmers. If the aldermen indulging in this would get busy in the council and give citizens definite assurance that repairs, painting, etc., would not mean more taxes it would create a confidence that cannot be produced by a mere plethora of words. Property owners have told me that they are afraid to use a paint brush lest it mean more taxes. The council should wake up and give leadership in this matter instead of being a drag on industry. Property owners require a definite policy on this matter, they cannot afford to go it blind and trust to luck that their improvements will not be taxed by the city.

Another disquieting factor is the attempt to divert city trust moneys from their proper channel. Apparently the only thing that will make a council economical is the impossibility of securing funds to spend.

What will the tax-payers gain from a $1,300 fence around the city yard? We don't think anyone will steal the incinerator at the yard or the stone crusher at the gravel pit.

What need have we for a second city engineer? It would just be another way to increase overhead expense. Fred Tuggey would be a real paying investment for the tax-payer because he knows how to work. He would not hesitate to take his coat off and show a man how to do the job. His experience on the property committee is of value and he knows when value is being given for money allotted.

If the Council would get behind Ald. MacIntyre and Ald. Wilson in this it would create a feeling that property owners are not to be further shod by a heedless overhead, and inspire a confidence in further improving property and building investment.

Many conditions of holding property such that owners will not be afraid to invest in the future. Make the workman's home a real possibility and raise low scale wages to a decent living level. The upper scale salaries can safely wait.

If the Council will do something practical instead of talk, they will not need to peddle building matters on a radio, washing machine (future mortgage) basis. Create confidence in the future tax-demands and there will be a quick response.

Yours truly,

PROPERTY OWNER.

COOKS AND TEMPER.

(New York Times)

FORD MADOX FORD, the British novelist, is of the opinion that the present ferocity of the world is the result of badly prepared food. When people have had cooking that fans indigestion and when they have indigestion they cannot be amiable with their fellows, and wars, everybody belonging to a race other than their own to be stood against a wall and shot.

It is an attractive theory, but it contains one or two flaws. Some people would say it reverses cause and effect; that Germany, for example, is not war-like at present because it has had bad food, but that it is reduced to food shortages because it is so warlike. But there is a more serious difficulty.

Among the world's worst cooks are the English, yet they are far from the most warlike people in the modern world. Further, cooking was no better in the Victorian era than it is now, but somehow the world was on the whole quieter and more peaceful. As a social theory, in short, Mr. Ford's conclusion is a little too sweeping, but as a theory that applies to many individuals it has a great deal to recommend it.

ALL ABOUT BEDS.

(Brockville Recorder and Times)

The luxury of a good bed is something to talk about, but what is a good bed to one person may be a very different thing to another. The pioneer can rest on good turf or balsam boughs as well as on an expensive mattress with good springs. In some countries the hard floor is the thing.

A generation ago the better bed was the aristocrat, with its towering canopy hung with curtains. Even yet in some places in Canada two feather ticks are used, one above and one below the sleeper. The old-fashioned "bed-tick" beds, some of which are still to be seen in old houses, had mattresses filled with fresh chaff.

But the downy bed into which one sank and drowned has been largely replaced by the mattress with springs, only varied on a summer vacation by the camp cot or sleeping bag. This change in fashion has created a flourishing industry which runs into six or seven million dollars in a year at factory prices. Last year there were nearly half a million mattresses of various kinds manufactured and they had a value of over three million dollars. Bed springs ran close to one million dollars.

Metal beds, cribs and couches accounted for three-quarters of a million and studio couches somewhat less. Wooden beds made in the furniture factories are not included in this category.

BIG BUSINESS.

(Ottawa Journal)

IF ANY one wants an answer to that famous question, "What does the Government do with our taxes?" they have but to watch the news from Parliament. Shortly after the House opened the main estimates were brought down, totalled $410,000,000. On Wednesday special supplementary estimates came along, totalled $90,000,000. Still to come are the supplementary estimates—about $15,000,000.

What it means is this: That this coming fiscal year Mr. Dunning will need over half a billion dollars to take care of all the Government's needs, of ordinary and capital expenditures, the National Railways, direct unemployment relief, drought relief, other works and projects for relief. About $10,000,000 every week. It takes a lot of taxes.

The truth is that government in Canada has become big business—the biggest business we have. The pity is that so many don't seem to realize this; go on asking for this reform and that regulation as though the Government had a Lake Shore mine behind the Library on Parliament Hill.

THE DRAIN OF RELIEF.

(St. Catharines Standard)

A REPORT presented to the City Council of Montreal shows $10,529,453 spent on relief in 1936, as compared with $11,537,894 in 1935. These figures do not include rental, medical expenses or the cost of street lighting, which are considered as separate items, and which would add substantially to both totals. The decline of less than 10 per cent between 1935 and 1936 is not impressive. That Montreal alone paid out approximately $1,000,000 a month last year to maintain its relief services suggests that the outlay in the whole country is still enormous, notwithstanding the fact that Canada is not now very far from the goal of normal industrial and business conditions. The Dominion government has no time to lose in getting a workable scheme of unemployment insurance into operation if the country is to get the full benefit of the new cycle of getting fortified intelligently against the next cycle of depression.

YOU BET YOUR LIFE.

(Kitchener Record)

IF A man were to bet $17,000,000 against $1 that he could toss a booklet into the air and catch it as it falls, he certainly would not thought to be foolish. He probably would win, but the small gain would not be worth the tremendous risk.

By the same token the pedestrian who runs all the remaining minutes of his life just to save a single minute by crossing the street recklessly, is an exceedingly foolish man.

In a booklet, "You Bet Your Life," which has just been issued, a prominent insurance company uses the above illustration, among others, to demonstrate the folly of gambling with your life.

And pedestrians, whether motorists or not, will have to agree that it is a powerful argument against carelessness on the streets.

RETURN TRUE BILL STRIKE ACCIDENT

Bowmanville Mayor's Car Alleged To Have Killed Orono Man

WHITBY, Ont., March 16 (CP). — The grand jury at the opening of the Supreme Court sittings for Ontario County under Justice Keller Mackay, returned a true bill in the case of Mayor Ross Birtle, Bowmanville, charged with manslaughter following the death of Foster Blewett, 20, Orono, who, it is alleged, was struck by the Mayor's car, February 20.

In the case of Stanley Bishop, Toronto, charged with manslaughter, a true bill was likewise returned. The charge against Bishop is the outcome of an accident on January 16, when the accused is alleged to have collided with Stephen Ryan, Oshawa, on King Street West, Ryan dying shortly after as a result of his injuries.

Owing to the lateness of the hour the Grand Jury adjourned until this morning, when they will consider the case of Robert E. Moore, Dundas, charged with manslaughter arising out of an accident on the Provincial highway, four miles west of Whitby.

Two Vags Get Term In Jail

Plead Guilty In Magistrate's Court To Charges Of Vagrancy

Joseph Lynch was sentenced to 5-weeks and Joseph Paul to 4-weeks imprisonment in the county goal, on their appearance before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., this (Tuesday) morning on joint charges of vagrancy to which they pleaded guilty.

Described as transients, the pair were stated by Inspector James F. Reid to have been arrested last week in an intoxicated condition when unable to give a satisfactory account of their movements.

Remarking to the court that the two accused were suspected of being implicated in theft of a bolt of black cloth from outside a local department store, the inspector said police were still continuing with the investigation and were anxious to get in touch with anyone who could give information leading to recovery of the cloth.

When Lynch and Paul urged leniency and said they wanted a chance to leave town, the Bench pointed to their previous police record and imposed sentences as stated above.

Urge Municipalities Hold General Ballot Upon Jobless Relief

Winnipeg Alderman Thinks People Would Vote It Federal Duty

'PEG AT ROPE'S END

No Cure For Situation Possible By Municipalities Mayors' Conference Told

OTTAWA, March 16 (C.P.). — A "strike vote" of Canadian municipalities against continuance of their present participation in the burden of unemployment relief was proposed before the Conference of Mayors here to-day by Alderman E. D. Honeyman of Winnipeg.

A referendum should be held in all municipalities before September 1, 1937, as to whether the municipalities consider relief a financial responsibility of the Dominion Government. If the answer were in the affirmative then the municipalities should state whether they were prepared to "discontinue participation in unemployment relief after September 1, 1937."

Resolutions had been passed at the last two conferences, said Alderman Honeyman, but they had apparently been pigeon-holed. his resolution, he said, was a democratic way of bringing the question to a head.

"We think we speak for the people —approximately 5,000,000 of them," he said. "The authorities in Ottawa occasionally say they want to know the will of the people. Let us inform them. Let us get together, hold this referendum and let the chips fall where they will."

A Useless Gesture.

There was no use passing the same pious resolution year after year, then going home feeling they had done their duty, he told the delegates.

His resolution, along with others, was referred to the Resolutions committee.

Municipalities, said Alderman Honeyman, had no control over the causes of unemployment so they should not be saddled with its effects. The Dominion might as well have disclaimed its responsibility for the war and shoved the war debt off on the municipalities.

The simple fact was that unemployment could not be successfully attacked by the municipalities.

They had reached the stage where they could no longer carry the burden. Winnipeg had reached its "absolute limit" of taxation on real estate, he said, and the basis of mathematics was inescapable.

"We can't go on. We had to curtail our service 33 1-3 per cent. Our employees have been cut 16 2-3 per cent, as no other civic employees have been."

To trace responsibility for the burden was a major duty which the whole country should undertake. The city of Winnipeg saw the end of the road before it already, he said.

"Right now we are being carried by the grace of the Bank of Montreal," he said. "I don't know how the Bank of Montreal got its reputation as a business organization when we can't pay, and we never can pay."

ONTARIO SPEED LAW IS MAKING US HYPOCRITES

Windsor Member Admits He Drives 65 M.P.H. And Thinks Many Others Do

ACT NOT RESPECTED

McQuesten Says Police Fear Magistrates Will Dispute Their Word On Recklessness

TORONTO, March 16—(CP).—Proposed abolition of the speed limit in Ontario and the substitution of a safe driving clause in the Highways Traffic Act was sent to the municipal committee of the Ontario Legislature last night. Traffic officers, Motor League officials and others will be called before the committee before a recommendation is made to the House.

James Clark (Lib., Windsor-Sandwich), sponsoring the bill, said the law made hypocrites out of every member of the House. Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways, opposed the bill as did George S. Henry, Conservative House leader. Premier Hepburn was neutral and suggested a study by committee.

The House did an unusual thing in giving second reading to a bill without being on record as endorsing its principle.

"A law to be respected must be respectable," said Mr. Clark. "I challenge any member in the House to get up and say he hasn't broken the speed law. It is not desirable to have the Prime Minister, the leader of the Opposition and the Cabinet Ministers breaking the law over which they have control."

Breeding Contempt For Law.

Children saw their parents breaking the law, said Mr. Clark, and indirectly a contempt for all law was bred.

"I've broken the law for years and I'm not ashamed of it," he said. "What I'm ashamed of is being a hypocrite and not having done my duty in seeking the repeal of this law."

Mr. Clark said his usual highway speed was 65 miles an hour. United States tourists, too, were accustomed to such high speeds and left with "bitterness in their hearts" after convictions for breaking the Ontario speed limit of 35 miles an hour.

Prevention of accidents would be heightened by more care in the issuance of licenses, contended Mr. Clark. The old, the maimed, the blind, the young, the stupid, the careless and the hysterical now have them.

Mr. Clark said his bill would make it easier to get convictions for reckless driving and would empower the magistrates to suspend licenses permanently for reckless driving.

"I doubt if we've reached the stage where we should abolish the speed limit," said Mr. Henry. "The speed limit is an easy way for the law to get the man who drives recklessly."

"Don't look at me; I'm not supporting this measure," Mr. McQuesten told Mr. Henry.

Mr. McQuesten said he received the proposal without much enthusiasm.

Officers Uneasy

"I don't know that a change in the law will affect the reckless driving situation," said the minister. "The traffic officers fear very much they won't be able to get convictions if the speed limit is abolished. They say they can't depend on the magistrates to trust their (the officers') judgements as to recklessness. The speed limit to-day is practically used for conviction of persons who drive recklessly. I can't see my way clear to accept the bill."

2 CANADIANS GET $31,115 PRIZES

First Day Of Draw Shows 65 Others With Tickets In Irish Sweep

DUBLIN, March 16.—(CP Cable.)—Two Canadians to-day drew cash prizes of $31,115 each as the Irish Hospital Sweepstake draw continued.

The residual prizes went to "Ned Snow Joe Ballah," with Ticket NM77202, and to "Fortunate," with Ticket EH18602.

Only the name-de-plume of the Canadian winners were given out. Yesterday, the first day of the draw, 65 Canadians drew horses, worth at least $3,000 each whether they start or not, and a lot more if they finish first, second or third in Friday's Grand National Steeplechase at Liverpool.

Besides the two residual prizes drawn by Canadians, seven went to the United States and one to Europe.

Eleven hundred consolation prizes of $500 each were also drawn, and a Canadian, "Ringworm" with Ticket QN20909, was the first out of the big drum.

Second Member of Family to Inherit Title Through Death of Brother.

LONDON, March 16—(C.P.)—The Parish of Stockcross, Berkshire, has a population of a mere 600, but its vicar has a name as imposing as any vicar in the realm.

Rev. the Hon. Leopold Colin Henry Douglas Campbell-Douglas, vicar at the hamlet since 1931, recently became the sixth Baron of Blythswood, through the death of his bachelor brother.

He is the second member of the family to succeed to the title through the death of a brother and the second clergyman to inherit it.

10,000 Bus Drivers Stay On Strike Paralyzing Majority Of Scotland

EDINBURGH, March 16 (C.P. Cable).—Ten thousand bus drivers on the Scottish Motor Transport Company remained on strike today, bringing highway transportation in virtually the whole of Scotland. In addition miners and steel workers in some localities were prevented from reaching their places of employment because of lack of the means of transportation.

The strikers were represented as determined not to return to work until their demands are granted. The bus company insists the drivers return to work before negotiations are started.

At the Theatres

AT THE CAPITOL

"CHAMPAGNE WALTZ."

"I want a king to welcome this band," demands Jack Oakie of his Teutonic Viennese employer.

"But we have no king; this is a republic."

"All right then, bring on your republicans," agrees the lad with the cheerful visage, the gradually thickening waistline and the manner that always gets him a big hand. (This reviewer can't help regretting the fact that Jack Oakie isn't doing all he could do with that personality in the semi-risque, comedy-ing pigeonhole now).

Although the pretty little singer with the lovely speaking voice that matches her beautiful singing tones (and all these songbirds don't possess pretty speaking voices) has plenty of scope for her work in this picture (she sings "Paradise in Waltz Time" and "Could It Be I'm in Love" with splendid effect and not too much display of dentures), Gladys Swarthout is only one of the interesting musical that drags in the blithe Oakie and the carefree Fred MacMurray, to round out the story, which depends to a great extent on its rapid-fire and humorous dialogue.

There is also, however, the Countess, who takes "Topsy" Gallagher (Jack Oakie) for a ride, along with the late Tsar's silver tea service; there is the song of the merry-go-round, with a dancing pair named Volea and Yolanda doing their sensational stuff; there is an inset scene, with the late Richard Strauss directing his famous 'Blue Danube' waltz for the energetic (and no doubt perspiring) dancers of a shadowy ballroom; there is much stress on chewing gum; and, we have no doubt, a certain amount of kidding on the jazz age in the scene in which the musicians as trained seals, and these hideous revolving dancing figures, take part. The bit is good where the high-bettied, frock-coated members of the Viennese welcoming committee succumb to the lure of 'swing' music, and there is a priceless moment when the tough 'angel child' sings a lullaby.—C.L.M.

Drunk Saw Car Ahead and Went to Follow, But It Was Parked

OKLAHOMO CITY, March 16.—(CP).—Ben Dancy, oil field inspector, came upon the scene of a motor accident. One car was empty. He inquired what happened.

"I had a few drinks and knew I couldn't drive very straight," Dancy quoted the remaining driver, "so I saw this car ahead of me and figuring I would follow it down the street."

The car was parked.

Campbellford Club Is Told Story Of Dr. T. J. Barnardo

Rev. B. Simpson Black Tells How Work For Dependent Children Started

200 HOMES OPERATED

CAMPBELLFORD, March 16 — Rotarians on Monday listened to a very interesting and inspiring address by the Rev. B. Simpson Black. Speaking before the club at its weekly luncheon held in the St. Lawrence Hotel Rev. Black gave an account of the life and work of Dr. Thos. J. Barnardo "father of fatherless boys."

Introducing his subject he spoke of the great impetus toward moral and social reform which was precipitated by the Evangelical Revival of the 19th Century which made many who had received bible instruction eager to have some one [illegible] trade, cock fighting, dog fighting, gambling, and the criminal code which left free fellons liable to be punished by death for the attempt including the unlawful shooting of a rabbit on a gentleman's estate were all social conditions which passed with the century.

Sympathy For Underdog

The 19th century brought an increase in new sympathy and compassion for the underdog and the names of Wilberforce, John Howard, Elizabeth Fry and Lord Shaftesbury will go down in history. It was the work of Shaftesbury and Barnardo which first brought attention to the destitute condition of these homeless English boys and girls. Doctor Barnardo who was for years interested in his thinking by such writers as Voltaire, becoming a sceptic and [illegible] an Evangelist and travelled around where he saw the conditions of neglect so terrible that he determined to do something to alter these social conditions.

He died at the age of 60 leaving this world with the reputation of being the first social worker in British history. It was while attending medical school in London that his desire to bring about social reform [illegible] tion of the hundreds of homeless waifs really took form.

Where It Started

Walking through the slums of London on a dank cold night and seeing 73 bare headed and bare footed boys of all ages sleeping in boxes, crates, and barrels formed the seed in the mind of this great social worker which later grew into what are now known as the Barnardo Homes through which 120,000 destitute boys and girls have passed. The institution has now grown in size to the extent that there are now over 300 of these Homes which are every month visited by child experts and government officials interested in this work. The workshops and training of these institutions has turned thousands of these fatherless children into useful members of society.

"As long as the laughter of boys and girls is heard through the centuries Barnardo's influence will live," the speaker concluded.

New Rebel Drive On Madrid Hurls Back Loyalist Front Lines

Sweeping through the Loyalist lines outside Madrid in an advance led by a complete division of Italian troops and backed by German artillery, the insurgent Spanish army swept down upon the capital in what is believed to be General Francisco Franco's final offensive to smash the government defence. Terrific bombardments heralded the "big push," while hundreds of thousands of Madrilenos, still preferring to risk death in the streets to leaving their few possessions behind and seeking safety in flight, cowered in the capital. Incessant artillery and aerial bombardments have already turned Madrid into a veritable No Man's Land. The scene at lower right, taken in one of the city's principal streets, illustrates the havoc that has been wreaked. One of the mothers who still survives the ordeal is pictured lower left, her great fear for her child still evident. At the top is shown one of the government lines in the hills surrounding the capital. Under the hammering of Franco's Italian infantry, Moorish cavalry and Nazi artillery, the loyalists fell back from their front lines and took up new positions in the Tajuna valley. Observers believe that Franco's great thrust may determine at last the fate of the capital and of the civil war.

Girl 19, Widowed In Honeymoon Crash Forbidden Attend Husband's Funeral

WINDSOR, Ont., March 16—(CP)—Widow at 19 after being a bride of only a few hours, Mrs. Adrienne Curtis, Windsor, did not attend the funeral of her husband, Glen, 24-year-old Windsor shoe manager in Delaware, Ont., yesterday. Curtis was critically injured in an automobile accident for which the best man at the wedding, Clare Jewell, Windsor, faced a charge of criminal negligence.

Curtis died of a fractured skull and other injuries in hospital here Saturday, a few hours after the car in which he and his bride were passengers skidded on ice-covered pavement near Tilbury, 30 miles east of here and overturned in a ditch. Curtis was pinned beneath the wreckage while Jewell, the driver, escaped unhurt.

The widow, formerly Adrienne des Chenes, did not suffer serious injuries but she is confined to bed in her home under care of doctors. Physicians forbade her to attend the funeral for fear of further shock in her weakened condition.

The bridegroom was buried in the family plot at Delaware, 14 miles southwest of London. Services were conducted by his father, Rev. J. K. Curtis, United Church minister, who only Friday night performed the marriage of his son to Miss Des Chenes.

Jewell was lodged in Tilbury Jail after the crash but was later released on $2,000 bail. In company with Carl Curtis of Detroit, brother of the dead man, he drove to Delaware to-day to attend the funeral.

BRAKEMAN'S DEATH TERMED ACCIDENT

Jury Unable To Determine If Havelock Man Jumped Or Fell

KINGSTON, Ont., March 16 (CP)—Inquest into the death of Harry Buchanan, Havelock brakeman, killed March 6 near Echo Siding, was held Saturday at Tichborne, 45 miles north of here, the jury finding that the brakeman's death was accidental.

Evidence was given that the Canadian Pacific Railway freight train left Smith's Falls for Trenton about 11.15 p.m. Buchanan was on the cab with Engineer Harry Burnett, and at Echo Siding, six miles from Tichborne, he had apparently climbed out of the cab and made ready to throw the switch to allow the freight to take a siding. It is not known if Buchanan actually jumped from the train or fell.

When the switch was not opened other members of the train crew did so and a search for the missing brakeman disclosed the body of Buchanan, whose skull was fractured, and who had been dragged some 40 feet.

OBITUARY

SYDNEY A. SMITHSON

KITCHENER, March 16. — The funeral of Sydney A. Smithson, late principal of Suddaby School, was held here on Monday. He died at his home, 125 Lancaster street, early Friday morning after a week's illness from influenza.

Mr. Smithson was born in Peterborough 61 years ago and has been teaching in various Ontario schools for 38 years. During the last 20 years the deceased has been a member of the Kitchener teaching staff and has been principal of the King Edward and Suddaby schools for nearly 16 years. Mr. Smithson was actively identified with the Federation of Men Teachers in Western Ontario.

In addition to his activities as a teacher of exceptional ability, Mr. Smithson was active in Masonic circles, being a charter member of Twin City Lodge No. 808, A.F. & A.M., of which he was the senior warden in 1916. He was a Past Grand Senior Steward of the Grand Lodge of Canada in Ontario and was also a member of the Kitchener Chapter Royal Arch Masons, No. 171.

He is survived by his wife, two sons and one daughter — John, George and Evelyn, all of Kitchener —four brothers, J. T. A., of Toronto; Morley R., Howard and Fred, of Peterborough, and two sisters, Mrs. J. D. Weir, Kitchener, and Mrs. T. A. Macdonald, of Tocuito. He was an active member of St. John's Anglican Church, where a public burial service was held today.

Attending the funeral were the late Mr. Smithson's brothers from Peterborough.

3 WOMEN BURNED IN LAUNCH BLAST

Scores Others Hurt As Sightseers Are Being Taken To German Warship

HALIFAX, March 16—(CP)—Three women were in hospital here as authorities pushed investigation of an explosion aboard the launch Thor II as the craft was transporting sightseers to the German warship Schlesien in the harbor yesterday. Scores suffered minor injuries.

Three-score persons aboard the little harbor launch were thrown into a state of panic when the craft burst into flames after a sudden explosion alongside the anchored German naval training ship Schlesien in mid-harbor.

A small fleet of launches, also carrying visitors to the German warship, rushed to the side of the Thor II and helped screaming and milling passengers from the burning motorboat.

A boatload of German sailors, leaving the warship for shore leave, assisted in removing panic-stricken men, women and children from the flaming motorboat. Another boatful of sailors was dispatched to fight the flames with fire extinguishers until arrival of the fire-tug Banshee and the Royal Canadian Mounted Police cutter MacDonald.

for power recently entered into between the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission and the Ottawa Valley Power Co.

An important piece of legislation approved on second reading yesterday was the Farm Products Marketing Act. It was almost an exact pattern of the invalidated Federal Natural Products Marketing Act, said Hon. Duncan Marshall, minister of agriculture, but would apply only to Ontario.

Under an arrangement between Ontario, Quebec and the federal government the inspectors under the Natural Products Marketing Act will carry on. They will be formally appointed by the two provincial governments but Ottawa will pay their salaries.

Hon. David Croll piloted through second reading his bill to transfer the administration of the Industrial Standards Act to the industry and labor board, not yet selected, through second reading without opposition.

Another of Mr. Croll's bills to receive second reading was that to transfer the administration of the Apprenticeship Act to the Industry and Labor board. He said a racket had developed in connection with trade schools and they would now come under the jurisdiction of the new board.

Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, minister of health, introduced a bill aimed to curb the growing use of codeine and veronal. The bill would place codeine, veronal, amidopyrine and [illegible] acid in the group of habit-forming drugs, obtainable only on doctor's prescriptions.

Second reading was given to a bill to extend to the Burlington Beach commission practically all the powers of a municipal council. The area was put under commission control when it was exclusively a summer resort but now there were many permanent residents, Mr. Croll said. The area will not be erected into a separate municipality for the present.

EIGHT PASSENGERS SAVED FROM FIRE

Warship Covers 350 Miles in 12 Hours After Call From Burning Freighter

HONOLULU, March 16—(AP)—Calm despite their experience of being rescued from a fire-swept freighter in heavy seas, eight passengers of the British freighter Silverlarch made plans today to continue their "round-the-world voyage."

The Silverlarch was due here today under convoy of four United States navy destroyers.

The voyagers, including two elderly persons, were taken aboard a launch from the cruiser Louisville Saturday when fire in the No. 3 hold of the freighter broke out for the third time and led Captain F. M. Henderson to ask for immediate assistance.

The trim fighting ship, 350 miles away, reached the freighter in approximately 12 hours. Forty minutes after arriving beside the wallowing Silverlarch the Louisville was on its for not admitting Danish hogs was the foot and mouth disease but, he said, the latest book in the department on this disease was 30 years old.

Dr. Blair said he had told an official the members of the agriculture committee should get reports from the department's livestock market service. He had been told the reports were sent and on looking up the list he had found the names of members of parliament either dead or defeated. The list had not been revised for six years.

When the committee took up article six and schedule four fixing a maximum duty on a long list of United Kingdom products, John R. MacNicol (Cons. Toronto-Davenport), declared Canadian industry was hampered by "incessant tariff tinkering." He was speaking on behalf of the industrial worker who was the one most affected. Ontario was proposing minimum wages but he questioned how this could be done when there was no permanency in tariff schedules.

With the prime minister representing a Saskatchewan seat and the finance minister and minister of agriculture both former premiers of Saskatchewan, the government was spending considerable time looking after the interests of that province, Mr. MacNicol said. He suggested the government occupy itself in the interests of the industrial workers of Ontario, "or they can't continue putting up the money for Saskatchewan."

Not Robbers Or Bandits

Manufacturers of farm implements and machinery were "not the robbers or bandits we so often hear them described as," Mr. MacNicol said. "Their workmen were the best in the world and their interests should not be prejudiced by tariff action.

Conservative leader Bennett said Canada could not go on using the British market as a convenience and the United States market as a regular outlet and hope to retain the British market. The result of such a policy was that when prices were favorable in the United States no meat was shipped to Great Britain and the British trade was left in a difficult position. It then had to turn to Denmark, Poland or Russia for increased quantities and it was not always easy to obtain them on short notice.

"Tariff or difficulty," said Finance Minister Dunning.

10,000 Cattle a Month.

Canada should guarantee to ship 10,000 cattle to the United Kingdom each month, said Mr. Leader. The Government should set out to secure these cattle by a subsidy to the farmers or some other method to overcome the natural tendency to ship to the United States when prices were higher there.

Miss Blackmore, Social Credit leader, thought the subsidy suggestion a good one and wondered what other proposal Mr. Bennett might have in mind.

The habit of using the British cattle market as a convenience could be overcome without a subsidy, Mr. Stephens believed. There were only a few shippers and by co-operation between the shippers, the shipping companies and the government, the movement could be stabilized.

Dealing with bacon, Mr. Stevens said one difficulty was that Canada had not made a genuine effort to get on the British market the best bacon produced in Canada. Into grade one bacon was allowed to go meat from light and heavy hogs as well as from selects.

The British bacon market was of great importance to Canada as it fixed the price of hogs in Canada. There was something wrong in this as Canadian bacon brought a much lower price than Danish bacon. The Danes got as much as 19 shillings a hundredweight more than Canadians for bacon and the quality of the Canadian product compared favorably with the Danish.

Price Methods Unfair.

Mr. Stevens submitted the method of fixing the price of Canadian bacon in Great Britain was unfair. A committee composed of British importers and distributors fixed the price and although some of them represented Canada Packers they could be expected to look after their own interests first. The packers were protected because they knew what to expect, but the farmer suffered.

Canada could produce hogs as cheaply as Denmark and pack them as cheaply. It was important the Canadian farmer secured the maximum benefit from the preference accorded by the treaty in the British market and receive a fair price.

In the last six years the farmers had suffered as never before from low prices for livestock and the packing industry had enjoyed the most prosperous period in its history, Mr. Stevens said. That, he said, was significant and in considering any steps the government should bear it in mind.

"We should scrutinize some of the excuses that are being given the farmers for the low prices they receive for their products," he said.

R. J. Deachman (Lib., Huron North) presented figures purporting to support his contention that protective tariffs improved the state of industry, showing that in Hamilton industrial employment increased by almost 10,000 workers from 1921 to 1930 under the low-tariff Liberal government and dropped back almost to the 1921 figure under the five years of Conservative tariff policies.

To-day the House will take up two resolutions of the Minister of Agriculture dealing with regulations for the handling of feed stuffs and seeds, also the bill to extend the privileges on the Old Age Pensions Act to blind, 60 or more years old, returning later to consideration of the budget resolutions.

the 117,000 ballots on the strike question pouring into headquarters here were almost unanimous in favor of a walkout unless the railways met the 10 per cent. increase recommendation of the Railway Conciliation Board's minority report.

Majority report of the board, which last year investigated claims of the men for return of 10 per cent. cuts, was for reduction of the decreases by three per cent. This the railways have agreed to.

To-day, preparing for the general meeting on Thursday, the officers of the 17 running trade unions held informal meetings in privacy. Howard B. Chase, chairman of the Railwaymen's General Conference Committee, was back after Ottawa conference with the Minister of Labor, but he had nothing to say on the question of a settlement rumored to have been effected in the capital.

Lieut.-Col. Max R. Sloan Is Elected For Third Term President Canadian Legion

Past Debts And Liabilities Cleared With Exception Of Mortgage

PRINCIPAL REDUCED

President was established by Branch 52 of the Canadian Legion on Monday night, when Lieut-Colonel M. R. Sloan was returned to office as president for his third successive term. Previously all presidents have occupied the chair for not more than two successive terms. Lieut.-Colonel W. Gordon Hall, V.D., was elected as 1st Vice-President, with Major H. K. Clifton, M.C., 2nd Vice-President. Other officers of the Branch were named as follows:

Executive—Robert Hendry, D. A. Loomis, M.C., G. H. Cutmore, D. Douglas, A. E. Everett, E. O. Hardie, W. F. Hayske, K.C.

Joint Chaplains— Captains the Rev. George B. Easton and Captain the Rev. P. J. Kelly.

Sergeant-at-Arms—W. Gracie.

Trustees—G. H. Cutmore, R. Long, Mayor George A. Macdonald, W. F. Hayske, K.C., Gordon S. Matthews.

Confidence Justified

Prior to turning the meeting over to Comrade Everett, who presided during the election of officers, Colonel Sloan reviewed the past year's activity of the branch, remarking that the confidence he had expressed at the beginning of his term had been entirely justified.

He said the past year had been an auspicious one for the branch in the fact that past debts and liabilities had been cleared, with exception of the mortgage, and he added a good start has been made on reducing the last mentioned item.

Acknowledging the whole-hearted cooperation of every member of the branch in attaining such splendid results, he extended his thanks for the support that had been extended to him and hoped the incoming officers and executive would be of the same high calibre.

Referring to the loss by death of several members during the past twelve months period, Colonel Sloan made special reference to the passing of "our late beloved comrades Jim Abraham and Bert Gash. "Both gave of their time unsparingly and in some cases, I regret to say, without due appreciation of their efforts for the returned men of Peterborough, and we miss them greatly," he stated.

A Sound Position.

Touching on the finances, the president declared that under Colonel Hall all accounts had been carefully scrutinized and the branch was adopting a pay-as-you-go policy.

"Comrade Hall has been a good watch dog of our treasury and with his committee has made certain of every possible economy in our operations and this condition should continue. Efforts should be made to reduce our mortgage rapidly to eliminate the large item of interest," he urged.

He stated that the various financial efforts through the year, such as the Poppy Day, Tag Day and Warrior's Ball had been more successful than for years past. Acknowledgement was made of the city's grant for the year 1936 of $500 and for the same amount that was granted this year.

Tribute was paid by the president to the work of the Ladies' Auxiliary under presidency of Mrs. Walter Hughes, which in addition to giving a magnificent donation of $160, assisted in suppers and took a large share of the relief work.

"They are undoubtedly the best Ladies' Auxiliary of any branch of the Legion in Canada and I cannot as president of this branch, fail to give them not only my personal thanks but those of this branch. They are always eager and anxious to help and no words of mine can express my gratitude to MUCH ACTIVITY and commotion, in the pursuit of pleasure as well as business, are forecast from the dominant lunar and mutual aspects. Employment is favored, although there may be some change of plans in which elderly persons or substantial institutions may cooperate. But refrain from tempestuous, hasty, rash or violent conduct. Opposition may be overcome with tact and cleverness, not strife. Crafty correspondence might be efficient in this effort.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a lively year, with much stirring both in business and private pursuits. Employment is under fair prospects, but it may call for changes, possibly at the instigation of friendly elders. But take care not to be reckless or tempestuous with these friends.

A child born on this day may be

Mrs. Hughes and her members, especially Mrs. Joseph Mills, who has charge of relief work," he acknowledged.

The House and Property committee under chairmanship of Major Clifton was commended on its work during the past year, while the president's report also touched on the work of the recreation, entertainment, and club committees.

Referring to the work of the pensions committee, Colonel Sloan declared the branch was fortunate in securing such a capable worker as Doug Loomis to fill the gap left by Jim Abraham. "This is the second largest problem of returned men."

The Employment committee, a new departure in recent years, was faithfully administered under the leadership of A. E. Everett, and the president remarked, he was pleased to see the Hon. G. G. Powers, Minister of Pensions, attacking the unemployment problem as it applies to ex-service men, with greater vigour.

It was reported the membership of the branch has increased as general conditions have gradually continued to improve, but the opinion was expressed that an energetic campaign to interest more returned men in the work of the Legion was long overdue.

The Rambling REPORTERS

GOES ONE BETTER.

Myer Levine, local clothier, Monday told a yarn which brought expressions of pained disbelief to the faces of even the members of the Peterborough Absinian Club.

"Well, boys," he said, "I'll never forget the first time I went fishing up at Curve Lake. We loaded our equipment into a skiff which had an outboard motor on the end and started across the lake to where the good fishing was. About three-quarters the way over and bang! The boat stopped and the motor started to race. The guide reached around and shut off the motor and, just as he did this, an eight-foot lunge jumped clear of the water, shook his head a couple of times, and spit out the propellor belonging to our motor.

"I was startled and called to the guide, 'For the love of Mike, throw out the anchor and let's fish here!'

"He just turned around, picked up the oars, and said: 'Oh, no. It isn't far. I guess I can row the rest of the way over to where the big ones are'."—C.P.K.

At Monday's meeting of the Rotary Club it was announced that little Lenore Gordon, the club's protege, had made a very fine showing in an amateur hour broadcast over CFRB on Sunday. Her singing and tap dancing were apparently enjoyed by the audience judging by the applause.

SEEK CREDIT ADJUSTMENT.

Twenty-seven applications for aid under the Farm Creditors' Arrangement Act are on Col. T. J. Johnston's list at present waiting for disposal.

AT THE EMPRESS HOTEL.

Among the guests registered at the Empress Hotel are R. M. Overholt of Saskatoon, Sask., C. E. Palmer, London, and Mrs. F. C. Ecksworth, Toronto.

GEORGE STREET HOLE.

In regard to a remark at a recent meeting of the Board of Works that George Street north was in good condition and would not need resurfacing this year, a reader of the Examiner says there is a hole on the east side of the street about two hundred yards north of Park Hill Road "which eventually will cause an accident if it is not fixed, and as this is on the direct road to the hospital it will not be far to transport a victim."

TO RUN SPECIAL TRAIN.

William Prindible of the C.N.R. office here stated this morning he would run a special train for hockey fans to-morrow to Lindsay or Cobourg if the third playoff game between Barrie and Peterborough is held in either place. Local officials were busy to-day telephoning these places, Barrie and the O.H.A. secretary in Toronto, in an effort to decide on the place for this important contest.

CHEQUES ARE LARGER.

The proprietor of one of the downtown stores which makes a practice of cashing workers' cheques on Friday, reports prosperity is returning in high gear. Cheques tendered for cash have been increasing in size and number steadily during the past year. The increase in the size of the cheques is believed to be the result of increased wages and overtime work. The appearance of new faces each week indicates increased payrolls, he said.

PETERBOROUGH EXCITED.

Judging from the telephone calls received by The Examiner Monday night, Peterborough was very much excited over the junior hockey game with Barrie. The inquiries started early, in fact some of them came before the game had got under way and they kept up until a late hour.

FINED FOR BLANKET THEFT.

A man who said he was from Campbellford and a woman who gave a Peterborough address were fined $10 and costs each, amounting to a total of $39.50, when they pleaded guilty before Magistrate A. W. Gee in Lindsay police court to a charge of stealing a blanket from a Lindsay hotel.

RELEASED FROM HOSPITAL.

Allan Oke of this city has been released from Nicholls Hospital, where he was treated on the week-end for injuries he sustained when run over by a truck. The young man attempted to climb aboard the truck when the driver slowed to offer him a lift. He missed the running-board and fell, one wheel passing over his body, breaking an arm and injuring a leg. Formerly of Port Hope, Mr. Oke has been employed here for the past year.

GOOD ATTENDANCE.

Schools in East Peterborough with good attendance for February are reported as follows by Public School Inspector Leo Cupp: Westwood, S.S. No. 8, Asphodel, Birdsall's Vanstone, S.S. No. 2, Burleigh, S. S. No. 3, Burleigh, S.S. No. 5 Burleigh, Lansdale, Owenbrook, S.S. No. 3, Douro, Auburn, S.S. CORONATION MEETING.

The public generally is invited to attend the meeting Mayor Macdonald has called for Wednesday evening at 7.30 o'clock in the council chamber for the purpose of planning a celebration of the coronation of King George and Queen Elizabeth. Representatives of service clubs have been specially mentioned for the reason that they have an immediate connection with their respective organizations, but Mayor Macdonald said to-day that every citizen who has any helpful idea for the proposed celebration is urged to be present.

STILL SAY PLEASE.

The natural politeness of Peterborough people has been a mirksome thing to overcome, a Bell Telephone official said today. For some time the company here, as elsewhere, had been urging its subscribers from saying please when asking for a telephone number, the word "please" being too readily confused with "three." These efforts have met with a considerable degree of success, but many subscribers feel obliged to say "Please!" after announcing the numbers they desire. The company appreciate such courtesy, but the operators are glad to take for granted the subscriber's politeness in the interests of speeding up service, the official said.

Norwood Auctioneer Is Fined $25.00 For Doing Business Without License

"Most auctioneers carry more money than that in their pockets to make change," exclaimed Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., in surprise when Tony Andrews, 45, of Norwood, asked for time to pay a fine of $25 and $5 costs.

Andrews' request, which was granted by His Worship, was made after he pleaded guilty this (Tuesday) morning to a charge of carrying on business as an auctioneer without a license. The information was laid by Provincial Constable David Sylvester under provisions of a by-law of the County of Peterborough regulating auctioneers, to take out a license costing twenty-five dollars per annum.

Speaking on his own behalf, Andrews declared he has been carrying on business as an auctioneer for the past nine years, and had failed to renew his license because he had got the idea confused with a license to hold in Northumberland County, and thought he did not have to renew it until July next.

V. J. McKinery, K.C., represented the County of Peterborough.

Jews Launch An Anti-Nazis Drive In U.S.

German - American League Seeks Arrest Of Volksbund Leader In Detroit

BOYCOTT ADVOCATED

NEW YORK, March 16—(A.P.)—Propelled by an explosive public outburst against Chancellor Hitler of Germany and his political philosophies, a drive against Nazis in America was crystallized to-day in an attempt to obtain the arrest of one of their leaders.

Major Julius Hochfelder, in behalf of the German-American League of Culture, announced his determination to seek a warrant for the arrest of Fritz Kuhn, of Detroit, whom he described as the head of "an alien military organization," on a charge of violating New York's penal laws.

Hochfelder was scheduled to go into court in Yorkville, New York's German community, to-day to ask the arrest of Kuhn and two of his aides on the charge they had failed to file with the Secretary of State a certificate disclosing the purposes of their society, the Amerika-Deutscher Volksbund.

Hochfelder asserted the Volksbund was "an alien military organization, an agency of the Hitler government.

Former counsel of American Jewish war veterans Hochfelder has appealed to President Roosevelt and the War Department in an effort to outlaw Nazi organizations in this country and, if possible obtain deportation of their members.

25,000 Turn Out at Rally

A rally of critics of Nazism last night which filled Madison Square Garden—it is approximately 20,000—brought from Mayor Fiorello Laguardia the assertion he would repeat his characterization of Hitler as a "Brown-shirted fanatic" as often as the occasion demanded.

Laguardia's recent proposal before a group of Jewish women that the German dictator be depicted in a "Chamber of Horrors" at New York's World Fair in 1939 precipitated protests by the Berlin and Washington governments as to the Mayor's remarks and subsequent replies in the German press.

John L. Lewis, head of the Committee for Industrial Organization; Hugh Johnson, former NRA Administrator and other speakers at the rally called for a boycott of German goods. The meeting was sponsored by Jewish leaders.

As police swarmed about entrances to the Garden to prevent hostile demonstrations, Lewis shouted that Germany had "reverted to the Middle Ages" and that its workers had been "degraded almost to serfdom." Johnson, deleting from the prepared text of his speech a number of caustic references to Joseph Stalin and his regime in Russia, said, "Adolf Hitler and his immediate staff of Nazi nabobs have become a sort of monster threatening the peace of the world."

Two Members Still Remain

Alexander Paisley Also Member Of Old Fire Brigade Band

In his reminiscences of the old Fire Brigade Band which under the leadership of the late Finch W. Miller won first prize at the Toronto Exhibition in 1879, William F. Green said he was the only member of that company of musicians still living.

Mr. Green will be interested to know that his fellow bandsman, Alexander Paisley, shares with him the memories of that afternoon in Toronto fifty-eight years ago. The Examiner has received the following letter from Miss Barbara Paisley of North Providence, Rhode Island, referring to the interview with Mr. Green which was published some weeks ago:

"In one of the recent editions of The Peterborough Examiner an article appeared about the Fire Brigade Band of 1879. It was stated in this article that it was thought that Mr. William Green was the only living member.

I wish to state that Mr. Alexander Paisley, my grandfather, who is still living, enjoyed very much reading about the band in which he played. Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Paisley expect to celebrate their fifty-eighth wedding anniversary on June 16. They reside at 6 Lockout Avenue, No. Providence, Rhode Island."

Queen Mother Ill

Dowager Queen Marie of Roumania, one of the most colorful members of European royalty, was reported ill at Bucharest, Roumania, from intestinal poisoning. Members of her family were summoned to the bedside of the 62-year-old queen mother. She was born in England, eldest daughter of Alfred, Duke of Edinburgh, who was the second son of Queen Victoria. In 1893 she married Prince Ferdinand who later became King of Roumania. He died in 1927. Eldest of her six children is King Carol of Roumania.

With the Boy Scouts

News. Yes, a-plenty.

How way down south at St. George's, Douglas Moscrop and Jack White were invested as Sixers, receiving their badges of office from Akela Mrs. Lanzhorne. In a scout-up ceremony, Bob Dorrell and Andrew Brown were received into the troop from the pack. Andrew is the fourth Cub to have the privilege of wearing the Leaping Wolf badge on his Scout uniform, being a Second Star Cub. Happy hunting, boys.

Scouter George Houghton invested Edward King, James McCormick, Delbert Williams and Norman Hopcool into the Scout brotherhood and received a hearty welcome from all present. Earl Gibson was elected as troop leader, Good Scouting, fellows.

Travelling north, we find the Sacred Heart troops rearranging their patrols. Bill Brioux, Bud Hallihan, Jack Welsh and Frank Hance are the patrol leaders and took their patrols in Tenderfoot and Second Class instructions.

All Second Class Scouts will be given First Class instruction on [illegible]

[illegible] Scouts will be guests of the Fish and Game Association in the Collegiate auditorium. All troops and packs are requested to be on hand. Time, 8 p.m. sharp; place, Collegiate auditorium. Sneaker, "Can" Cornelius of Hamilton.

At St. John's, Frank Wise was invested into the Scout brotherhood. George Duck and John Frank were received into the troop from the pack in a going-up ceremony.

Ken. Brown, Jim Brown, Ed Plant, Wray Matthews and Art Winslow all passed their ambulance badge test, being examined by Divisional Superintendent L. E. Tomkins, St. John Ambulance Brigade after a long series of instruction from A. C. Phillips. Good Scouting, fellows.

We report that the 12th Troop and Cub pack went en masse to the Scoutcraft Show with their leaders in charge. Also we understand that the 12th Troop were sky high, especially in their airplane models.

We are sorry to report not one entry was received from the 6th or 9th Troops, and that the Cub section entries outnumbered the Scouts.

Spring is calling, and with its advent come dreams of hikes. One word of advice should be passed on to all you fellows: Don't get careless. Dress up warmly, and dress to keep the feet dry. Colds are easier to catch in this weather than any other.

Patrol hikes are the idea; let's put the Out in SCOUTing. Good hiking.—"The Skipper."

Rural Hydro Power Policy Is Outlined

Farmer Must Pay For Line From His Gate And All Wiring

MAY OBTAIN LOAN

The rural power policy of the Hydro-Electric Commission in respect to cost of connections is explained in a letter to Alderman Dutton of which the following is a quotation: "The Commission pays for the erection of all lines on the public highways to serve farmers in rural districts, and also erects the transformer and installs the meter. A farmer, himself, however, has to pay for all wiring in his house and barns and for the line running from his gate on the highway to his house.

Where a farmer cannot afford to wire his house and barns and build this line from the highway, Hydro-Electric Commission may by a recent Act of Parliament make loans to farmers to cover such an expenditure. Loans can be made up to $1,000 at 6 percent repayable in equal periodical instalments of principal and interest within a term not exceeding five years."

E. R. Shirley Is Elected President Of Curling Club, To Promote Junior Section

Seek To Have Peterborough Included In Itinerary Of Scottish Curlers

PRIZES ARE PRESENTED

Officers of the Peterborough Curling Club were elected by acclamation at the annual meeting Monday night.

E. R. Shirley succeeds Norman H. Hanley as president; James L. Richmond is vice-president for the new year; and the members of the committee of management are A. B. Gates, O. D. Carlisle, George P. Cairns and T. A. MacKay.

The financial statement read by Harry Foote, secretary-treasurer, showed a credit balance of $432.94.

A brief review of the season now drawing to a close, although some of the members are laying odds that there will be curling on Easter Saturday, mentioned not only the satisfactory financial condition of the club, but also emphasized the fact that all the scheduled games have been played, the several trophy series completed, the Peterborough-Lindsay series was won by local rinks, the membership for the year was 127, games have been played in Bobcaygeon and Lakefield, and an encouragingly large number of new members joined the Charlotte street fold as beginners.

Revision of the constitution, reported at the annual meeting a year ago, was adopted Monday night with several minor changes recommended by the sub-committee represented by R. Downey. The annual meeting is set back to the fourth Monday in March, instead of the third; the committee of management is empowered to recommend members for honorary life membership; and generally the constitution, bylaws and rules of orders have been thoroughly overhauled.

Promote Junior Section

Everett Thomas suggested that some action should be taken to revive the junior section of the club and also to instruct new members joining the senior section. Harry Foote recalled that Peterborough rinks were the first winners of the Junior Ontario Tankard, and for some years when Alex Kay took the group under his wing the game flourished among students of the Collegiate Institute and other boys, many of whom have graduated into the senior membership.

"Have we another Alex Kay in the club," Doug Carlisle enquired. "We need some one who has the time and the interest to organize a junior club."

Walter Oke pointed out that Lindsay had maintained its junior section, and had a lot of boys playing the game who were promising material for the future.

"I would suggest that Alex Kay be asked to act as chairman of a junior committee," Mr. Oke said, "and give him power to select other members to help him. A junior group is one of the best sources of new members that we could get."

Norman Hanley said the executive could ask Mr. Kay whether he would take on the junior job again as a revival for next season.

Scots Curlers Coming

The executive was also instructed, on Mr. Hanley's motion, to apply to the O.C.A. to include Peterborough in the itinerary of the Scottish curlers who are reported coming to Canada next winter.

Mr. Shirley thanked the members for electing him to the presidency and requested the members to give him the same loyal support that had carried the club through the recent trying years on a successful basis.

Thanks were extended to the press, the committee of management, Herb Martin, ice-maker, and also to the committee in charge of revising the constitution.

Prizes Presented

Presentation of prizes won in various intra-club competitions concluded the meeting. First in order to receive their souvenirs of the season were the winners of the three groups of the scheduled games, and Maurice Cruthers suggested that next year the group winners should be drawn in playdowns for the championship of all the rinks competing in this regular series of games.

The successful rinks were: Group A—T. Bruce Scott, skip, E. J. Cullen, C. C. Mowry and Jas. R. Hall, auto rugs, presented by Norman Hanley.

Group B—J. J. Howden, skip, J. L. Lowes, J. L. James and J. L. Scott, auto rugs, presented by R. F. Downey.

Group C—B. W. Harvey, skip, C. Taylor, W. F. Taylor and J. E. Lillico, auto rugs, presented by M. Cruthers.

Vice-skips' bonspiel, won by Dr. J. C. Green, skip, A. W. Austin, D. Richardson and A. W. Pratten; receiving the R. G. Patterson trophy and electric toasters presented by R. P. Best.

Runners-up: C. Huffman, skip, D. A. Dynan, E. Valentin and Howard Clegg, four pen and pencil sets, presented by A. B. Gates.

Leads and Seconds

The winners of the leads and seconds' bonspiel were: R. Huffman, skip, D. Dynan, T. Doughty and D. Hall; receiving the Ross Dobbin cup and four thermos bottles, presented by Mr. Dobbin.

Runners-up: Robt. Martin, skip, H. A. Sutherland, J. E. Lillico and S. Valentin; four sweater coats, presented by Harry Foote.

CENTRAL ONTARIO SOCCER LEAGUE

Bowmanville, Port Hope, Oshawa And Peterborough May Form League

A meagre attendance of soccer enthusiasts made an appearance at the annual general meeting of the Peterborough and District Football Association, Monday evening, in the Chamber of Commerce Rooms, with President Reg Whitehead in the chair; and a full representation of last year's clubs.

The auditors' report revealed that season 1936 was the poorest financial year since the association was formed. After meeting all the obligations, a small surplus was left over. The Injured Players' fund is now at its lowest level, but all medical bills were met, according to the rules of the board. Throughout the year the city a visit and the locals returned the hospitality.

Inter-City League

The local association has awaited official communication from Bowmanville, Oshawa, Port Hope and the three clubs connected with Peterborough and District Football Association so as to formulate an Inter-City League that would create greater enthusiasm in the code. The central meeting place has been suggested at Port Hope.

A committee was formed to make arrangements with a company to put on an entertainment to get funds for the coming season.

A special meeting has been called for next Monday evening in the Chamber of Commerce Rooms in an endeavor to get a large attendance whereby the fans can select their officers for the year 1937.

As a fitting tribute to their accomplishment of winning the league championship, Canada Packers' executive has completed all details so that each player will receive a reminder of the 1936 season, when they only lost one game in all games played.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

ONCE AGAIN, let us remind men softballers of the general meeting this eve at eight in Duffus', with the executive session at 7.30 o'clock. A good turnout is necessary if much business is to be done, and there is plenty on the slate for tonight. Officers, managers, prospective pilots and others interested should be on deck and say their pieces. Softball is an important sport here and lots of work is required each Spring to get it under way. A good slate of officers should be elected by the assembly.

THE T.A.S.A. has an amendment re pitching to be brought up at the annual O.A.S.A. convention. Briefly, it calls for the hurler to face the batter and keep one foot in contact with the rubber at all times; he must not take more than one step in delivering the ball but he may curve it; he can take one hand off the ball only in the act of pitching; once he removes one hand, he cannot again bring the ball into both hands nor change it from one hand to the other; and he must release the ball on the first forward swing of the arm—always, of course, keeping the hand below the hip as he lets the ball go and no further from the body than the elbow in a parallel line.

* * * * * *

WHILE ON the subject of softball, we'd suggest that the local girls' league get organized within the next two weeks. It generally requires a couple of meetings before much headway is made. Probably, Keene, C.C.I. and Westclox will be back again this year and maybe a few other district teams. The league is expected to again affiliate with the P.W.S.U. and, perhaps take in a team from Lindsay and one from Cobourg. But this latter point is in doubt yet—it's merely a suggestion if those towns still want to come in, and local or district teams do not object.

* * * * * *

STANDING IN the Senior City Basketball League and dope on their playoffs is in elsewhere. It's a tricky playoff layout with three teams being in on it. Ladies' Basketball League playoffs will likely get under way in about two weeks, also. Looks like first two teams in each section tangling for group championships. Games at the Y.W. this Friday eve are: "Y" Quakers vs. Westclox Juniors at 7.45, Marconi Radio vs. C.C.I. Seniors at 8.15, and C.C.I. Juniors vs. St. John's at 9.00. The P.C.I. senior boys and girls are through for the season, but the local junior boys won their group and may enter the playoff tourney in Toronto later this month.

THIS IS going to be tough to explain. We mean that 8-2 win for Barrie over our Colts last eve. It sews up the round at 10-all and forces a third game—no overtime being played last night. The locals carried a five-goal lead there but they couldn't stand prosperity and they were lucky, in a way, to be still in the running today. To put the whole thing in a coconut shell, the Colts did not go nearly as well in Barrie as they did in Peterborough whereas the Hees went much better at home than they did here. That and a couple of breaks did the damage. Plus a stolen goal for Barrie that rated the goal-umpire a sentence for grand larceny. An out-and-out steal, if we ever saw one, but all the squawking in the world did our gang no good—ye umps taking a long-distance look at it and saying: "Nix."

* * * * *

THE YOUNG Petes held 'em pretty even in the first and third frames but couldn't turn a wheel in the second and Barrie ran in four goals without a return. Twice penalties cost us a goal and then there was that stolen one. And the final one that tied the round and broke the hearts of Coach Buckland, the players, and nearly a hundred Peterborough rooters, was a soft one with just 35 seconds of play left! Why, the subs were packing their sticks and preparing for a jubilant rush for the dressing-room when Jones knocked it in as he fell to the ice. At this writing, the local executive were trying to line up the next one for Lindsay tomorrow while Barrie wanted Oshawa—we may know a little later today how it pans out.

* * * * *

BARRIE WAS like an armed camp when the Colts rolled in early p.m. Black looks and nasty cracks on all sides. The hotel prop took a lot of urging before he'd put up the gang. And local fans who asked for tickets at the rink were asked: "Are you from Peterborough?" If they said yes they were turned down cold—and informed that Barrie fans were given a poor deal on ducats in the tilt here. Many local rooters had to say they were from Lindsay, Orillia or Toronto; while others lined up with the rush-seat patrons to get in. And in the first period, rabid home fans threw lighted fire-crackers at Harding in goal and tossed marbles at the Colts on the ice. There is always a certain element of poor sports who can't take it and we do not blame the town, or the Barrie Hockey Club. But the rink company and those half-baked rooters didn't give the town or team a good name. The Barrie players deserve great credit for a battling display to cut down a big lead. It is anyone's series yet but our dough is riding on the young Petes.

* * * * *

HAD THE result been different last gloaming, quite a few of the Peterborough gang, especially fans who kept yipping for our Colts, might have had to hit for cover rather rapidly. We were parked in an open press-box with two-bit fans hanging over our shoulders and on all sides. They soon spotted the fact we hailed from this town and tossed some choice epithets our way. A young blond—and we used to favor blonds—said: "You've got a crust sitting there, Peterborough!" But we used discretion and acted deaf. Every time Barrie scored a goal she flattened our hat with a jubilant smack of the hand. Thank goodness for the sake of our noggin and our tortured chapeau, the Hees only scored eight! At anyrate we had one fine compliment, the Barrie club secretary, after reading our story of Friday's game here, saying it was a good, impartial account.

* * * * *

GRAB-BAG: Must have been a good Senior City Hockey League final last eve here. Lakefield taking a 4-2 nod over Westclox; next game is Wednesday . . . . . Pirates and Clippers of the Southend Intermediate Loop meet in a playoff tonight at eight in the Brock; their first was tied at 3-3 . . . . We hear the Barrie-Peterborough winter will meet Vocationals of Toronto on Friday here or in Barrie . . . . Belleville took a 4-2 win over Sutton last e'en in their first playdown tussle . . . . The gloom in the Colts' dressing-room after last night's affair was thicker than a fisherman's tale . . . . There is talk of running a special train to Lindsay if the game is played there on Wednesday night . . . . After trying to answer the question today: "What was the matter in Barrie last night?" just 326 times, we feel sure we will go to heaven for our patience . . . . The O.H.A. may order a round-robin series for the remaining junior "B" teams.

DECISION TONIGHT BY QUEBEC ACES

Protest Playing Allan Cup Finals In Calgary—See $1,500 Deficit

QUEBEC, March 16 (CP).—Amid a series of statements and counter statements, directors of Quebec Aces will meet tonight to consider the question of the second Provincial hockey champions' participation in the Allan Cup playdowns.

There was no assurance, however, the decision of the directors would settle whether Aces were to remain in the hunt for the Dominion championship or go through with an arranged post-season series between Montreal senior group champions and representatives of the United States Eastern Amateur League.

Decision of the directors, Aces President Jack Latter said last night after the deadline had passed for an answer to an ultimatum from Cecil Duncan, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, would be put before a meeting of senior group members in Montreal Wednesday night for final judgment.

(At Ottawa early today Duncan said he had been in communication with Aces and there was every possibility they would continue in cup playdowns).

Duncan had demanded a clear-cut statement from Aces whether or not they would continue in the Allan Cup hunt.

In Montreal George Slater, president of the senior group, repeated dissatisfaction with Allan Cup playoff arrangements and said Aces might withdraw if playoff dates conflicted with the series against the U.S. League champions.

LAKEFIELD WINS OVER WESTCLOX IN FIRST PLAYOFF

Blood And Thunder Loop Playoffs Start With 4-3 Count

BIG CROWD PRESENT

A crowd of 400 fans watched Lakefield take the count over Westclox 4-3 in the first of home-and-home finals for the Peterborough Senior City championship at the Brock Street Rink last night. The keen battle on fast ice, featured by several rounds of fisticuffs, gave the record grandstand a full evening's entertainment.

Joe Blewett, wingman, beat Tharby early in the first, and Jewell hung up Lakefield's second three minutes later on Chittick's pass and a shot from the blue line. Deeth and O'Leary were benched five minutes for fighting and with both teams short Tom Parsons batted home Williams' rebound for the first Westclox counter. Chittick added one for Lakefield before the end of the period.

Westclox Get Two.

Westclox made a strong bid in the second with two goals, Tom Parsons got the first of the two and Thirnbeck and O'Leary teamed for the second. Morin saved the lead for Lakefield when he netted a long shot.

The third frame was scoreless, but provided the fastest hockey of the tangle. Westclox carried the battle to Lakefield's front door and only high-grade work by Junkin in the visitor's net saved them from a half-dozen counters. The game was halted while Junkin was taken out and a patch put on an eye cut he received from a stick in one of the net scrambles.

With three minutes to go in the game, Pat Calladine and Chittick were benched five minutes for fighting. In favour of an extra forward, the Clockers pulled out their goalie and made several threatening rushes but failed to count.

O'Leary and Calladine were both in top form for the Westclox. Sabatino, Lennox, Chittick and Jewell led the way for Lakefield.

The line-ups:

Lakefield—Goal, Junkin; defense, G. Charlton and Sabatino; centre, Chittick; wings, Jewell and Blewett; alternates, Deeth, Chappell, Lennox, Merin and R. Pearson.

COSTLY KINDNESS

Corporal is Reduced for Selling Privates Tea in Bed

LONDON, March 16—(AP).—Tea in bed for his brothers in arms was costly to Corporal Arthur Preece.

Preece, who was charged with selling the tea in violation of orders forbidding a non-commissioned officer to trade with privates, said he acted out of kindness and his profit was really negligible.

He was court martialed and reduced to a private in the ranks today.

Champion

Exhausted by his efforts Howard Chivers, Dartmouth ski ace just swings across the line to win the Canadian cross-country championship at Banff, Alberta, before collapsing. Chivers cover the 15-kilometre grind to beat his own coach, Walter Prager and Sverre Kolterud, noted Norwegian racer.

Hockey's Valhalla Will Claim Some Of The Best Players

Four Remaining Originals Of Rangers Likely To Join Many Other Stars

TO BE LARGE EXODUS

NEW YORK, March 16 (CP) — Hockey's valhalla — already well-festooned with stars who bowed from the National Hockey League in the 1936-37 season—beckoned today to the four remaining original New York Rangers, Ching Johnson, Murray Murdoch, Bill Cook and Frankie Boucher.

When Rangers fire their final puck of the current campaign these stalwarts may unlace their skates for the last time, ending a total of 44 years in New York uniforms and a total of 53 years playing for pay.

They are the last of the Ranger team that came to Manhattan in 1926. The others were Taffy Abel, Paul Thompson, Stan Brooks, Yank Boyd, Bun Cook, Leo Bourgault, Red Mackie, Hal Winkler and Lorne Chabot.

Aside from these four originals, Thompson and Bun Cook are the only others left in the N.H.L.—Bun with Boston and Paul with Chicago Black Hawks.

Greatest Greats Go

If Johnson, Bill Cook, Boucher and Murdoch retire it will complete the largest exodus of stars from the N.H.L. in a season that has seen some of the game's greatest greats go to the sidelines.

They will join Howie Morenz, Canadiens' immortal centre who died last week; Toronto's flashy Joe Primeau; Alex Connell, the stone-faced Ottawa goalie; Alberta's Eddie Shore, the peerless Boston defenceman; little Roy Worters, New York American's goalie; George Hainsworth who guarded Canadien and Toronto nets for 20 long and Frank "King" Clancy, the battle-scarred Ottawan who fired his wiry frame through thick and thin for Toronto Leafs.

The years have crept up on Bill Cook, Murdoch, Johnson and Boucher, who bought his way out of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police to play hockey for Ottawa in 1921. Their numbers have been up since Manager Lester Patrick's hockey school started producing graduates for the big-time.

For years Manhattan fans have howled with delight as old chisel-faced Ching smacked enemy snipers down from his defence post. At 39 the Winnipegger is still a favorite, but with new material on the Ranger squad Ching finds bench-warming irksome. Now he wants his release to take a coaching job.

Has Attractive Offer

That too is where Boucher's ambition lies. He has an attractive offer from England. So at 34, the Ottawan who won the original Lady Byng trophy for clean and effective play plans to retire after building a record as one of the shrewdest playmakers the game has ever known. Ten times out of 11 tries he has hammered his way into Stanley Cup playoffs with the blueshirts. Twice he played with Stanley Cup winners.

Captain of the Rangers since he came out of the West with brother Bun in 1926, holds the all-time major league scoring record of 316 goals and 194 assists. A native of Brantford, Ont., he played his first professional hockey with Saskatoon in 1922.

Murdoch, 32 years old, has 581 consecutive games behind him, an unequalled iron-man record which becomes more noteworthy when his light frame is taken into consideration.

American electric fans may be introduced into Ahmedabad, India, where the summer nights are torrid.

Ward Is Ill

JIMMY WARD

Facing a crucial struggle for second place in the Canadian section of the N.H.L. with Toronto Maple Leafs, Montreal Maroons were weakened when star winger Jimmy Ward was sent to hospital with an attack of influenza. It is expected that Ward will be back for playoff games.

Barrie Ties Up Round By Beating Colts 8-3 To Force Third Game

Homesters Stage Comeback As Colts Falter In Second Frame Of Exciting Fixture In Barrie And Playdown Round Is Sewed Up At 10-All

TIE IN FINAL MINUTE

Showing a complete reversal of form on their own large ice surface, the Barrie boys last night slapped over the local Colts with an 8-3 victory to sew up their O.H.A. Junior "B" playdown round. The round-tying goal came with just 35 seconds of the last period to play. No overtime was staged and another game on neutral ice must be played to settle the issue.

A wildly cheering mob of over 2300 fans saw a fairly even first frame and a tight third period, but a one-sided Barrie middle chukker when four goals were scored by the homesters without a comeback. The score was 3-2 for Barrie in the first frame and 7-2 for them going into the third. The visitors went ahead halfway through the final frame but saw victory snatched from their grasp in the final minute of play.

Though outplayed and deserving to lose on the game, the Colts should have won the round. Three goals were scored on them with a Peterborough player in the penalty box and once the Barrie goal-judge stole one for his team. Violent arguing by the visitors did nothing more than have the goal judge replaced, the referee allowing the goal to stand though the puck was never in the net.

COSTLY SECOND FRAME.

The second-period lapse by the young Petes cost them the win. They suddenly could do nothing right in this inning and the battling Barrie boys had them on the run with four straight goals. The other two chapters were close and exciting with the visitors holding their own. It was a rethet, speedy battle from start to finish with the homesters out to win or die in the attempt. Play was fairly clean most of the way with the visitors drawing three of the five penalties. Both sides were dog-tired at the finish. The ice held up remarkably well. Nearly a hundred Peterborough rooters were on hand for the game.

Of the Colts' forwards, Starr and Kingdon were most effective while Connelly of the alternates also looked good. Al Clark was best on defence and Harding kicked out a flock of hot ones, being especially effective on ganging-up plays in the first half. The visitors repeatedly ganged up and many of the goals were scored on close-in scrambles. The Petes missed a dozen or fine scoring chances in straight hockey and on quick breakaways. They all worked hard but were spotty and did not look nearly as effective as in their last home game. The wisely Barrie crew toiled hard and were dangerous with Jones, Long, Walker and Goring starring.

Barrie Gangs Up.

The home squad began ganging up and pressing at the start and Harding had plenty to do to block pucks and dodge burning firecrackers tossed at him from the crowd. Neal nearly tallied early but Barrie got the first when Walker batted in Jones' rebound. It was fast, even and hot for a time with Connelly taking Kingdon's pass at defence to bore in like a flash and tip up the game. Leigh got it back shortly with Jones and Walker assisting on a nice play. A Starr-Bredy combine was blocked by Goring and Harding had to jump on a couple. Then, Crowe's drive from the blue line went for a goal when Goring let it trickle through as the Colts pressed for a time. Just before the end, Scott took Bowen's pass-out to make it 3-2.

Barrie pressed again to open the second. Starr and Neal did some neat checking at centre to go in on dangerous thrusts. Jones scored in a scramble—or got credit for it—though the puck was blocked out by the side of the net and the Petes protested hotly. Scott went off for tripping but he was back when Bowen rammed one home in a scramble in front of Harding. When Connelly got the gate for slashing, the homesters fairly peppered the Colts' goalie with rubber and Jones scores on Long's assist before he returned. A little later, Walker blazed the disc into the Peterborough cage at almost pointblank range with Long and Leigh aiding. The fans went wild as the round was tied up to end the second stanza.

Even Third Stanza.

The Colts returned to form in the third and it was a hectic and even inning all through. Neal came close and later Kingdon and G. Clark went in for hard tries but they were outguessed. Bowen got the finger for tripping and the Colts pressed hotly but to no avail. Wright was right in once but shot into Goring's pads and then Brady drew the air for chopping. Barrie continued to press in around the visitors' cage and shoot the puck from all angles. Starr broke away to go in close, draw out the netminder and score what looked like the checking goal halfway through the period. Barrie worked their heads off and had most of the play with the Petes using defensive tactics and Harding starring. Kingdon went off late in the stanza for an accidental trip and he was still off when Jones—with 35 seconds of play left—checked Brady in close and, as he was bodied over, batted the puck from an angle into the twine to tie up the round and end the game.

The teams:

Colts—Goal, Harding; defence, A. Clark and Crowe; centre, Starr; wings, Neal and Wright; alternates, Kingdon, G. Clark, Brady, Connelly and Webb.

Remember When—

Babe Ruth graciously accepted a $5,000 salary cut and signed a $75,000 one-year contract. That was five years ago today and the first time since 1920 — when he joined New York Yankees—the home-run king encountered financial differences. He retired two years ago and now spends most of his time on the golf links.

TWEED CRUSHES BELLEVILLE 9-2 FIRST OF FINALS

Victors Rap In 8-Goal Lead In First Two Periods Before Sailors Get Going

COURNEYEA STARS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

TWEED, March 16.—Playing their first game of the finals on Monday evening at the local arena, the Tweed Intermediates swamped the Belleville Sailors by a score of 9 to 2. The Tweed boys were clicking all the way and it was not until the last period that Belleville came anywhere near Goalie Thompson, who held the home fort.

In the first period the local boys went into a three goal lead, when Courneyea tallied the first goal unassisted. Maguire took a pass from Geraldi for the second and Courneyea tallied the third goal of the canto from a pass from Maguire. Elsbury for Tweed and Day for the Sailors were bench warmers in this period.

In the second period, the Belleville Sailors were held scoreless while the home forces tallied another foursome. With the second canto only seconds started, Courneyea rushed down the ice to bang the fourth goal of the game behind Hinton. Taking a pass from Maguire, Courneyea tallied the fifth goal for the homesters while Geraldi on a lone rush went down the ice, around the nets and tallied the sixth goal on a backhand drive. Leading another rush Geraldi passed to Elsbury who tallied the seventh goal for the home team. H. Leal and Long went to the cooler for the Tweed team while Harvey was the Belleville offender. Bemark of the Sailor's team was struck in the face when Tip Tummon cleared the puck, and Smiling Bemark went off for repairs.

Sailors Open Up.

In the last canto, the Sailors became desperate and finally commenced to sift through the local's defence. Thompson stopped two terrific drives in succession when S. Ethier and Bemark went through, but were unable to tally. Courneyea started the scoring going in the last frame when he took a pass which went from Bakky Leal to Maguire to Courneyea, who drove home the counter. Belleville then broke into the scoring column, when Bemark broke clear and drove a shot into the lower right hand corner. Maguire for the home team then put the score nine to one when Courneyea commenced a rush, passed to Maguire who had no difficulty in flashing the red light. With only a minute to go, J. Ethier rushed down the side boards, through the defence and counted the last goal of the game. The local forces jumped into a commanding lead from the first and had the Sailors completely disorganized. Thompson, although he had considerable luck in the first two periods displayed spectacular hockey in the last frame when the Belleville team found their range, and commenced to gang.

Joe Courneyea was the star of the game for the home forces with five goals and his rushes were always dangerous. He sifted through the Ethier team with the greatest of ease, and at no time was in any trouble, passes were his for the asking throughout the game, for uncovered or smothered he seemed to lay down a shot which always counted. Maguire was the only other home team player to score a double in the game. For the Sailors, the Ethier brothers and Bemark were the standouts. Walls of Kingston handled the game, which at times became rather rough as the offsides went by the wayside.

As a result of the win, the Intermediates went into a one game lead in the finals of the Trent Valley League, and now take on Belleville in Madoc on Thursday night. If a third game is necessary, there is a possibility that it will be played on another ice surface as the homesters have failed to support their team this season.

Lineups:

Tweed — Thompson, goal; Tip Tummon and J. Tummon, defence; Courneyea, F. wing; W. Leal, centre; Maguire, L. wing; subs., Elsbury, Long, H. Leal; G. Geraldi, Marsh.

McCARTHY HAPPY WITH 1936 SQUAD ALMOST SIGNED

In Market For Good Pitchers But Yankees Old Staff Held Good Enough

LAZZERI A QUESTION

By Paul Mickelson
(Associated Press Sports Writer.)

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 16.—(AP)—Joe McCarthy is standing pat with his New York Yankees.

The power-house club that tore the American League apart, smashed out 182 home runs, scored 996 runs and walked home with the pennant by 19½ games in 1936 is good enough in the shrewd McCarthy books.

Except for the battle between Alvin Powell, Myril Hoag and Ernie Koy, a big rookie up from the Newark farm, virtually every position on the world's championship team appears to be clinched by the boys who shattered records last season. McCarthy is in the market for good pitchers, but chances are that his 321 staff, best in the league on an earned run basis in '36 will do all the fitting.

Personally, I believe the Yankees look too good to be true on paper. They should win the flag easily but trouble is last year's clippings don't count.

Searching for an Achilles heel on the ball club, the spotlight falls on 23-year-old Tony Lazzeri, who operates at second base.

Tony surprised everyone by lasting the entire 1936 season, but whether he can go through another is probably the only question that confronts the Yankees. Without Tony working second, supplying advice and slaughtering the infield, the world's champions undoubtedly would have trouble. Right now, Tony looks like he's good for another two or three years at least and McCarthy certainly hopes so.

No one is figuring without First Baseman Lou Gehrig and Pitcher Red Ruffing.

Holdouts Sure to Sign.

The two holdout artists are sure to line up by the time the pennant race opens, giving the Yankees the same lineup that started the final World Series game: Crosetti, ss; Rolfe, 3b; Gehrig, 1b; Dimaggio, cf; Dickey, c; Selkirk, rf; Lowell, lf; and Lazzeri, 2b.

Lefty Gomez, Ruffing, Monte Pearson, and Johnny Murphy, a right-hander who looks better every day, shape up as the starting pitchers with Pat Malone, Bump Hadley, and Johnny Broaca set as spot pitchers. Kemp Wicker and Vito Tamulis are waging a spirited duel for a mound job and may do. Frank Makosky, big right-hander who won 17 for Oakland, has a good fork ball, and is likely to be used as a "rally hurler."

Though the infield is set with Don Heffner and John Saltzgaver as utility men, and the centre and right field jobs are cinched by the sensational Dimaggio and Selkirk, the battle for left field may be a great one. Hoag was playing the best ball of his career last summer until he bumped into Dimaggio and suffered a skull concussion. He's back in fine fettle this year and is sure to give Powell a run. Koy probably will lose out and be shipped back to Newark.

Sports Spice

By EDDIE BRIETZ

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., March 16.—(AP).—Havana fans are boiling mad because St. Louis Cardinals came to town two years in succession without Dizzy Dean, Senor Adolfo Luque, of the Giants, who understands the lingo, got a big kick out of telling the Cards what the boys and girls were saying, which was plenty and hot. . . Max Schmeling isn't returning to boycott. He signed his name 127 times for autograph hunters in Jimmy Kelly's Greenwich Village joint in New York the other night. . . . Young Bob Fitzsimmons must be slipping. Best he could do was fan one of the three pitchers he pitched to in New Orleans Sunday.

Note to Pete Barron, N. B. A. featherweight champ: They say Henry Armstrong, Los Angeles negro, who bayoed Mike Belloise last week, is pure murder and that you had better watch out. The Yankees have to spend two nights in sleepers to come here from St. Pete to play the Cards Tuesday. In exhibit 30 days, Tony Manero spent champs and Johnny Revolta have played 302 holes of golf.

King Levinsky is on his way to England (we hope not to fight). . . Waitresses at the Casvela here say if Shanty Hogan can eat more than Pepper Martin, they want no part of Mrs. Hogan's boy. . . . The Dodgers want old Jess Haines of the Cardinals for the vacant coaching job.

To regain the shipping business on the upper Yangtze, China's Central Government is having constructed a fleet of shallow draft cargo vessels capable of negotiating rapids.

BAER CONFIDENT HE CAN BEAT FARR

Makes Decision As He Watches Britain's New Champ Take Title

LONDON, March 16 (AP).—Max Baer emerged today he could defeat Tommy Farr, the new heavyweight champion of Great Britain and the Empire, in his scrap April 15 and then meet Germany's Walter Neusel.

"I guess I ain't worrying," said Baer last night at the ringside when Farr won a 15-round decision over Ben Foord, the South African who had held the Empire title.

Baer made statements to the press, to friends and acquaintances and everybody within hearing and the main idea was that Maxie doesn't believe Farr can hit very hard anyway.

With a month to train before he meets Neusel, Baer plans to see the high spots and hot spots of London for a few days before that new hairnut he got just before last night's fight grows off.

Baer's opinion was backed up by "The Sporting Life," which said the contest was "one of the poorest championship fights staged in this country for a long time."

THREE ENTERED IN QUEBEC FIGHT

Duplessis Nominee To Be Opposed By Rebel And Liberal Nationale Candidate

QUEBEC, March 16.—(CP)— On the brink of the balloting in Quebec's first by-election since last year's general contest, Besace county held the centre of the province's political stage today.

A reconvening legislature was to see the end of a Liberal boycott of the House that lasted a day, but the return of the opposition walk-out group was overshadowed by the strength for Premier Duplessis and his Union Nationale party.

In the voting tomorrow, a Duplessis man—J. Emile Perron—will be opposed by a nominee of the Action Liberal Nationale, Vital Cliche, and by Wilfrid Doyon, backed by the youngest wing of Duplessis' own party in the House. The official Liberal opposition has left the field to these groups.

On another Quebec political front, things also were beginning to hum. Bonaventure county, without a House of Commons seat since the recent death of Hon. Charles Marcil, had its nomination day yesterday, and three candidates were named for the March 22 by-election voting.

P. E. Cote, former provincial cabinet minister, is running as a straight Liberal; Maurice Thibault as Independent Liberal and William O'Donnell as independent. Thibault was an 11th-hour entry, turning up with his papers just before nominations closed.

TRIAL FOR MOTHER

Will Be Charged With Slaying Her Son.

NELSON, B.C., March 16—(CP)—Mrs. M. F. Donaghy appeared in police court yesterday charged with the murder of her seven-months-old son, Ronald, and was committed for trial. The infant was found in his crib dead from a throat wound two weeks ago. Last January the baby was taken from a snowbank and revived back to health after 24 hours' exposure in sub-zero weather.

CHAPTER 36

JANET hadn't the remotest idea when she was going to see Russell Bede again. He had said nothing about it when he was leaving. In fact he had said little after Joel had arrived and part of Janet's anger toward Joel was because he had destroyed the pleasantness that had marked the late afternoon and evening.

While she couldn't put her finger on anything definite that Joel had said or done, she was conscious—and so was Bede—of Joel's coldness which was entirely unwarranted.

Also she was angry, truly angry for the first time in her marriage, toward her husband for his churlishness toward her. Their relationship from the beginning had been marked by courtesy and while they had had quarrels in the fashion of most married people, they had been brief squalls that had blown over with explanations and the light winds of laughter.

When Janet went upstairs that night after Bede's leaving, she was angry with the kind of hot anger that stilled her tongue and made her feel strong and unforgiving.

She went into her own bedroom and closed the door between her room and Joel's. She bathed and went back to her dressing table and cold creamed her face leisurely. Her feeling did not pass or lessen. Joel had been rude to her, and for the first time in her experience she was not going to compromise. If Joel was not going to apologise, she was going to make no explanations.

She heard his step, which was heavy, on the stairs. With her hand poised midway between her face and the cold cream jar, she waited a trifle anxiously for him to stop at her door. He didn't. She heard him pass and go into his own room.

Still she had no feeling of remorse. If Joel had made no resolutions regarding their marriage, Janet had; she had decided that first day of her marriage that no night in their lives together would ever pass on a misunderstanding. That she would do everything in her power to make all things clear and honest between them.

Stroking her soft hair over and over again with her hairbrush, she was thinking of that and thinking of the nights when she kept her worries, her fears to herself. Suddenly she realized—though she would not put it into words—that Joel was not an artist. He was a capable actor, a competent actor but he was not an artist. But that didn't really matter. She hadn't fallen in love with the artist; she had fallen in love with the man.

Truly that man had brought her many worries which he was never to worry about. That was all right with Janet. It was woman's place to take those burdens silently in the code that Janet inherited. It was woman's place to smooth and encourage a man's course, to make him happy and keep him contented.

Joel was not noticeably contented that night, Janet thought grimly, long after she had turned out her bedside lamp.

There was a narrow bar of light under his door. Time and time she heard him strike a match for his cigaret. She heard him walk to the far corner of the room where his book shelves were, return to his bed, get up and walk to the shelf again.

If I were the right kind of a loving little wife, I'd get up and go to him and tell him that I was only taking a cue from him, that I really haven't got another date with Russell, she thought.

But then she thought of Russell, of his kind face, of his pleasant, a small note telling him she would miss him and would be a good girl until he returned.

Later she was glad she hadn't said she would promise not to see Russell Bede. For she did see him.

She didn't intend to. Her anger heat soon cooled down and her sauce-for-the-goose resolution faded. Nothing was important to her if it stood between her and Joel. She was cool, pleasant and impersonal when Russell Bede called her a day or so later to thank her for his pleasant visit. They chatted easily to the conclusion of their telephone conversation and Janet knew that Russell was waiting for an opportunity to invite himself to her house again or to ask to see her, but she did not give him the opportunity.

Still, she could not avoid him, for Caroline Maynard would not give her the opportunity. She must come over for tennis, Caroline insisted. And when she learned that Joel was away on location and Janet was alone, nothing would do but Janet was to join them.

And so Janet and Russell were thrown together and they were happy in each other's company. Back in Chester they would have said of Russell that "he wears well."

She was entirely aware that Russell was falling in love with her. His unguarded eyes following her in the midst of crowds gave him away.

She thought: He's got to go home and he'll forget me. Joel will be back soon and, when Joel is back, we'll all be friends and Russell will never dare to speak. I'll enjoy this friendship a little longer and everything will work out.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

UNCLE WIGGILY'S TRIP

"Woof! Woof! Woof!" was the odd noise Uncle Wiggily heard when he was digging beneath the snow for early Spring flowers.

"Oh, no!" thought the rabbit gentleman to himself as he stopped sniffing the sweet perfume of the trailing arbutus and began sniffing for danger. "Ah, ha! That woof's like the Bob Cat."

The rabbit gentleman looked carefully around. He had come from his hollow stump bungalow, as I told you in last night's story, to gather Spring flowers for his wife. Before he had a chance to pick any he heard the woofing sound.

Trailing arbutus is the name of the earliest Spring flower that grows where Uncle Wiggily has his bungalow, near the Orange Ice Mountains. It doesn't grow everywhere. New England is one of the best places to look for it, if you know where that is. The arbutus with its tiny pink and white blossoms, smelling so sweetly, often blossoms before the last snow has fallen. Then it is covered with the white flakes. But the flowers still bloom beneath them.

Fear for Worst.

"Woof! Woof! Woof!" Again Uncle Wiggily heard that sound. It came the third time just as he was reaching down his paw to pick some sprays of the trailing arbutus. He had to reach for them amid a tangle of old ground-blackberry vines that were beneath the carpet of dried leaves.

"Is that one of the Bad Chaps?" boldly asked the rabbit.

No voice answered and Mr. Longears ears began to fear the worst, as they say in stories.

"I think I had better run!" said Mr. Longears. "I can come back later and get Spring flowers for my wife. But if this is a Bad Chap woofing at me, I can't so easily get a new pair of ears if he takes those now on my head."

So Uncle Wiggily started to run. He ran across a patch of snow in the clump of trees on top of the hill. Then, all of a sudden, the feet of the rabbit gentleman became tangled in the old ground-blackberry vines that grew in with the arbutus and he took a trip.

Uncle Wiggily's trip wasn't like taking a trip to the seashore or a trip to the mountains. It was a trip to the ground and he fell heavily, bumping his pink, twinkling nose in the snow and making a dent in it—I mean a dent in the snow, not in his nose.

Very Queer

"Ugh!" grunted Uncle Wiggily as he picked himself up, there being no one else there to do it for him. "I'm afraid the Bad Chap will get me," he said. But when he looked around he saw no Bad Chap chasing him. Neither the Fox, the Wolf nor the Bob Cat was in sight.

"This is queer," said Mr. Longears. "I'm sure I heard a woofing sound. But it may have been the wind. However, as I see no danger I'll go back and finish picking my wife's Spring flowers."

Going back over the trippy place, Uncle Wiggily took care not again to get his paws tangled in the tripping blackberry vines. So he didn't fall. He reached the place where he had started to pick the trailing arbutus which was still perfuming the air.

"That was a funny trip I had!" laughed Mr. Longears. "My wife and Nurse Jane will laugh when I tell them about it when I go home with the flowers."

He had one paw filled with the lovely arbutus, when, all of a sudden he heard a mewing sound instead of a woofing one, "Mew! Mew! Mew!" sounded behind the bunny.

"Oh! Oh! This must be the Bob Cat!" he thought. He turned around to look and just then something very funny happened. If the wind doesn't blow the paper cap off the toy pistol, so it catches cold, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's perfume.

Elaborate Coronation Plans Aid Brooklin Fur Industry

Prices Of Silver Fox Pelts Jumped Ten Per Cent. Rancher Says

BURGLAR SYSTEM

BROOKLIN, March 16—The elaborate coronation plans in London have their effect in the village of Brooklin where William R. Agar maintains his silver fox ranch, one of the largest in Ontario county and at present containing 90 living fur pieces of dark beauty.

"The coronation has sent silver fox prices up about 10 per cent. this year," stated Mr. Agar, who ships all pelts to the historic auction rooms of the Hudson Bay Co. in London.

Situated about half a mile from his residence in the village, Mr. Agar's three-acre ranch has accommodation for more than 200 foxes. Runs are arranged so that the inmates have access to two long runs, although passages are closed during raising of young.

Many precautions are taken in safe-guarding the foxes from animals and theft. About the ranch is a high barbed-wire fence, that can be surmounted only with difficulty and peril, for throughout the ranch an electric burglary system is strung out. Anyone moving about in the ranch while burglar system is operating, sets off an alarm at Mr. Agar's residence. Before this system was installed nine years ago, 25 foxes were stolen from the ranch and never recovered.

In one corner there is a look-out tower, similar to that used by forest rangers, from which Mr. Agar can see over the entire ranch at a glance and is thus able to tell when a pair have mated.

The young foxes are often weaned before they are five weeks old, and show hardiness of a dog. The foxes are fed once a day with a prepared meal containing horse meat, cod liver oil, vegetables and oatmeal.

From the once high price of $2,500 when scientific fox farming was not considered practical, fine specimens of the silver-sheened fur now bring $150 to $250."

Regarding the origin of silver fox, Mr. Agar said: "They are a freak of nature. The real fox is red. No one seems to knew how the silver came about."

On his ranch Mr. Agar keeps a flock of sheep who graze all day and thus keep the grass and weeds down, while a large number of jack rabbits scurry about until they are required for fox feed.

Windsor, March 16—(CP) THAT unlucky number—13—plus a trail of peanuts might be called the "jinx" of five Detroit men arrested on a theft charge here last night. They are alleged to have stolen a vending machine containing peanuts from a hotel here.

The men are: Palmer Brevik, 27; Julius Brevik, 32; Harrison Gipp, 23; Lawrence Rost, 24, and Bob Waters, 21, members of the thirteen club hockey team which won a game 12-9 here just previous to getting into their difficulties.

CANCER BRANDED GREATEST HEALTH PROBLEM TODAY

Death-Rate Three Times That Of Tuberculosis—1 Man In 10, 1 Woman In 7 Victims

TOO LITTLE RESEARCH

By Beulah Bikerton
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

NEW YORK, March 16 (A.P.)—Facts the average man may rely upon, if he faces cancer, were set forth to-day by a newly formed Cancer Council of the American Society for the Control of Cancer.

The Council answered a series of laymen's questions presented by the National Association of Science Writers. The physicians said the situation was bad in some respects, hopeful in others.

Cancer was declared the "greatest health problem before us to-day—its death rate nearly three times that of tuberculosis." In the face of this, "far too little money." It was asserted, is available in this country for research on cancer.

Dr. Francis Carter Wood of Columbia University said the annual total spent is not more than $400,000. This amounts to two-fifths of one per cent. per year for every person in the United States, for a disease which statistics show will attack one man out of every 10 and one woman out of every 7.

One of the questions asked whether in view of the fact cancer recognized early is curable, should not efforts be concentrated immediately on discovering how to recognize early cancer.

Tests Have Failed.

The Council answered attempts for many years to discover such tests have failed.

Another question asked if it is possible to detect in early curable stages any types of internal cancer. Are the methods of detection, it was asked, too costly for most people?

"Under certain circumstances," was the reply. It is possible to detect in early stages cancer of the stomach and the intestines. In other stomach and the intestines. In other cases, for no apparent reason, there are few if any discernible symptoms. In the case of kidney tumors, blood in the urine is probably significant.'

As to cost, the Council answered because there are established institutions which will give free diagnoses to those in need, cancer examination is not beyond the means of the average person.

Robins, Wrens And Crows Are Signs Spring Is Soon Coming Round Corner

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BAILIEBORO March 16.—Signs of approaching spring are prevalent in the district. Robins, wrens, as well as huge flocks of crows have been here, weathering the final blasts of winter.

Agriculturists, however, are delighted that the colder weather is lasting. It is generally agreed that cold weather and snow in March is good for a prosperous crop the coming harvest.

The open winter with snow so scarce has left Fall wheat and grass seeds which are the basic crops of this district, exposed to the cold winds and naturally the new plants will have been weakened to a certain extent. The winter rains also washed many of the roots bare and exposed and a spring season free from too many harsh cold winds and freeze-ups after the roots take new life again will be required. So farmers are quite hopeful that the present continued cold spell will mean that we are getting the cold weather now instead of in April and are very optimistic regarding prospects.

The recent snow fall has also enabled residents to complete their hauling which can be accomplished so much easier by using sleighs than by having to haul on wagons. Township roads can now be travelled quite well with sleighs while they are at present in excellent condition for motor traffic.

Federal Aid Being Sought To Stop Belleville Floods

City Council Submits Plan To Federal Member To Curb Moira River

COST $33,000

BELLEVILLE, March 16.—Members of City Council were highly optimistic over the possibility of receiving government support in a flood control project for the Moira River, following a conference with Charles A. Cameron, M.P., on Saturday night. The project calls for a retaining wall 1,800 feet in length, to be built at an estimated cost of $33,000.

Although the river this spring failed to repeat its damaging outburst of last March, city authorities hope to protect Belleville property by completing the project before the Moira gets its next opportunity to raise havoc here.

Under the plan submitted to Mr. Cameron, a wall will be built from the Lower Bridge to the south tip of Victoria Park, eliminating much of the shallow area in the mouth of the river. The area cut off by the retaining wall will be filled in at a further estimated cost of $15,000. The wall will make the river from six to 160 feet narrower.

A further plan calls for the dredging of the channel of the river, to make it sufficiently deep that the water would have free access to the Bay of Quinte at all times.

On the committee which met Mr. Cameron were Aldermen Clarence Clegg, Harry Greenleaf, Mayor Arnott, Ald. T. Y. Wills and City Engineer Charles Mott. Mr. Cameron was impressed with the feasibility of the project and left for Ottawa over the week-end to present the plan before government authorities who recently announced that $5,000,000 for flood control would be expended in Ontario.

GIRL IS VICTOR EASTVIEW CASE BIRTH CONTROL

Magistrate Dismisses Charge In Trial unprecedented In Canadian Courts

FINDS LOOPHOLE APPLIES

Work Accused Doing Ruled In Public Good—Crown May Appeal

By Guy E. Rhodes
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

EASTVIEW, Ont., March 17. — (CP)—Dorothea Palmer, 29-year-old Ottawa social worker, to-day was freed from a charge of advertising birth-control information and contraceptives in this town.

Magistrate Lester Clayton rendered judgment dismissing the charge, laid under Section 207C of the Criminal Code. At the end of a trial believed unprecented in Canadian jurisprudence, He agreed with the defence contention that the defence "has proved that the public good was served by the acts she is alleged to have done and that there was no excess in the acts alleged beyond what the public good required."

Section 207 of the Criminal Code, a section governing obscene libel and dissemination of erotic literature, among other things, provides a loophole in that no one may be convicted under it who can prove that the acts alleged against him were performed in the public good and without excess beyond what the public good required.

Expert Witnesses.

It was this point that the defence counsel, F. W. Wegenast stressed particularly in his case, bringing from Toronto, Brantford, Ont., and Kitchener, Ont., numerous witnesses to give their opinion that the work Miss Palmer was doing for the Parents' Information Bureau of Kitchener, was in the public good.

The Magistrate found in fact "that the acts alleged to have been done by Miss Palmer were done knowingly, without lawful justification, and for the purpose of aiding the Parents' Information Bureau to advertise means or information intended or prescribed as a means of preventing conception" with the definition of Section 207C and one count of the charge laid against her last September. Two other counts were dismissed early in the trial.

Escape Clause Applies.

The magistrate found, however, that the escape clause providing no one may be convicted under section 207 who can prove the public good was served, applied in this case, and so dismissed the action.

Forced To Arm Duce Explains

Threatened On All Sides He Tells Cheering Libyan Hordes

TRIPOLI, Libya, March 17 (AP).—Premier Mussolini, referring scathingly to what he called the nervousness of Democratic countries over Italy's ascendancy in the Mediterranean, told a cheering throng of 100,000 today the Italian empire had been forced to rearm to meet the rearmament threat of others. While the guns of the Italian fleet boomed in the harbor of the colony's capital, Mussolini shouted:

"We yearn on sea, in the sky and on land because it is our imperious duty in the face of the armaments of others."

Declaring such reports disturbed the peace of all peoples, Mussolini said "An alarmist campaign has been evident in the more or less great democratic countries over my trip to Libya.

"This neuropathic alarmism, this sowing of suspected dangers, does not enhance the cause of peace because it profoundly disturbs relations between peoples."

The Premier, paying his first visit to the Italian colony on the southern shore of the Mediterranean in 10 years, spoke from a huge pavilion erected in front of the Governor's palace on gigantic hetor rods—symbol of Fascism.

Addressing the crowd of native Libyan Moslems and Italian colonists, Il Duce proclaimed an Italian will to "live in peace with all those who manifest an identical will."

But, he warned, he had not forgotten the League of Nations coalition which tried to crush Italy's conquest of Ethiopia by imposition of sanctions.

Reds Storm Rightist Conference At Clichy Guards Join Battle

Communists Hold Barricades Against 3,000 Officers All Night

SHOPS WRECKED

Pavement Torn Up, Town Hall Scarred With Bullets In Bloody Fray

PARIS, March 17. — (AP). — France's popular front government was threatened both by strikes and political difficulties to-day as the outgrowth of night-long rioting in the workers' suburb of Clichy in which five persons were killed and at least 300 wounded.

The bloody struggle between Communists, Mobile Guards and Rightists brought a one-hour strike of workers at the grounds of the forthcoming Paris International Exposition, at the Hotchkiss motor plant and in several clothing stores in protest against the deaths and arrests of Communists, allied with other Left political parties in the government.

Twelve hundred workers in the La Valette Construction Plant in Saint Quen, outside Paris, started a sit-down, and workers in the whole so-called "red ring" of industrial suburbs were discussing a possible general walk-out to-morrow.

Members of parliament filed notice of interpelations of Socialist Premier Leon Blum's administration for its handling of the riots, the most sanguinary in Paris in three years.

Strong cordons of police were thrown about strategic government centres to guard against rising political agitation.

Demand La Rocque Jailed

Communists, enraged by what they called the "massacre of Clichy," demanded immediate arrest of Col. Francois De La Rocque, leader of the militant right, and dissolution of his French Social Party, a meeting of which led to the Communist demonstration and the riots last night.

Authorities announced 24 mobile guards and Republican guards had been injured in the street battles during which mobile guards charged Communist barricades outside the rightist meeting place.

Three were seriously wounded by bullets. Eighty of the demonstrators were hurt seriously enough to require further treatment, and 140 police were more or less seriously injured.

The rioting flared at nightfall when thousands of leftists attempted to prevent members of the French social party — formerly the semi-militarized Croix De Feu — from holding a meeting in Clichy.

The Communist forces held the central square of the suburb until early morning when they retired before 3,000 police, mobile guards and mounted Republican guards, leaving the town hall in the centre of the battlefield scarred by bullets. Shops were wrecked, windows shattered and paving ripped up.

Colored Highways Urged For Ontario

Toronto, March 17.

A SUGGESTION that special colored matter be worked into the concrete of Ontario's highways to reduce the glare of sun and headlights and show up pedestrians more plainly after dark was made in the Legislature yesterday by George Fulford (Lib., Leeds).

CANADIAN PILOTS FLOCK TO BRITAIN FOR AIR TRAINING

Nearly 150 Civil Fliers Already Left To Bolster Armament Drive

BACKBONE R.A.F., 1914-18

OTTAWA, March 17 (CP) — Young Canadian civil pilots, the next generation from the airmen who formed the backbone of the Royal Air Force on the western front in the hectic years of the war, are turning to the United Kingdom for experience and adventure in Britain's domestic re-armament programme.

Many men who have obtained their civil flying licenses in Canada have left their jobs as instructors at flying clubs or with air companies for the more rigid military life with the R.A.F. Recruiting at English air bases, they will learn to fly under British instruction the new bombers and the fast pursuit planes which are part of the re-armament plan.

Officials here estimate nearly 150 civil pilots have gone to England already and it is expected young airmen will continue to emigrate for service in the R.A.F. as Britain prepares for eventualities in the face of a menacing European situation.

The Canadians are serving on short service commissions as they take advantage of the opportunity to recruit in a modern fighting force.

Bring Home Vast Knowledge

Airmen believe it significant that these men are all civil pilots and will return to Canada when their commission expires with a broader knowledge of both commercial and military aviation in this country.

Several thousand Canadians enlisted in the R.A.F. during the war and following the conflict returned

Irish The World O'er Paying Homage Today

Memory Of Man Who Brought Christianity Still Green And Hallowed

OVER 1,400 YEARS AGO

TORONTO, March 17.—It is more than 1,400 years since St. Patrick, patron saint of Ireland, lived and labored to bring Christianity to that pagan land, but today, March 17, the anniversary of his death in the Abbey Saul, founded by himself in County Down, Irishmen the world over unite to pay him tribute.

So deep an impression did St. Patrick make on the minds of his adopted people that after centuries filled with wars and religious and social differences have passed his memory is still as green and hallowed as then. Mountains, lakes and rivers of Ireland and churches the world over have been named after him and countless sons of Ireland answer to the name of Patrick.

The land that has adopted him as its patron saint first knew him as a captive swine herder, for, according to tradition, Patrick came from Gaul, now France, and was captured on the northern coast of Ireland while engaged on a predatory expedition with the Gauls. He was sent to be a swine herder amid the hills of Down, and lived among the pagan Irish for many years, finding them, according to his memoirs, a "generous and affectionate people."

Head Back to Ireland.

Eventually he made his way back to Gaul and then to Rome where he became a priest. After an audience with Pope Celestine he was encouraged to return to Ireland to spread Christianity there. In 432 he was back in Ulster preaching the Gospel amongst people with whom he had formerly lived as a serf.

He gained the support of King Leary, the pagan monarch of Ireland, who prevented the Druid priests from killing him, although he himself remained a pagan till the end of his days.

St. Patrick began banishing the people and, according to tradition, the River Boyne was Ireland's River Jordan.

It was while preaching at Tara that St. Patrick made the shamrock memorial. One of the Druid priests enslavered the mystery of the Blessed Trinity, and Patrick, stooping to the emerald sod, picked a shamrock and held it up to prove it was possible to combine three in one and one in three. From that day the shamrock has been the national emblem of Ireland.

There are many legends associated with his name, including one that he drove all reptiles from Ireland. It is true that no snakes or toads exist on Irish soil, though they are to be found in England and Scotland.

CULT TACTICS EXPEL PUPILS FROM SCHOOL

Dozen Young "Bible Students" Refuse Salute Flag Or Rise For Anthem

TRUSTEES OUST THEM

Parents Oppose Patriotism, Government, Church, But Hold Provincial Posts

QUARRYVILLE, N.B., March 17. —(CP).—A situation unique in New Brunswick has arisen in this Northumberland county village, where a dozen children have been expelled from school because they refuse to salute the flag and rise for the National Anthem.

The children, ranging in age from six to 16, have been barred from school since last Friday. Religious belief of the parents, opposing patriotic observance, was termed responsible for the situation.

Officials indicated the expulsion would remain in force until the pupils obey regulations or possible application for exemption is granted by the Board of Education. The dissension originated last November.

The typical county school, with a woman teacher, is situated in an English-speaking district and has grades from one to eight. About 35 pupils attend the school, aside from those expelled.

General Conference.

The expulsion followed deliberation by school trustees, inspector and teacher and the parents, the latter remaining obdurate in their stand against "man-made" law and for "divine law."

The religious cult, known by various names including "Russellites" and "Bible Students," has been gaining strength in this county in recent years, has adherents throughout Canada and is more widespread in the United States.

Meetings of adherents being advanced at Quarryville is opposed to the usual forms of patriotism, government and church service.

Most of the children in the ranks were said today to be looking forward to government positions, with at least two receiving pensions from the Government.

The school teacher, Miss Muriel Freiger, said the matter of expelled children was in the hands of the trustees. The latter made no statement.

Drop 8 Tons Bombs In 85-Plane Raid To Demoralize Italian Peasant Troops

MADRID, March 17 (AP). — The Government reported today its bombing fleets had virtually demolished the important towns of Siguenza and Brihuega, behind the insurgent front lines in the Guadalajara sector.

Outlining the success of its campaign to demoralize what was described as Italian peasant soldiery, the Government declared eight tons of bombs were dropped and 1,000,000 machine-gun bullets fired into the retreating ranks of the disorganized insurgents on the northeastern front.

Some 23 bi-motored bombers and 60 pursuit planes were reported to have been massed into one gigantic fleet for the raids.

The insurgents, in alleged retaliation for their reported defeat on the Guadalajara front some 45 miles northeast of the capital, opened the heaviest bombardment in weeks against the heart of the city.

Committee Prevents Tories From Probing Walters' Bookkeeping

Finance-Controller Admits Ontario Debt When Liberals Took Over, Not Known

BLAMES OLD RECORDS

Reveals He Holds Five Offices —Roebuck Uneasy, Stops Debate

TORONTO, March 17 (CP) — Public accounts committee of the Ontario legislature today refused to allow Conservative members to question Chester Walters, controller of finance, on the bookkeeping by which Premier Hepburn in his budget address arrived at his estimates of more than $7,000,000 surplus in the fiscal year ending March 31, next.

Attorney-General Roebuck took objection to the move on the ground the committee could only look into accounts for the fiscal year ended March 31, 1936.

Mr. Ellis asked Mr. Walters what posts he held in the public service. Witness listed them as follows: Controller of Finance, Deputy Minister of Public Works, director of the Ontario Savings Bank, chairman of the advisory committee to the public trustee and government representative on the Penny Bank Board.

Because of the way records were kept by the former Conservative administration, the exact total of gross debt when the Hepburn government came to power in 1934 has not been worked out, Mr. Walters said.

$33,797,661 Increase?

"Is it not true the increase in the gross debt of Ontario under the Liberal regime up to March 31, 1936, was $33,797,661.08?" asked Arthur Ellis (Conservative-Ottawa South).

"That takes in the Conservative year 1934," said Mr. Roebuck. "We paid for your spending."

Mr. Walters said the suggested figure was the amount in the accounts but if he were asked he could get it.

Mr. Ellis asked if the government had sold $129,500,000 worth of bonds since July 11, 1934. The figure was "substantially correct," replied Mr. Walters.

Mr. Walters said of a $30,000,000 issue offered in January last, a syndicate had purchased $10,000,000 outright and taken an option on the other $10,000,000. The option has been exercised on $5,295,000.

"At what price did they buy?" asked Mr. Ellis.

"I think it was 98.52," said Mr. Walters. "I remember it was the best price any provinces ever got."

"Oh, no," said Mr. Ellis. "Quebec got a better price."

"No, they didn't," said Mr. Walters.

Duffus Loan Bill Scored

House Adjourns Before Second Reading Is Given Measure

OTTAWA, March 17 (C.P.).—Investigation by Royal Commission of operations of small loan companies and the need for general legislation dealing with this problem were urged on the House of Commons last night by C. Grant MacNeil (C.C.F., Vancouver North). At the same time the House was asked to refuse any further small loans legislation until such a commission had reported.

These companies were under heavy fire when the hour devoted to private bills was occupied entirely with discussion of a Bill respecting the Central Finance Corporation. A motion for second reading was still being debated when the hour expired.

During the private bill hour last Friday night a similar Bill, respecting the Industrial Loan and Finance Corporation, which like this measure had already been passed by the Senate, was moved for second reading. The two measures were debated as one on the principle alone and hotly opposed. Second reading carried on a non-party division of 93 to 46, but dealing only with one measure.

As was the case on Friday night the mover of the second Bill, J. J. Duffus (Lib., Peterborough West) did not argue in support of the principles of legislation incorporating these loan companies, but asked second reading be given so that it could be sent before the Committee on Banking and Commerce for closer study.

Mendelssohn Choir Demonstrates Unlimited Beauty Of Human Voice

Capacity Audience Held Spell-Bound By Marvellous Choristers

SYMPHONIC BEAUTY

A DEMONSTRATION of the unlimited beauty of the human voice. In a few words that tells the story of the appearance of the Mendelssohn Choir of Toronto in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church on Tuesday evening. It is possible to obtain the quality of symphonic beauty, the dynamic outbursts and those moments of musical saturation when full-chorded harmony comes to no definite stopping place but merely continues until it has vanished, and do it with voices. And in such a moment applause seems like an intrusion on a memory which should be allowed to linger. Dr. H. A. Fricker can play upon those voices, 200 of them, with his baton and with his fingers. He asks for what he wants and gets it in full measure. When he wants an attack it comes with a spontaneity which is vigorous and robust; and when he requires but little and then less and finally mass the sequence is unbroken.

It is not necessary to speak in terms of phrasing, or intonation, of perfect pitch, of fortissimo or any such thing because the Mendelssohn Choir has long since mastered them all. They can be taken for granted because all such things were so abundantly evident that prorascted mention of them serves no good purpose.

It has been said by a number of conductors in recent years that the concert hall voice is disappearing, and it is a fact that many choral societies have to be content with a fairly deep baritone to fill that section. The Mendelssohn Choir has great bass, and with such voices it is possible to lay the foundations of the musical structure deep down and from there go ahead with the superstructure. Those who look for that process of choral building must have gone away from the performance feeling that all was well and that the double bass section had been overwhelmed with recruits. Those male voices, divided as they were many times four ways, gave a background against which musical beauty could be developed to its highest point of tonal perfection.

A Vigorous Opening

Our National Anthem, many may have discovered, is a thing of beauty and of sentimental enunciation. Handled by Dr. Fricker it was no matter-of-fact uttering of words to music. The thing lived; it was triumphant in its challenge, clear cut in its meaning; it made one feel the might of Empire and the traditional loyalty to the throne.

Mendelssohn's Motet, "Judge Me, O God," is a number where the beauty of the words and the beauty of the music are well matched and well balanced. The second Motet, "Jesu, Joy and Treasure," offered opportunity for all the choral possibilities which such a choir as Mendelssohn could develop. If there had been notations on the program telling something of this number it would have added to the pleasure of listening. This Bach number, if given in full, would have taken at least forty minutes of time, but only three of the more impressive movements were given. It was written for Lutheran church music, and it is distinctly and impressively spiritual in conception and design. As rendered here it was declamative to the point of explosive fire where it should have been. There was that wonderful 42nd that word is need for all its meaning: background of masculine vocalism against which the higher voices were at liberty to go their way with the assurance that the balance would never be out of place. It was one of those rare moments of unspeakable beauty when a soft passage at the end became only a murmur, then the murmur reduced to a hum and then to silence.

Written For The Choir

Interest attached to the Motet "Apostrophe to the Heavenly Hosts," because it was written especially for the choir by Dr. Healey Wilan, well-known Toronto organist and director. The subdued passages at the start were unspoiled loveliness, enchanting as a cool breeze at the close of a parched day. The movement came to a with all the color of orchestral declines. Toward the climax there was original treatments of that word "Hallelujah," bringing with it a lofty sopranos which demanded and secured that impressive treatment which the word itself so thoroughly needs.

The program, and it was Hugh Robertson who wrote "An Irridal Love Lilt," but it could have been added with truth that he is for Hugh Robertson, conductor of the Glasgow Choral Union. Like some other youthful writers of music he had selected Robertson Soft songs as the basis of this delightful bit of work. The theme, beautiful in its simplicity, was one of those musical children which refuses to become

PROPOSES FESTIVALS

NEW YORK, March 17 (CP). — Deploring what he termed the inadequacy of music instruction in the schools of his native Canada and the lack of proper concert halls in the Dominion, Edward Johnson, manager of the Metropolitan Opera Company, today urged a wider reception of music for its cultural value and suggested the building of a large auditorium on the grounds of the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto.

The former world-famous tenor, born in Guelph, Ont., and credited with doing more to popularize opera in America in the two years as manager of the "Met" than did any of his predecessors, visioned Toronto as a potentially great music centre.

"Agriculturally and industrially," he said, "the Toronto exposition equals, if it does not surpass, anything of its kind on the continent. It is a pity that nothing countably cultural is offered to the thousands of persons who go there each year."

His suggestion was that the government municipal, Provincial or Federal—must unite with the exposition committee in charge of the Exhibition and arrange the building of an

HEPBURN CALMS FEAR OF ELECTION DURING SUMMER

No Redistribution Bill This Session—Repeal Of Amusement Tax Starts

QUIET SESSION

TORONTO, March 17.—(CP).—The last major piece of Government legislation having been introduced, prospects appeared bright to-day the Ontario Legislature would reach adjournment by March 25 as Premier Hepburn has planned.

The Budget debate will be resumed to-day and a division is expected to-morrow night. The debate went on in desultory fashion yesterday, there being fewer than 30 members in the House at times last night.

The bill to repeal the Amusement Tax Act was introduced. Premier Hepburn gave notice of it Monday but it appeared in the proceedings as a notice of intention to repeal the Income Tax Act. This brought Opposition questions and the Premier reintroduced the bill with its proper title.

Mr. Hepburn assured the Opposition there would be no Redistribution Bill this session and eased the minds of those members who have been worrying about an election this summer. The Premier previously put himself on record as saying a Redistribution Bill will precede a general election.

Greater powers for the Ontario Securities Commission was the purpose behind a bill introduced by Attorney-General Arthur Roebuck. The bill would empower the cabinet to name any person to investigate any fraud against the Government or any municipality and for purposes of investigation the person so appointed would have the powers of the Security Commission.

The Bill carries a retroactive clause saying inquiries may be ordered into suspected offences "either before or after the coming into force of this Act."

Colored Highways?

George Fulford (Lib. Leeds) suggested Ontario should experiment with colored highways to reduce accidents. Color mixed with the concrete reduces glare of headlights and sunlight, he said.

A. H. Acres (Con. Carleton) criticized reductions made in expenditures by the Department of Agriculture and the leasing of pulpwood limits without tender being called. Mr. Acres asked how the company of which Hon. Charles Cox, Minister without portfolio, obtained a lease on timber limits at Mountain Lake.

Mr. Acres caused some merriment with a suggestion there should be something done to force married men to share pay cheques with their wives.

Farquhar Oliver (U.F.O., Grey South) commended the Budget, His

Hotelmen Want Tourist Trailer Tax

Toronto, March 17.

"TRAILER tourists" were given verbal black-eyes by hotelmen from all parts of the Province, who, at the annual convention of the Hotel Association of Ontario at the Royal York Hotel, recommended that the Government inaugurate regulations to govern the trailer tourist traffic.

The average trailer tourist spends little or no money in this Province, and is now permitted to use the highways without paying anything at all for this service, it was contended. Some of the trailers are equipped with tanks that carry sufficient quantities of gasoline to last during their stay here, thus obviating even the necessity of paying the Canadian gasoline tax, it was argued.

FUNDS PROVIDED FOR COBOURG PIER

W. A. Fraser, M.P., Writes Letter Of Explanation To Mayor Booth

COBOURG, March 17.—Cobourg's worry that insufficient funds were provided by the Government to make the necessary repairs to the east pier has been cleared up as a result of a letter to Mayor Maurice Booth, which was written by W. A. Fraser, M.P., for Northumberland. When nothing was in the supplementary estimates a short time ago relative to the east pier, members of the council expressed surprise and asked the mayor to find out about it from the local member. An excerpt from Mr. Fraser's letter follows:

"On page 35 of the general estimates there is revoted the sum of $25,000, and 1937-38 $50,000 as per attached page. The reason that only $40,000 was voted last year was because it was felt that not more than $40,000 could be spent in the remaining time. An item such as the above does not come down in the supplementary estimates, but naturally the Government would not go ahead and do part of the job," stated Mr. Fraser's letter.

In the list of estimates which were included in Mr. Fraser's letter the following reference is made to Cobourg:

Harvie, $25,000; 1937-38, $50,000; 1938-37, $40,000.

BLIND PENSIONS GO THROUGH HOUSE IN FINAL READING

Old Age Abuses Create Lengthy Debate—County Judge Seen As Remedy

FEED BILL ADVANCES

OTTAWA, March 17—(CP). — While the principle of applying the privilege of the old age pension to blind persons of 40 years and over received the enthusiastic endorsation of all parties in the House of Commons, passage of the necessary amendment yesterday aroused a storm of criticism of the Pension Act itself and the debate occupied the greater part of the day.

The amendment will enable all blind persons more than 40 to draw pensions of $240 a year, providing their income from other sources does not exceed $480 if married and $300 if single. The pension would be reduced by whatever amount more than $400 the pensioner may be able to earn by his own efforts. All the provinces have endorsed the move, Finance Minister Dunning told the House.

General criticism of administration of the old age pensions by the provinces drew from Mr. Dunning the announcement that before the next session of Parliament a Dominion-Provincial conference would be called specifically for the purpose of studying old age pensions legislation with a view to eliminating abuses and defects that had been disclosed.

The Federal treasury pays 75 per cent of old age pensions and the provinces 25 per cent., but administration is entirely in the hands of the provinces and the complaints, which came from many quarters, were directed mainly against the regulations set up by the provinces and the manner they were enforced.

Small Loan Firms Attacked.

Members were also given an opportunity to launch a further attack upon legislation under which small loan companies operate and prominent members of the C.C.F. group urged that the government at once refused to sponsor any further legislation for these companies pending inquiry into their operations by royal commission.

This debate arose over a bill respecting the Central Finance Corp.

John O'Neill Painfully Injured Operating Sawing Outfit In Emily

DOWNEYVILLE, March 17. — When a block of maple wood was suddenly shot from the sawing outfit which he and his brother were operating on the farm of W. C. Berliher near here on Monday afternoon, John O'Neill received severe facial injuries.

He was changing the saw at the time and the block struck him in the mouth, loosening a number of teeth and causing a wound that required six stitches to store. The injured man was taken to Omemee, where Dr. Earls dressed the cut. O'Neill is suffering from loss of blood and shock.

Sir William Osler When A Child Was Tied To Tree By His Mother

TORONTO, March 17—Sir William Osler, one of the world's greatest physicians and surgeons, was chained to a tree when he was a child because his mother was too poor to have some one look after her offspring, Dr. O. E. Tanner (Liberal, Simcoe East) informed the Legislature last night.

This interesting chapter in Sir William's history was revealed by Dr. Tanner when he took the Conservative Opposition to task for having tried to make political capital in the recent East Hastings by-election out of the case of a youngster who was tied to a tree in summer and to a chair in winter because mental hospitals were so crowded no attention there was available to him.

"That was foolish," chided Dr. Tanner. "Lots of kids are chained to trees or tied to them to keep them out of mischief. Why, even Sir William Osler—and I'm familiar with his history—was tied to a tree when he was a child because his mother was too poor to have some one look after her children. Surely Sir William was not mentally deficient.

Ivan Wright Victim Of Accident While Getting Out Fuel Supply

(Examiner Correspondence.)

JANETVILLE, March 17. — Ivan Wright, who has just moved here from Yokesbury in the farm of Mr. R. McGee, suffered a nasty accident Friday. While hurrying to get out his year's supply of wood before the rush of the spring work, his axe slipped and cut the large toe to the first joint. Laverne McGill, who was working with him, assisted him to the clearance to his car and rushed him to the office of Dr. Gorman in Lindsay. Three stitches were required to close the wound, and while it is very painful, the worst part of it is the victim will be forced to remain indoors for a period of two weeks, which is most unfortunate at this particular time.

Hurt In Game.

Another accident which might have proved fatal occurred at the skating rink on Friday during a hockey game. Cecil Armstrong, while being checked, caught his stick in the boards. The handle gave him a nasty poke in the stomach, which knocked him out for a time. Fortunately the stick broke in several pieces, or the impact would have been more critical.

Cecil was carried off the ice, and the game was left unfinished. He was later able to proceed home, apparently none the worse except for soreness.

Picturesque Criers Give Flood Warning

London, March 17—(AP).

THE West River, swollen by the incoming dawn tide, broke through Aldreth Causeway today and surged over the rich north-eastern Fenland, threatening the towns of Cottenham, Willingham and Rampton.

Historic town criers shouted their warnings through farming villages as the tide forced the river Ouse and its tributaries out over the lowlands just north of Cambridge.

Throughout the night men and women were recruited to guard the narrow rim of mud dykes along the Ouse which were the only protection for more than 200,000 acres of rich country.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, March 17. — The members of St. John's Anglican Young People's Association were the guests on Monday night of the United Church Young People's League in a most interesting evening of games and entertainment.

Miss Dorothy Davidson, president of the Y.P.L., welcomed the A.Y.P.A. to their meeting, and at her invitation Rev. S. A. Kemp spoke a few words to the youthful gathering. Miss Marguerite Roche, A.Y.P.A. president, then took charge of the meeting and presented their program as prepared for the occasion. The program included:

Piano solo, Miss Verna Isaac; vocal trio, Mrs. D. Holdcroft, Miss Essie Thompson, and Miss Margaret Jones; reading, entitled "The Flu," Miss Helena Davies; solo, Rev. R. E. Lemon; chorus, "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," by the A.Y.P.A. members.

Two contests and several games as conducted by Grey Kemp were also thoroughly enjoyed. Refreshments were served at the close.

PRIZE-WINNING PLAY IS WRITTEN BY FARMER'S WIFE

Drama On Drought - Ridden Plains Will Compete At Ottawa

BEST IN SASKATCHEWAN

REGINA, March 16 (C.P.). — Authoress, directress and member of the cast of "Relief," prize play of the Saskatchewan Regional Drama Festival, Minnie Evans Bicknell, grey-haired farm-wife, says "more credit should go to others."

Selected on Saturday night by Adjudicator George de Warfaz to represent Saskatchewan in the Dominion Festival at Ottawa next month, the play was produced by four of the 16 members of the Dramatic Club of Marshall, where live only 75 persons, lying near the Alberta border directly west of Prince Albert.

Struggles of a farm family in the drought-ridden plains of Southern Saskatchewan are depicted by "Relief." A message from two children in British Columbia brings promise of release from the Prairie ordeal, but, at the moment the farmer, broken by his weary wait for better times, commits suicide.

Though their home is not in the drought-land, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bicknell who, with teen-aged Archie McArthur and Anna McIntyre, form the cast, know the havoc wrought by wind and dust and grasshoppers. They lost three crops farming at High River, Alta., between 1917 and 1922.

Club Keeps Interest In Life.

Now they farm near Marshall where the dramatic club has been sponsored eagerly for 12 years. "The dramatic club gives us an interest in life and keeps us from growing old," said Mrs. Bicknell.

In 1933, the club took a play to North Battleford, Sask., for a district festival and there Edward Cohen, Edmonton lawyer and drama student, provided the inspiration for "Relief."

"He told how to develop and write a play," Mrs. Bicknell said, and advised us to try it. That gave me an inspiration. I had heard so much about the drought country in the south, and in the spring of 1935 I wrote this play."

Mr. and Mrs. Bicknell took the script to a drama school at Banff, Alberta, and there Mr. Cohen read the play. It was studied as part of the school's work and there it was staged for the first time.

The Marshall Club took the play to Yorkton, Sask., for a festival last year and won second prize. Their performance brought the invitation to present the play at the Regina Festival this year.

"More credit should go to others, Mrs. Bicknell said. "I've just been pushed into it."

MANILA, March 17 (CP).—Eight persons were killed in a terrific explosion of a Chinese fireworks plant today at Pasay, a suburb of Manila. Some officials estimated 20 to 30 were missing.

Fire followed the explosion. The force of the blast was felt over a radius of two miles.

Most of the victims were Filipino women who had no chance to escape through the one exit of the plant.

Police reported a number jumped from windows into a swamp, where they were trapped in mud and water and were drowned.

The explosion tore the plant asunder and numerous bodies were buried in flaming wreckage.

When the embers cooled somewhat, firemen and soldiers dug into the twisted mass of debris.

Several hours after the explosion fire continued to burn on one side of the plant. Firecracker explosions were frequent as flames reached storage places.

Mute evidence of the mad rush of trapped women workers was found in the lone doorway, where a number of bodies were piled.

Cause of the explosion was undetermined.

NEW COLD SPELL SNAG TO SHIPPING

Marine Men Expecting Opening By April 1 Now Set Tenth As Earliest

CLEVELAND, March 17—(AP).—Cold weather of the past several weeks has caused the postponement of the probable opening date of what marine men say will be the greatest shipping season in the history of the Great Lakes.

With a mild winter they had believed that the great fleet of lakes freighters which brings ore from the Northern Michigan and Minnesota ranges for the booming steel mills would get under way the first of April.

But ice conditions in Straits of Mackinac and the St. Marys river, through which all lake traffic must pass to get to Lakes Superior and Michigan, have become worse. Marine men now set April 10 as the earliest date.

But each day that the opening is postponed diminishes the ore piles at lakes' docks and steel furnaces and steadily increases the demand for ore to replenish supplies.

Because of the world boom for scrap iron and ore every available ship on the Great Lakes that is equipped to carry iron ore will be pressed into service this year. Conservative estimates place the movement at anywhere from 60,000,000 to 70,000,000 tons. The previous high was in 1929 when 86,000,000 tons were moved.

The supply of scrap iron in the United States is about exhausted and steel mills are turning to iron ore for their pig iron supplies.

Open hearth furnaces are finding it so difficult to get scrap they are charging their furnaces with an increasing amount of ore. This puts the pressure on the blast furnace which in turn puts it on the iron mines and the fleet of ore carriers.

The result is fully 10,000,000 tons less than a normal supply of iron ore reserve remaining at lower lakes docks and furnaces.

Scales which automatically show one's weight and height at the same time are appearing in London.

With his ferrets, Keener A. Hooper, of the London Zoo has caught 9,500 rats in 12 years.

WOMAN INSISTS ON SERVING TERM

Won't Pay Copper Of Fine Levied For "Crowning" Constable

WOODSTOCK, Ont. March 17.—(CP).—Mrs. Clara Kendall of Norwich still insists she won't pay a fine and her latest intimation is that she will be in Woodstock Wednesday to start serving a jail term.

Mrs. Kendall was convicted recently of assaulting County Constable Sharpe of Norwich with a broom when he sought to collect from her for an advertisement placed in the Norwich weekly newspaper by a neighbor who had found Mrs. Kendall's lost pup.

"I'll go to jail on St. Patrick's Day and come out on Good Friday," she said.

"I have no intention of paying the money—wouldn't pay a copper of it."

Displaying the pup that has been the innocent cause of it all, Mrs. Kendall explained that the animal's name originally was Trixie, but after the fine imposed the constable on the pup's behalf, she thought the name "Coronation" more fitting.

HAVELOCK SCHOOL BOARD IN SESSION

Order Check Of All Children Under Six To Estimate Future Attendance

(Examiner Correspondence.)

HAVELOCK, March 17—The Public School Board met on Thursday evening, March 11, all members being present and Trustee Taylor in the chair.

The board authorized purchase of a map costing $6, as requested by Principal Yuill on the recommendation of Inspector Capp.

It was moved by Trustees Squire and Gardiner that the village clerk be asked to submit a list to the board of all children under the age of six in the village, giving their name and age, that the members may place an estimate on the attendance as regards future years.

On motion of Trustees Squire and Gardiner, the appointment of a trustee to the High School Board was laid over for the present.

The following list of accounts were ordered paid on motion of Trustees Squire and Roche: Teachers' and caretaker's salaries for February, $466.98; Hydro Commission, power, $14.90; Principal Yuill, supplies, $4.68; Wm. Seabrook, repairing roof, 84c; Bellphone, Inspector Cook, 15c; Trustees' and Ratepayers' Association, $5.50; Harold Peters, 10 cords of wood, $32.50; teachers' and caretaker's salaries for March, $469.99.

Despite the bad weather of last year farmers of the Irish Free State are in better financial condition than for several years because of government guarantees of prices.

Weddings

ELLIS—HAGGERTY.

At the Theatres

AT THE REGENT.

RALPH BELLAMY AND LAWRENCE TIBBETT.

A delightful double bill that has a mixture of everything that thrills the motion picture patron.

Ralph Bellamy at his very best in "The Man Who Lived Twice," a strange tale of double identity, as it were. First the criminal who takes life; then the man who saves it. And with a grand supporting cast. That ugly mug, 'Gloves,' almost steals the honors in one of those throat-filling characterizations that remain fixed indelibly on the memory. What a picture this is! And the men stand out. When you get men who can put acting over like these men do, the women just naturally fade into the background. They just don't count.

As for Lawrence Tibbett in "Under Your Spell," you have to hear him to fall at once under his spell. Hear him sing the Mephisto aria in 'Faust,' hear him rumble along and sing of his little donkey cart, listen to him in the mountain pool. What a voice!

Gregory Ratoff has a part that suits him to perfection, as the harassed and money-grabbing manager of the temperamental singer who grows weary of endorsing advertisements and doing without a drink, or smoke. And Wendy Barry is extremely good, in a spoiled, tantrum-pulling fashion. This second feature rounds out one of those extremely satisfactory double bills that leave nothing to be desired.—C.H.M.

Wife Preservers

It pays to keep a record of the kind of sheets you buy and the date on which you purchased them, says farmers' bulletin No. 1766 of the U. S. department of agriculture. You then know better what kind to reorder, and can also check on their wearing qualities.

Fashion Service

Here's a smart peasant cotton print home frock that will make you feel like a little bride.

Yes! It has the new princess lines that make you appear so grand and tall. This coat-like dress is easy to slip in and out of. Easy to iron, too, for it opens out almost flat.

You'll especially like the puffed-at-the-shoulder sleeves and the comfortable lower V-neckline. The pattern provides for a shawl or a notched collar as seen in the small view. The attractive pockets are useful as well.

When warmer days arrive, this flattering home frock will be just the thing for the porch, working in the garden or for local shopping.

Cotton challis print, polka-dot percale or plain bright cotton in basket weave are other delightful suggestions.

It's a joy to make for it cuts in one-piece from shoulder to hem. Included in the pattern is a Detailed Picture Sewing Chart.

Style No. 2828 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42-inches bust. Size 36 requires 5¾ yards of 35-inch material with 2¼ yards of binding.

NAPLES, Italy, March 17 (AP).—Signora Cestra Antoniani gave birth to a boy and girl today, but, physicians paradoxically said, the babies were not twins.

The attending doctors described the birth as an extraordinarily rare phenomenon, for while the girl was born after the normal period of gestation, the boy was born two months prematurely.

Just Between Us Women

A Daily Chat With Examiner Neighbors, Conducted by Roberta

Bassanio: Do all men kill the things they do not love?

Shylock: Hates any man the thing he would not kill?

Bassanio: Every offence is not a hate at first.

Shylock: What, would'st thou have a serpent sting thee twice?

—Shakespeare.
(Merchant of Venice)

And Byron says this:

How hatred is by far the longest pleasure,
Men love in haste, but they detest at leisure.

Dear Friends:

I cannot say with truth that I hate one living person, but many times I hate what they do. None of us like criticism, but if given in a kindly nature, we can take it and profit, but oh how I hate when someone comes along and tries to put me down so that they can elevate themselves.

And how I dislike those who seem to expect perfection from me, and say it doesn't "suit" me to do this or that. It may not "suit" them any better, but they reserve the right to do as they like, while putting hobbles on me.

And how I dislike those ultra prous people, shoving texts at you all the time, but when money is involved become very brisk and businesslike indeed, and forget all about religion because it hits their purse.

How I love also, those who come along and tell me how to spend my income, acting very surprised to know I have no reserve money, and being very smug and complacent because they have a bank account, which they never earned nor contributed to in their lives.

I hate shiftlessness and extravagance, and whining, and two-faceedness, and lies, and general cussedness. I hate poverty with all my heart, and empty promises, and I dislike intensely children who are bad-mannered, but blame the parents for that.

And I love clean decent fun and laughter, stories with a different angle and a happy ending, for so many of our stories in real life do not have the happy ending we expected. And I like a person who will not agree with me if I have a wrong slant on anything, but will come straight out without rancour and show me the side I hadn't seen, because then I have learned something.

I do not like people who think that their sickness or their troubles are worse than anyone else's, and vow for the life of me understand how they get that way, to get it into their heads that they are more important than anyone else, and that you and your troubles need not be considered.

And I hate injustice with all my heart and soul, especially when it is done to those who cannot talk back, or are not in a position to defend themselves. Only cowards are like that, but there are many of them in the world, but they shouldn't forget that:

The mills of God grind slowly
But they grind exceeding small.
Though with patience He stands waiting
With exactness grinds He all.

And someday as their injustices will overtake them, and I would not like to be in their shoes then.

I love to see the sun rise in the morning especially when I am driving somewhere just before dawn, and the miracle of the new day is borne into my soul once again. I love the excitement of coming into a strange city, for who knows, I may have the adventure of meeting new friends and seeing new sights, to fill my mind in the drab days that always follow.

I like helping people who are in trouble or who are sick, and I like to show appreciation when people do me a kindness. I love beauty in any form, in people or art or music. I hate being depressed, or shabbily dressed, or sick, or short of money. (Don't we all?) I dislike intensely people who waste my time in trivial things, for I am a very busy woman, and have little leisure, and I also dislike bores who must tell you every little detail, generally unimportant as that. And as I hate to overstep my space, I will love you and leave you for today.

Your Friend,
ROBERTA.

P.S. Why not tell me some of the things you hate. Even it won't seem so one-sided?

Farmers Want Experienced Men

Farmers who are going to engage help to run their farms want people with experience. There is no doubt about that. A good many magistrates when dealing with transients who come before them under the general heading of transients have asked the question: "Why don't you get a job on a farm?" There are places where an untrained person can work and learn, but when it comes to getting things done the farmer prefers experienced help.

Proof of that comes often enough. Today there was the advertising columns of one daily paper where there were ten farm hands wanted, and the wages varied from high of $40 per month and board with promise of advancement to $25 per month with board. Others did not mention wages, but in every instance it was stated experienced men were required, and it was generally stipulated they must be good milkers and submit references, and others wanted to know how long the applicant had worked at his last place of employment.

There was not one announcement saying there was room for a person with no experience.

No Civic Managers

Belleville will be able to reduce the number of its aldermen from twelve to six, but it cannot have a city manager. The Private Bills Committee of the Ontario Legislature said so. The reduction in the number of aldermen can be brought about by making application to the Municipal Board, but there is no way of getting around the decision of the Private Bills Committee that there shall be no city manager form of government. The objection to it was all centred in one idea. It placed too much power in the hands of one man, and if he did not possess all the power he was supposed to have then he would not be in actual fact a city manager at all.

No member of the Private Bills Committee seemed to like the city manager idea. Only one member, Sam Lawrence, M.P.P. of Hamilton East, voted for it, and he explained he did so because the people of Belleville had voted on the idea and approved of it. It can hardly be urged that all members of the Private Bills Committee of the Ontario Legislature were voting on something they did not understand. The trouble with the scheme is the difficulty in finding the proper type of occupants for the office. There are few men who possess within themselves all the necessary qualifications to occupy the post of civic manager. And it is probably correct enough to say there are few cities possessing aldermen of the type which would be content to allow a manager to go ahead and run the business.

Why Bring in the Bucksaw?

There was reference made in the Examiner to the 74th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Maybee of Prince Edward County. The Picton Gazette had an excellent story with pictures. Mr. Maybee, a gentleman of 94 years, is shown outdoors with a bucksaw, in the act of cutting a stick of wood, while Mrs. Maybee, 92, stands by the kitchen stove as though ready to begin with the preparation of a meal.

When a man reaches the age of 94 and is celebrating the 74th anniversary of his wedding we have a feeling it is time he discarded the bucksaw. It is time he sat down in a chair if he were to have his picture taken. Without solicitation or suggestion we admit a degree of envy toward the man who at 94 is still able to use a bucksaw and cause a stick of wood to be dismembered into stove length pieces. But it is too much. Likewise the excellent lady at 92 should not have been puttering about the kitchen stove when having her picture taken. She too should have sat in a chair and folded her hands and looked peaceful and serene.

When people have been married for 74 years there should be an atmosphere of lessened activity. When newspaper folk and camera men call upon them there should not be of necessity a bucksaw or a kitchen range shoving toward the front at all. Never at any time could we grow enthusiastic about the bucksaw as a companion for the whole journey through life. We always regarded it as inseparably associated with a task which had to be done rather than an occupation which could be anticipated with a degree of pleasure. When one is celebrating a 74th wedding anniversary it does seem that the bucksaw could well be allowed to hang on its peg in the woodshed and remain there.

Lindsay and Its Spinach

When it comes to the game of curling our neighboring town of Lindsay knows much. The teams in that place are so evenly matched that it is necessary for the one which is to win to either go into training or seclusion prior to the final contest. In that way they must seek for that little something else, lacking which victory would be uncertain.

We learn that a team piloted by Chief of Police Lawler was pitted against one whose chief was the formerly unbeaten and unbeatable Percy Skitch. The Lawler team seems to be somewhat of a municipal organization, counting within its membership Chief Lawler, Magistrate Gee, H. Wareham, the collector of taxation and Secretary Cuthbert of the Lindsay water board.

The report from Lindsay says the municipal team ate a peck of spinach prior to the game, this fodder being provided by the magistrate. The thing was probably done in secret, otherwise the other team would probably have proceeded with the mastication of two pecks or perhaps several bushels of the stuff.

At the last end the score was tied, and then it was that Chief Lawler with one shot to go put spinach to the supreme test. From his pocket he plucked one remaining leaf or twig or branch or shoot or spray, or whatever it is that grows on spinach stalk, and he ate it. Every bit of it. Then he heaved his last stone. It made history even in Lindsay. That stone went right on down the ice, jumped over the first one in the road, turned right to get around another on guard, turned left and defied the red lights. Then it shoved the fourth opposing stone a little to one side and looking to see just where the destination should be, went right over and sat down on the T.

People who drive cars through Lindsay should beware. Grown strangely strong on spinach, Chief Lawler can deal with anything from the frail flivver of other years up to the large truck with trailer of the present age. He can now accomplish with one hand what men with clubs and night billies have failed to do in the past. When the traffic becomes heavy in the tourist season the Magistrate can supply the Chief with bales of spinach and then go away on his holidays knowing no laws will be broken. If spinach can win a curling game in Lindsay then its possibilities are unlimited, for Lindsay curlers are hard folk to beat.

Faced By His Own Record

It has been made abundantly plain on a good many occasions that a man with a prison record does not stand as good a chance in court as a first offender. So often the record of previous imprisonments is brought into the hearing of the case.

And that makes an interesting study. This way: A man commits an offence against the law and the decision of the bench is that he shall go and serve a two-year term. He does so; he may shorten the time by good conduct, but he pays the price demanded by court in the first place. The law has no further claim against mim, and according to the balance of offence and punishment the account is square.

And yet when the same man comes into court again the fact that he has previously served time is mentioned as a reason why he should not receive the same leniency—if it can be shown—as one who had no previous record. The reason for that attitude no doubt is that the accused on his second appearance shows symptoms of becoming a repeater in the criminal world.

So it is a fact that the second or third time offender has to carry with him his old record which is supposed to have been settled. The farther a man goes in crime the tougher the path becomes.

The Ideal Alarm System

The town of Newmarket is to have a burglar alarm system. In fact it has had it all along although it has not been in operation. The thing is so simple the wonder is some person has not thought of it before. There will be no blowing of whistles, no flashing on of great lights here and there. None whatever. The town lights will merely be put out.

As we understand the procedure it is something like this: When a resident has reason to believe his premises are being molested, or are about to be molested, he will telephone the home of the man who looks after the waterworks department, and will give the needed particulars regarding who is speaking, and what has gone wrong. The waterworks man will then pull the switch, although he may have to dress in cold weather in order to dodge as the switch is outside. After the lights go out the night constable will be certain to notice just what has happened and he will hasten to the nearest available phone and call the man at the waterworks to find out where the burglary or trouble is taking place. After he secures that information the lights again go on and the constable can proceed with the tracking down of the marauder.

A town council which can think up such an inexpensive scheme as that should be able to take the next step and run the place without having to collect any taxes.

Three By-Elections

There were but six persons present at the nomination meeting in Hamilton West when candidates were named for a federal by-election in that riding, and two of the six were reported as hecklers. There are three such elections pending at the moment: West Hamilton, Bonaventure, Que., and North Renfrew.

The seat in West Hamilton has been consistently Conservative since it was created in 1903. Before that there had been but one seat for Hamilton. In the 1935 contest H. E. Wilton, whose death made the by-election necessary, won the seat by polling 7,857 votes for the Conservatives. There were four opponents, a Reconstructionist, two Liberals and C.C.F., and between them they secured 15,519 votes. This time there will be a Conservative, Liberal and C.C.F. in the field.

The seat in Bonaventure, Que., vacant by the death of Hon. Charles Marcil, will probably never again repeat the record of the late member. It went Liberal in 1891. Mr. Marcil entered the House in 1900, and was successful at every election since. That same year Hugh Guthrie was elected in South Wellington, and he won every election up to 1930 after which he retired. There are few members making any such records today.

Bonaventure has no Conservative candidate in the contest; there is a Liberal, an Independent Liberal and an Independent.

North Renfrew, although it went Liberal in 1918, is more Conservative in its record. Since 1867 there have been five Liberal victories and 12 Conservative; it went with the Opposition in the war-time election of 1917. In the election of 1935 Liberals took the seat by a majority of 1,918, that being the largest majority recorded by any political party in the history of the riding. Judged by its past history North Renfrew will be the best fighting ground in the by-elections. Hamilton West should go Conservative; Bonaventure should be safe for the Liberals. At the moment there are two candidates in North Renfrew, Liberal and Conservative, and if it remains on that basis North Renfrew will provide the centre of action.

NOTE AND COMMENT

It is to be hoped this Barrie-Peterborough hockey argument will be settled before Attorney-General Roebuck considers it necessary to call out the militia.

It is said that Mussolini's ambition is to rule Europe. He should study the fate of others who had the same goal in mind.

Three lawyers have been nominated as candidates in the Federal by-election in Bonaventure. Probably the other legal light in the riding is the provincial member.

Red Deer Social Crediters voted in favor of Premier Aberhart resigning. If the late Dr. Michael Clark of that riding were able to deliver the message it would lack nothing in vigor and decisiveness.

Employees in a Detroit hotel tied up the services by staging a sit-down strike. Patrons will probably retaliate by arranging a walkout about the time tips are usually distributed.

No fewer than 211 persons were killed in Canada in level crossing accidents last year and there was not a single case recorded where the locomotive left the tracks and went looking for victims.

Four nations, including Canada, are participating in a radio conference at Havana and this country will vote the affair a brilliant success if it eliminates the interference of Mexican stations with Canadian broadcasting.

Sixty-five Canadians have drawn horses in the Irish sweepstakes. Several thousand other Canadians are waiting for the names to be disclosed so they can start in trying to sell the winners mining stock, new motor cars, insurance policies, or what have you.

It has been found necessary to allot the peers one inch more seating space in Westminster Abbey for the Coronation because of their flowing robes. Nineteen inches is the maximum permitted so some of the guests will have to do some vigorous training.

A tentative shell contract has been given to a Hamilton firm, British authorities taking this way of discovering what Canada can do in the shell-making line. We seem to remember faintly that Canadian manufacturing scored something of a record in that respect during the great war.

DISTRESS

(By A. R. K.)

¶ Nice men pursue me when they sell, I listen to the tales they tell, and all alarm they soothe; they are not urging me to buy, if I refuse they will not try, for they are very smooth.

¶ And I buy some of this and that, and it proceeds to go quite flat, it puts tears in my eyes; and I protest I have been stuck, and I am out of funds and luck, they tell me it will rise.

¶ And I buy some of these and they, assured they will go on and pay, I need not worry more; instead of industry and hum, I read their business days are done, and they have closed the door.

¶ And if I want to sell my stuff, I find the going mean and rough, it brings no ready cash; and folk look coldly from their eyes, and they express profound surprise, that I should own such trash.

¶ I mind what Uncle Eben said, about the way to get ahead, and it was true enough; he always asked just where he'd be, if he were driven up a tree, and had to sell the stuff.

¶ I'm not so very smart I know, a trifle dull and likewise slow, and somewhat of a flop; for when things get ranged up quite high, 'tis then that I go out to buy —and they begin to drop.

Parliamentary Debates

NO TRICKERY!

Mr. LAPOINTE (Quebec East): Oh no; my right hon. friend is wrong.

Mr. BENNETT: Well, at times the urbanity of the Minister of Justice embarrasses me. At any rate, Mr. Speaker, I thought it my duty to bring this matter to the attention of the house at once so that there should be no possible opportunity for misunderstanding in connection with it.

Hon. CHARLES A. DUNNING (Minister of Finance): I can assure my right hon. friend at once that no thought of trickery was intended—

Mr. BENNETT: I did not use the word trickery.

NEEDED A LOAN

Mr. R. J. DEACHMAN (Huron North): A young man came to me a few days ago wanting to borrow $41. I thanked him for the compliment. He had purchased a bill of goods in this city amounting to $120, and he owed $41 and was behind in his payments and they were pressing him. But they offered to carry on, letting him pay it out at the rate of $5 a month, providing he would renew the contract for $41. That is, he owed them $41, and they wanted him to promise to pay $61 at $5 a month. I do not know how much of that sort of thing there is going on in this city, but that instance suggests that there ought to be some provision for loans to these people on fair terms. So I rise to support the suggestion of the previous speaker that this be referred to the committee on banking and commerce so that some examination may be made of it. It would have been much better for that young man to pay 2 per cent a month, because as I figure it the proposed rate which these gentlemen were offering was 78 per cent a year. If this bill went to the banking and commerce committee it would give members a chance to examine it.

JUST ONE OFFICER

Mrs. MARTHA LOUISE BLACK (Yukon): On the whole, labour conditions in the Yukon have been fairly good. Hitherto we have been free from the strikes that trouble the outside world, but this spring, to my shocked surprise, a strike occurred in the silver district. At first a "sit-down" strike was intended, but better counsels prevailed. One mounted policeman visited the camp; he said, "Boys, this is, after all, private property; I think you had better go down to Mayo"; and the boys moved off. I am told that the citizens of that town, the strikers' committee, and the mounted police communicated with the present acting commissioner asking that he order the government liquor shop be closed during the period of the strike. These requests were either ignored or refused—I shall be very careful to obtain exact information upon my return to the Yukon in the spring. But to the credit of the strikers, they themselves organized a committee to see that there was no disregard of the decencies of life. I believe that the mining company met practically all of the demand of the workers, at least sufficient of them so that the men went back to work. Can anyone in this part of the country or in the United States imagine a strike of several hundred men carried through with absolutely no rowdyism in spite of the fact that there was only one police officer in the entire district? I wonder how many people in this part of Canada appreciate what the Royal Canadian Mounted Police have done in the isolated districts of our great country? Surely high tribute must be paid to the strike committee and the men generally, and also to the lone member of the mounted police who represented the federal authority.

RAILWAY WAGES

Mr. RALPH MAYBANK (Winnipeg South): I notice by the newspapers that the government is acting even now, as it should, as mediator in the railway wages dispute, consequent upon the strike vote which the employees have taken. I believe that at the moment majority opinion in the country is against the then on this wage issue, believing that the men should wait a while. Frankly, I am not in accord with that opinion, whether or not it is the sentiment of the majority. The railway men see that profits everywhere are increasing; the fact was referred to in accents of satisfaction by the Minister of Finance. They see themselves doing work for a wage seventeen per cent below that paid to other men doing the same class of work. They know that the railways, both those publicly and privately owned, have paid their bond coupons without regard to whether enough money has been earned to meet that obligation; and they feel that their wages ought to be just as much a charge upon the industry as the bondholder is. I confess that I see much justice in their position. If the employers will take the risk of restoring the wage reduction, putting it up to the men to make all possible savings and eliminate wastage, I believe that sufficient money for the restoration of these wages can probably be found.

WHAT DO YOU DO?

(Johannesburg Star)

A WOMAN correspondent, who is evidently a shrewd observer, puts the following questions, which, she says, distinguish the female from the mere male:

How do you light a match from a box of matches?

How do you look at your finger nails?

In what manner do you look into a corner if asked to do so?

How do you drink a glass of water?

Try these questions on your friends before turning to the answers:

A woman lights a match from a box of matches by striking the match outwards, away from the box; a man usually strikes it towards him.

A man doubles up his hand and looks only at his nails. A woman inspects the whole hand.

A woman looks round the room before looking into a corner; a man's gaze goes directly to the point indicated.

When drinking a glass of water, a woman looks over the top of the glass at someone opposite; a man looks into the glass.

STIFF COMPETITION

Editor Examiner,

Sir: I am enclosing a clipping from the daily column of Morris Ackerman in which he refers to a contest sponsored annually by a Cleveland hardware store. The lakes mentioned are all within a short distance of this city and the rivers are those which run into Lake Erie east and west of Cleveland. The weights of the fish, and the number of entries, show the kind of competition Peterborough is up against when seeking to attract tourists from Ohio.

Cordially yours,
WALTER A. STARK.

Cleveland, Ohio.

THE OTONABEE POISONING MYSTERY

Editor Examiner.

Sir: The extraordinary procedure disclosed by the inquest on the victim of the Otonabee poisoning tragedy showed (among other astonishing features), a complete disregard of the Ontario Cemetery Act.

These provide (among other things) that:

(1). No dead body shall be at any time be disturbed or removed from any grave except under and subject to the regulations and under the personal supervision and direction of the Medical Officer of Health.

(2). The Certificate of the M.O.H. that the provision of this act and of the regulations have been complied with shall be affixed to the coffin or other receptacle containing the dead body before removal from the Cemetery.

(3). Every person who disinters or removes from any such grave any dead body except as herein before provided or any person who conveys or transports any such body shall incure a penalty of $100.

I note that J. V. McCrea in his "Fourth Column" in The Globe and Mail of Monday, March 15, has a somewhat trenchent review of this evidence, but does not mention the total disregard of the regulations laid down by law in cases of exhumation.

Yours truly,
SPECTATOR.

Peterborough, March 16.

What's Behind the Strike?

(From the Detroit Evening News.)

IN THE sit-down stike being conducted by the U.A.W. against the Chrysler Corp., little, if anything, is being said about hours and wages. There is some talk about "straight priority," a matter the men consider of some consequence and about the "speed up." But the issue that sticks out is whether the U.A.W. shall be recognized as the sole bargaining agency for all employees of the company regardless of whether they belong to it, or to some other union, or to none.

And since as a matter of practice —so informed persons report—the corporation has dealt only with the U.A.W. for the last year and a half the dispute actually hinges on the question of "closed shop," and compulsory membership in the dominating union by all workers employed in the plants of the company.

This is more than was conceded in the settlement of the General Motors Corp. strike, but the U.A.W. was considerably less strong in the plants of that company than in the Chrysler plants and the heads of the Union appear to be practical men; and they also have the advantage of counsel from that very realistic person, John L. Lewis.

So far Mr. Lewis has not appeared as a factor in the Chrysler Corp. strike. And he may not. But it is none the less true that the fight by the U.A.W., regardless of the reasons for it, is a matter of immediate interest to him since the outcome will directly affect the prestige of the parent workers' organization, his C.I.O.

And this organization, as the country fully understands, is the instrument upon which Mr. Lewis largely depends in his effort to make himself the controlling head of all organized labor in America (including the present membership of the A. F. of L.) and to organize all labor.

There is, of course, the question of governmental favor, which Mr. Lewis unquestionably enjoys, but that favor itself is chiefly the result of his emergence as the head militant in the world of union labor.

It Really Is Longer

(From the Ottawa Journal.)

THERE is an old gag to the effect that a married man doesn't really live longer than a single man—it merely seems longer. Actually married men have a greater expectation of life, and the records prove it.

The Statistical Bulletin of the Metropolitan Life has made a survey of the death rate in New York State, exclusive of New York City, and this is what it finds:

"One rule holds consistently throughout life: the married man is favored over the unmarried. The disparity is not a very great one, but it is very pronounced. In fact over a considerable range of ages, from 20 to 45, the mortality of the married men is less than half that of the single.

Among women the advantages of the married state in the matter of longevity are less marked, as the bulletin explains:

"Their death rate at ages from 20 to 65 is better by only about ten percent. than that of the single; and for very young wives, ages 20 to 24, the hazards of childbirth, concentrated at this period, raise the mortality of the married somewhat above that of the single."

For some curious reason the widower seems an especially bad risk. At age 33—and the figures for that age are said to be typical—the mortality among widowers is 9.29 per 1,000, while the rate for married men of the same age is only 4.42. At the same age the death rate of widows is 5.76 as against 4.11 among married women.

The moral of it all appears to be that men, left to themselves are helpless mortals who stay out late at night, forget their rubbers on wet days and their Winter underwear, get too little sleep, eat the things that disagree with them, collie to a bad end. If a man is to live long the statistics show that he must have the wise direction, kindly but firm, of a good wife. If he prefers the freedom of a bachelor—or a widower—he must realize there are penalties attached.

OUT OF SEASON.

(Kitchener Record)

THE St. Thomas Times-Journal draws attention to the fact that whereas we used to smack our lips over hot cross buns on Good Friday morning these buns now make their appearance weeks ahead of the holiday, by which time they are forgotten. Quite true. Commercialism has robbed many traditions of their original meaning.

This is not true of hot cross buns alone. Santa Claus begins to appear in shops and on streets a full month before Christmas. By the time the big day arrives he is an old story. Easter rabbits cavort on the counters of the five-and-ten before Lent has got on way. Witches leer from shop windows a month before Hallowe'en and for a week or so after. Valentines clamor for notice before January is ripped from the calendar. And so it goes. Commerce flouts each seasonal observance with a cold disregard for sentiment, robbing sacred days of much of their true meaning and brushing the gilt from other festivals whose futility was confined to one or two days at most. It may be "modern progress" but life has been shorn of some of its glamor and big days have been stripped of their significance. Progress? We wonder!

POTATO CHAMPION.

(Detroit News)

THE best potato grower of Michigan for the year 1936 has been named. He is J. D. Robinson, whose farm is in Emmet County, right up in the tip-top of the Mitten.

Last year wasn't a particularly good potato year. It was too dry. But Robinson has a five-acre field of potatoes that yielded 498 bushels to the acre. Some of the individual acres produced more than 500 bushels.

The average potato production in the United States is about 100 bushels per acre. Michigan has a club with large membership, admittance to which requires production of 300 bushels per acre.

A lot of sympathy is expressed for the poor farmers who are "mining" their soil and permitting it to be ruined by erosion. But of course, Michigan is only 100 years old. The second century may begin to show these signs of wear and tear.

ONE DRINK DRIVERS.

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

THE Times-Journal's contention that the drinking driver is more dangerous than the drunk driver finds support in a statement by Capt. Chas. D. Farmer, chief of state highway patrol in North Carolina. He says: "The driver with 'just one drink' and not the totally intoxicated one is responsible for most of North Carolina's highway fatalities. The driver who realizes he is drunk actually is more careful than the one who has taken a single drink," he continued.

Riel Defender Dies In Quebec

Noted Criminal Lawyer, J. N. Greenshields, Passes At Age Of 84

DANVILLE, Que., March 17—(C.P.)—James Naismith Greenshields, K.C., noted Canadian criminal lawyer who defended Louis Riel against high treason charges in 1885, died at home here yesterday. He was 84.

The native of Danville who was called to the Quebec Bar in 1877 after graduating from McGill University, first gained prominence for his defense of the Metis rebellion leader, tried at Regina.

Later his career before the Bar was in a leading role in a dozen or more famous Canadian trials. He was prosecuting attorney in the noted Grand Trunk Railway robbery trial and counsel for the liquidators against directors of the Exchange Bank.

In 1892 Mr. Greenshields was chief counsel for Hon. H. Mercier and was defense counsel in the Annie Eastman, Donald Morrison, Hooper and Gravelle murder trial.

GREAT STATESMAN CHAMBERLAIN DIES

Britisher Who Framed Locarno Pact Is Heart Victim At 73

LONDON, March 17 (CP)—Britain honored in death today Sir Austen Chamberlain, one of the dwindling group of statesmen who shouldered the burden of empire during the first three decades of this century.

The former foreign minister whose greatest triumph was the Locarno Pact, died last night of a heart attack, aged 73.

His friends of all parties in the House of Commons and the press, paid tribute to the man who, great son of a great father, held most of the important cabinet posts during a long parliamentary life.

Sir Austen's career reached its peak in 1926 when King George V created him Knight of the Garter, in recognition of his work in securing the Locarno Pact that guaranteed the peace of western Europe for a decade. He was the only Commoner to be so honored, and was awarded a share in the Nobel Peace Prize for that contribution to world security.

Sir Austen's death came suddenly. He spoke in the House of Commons March 3. For a few days he had been confined to his home with what had been considered a minor ailment. Shortly after six p.m. last night he left his bed to go to his library, collapsed, and did not recover consciousness.

This afternoon the House of Commons will resound with praises of the man who, in the language of The Times, "Had a long, honored and honorable career...He never failed to show the high qualities which are the proudest possession of this country in its political leaders."

Prime Minister Baldwin will lead the parliamentarily tributes for his colleague of many years. He will be followed by Clement Attlee, leader of the Labor Party, who stated in an informal tribute that "we have lost a great parliamentarian and a very great gentleman. Everybody in the House had the highest respect for him and he will be greatly missed."

Was Seat in 1892.

Member of the House of Commons since 1892, first representing East Worcestershire, he took over the Birmingham West seat of his father, Joseph Chamberlain, in 1914 and has represented it since. With Lloyd George he shares the distinction of never having been beaten in a parliamentary election.

His father, the great Imperialist and proponent of fiscal reform, died a month before the Great War broke out. By that time Sir Austen was firmly established as a major political figure. From 1895 when he was made Civil Lord of the Admiralty he was rarely without office until 1931 when he resigned as First Lord of the Admiralty in the National Government.

Born October 16, 1863, Sir Austen was a half brother of Neville Chamberlain, present Chancellor of the Exchequer and widely mentioned as Britain's next Prime Minister.

Party, Country First.

It was the judgment of Sir Austen's friends that he might have been Prime Minister on several occasions had he not placed party and country above his personal aspirations.

His tall, angular figure, with the inevitable monocle, was known all over the world, either through his visits or through thousands of caricatures. He visited Canada in 1928 and held an honorary degree from University of Toronto.

Twice Chancellor of the Exchequer, Foreign Minister from 1924 to 1929, Secretary of State for India, First Lord of the Admiralty and Lord Privy Seal at various stages of his career, Chamberlain brought to the House as a private member in his closing years a wide knowledge that made his speeches ones to command respectful attention.

He did not hesitate to criticize the Baldwin Government. In particular last year he accused it of neglecting the defence. He was credited with a major part in forcing the resignation of Sir Samuel Hoare from the Foreign Office after the Hoare-Laval pact to settle the Italo-Abyssinian war was disclosed in 1935. Lady Chamberlain and three children survive.

to Canada to pioneer air services in this country. The necessary practice they acquired flying the 'crates' over German lines under the most haphazard conditions qualified them to a certain extent to meet the problems of developing aviation in a new field.

At the close of the war there were 6,602 Canadian officers in the R.A.F., including pilots and observers. There were also 5,054 cadets in training in England and Canada for the air force. It is estimated Canadian airmen formed nearly half of the R.A.F. operating on the western front.

COMMITTEE STOPS TORIES PROBING

Mr. Walters explained the option on $4,705,000 of the bonds had not been exercised because of world conditions. Mr. Roebuck interrupted: "This thing has got to stop somewhere. We cannot have the private financial dealings of the treasury broadcast."

Roebuck Steps In

Mr. Roebuck also stopped questioning of Mr. Walters as to the policy of selling bonds privately rather than by public tender. Conservatives objected to the ruling made by James Clark (Lib., Windsor-Sandwich) upholding Mr. Roebuck's objection. Division was called and the committee sustained the chairman. Dr. James Roberts, Sault Ste. Marie member, recently expelled from the Liberal party by Premier Hepburn, voted with the Conservatives.

Mr. Ellis returned to questioning about the option for $4,705,000 on the last issue. Mr. Walters agreed that as the other bonds of the issue were selling in the open market now at less than the syndicate paid, there was little chance of the option being exercised on the remainder of the issue.

"It's time to stop these blocking tactics," declared Leopold Macaulay (Cons., York South). "This government used to tell the people they could walk right into the Treasury and nothing would be kept from them. Now we have to go through a dozen coronation lawyers to get a little information."

Mr. Walters said he could produce evidence to show it was greatly to the Government's advantage not to sell bonds by public tender. Private arrangements produce the best prices at times.

Another division was won by the Liberals, 19 to 12, when the chairman refused to allow questioning of Mr. Walters regarding unpaid bills. Conservatives protested the ruling.

GROOMING MINNIE FOR A COMEBACK

Singing Mouse Warbles Daily —Career Being Cut Out For Her

WOODSTOCK, Ill., March 17 (A.P.). — Minnie, the singing mouse, is being groomed for a comeback.

Three months ago Minnie went on the radio and wowed 'em from coast to coast by her canary-like warbling.

Like many others, fame was fleeting for Minnie and since those golden moments before the microphone, life has been pretty dull for her.

The Woodstock Civic Club, believing Minnie has cut out a career for herself, hopes to do something about it. Negotiations are under way to get Minnie booked for some performances. Money realized from any bookings would go largely to the Chicago Industrial Home for Children.

Meanwhile, Dwight L. Lichty, club member and keeper of Minnie, reported she warbles daily and enjoys all the money comforts an appreciative community can bestow.

auditorium large enough to seat about 8,000 persons, and in which could be held a form of music festival each year in conjunction with the exposition.

"It would be a dream fulfilled," he said, "and would not only benefit Canada culturally but would surely attract a greater number of visitors annually."

"There is no reason why Canadian cities should not follow the example set by American cities like Cleveland, Hartford and St. Louis," he continued. "All of these have magnificent auditoriums and enjoy a season each year of the best in symphonic concerts and opera. Cities like Montreal, Winnipeg, Vancouver, Quebec, Halifax and Toronto need adequate auditoriums such as these."

OSWALD MOSLEY ISSUES CHALLENGE

Defies Government To Arrest Him For Wearing Black Shirt

LONDON, March 17 (AP). — Sir Oswald Mosley, leader of the British Union of Fascists, challenged the government today to arrest him for wearing the black shirt of a political emblem.

"I have worn this black shirt myself for six weeks to enable this issue to be decided," he said at a meeting of his followers last night. "Nothing has been done to me and we are beginning to assume that this black shirt I am wearing is not in their view illegal."

The Fascist black shirt as well as other political party uniforms recently were made illegal by act of parliament.

Fascists said the police commissioner had been invited to make Mosley's arrest a test case but no had taken no action.

(At the time the measure prohibiting the wearing of political uniforms was enacted, Fascist headquarters instructed their followers to attend meetings wearing their black shirts under their suits. Sir Oswald presumably wished to test the legality of this practice.)

GIRL IS VICTOR EASTVIEW CASE BIRTH CONTROL

Crown Attorney Raoul Mercier said he would leave the judgment to the Ontario attorney general's department to decide whether or not the crown will appeal.

Magistrate Claxton brought down his judgment on the 20th court day of the trial, freeing Miss Palmer who had been out on $500 bail since September 16 when she was arrested at an Eastview woman's home by Constable Emile Martel of the Eastview police force.

The trial started last October 21. Forty witnesses were examined and 750,000 words poured into the record by witnesses. Counsel added 900,000 more in four days of argument. In addition 87 books and documents were filed as exhibits with 28 boxes of contraceptives. Eastview women were alleged to have received after signing application cards presented by Miss Palmer.

Questions Answered Used.

Miss Palmer's method was to introduce herself as a nurse and to ask questions as to the age of the woman, her husband, her children, etc. The answers to all these questions were written down by Miss Palmer upon an application card together with a comment by Miss Palmer of the home conditions and her observations as to the type of woman.

Miss Palmer explained to the women that she was interviewing women with a view to the spacing of children. She then would demonstrate a sample box of tube, nozzle and jelly, showing the women how and when to use it. She would then have the woman sign the application card which she would forward to the Parents Information Bureau at Kitchener.

If the application was "approved," the Parents Information Bureau would mail to the applicant a box containing (contraceptives), a price list and a pamphlet containing information, instructions and comment upon various methods of contraception.

This first box was sent free to each individual applicant, although they were requested to send $1 or any part thereof if they could afford it. The pamphlet would be in French or English according to the notation on the application card. Miss Palmer received a fee of $1 for every application card approved.

COULD HARDLY RISE FROM HER CHAIR

Rheumatism Relieved By Kruschen

This woman was such a confirmed sufferer from rheumatism that she thought she would never get relief. But, before she had finished one bottle of Kruschen her rheumatism was leaving her. Here is her letter:—

"I had rheumatism so badly that once I got into a chair I found great difficulty in rising again. A friend told me to try Kruschen Salts, but I thought it was a foolish idea, as there seemed to me to be nothing that would relieve rheumatism. My friend gave me two doses to try. I took one dose on Monday and another on Tuesday, and by then my pain had moved to another part of my body. Well, that was a good start, so I bought a bottle and it gave me great joy to find my rheumatism disappearing, and now for a long time I have been free."—(Miss) A.R.

The pains and stiffness of rheumatism are frequently due to deposits of uric acid in the muscles and joints. Kruschen Salts, by helping to stimulate the excretory organs to healthy, regular activity, enables them to expel this uric acid from the system.

LAKEFIELD AND Westclox tangle in the second game of their Senior City Hockey League playoffs tonight at 8.30 in the Brock St. rink. It should be another lulu Blood and Thunder Loop squabble and ought to draw quite a crowd of fans. Lakefield copped the first playoff by a 4-3 count Monday. It was supposed to be a two-game series, goals counting, but we are informed that both teams agreed to play two out of three games, games counting for the title. If they both agreed, it is okay; but if either one wants to insist on two games, goals counting, then the league rules will back that team up. We have a copy of the minutes of the annual meeting and it stated that final playoffs would be two games, goals to count.

THE JUNIOR P.C.I. boys' rage team, winners of their interscholastic group this winter, go into the Ontario semi-finals in Toronto on Friday night. They meet Meaford—winners of the Georgeian Bay area. The same night runs Welland juniors playing Belleville, Bowmanville seniors meeting Stamford, with Trenton junior girls and Oshawa senior girls also having engagements. Coach H. A. Craig's P.C.I. squad plays at Dunnarth Technical School. If they win, they enter the final round at Toronto the next day.

WITH A blustery March gale ablowin' last eve, there wasn't a very large turnout at the minor softball meeting in Duffin's, only a dozen or so. An executive session was held first to clean up last year's business and then the open gabfest was held. They decided to elect a nominating committee to check up on prospective teams and a slate of officers to be presented at the next meeting on April 20th. Committee is Pat Hayden, Percy Harrison, Harold Dorner, Shorty Barrett and Chuck Dorrington. Finances are okay with a balance on hand of $74.62. Pat Hayden will get $15 expenses to represent the loop at the annual O.A.S.A. convention Good Friday in Simcoe, with Dave Leether also going from here as executive member.

* * * * * *

TOO EARLY yet to get a line on teams in this circuit, but it won't be long till rumors float around thickly. Looks like Benny Swartz will not bother with a team this year. Peacock, star hurler, has left town but they say another good pitcher is here now. Dunno if Ted Naish, suspended for socking an umpire in the bitter Belleville-Swartz series last year, will apply for reinstatement or not. He must do it himself, but will be okayed if he does. Harley Weir will not stand for re-election as prexy this semester.

AND STILL no word as to where the next Barrie-Peterborough puck tussle will be staged. With both clubs refusing to yield an inch, the O.H.A. were put right on the spot and their subcommittee will meet in Toronto this afternoon to settle the dispute. We should hear this evening. This probably means that the game won't be played till Friday—but just where, no one knows yet. Our gang wants Lindsay and, of course, that town is battling for the game, too. Barrie wants Oshawa. The O.H.A. suggested even another home-and-home series but Barrie said they wouldn't come here under any circs. Then they wanted us to go to Midland and were coldly turned down. All yesterday, phone calls and telegrams were shooting back and forth between Barrie, Peterborough, Toronto, Midland, Oshawa and Lindsay—with nothing being decided. And a thousand inquiries had to be answered in this office.

* * * * * *

WORD FROM the O.H.A. today is that the remaining junior "B" teams will go into a round-robin series. Northern Vocational starts it Friday in Niagara Falls. Other two teams to go into it will be the Guelph-St. Mary's winner and the Barrie-Peterborough winner. The bulletin says: "The four clubs in the semi-finals will play home-and-home games, games to count in the regular manner, two points for a win and one point for a tie. The two leading clubs at the end of the series will playoff for the championship. If there is a tie for either or any of the playoff positions, preference will be given to the team scoring the greatest number of goals in the series." And what if the ice gives out within a week, mes amis? Oh, well . . . .

* * * * * *

AND ON this Sixteenth of Ireland, our Kilkenny Colts are burned up like a scuttleful of peat over muffing their chance in Barrie—and over their raw deal there. All they crave is another crack at the enemy with their shillelaghs, wearing four-leaf shamrocks, and they'll drives the snakes out of Barrie. Sure and with lads with names like Connelly, Bradly, McNeal, O'Starr, M'Harding and A'Clark, 'twould be a crying shame if Coach Francis O'Buckland's gang didn't knock the tar off of those gumotions from up past Orillia. Erin go Barrie! And faith if those Colts don't win the next game 'twill be manys the good follower of theirs that'll be going home in a barrel after betting their very shirts on it. And a barrel is no fit raiment for a son of St. Patrick—especially in this sort of weather now!

* * * * * *

IT IS quite some seasons since there was so much general interest here in a local hockey team. Everywhere you go, folks are talking of the Colts and their chances. Not only of knocking off Barrie but of copping the Ontario title. And a lot of fans are plenty peeved over the fire-crackers that were tossed at our goalie in Barrie and the antagonism all around in that town. If the deciding game is held anywhere within a reasonable distance hundreds of Peterborough rooters will be on deck with ready dough, ready cheers and ready fists to help yo Colts along. Probably a special train will be lined up for it. It's just possible that word may be received from Toronto today in time to catch a spot on our front page before it goes to press. One thing, anyway, this is the latest a Peterborough puck team was ever in the O.H.A. running—even our senior Ontario champs of '36 finishing up earlier in the season than March 17th.

* * * * * *

DASHES FROM Dublin: The St. Mary's juniors play at Guelph tonight . . . . Twice now Campbellford juveniles have made fine O.H.A. comebacks to stay in the running after losing first games . . . . Red Geddes, ex-Petes' forward, is with that Sudbury team playing off with Port Colborne . . . . Belleville Redmen go to Sutton tomorrow in the gloaming . . . . City five-pin bowlers have a banquet this p.m. at the Paragon Hall . . . . Lots of basketball coming up again this weekend at the Y.W. and Y.M. gyms . . . . No, the Colts didn't go out to play defensive hockey in Barrie but—with the Bees ganging up steadily—they were forced at times to a defensive brand . . . . Some indignant folks from here tell of axle grease being smeared over windshields of the cars during that game; some sin, what? . . . . The O.B.A.A. deadline for importing ball players came and went with not a peep coming from any club—but there'll be heaps of peeps ere long . . . . Looks like no senior lacrosse in Oshawa this summer.

LOCAL CURLERS IN LAKEFIELD

Peterborough Successful in Friendly Competition Of Mixed Rinks

LAKEFIELD, March 17. — The members of the Peterborough Curling Club motored to Lakefield on Saturday night to engage in an interesting competition of mixed rinks with the Lakefield club. The Peterborough rinks came out on the large end of the score, winning three out of four games. After the games the curlers were entertained at lunch in the Lakefield club-rooms.

After the lunch Mr. Yale welcomed the Peterborough people, also Mrs. Charlton expressed a few words of welcome from the Ladies' Curling Club. Mr. Hamley spoke a few words of appreciation and said that it had been his first visit to Lakefield to curl.

The room was decorated by Mrs. Gillman, ably assisted by Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Northey and Mrs. Chaplin. Mrs. Charlton poured tea, and were assisted by Mrs. Gillman, Mrs. (Dr.) Moore, Miss C. Kidd, Mrs. Erskine, Mrs. Grills and Mrs. Charles Hunter. The tea was in charge of Mesdames D. R. Charlton and N. A. Moore.

LAKEFIELD HIGH LOSES TO BUCKHORN PUCKISTS

LAKEFIELD, March 17. — The Buckhorn boys won a 3 to 2 victory over the Lakefield High School lads here Friday night. The play was very fast with nice stickhandling. Both goalies did a first class job in the nets. The goals were scored by E. Robinson (2) for High School and Red Graham (3) for Buckhorn. Loyst and Hurl received assists for Robinson's third goal.

The lineups:

Buckhorn Tigers—Goal, E. Blewitt; defence, Red Graham and Neil Blewitt; centre, Bob Dixon; wings, Russel Graham and M. Monigomery; alternates, H. Gillespie, G. Shearer, S. Pearson and J. Shearer.

Lakefield High School—Goal, J. Morrison; defence, G. Stabler and John Quigley; centre, F. Loyst; wings, D. Hurl and E. Robinson; alternates, Marquis Bullock, Chas. Birch and J. Birch.

At The Baseball Training Camps

ORLANDO, Fla., March 17.—(AP) —Now that they know about it, New York Giants are well pleased with the 1938 National League ball. The new sphere, with a thicker cover and slightly raised stitches, was tried out without their knowledge in yesterday's tilt with the Bees. Result: One homer by Mel Ott and 11 other assorted blows for the Giants. Two boundary clouts for Boston.

CLEARWATER, Fla.—It may not be an original remark, but Percy Beard, Brooklyn's new running coach, says the Dodgers have been getting off on the wrong foot for years. When starting from off first base, he explains, most runners move the right foot first although they can't take a full step toward second until they bring the left around. So, why not start with the left?

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Red Ruffe, New York Yankees' star third sacker, apparently solved a problem when he made three hits against the Cardinals yesterday. His chief complaint has been that he never has succeeded in hitting well until June and he couldn't find an explanation for the failure.

Beavis stopped a flock of shots in the winners' cage. The teams:

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

Tonight we will have the old time "Irish" vs. "Scotch". It is four years since we have had this competition and we expect a big crowd out . . and a good time.

"Bud" Fisher celebrated his birthday by walking off with first prize last night. . . Bob Beatty did likewise by taking the second prize. . . . But that's not all . . Each wished the other many happy returns, and then each bought the other a cigar! . . . We have no further comment.

We believe everything is O.K. now up at a certain house on London street. . . Charlie walked off with the ham and now is looking for some good soul with eggs. . . We haven't been invited up as yet. . . And while this is not altogether a hunt, still it may help some.

Thursday night the ice will be left open for anyone who comes . . . There are several challenge games on.

On Friday night we will draw up something else. . . Maybe the north of Charlotte street against the south, or the Orks vs. Tories. If we can find any. . . And on Saturday we will have our usual bonspiel.

Teacher — How many I's would you use in this sentence, "I saw a girl climbing over the fence."

Small Boy—"Both of them, teacher, both of them."

Last Night's Winners

First—M. J. Wells, "Bud" Fisher, C. Giroux, C. Westbrooke, skip. Each a ham.

Second—R. Hendry, R. Williamson, D. Grant, V. Currie. Each linen handkerchiefs.

Third—H. Hanley, B. Austin, W. Widdiss, J. Hanley. Each leather key rings.

ROUND SEWED UP BY CAMPBELLFORD

Defeat Kingston 12-7 To Tie O.H.A. Juvenile Playdown 15-All

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, March 17. — Defeating Kingston by a score of 12-7 Campbellford tied the round in the Juvenile O.H.A. play-offs Tuesday. Losing in Kingston on Saturday by a score of 8-3 the local boys began the game facing the heavy odds of a five-goal lead and a heavier team. Playing before the largest crowd of the season at Davidson's arena the local youngsters saw the visitors widen their margin by three goals with the score on the round standing hopelessly at 12-4. Free, who played consistently good hockey throughout the game scored Campbellford's only goal in the first, while Smith and Clarke each counted one and Burtch, who was the star for the visitors, added two goals to the score for the Limestone city ending the period 4-1.

The second period saw Harold Dunks' boys run up six goal in a manner which even surprised him while the visitors went scoreless for the period. Jarvis was the best for the period tallying two goals while "Flash" Reddick, Kennedy, Nichols and Free each got credit for one, ending the period 7-4. The Kingston boys opened the third period with a burst of scoring which caused the fans to lose hope of a championship when Burtch scored two in the first five minutes of the game and Smith got one before the local boys could get started. The last twelve minutes of the game saw Campbellford start another scoring spree which netted them five goals, of which Nichols got credit for three and Reddick and Free one each ending the game 13-7 and tieing the round 15-15.

Campbellford—Goal, Donald; defence, Abound, Ketchen; centre, Keating; wings, Reddick, Free; subs, Jarvis, Kennedy, Nicholas, Blake.

LEAFS TIE BRUINS IN BOSTON ARENA AS 10,000 WATCH

HORNER IN BATTLE

BOSTON, March 17 (CP).—Boston Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs locked themselves into a 1-1 overtime tie last night when a crowd of 17,000 welcomed big Charlie Conacher, who made his first appearance of the season on the Boston Garden surface.

Conacher gave an exhibition of his rifle-like driving, but the scoring honors went to Bob Davidson and Leroy Goldsworthy, both of whom registered during the opening period. The Leafs' counter climaxed a combination play, in which Frank Finnigan and Nick Metz had important parts, and Goldsworthy's equalizer ended a brilliant rush made by "Cooney" Weiland.

The tiny Boston centre took a pass from "Red" Beattie just over the blue line, cut over to his left and eluded the defenceman with a baffling burst of speed. As Weiland swept into close quarters, Goldsworthy followed in his tracks, and when Goalie Broda turned back "Cooney's" hard rap, "Goldie" slashed the puck into his cage.

Play was fast and exciting during most of the regular time, but both sides performed in cautious fashion during the extra session. Charlie Sands and "Red" Horner aroused the crowd by clashing twice. They grappled against the boards during the second period, but their exchanges on headlocks were overlooked by the referees. It was another story, however, when they exchanged blows behind the Toronto net in the third session, and both drew major penalties.

Boston Bruins — Goal, Thompson; defence, Portland, Shields; centre, Weiland; wings, Beattie and Goldsworthy; subs, Cowley, Bends, Oatliffe, Hollett, Manths, Sch #.05, Clapper, Dumart Smith.

Toronto — Goal, Broda; defence, Day, Hamilton; centre, Apps; wings, Jackson, Drillon; subs, Metz, Davidson, Finnigan, Horner, Fowler, Conacher, Boll, Thoms, Stull.

(By the Canadian Press.)

Aurel Joliat, Canadiens, who scored the goal that gave Canadiens a 1-1 tie with Maroons and clinched them a spot in the League championship playoffs.

Pep Kelly, Chicago, whose two goals enabled the "Yankees" to defeat New York Rangers 4-3.

Leroy Goldsworthy, Boston, and Bob Davidson, Toronto, who potted one each as Leafs and Bruins fought to a 1-1 overtime tie.

Actor Gehrig

Lou Gehrig, New York baseball star, is not only holding out for a higher salary but is turning his attention to Hollywood. Here is the reflection of Gehrig as he sits before a make-up table in preparation for a screen test. He has been signed by a motion picture company for a leading role in an outdoor epic. The film will go into production upon the close of this year's baseball season.

Memorial Cup Survivors

Because Stratford and Toronto St. Michael's College failed to declare a divisional winner in last night's only game, the list of teams seeking the Canadian junior hockey championship remained unchanged at 16. The Memorial Cup field, including nine teams in the east and seven in the west, follows:

East:—
P.E.I.—Charlottetown; N.S.—Amherst; Quebec—Montreal Victorias; Ontario—Ottawa Rideaus, Copper Cliff, Stratford, Toronto St. Michael's College, Perth, Renfrew.

West:—
Ontario—Fort Arthur; Manitoba—Portage La Prairie, Winnipeg Monarchs, St. Boniface; Saskatchewan—Saskatoon Wesleys; Alberta—Edmonton Rangers; B.C.—Trail.

ST. MIKE'S POUND STRATFORD 6 TO 5 TO TIE UP SERIES

Sensational Battle Means Fifth And Decisive Game Saturday

GALLANT LAST STANZA

STRATFORD, March 17. — The fighting Irish of St. Michael's College, possibly inspired to greater heights on the eve of St. Patrick's Day, battled through a hectic sixty minutes against Stratford Midgets last night before coming through with a 6-5 victory. The victory deadlocked the O.H.A. Junior "A" championship series at two games each, necessitating a fifth game, which will be played in Toronto on Saturday.

While 4,000 rabid fans roared themselves hoarse, the Midgets piled into St. Michael's territory in the last period in a frenzied attempt to overcome an early Irish lead, but the gallant Celts turned the ganging attacks into reverse by breaking away for a pair of goals, enough to offset two later Stratford tallies.

Early in the fray, George McNamara, who returned to action after a two-game lay-off, suffered a bad cut over the eye, and about two minutes later Sheedy received a similar injury. Both players returned to action sporting beautiful shiners, which large strips of tape could not hide.

Irish Show Improvement.

The Toronto students showed up much better defensively despite the five goals registered against them. Callanan, who returned with McNamara, played a steady game on the defence, aby assisted by Ab Tonn. The Stratford defence didn't quite duplicate the high standard of play which they exhibited in the last two games, but then the St. Mike's attackers appeared to better advantage.

Paul McNamara and Johnny Inglis set the winning scoring pace with a pair of goals each, while Tonn and Ross Hunt scored the others. Paul's opening goal was the best of the night. He skated the full length of the rink, shoved the puck behind the defence, and then recovered to beat "Red" McAtee with a corner shot while off balance.

Stratford scoring honors were divided among five players, D'Amore, Nelson, McQuade, Gatschene and Bean, and all were well-deserved tallies. Tommy Dunne was hard pressed to keep the score down, and with eight minutes to go was forced to the dressing-room with a sick stomach.

At the time, Midgets were buzzing around his citadel like hornets, but when he returned he held them at bay, until the last three minutes. Both of the belated Midget counters were well earned, however.

Tough on McAtee.

The only really "soft" goal of the night was the third one, which came in the second period and broke a 1 to 1 deadlock. McQuade had previously outlifted P. McNamara's opening counter. Callahan rushed and was stopped at the defense, but Inglis picked up the loose puck, manipulated two defencemen between himself and the goal, and then fired. He dubbed his shot, but it slid into the corner of the cage, Mcatee's vision being blocked.

The goalkeeper encountered similar trouble when Tonn made it 3 to 1. Fred Hunt and Inglis had been hacked at the goalmouth, but in the ensuing scramble the puck came out to Tonn, whose backhander ripped its way through half a dozen players and past McAtee. Paul McNamara's second tally, which followed, was the result of a beautiful passing bout, in which Ross Hunt and Smith participated.

Young Bobby Nelson, the "pride of Stratford," who turned in another four-star effort, scored the final goal of that frame, and "Mickey" McQuade made the count 4 to 3 at 7.35 of the last period.

With the minute hand slowly stretching for the 60 mark, Midgets threw caution to the winds and went all up—with disastrous results. Fred Hunt finally broke away at 15.50, was checked, and passed to Inglis, who lifted the puck over McAtee as the goalie fell to smother a shot which didn't materialize.

The Wining Goal.

Twenty seconds later Paul McNamara passed the puck to Ross Hunt at the 16, Mikes blue line and the speedy little winger shoved a clear pair of oledes to the rest of the field as he sped in alone and fired hard and true to the top corner, for the winning counter.

Gatschene and Bean completed scoring, but the latter's goal came with only thirty seconds of play remaining, two seconds after Inglis had drawn a penalty for catching the puck and throwing it ahead over the blue line.

In the opening minutes of the last session, St. Mike's did everything but put the puck in the right place when Bean and McQuade were penalized in succession, giving the Irish a two-man advantage. The home team scorched the puck but once during a hectic ninety seconds, but McAtee was on his toes most of the time. When he wasn't the Irish were missing the corners by inches, with no one to kick them out had they been aligned in the right direction.

Irish Deserved Victory.

On the play, St. Michael's deserved their victory, but only by as slim a margin as they did. Stratford adopted an aggressive attitude most of the way, but they never did quite get a chance at Dunne alone. There seemed always to be an Irish stick to deflect the puck away from Stratford sticks, or a Celt would come from nowhere to overhaul the local players when they did have a chance to bore in.

Ross Hunt played a whale of a game along the right boards, while Inglis and Paul McNamara were next in line. "Hank" D'Amore sparked most of the Midget attacks, but Goalie Bobby Nelson was still the breakaway and play-making.

Sports Spice

By EDDIE SRIETZ

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., March 17 (AP)—Same old Cardinals.... Same old Pepper Martin .... Just can't stop that fellow.... He and his hill-billy friend are making the Cardinal training camp here just about the liveliest in Florida.... Some of the natives may long for a few close-ups of the Mr. Dean, put Pepper and his pals won't let them miss even old Daisy for long.

First time he reported to a St. Louis camp, Pepper rode the rails.... This year he showed up from Oklahoma in a hand made truck.... If he isn't loading it with pickaninnies and roaring up and down the main stem with the throttle wide open, he's taking on a cargo of baseball troubadors and going about serenading the citizenry.

There are several good harmonizers playing (Pepper included) on the squad.... Bill McGee, the pitcher from Columbus, picks a mean guitar.... Terry Moore can go to town whistling "Listen to the Mocking Birds".... Some of the lads know a flock of cowboy songs .... They lead into Pepper's contreption and go to town.

Sometimes they take Mike Ryba along and exhibit him as a "one man ball club" after a lengthy ballyhoo by Prof. Jim Winford, who juggles a few adjectives and adverbs around in his throat and lets 'em have it.... They do their individual and combined stuff on various street corners and then Stan Breadagaray, the reformed Dodger, passes the hat.... The other night the boys picked up $34 in a little more than an hour.... P.S.—The slot machines had that in little more than another hour.

The Florida sun hasn't mellowed Col. Jake Ruppert one dollar's worth.... It's still $36,000 or nothing for Lou Gehrig.... The veteran Charlie Gelbert's fine play is threatening to drive Alex Kampouris off second base for the Reds.... Harry Cooper and Jimmy Thomson, the golfers, took batting practice with the Tigers at Lakeland the other day.

CANADIENS HOLD MAROONS TO TIE

1-1 Game Clinches Canadian Section For Habitants—Now Meet Hawks

MONTREAL, March 17 (CP). — Montreal Canadiens clinched the Canadian section championship of the National Hockey League last night by playing a 1-1 tie against Maroons in the teams' last intensely clash of the season. The point qualified Canadiens for a playoff with Detroit Red Wings for the league championship.

Playing cautiously for the necessary point, Canadiens checked Maroons to a standstill most of the game, and held a lead until past the half-way mark of the third period.

Aurel Joliat, working with Johnny Gagnon and Paul Haynes, shot Canadiens into the lead at 18.03 of the second period, and Maroons looked to snatch the goal until 13.27 of the third, when Jerry Shannon golfed a shot high into the net past Wilf Cude.

Evans Draws Penalty.

Maroons tried desperately for another goal for the remainder of the regular time, and for the first half of the overtime, until Stew Evans drew a penalty for tripping Gagnon, and Canadiens were awarded a penalty shot. Armand Mondou drove the shot into Bill Beveridge's pads.

The tie ended Maroons' late-season drive for the top, leaving them in position to take second place with another point in their two remaining games.

Remember When—

Lester Patrick won a Stanley Cup for Montreal Wanderers 21 years ago tonight. Patrick, now manager of New York Rangers, scored two goals in the last two minutes of play in a game Ottawa Senators won 3-2. But Wanderers had won the first game 3-1 and Patrick's goals gave them the round 12-10 and the cup.

Bancroft Packists Beat Combermere

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BANCROFT, March 17.—A small group of Combermere boys journeyed to Bancroft on Saturday night to suffer a 12-8 trouncing from the L.O.L. Bancroft expected to meet a strong team, but were rather disappointed as only six Combermere boys appeared who had to be rescued by five Bancroft lads. In the first period K. Sprung, M. Tryon, B. McAlpine, and C. Munro accounted for six goals. In the second period K. Sprung, A. Towle, and E. Hawley turned traitors to the local boys and played for Combermere squad. Shortly after the period started, Bancroft packsters netted the disc twice to make the score 8-0. But K. Sprung, on lone rushes, netted the rubber behind J. Joynt, the Bancroft goalie, twice, thus shattering the latter's big ideas for a shutout. Bancroft scored two more, the period ending 10-2.

In the third period T. McCaw of Bancroft replaced the Combermere goalie and the game perked up. At the very first, Bancroft was able to score twice on the young goalie, but that was the last. K. Sprung retaliated for Combermere-lads with four more goals on the local goalie, and the game ended with the final score 12-8. A. Warren handled the game in very fine style, ushering K. Sprung, B. McAlpine, and S. Benton to the penalty box.

Summary

1—Bancroft: C. Munro, K. Sprung, M. Tryon, E. Young, C. Munro, E. Vance.

HULL SENIORS TAKE OTTAWA'S DISTRICT TITLE

Beat Smith's Falls 6-2—Moncton Down Berwick To Represent Maritimes

ONTARIO GAMES TONIGHT

TORONTO, March 17.—(CP).—Only one division of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association had still to name its senior champions today. Games tonight may eliminate two of the clubs already representing their sections. Last night Hull Volants won the Ottawa and District title by defeating Smith's Falls 6-2, taking the round 7-3. For the second straight year Moncton Maroons earned the right to represent the Maritimes, holding Berwick to a 1-1 tie and taking the finals 3-2. Hull and Moncton will start a two-game total-goals series Saturday in Allan Cup playdowns.

The Ontario Hockey Association champions will be eliminated tonight when the two clash and Toronto Goodyears and Dominions will decide their series Monday.

Quebec Aces are expected now to represent the Quebec Association, Club directors met last night and agreed to ask the group executive for permission to carry on, instead of entering a post-season series with Eastern Canadian and United States teams.

Aces Picked To Win.

St. Jerome and Victoriaville will meet tonight in the second game of their total-goals round for the Quebec intermediate title and the winner will be eligible for senior playdowns. But fans believe pushing aside one or the other would be little more than a formality for Aces. St. Jerome won the opener 6-0.

Tonight Winnipeg Packers and Edmonton Maple Leafs can win their interprovincial series with Fort William and Nelson respectively. They won the opening games in the best-of-three rounds Monday. The fifth Western club is North Battleford, Saskatchewan, winner awaiting its next opponent.

Frank Kansen contributed three goals to Hull's margin of four over Smith's Falls. Moncton was just able to hold on against Berwick's surprising Bruins, who got their goal in the third period from Foster's stick. Carroll scored for Maroons in the first.

If Moncton wins the impending Hull series, its next opposition will be the Quebec winners March 24 and 26. If Hull defeats Moncton, Volants will oppose the Quebec winners March 25 and 27.

Only one game was played in Dominion juniors hunt last night but it involved two ranking Memorial Cup contenders. Toronto St. Michael's College and Stratford Midgets. The result, a 6-5 victory for St. Mike's, tied the best-of-five round at two games each. The series, for the Ontario Hockey Association junior A championship, will end at Toronto Saturday.

Tonight Amherst can win the Maritime junior title by retaining part of its nine-goal lead over Charlottetown. Perth will earn the right to meet Ottawa Rideaus in Ottawa and district finals if it manages to keep part of a four-goal margin over Renfrew. Maritime and Ottawa district survivors will tackle one another March 21 and 23.

Allan Cup Survivors

When Moncton Maroons and Hull Volants won sectional titles last night the number of contenders for Canadian senior hockey laurels was reduced to 14. Today's Allan Cup field, made up of nine teams in the east and five in the west, follows:

East:—
N.B. — Moncton; Quebec — Hull Volants, St. Jerome, Victoriaville, Quebec Aces; Ontario — Sudbury Tigers, Port Colborne, Toronto Goodyears and Dominions.

West:—
Ontario—Port William; Manitoba—Winnipeg Packers; Saskatchewan—North Battleford; Alberta—Edmonton Dominions; B.C.—Nelson.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

BANCROFT, March 17. — Wilberforce juvenile hockey team journeyed to Bancroft for a game with Bancroft Public School. Bancroft squad proved a little too much for Wilberforce, winning 6-3. Brethour scored for Bancroft, while D. Moxam was responsible for the last four. Don. Hatchard and T. Maxwell each accounted for two, while M. Agnew scored the other for the visiting team. Both goal-tenders showed ability in their positions by stopping fast and numerous shots.

HAWKS' ROOKIES DEFEAT RANGERS BY SCORE OF 4 TO 3

Victors Play Like Champs Handing New Yorkers Ninth Licking in 12 Starts

TAKE LEAD, HOLD IT

NEW YORK, March 17.—(CP)—Chicago Black Hawks, gunning from the National Hockey League's sectional cellar, loosed a farewell salvo at New York Rangers last night and went home for the season with a 4 to 3 victory.

The "all-America" idea, sponsored by Major Frederic McLaughlin of Chicago, did not seem so fantastic as Hawks won from the Rangers with five American rookies participating in the triumph.

The victors played as if a championship were at stake. The Hawks took the lead in the opening frame on Paul Thompson's goal. They knotted the count twice in the second on markers by "Doc" Romnes and "Pep" Kelly after Clint Smith, Lynn Patrick and Frank Boucher had put the Rangers in front, and won out in the final chapter on Kelly's second tally.

Veterans of the Hawks put the finishing touches to all the Chicago goals, but the rookies seemed to fit well in the close-knit defensive system featured by the winners.

Some 7,000 fans saw Rangers go down to their ninth defeat in the last twelve games.

GILMAN, Robert.—At the residence, 116 Sophia street, unexpectedly, March 17, Robert Gilman, 55 years of age. Funeral March 20, from the residence, at 3.45 a.m. to Church of Immaculate Conception for service at 9 a.m. Interment in St. Peter's Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

SIMPSON. — In remembrance of "Mother," Mrs. A. Simpson, who died March 14, 1931, also Mrs. Percy Simpson, who died March 18, 1931.

They said Good-bye, our loved ones of late years,
They're gone Home, beyond all pain and tears.
Our lonely hearts still grieve, but this we know:
They're in Jesus' keeping and this is so.
And we shall climb with Jesus as our guide,
The upward road, that leads us to their side.
For He walks with us, whispering words of love:
"Only a little while, till we'll meets in His Home above."

—Lovingly remembered by Husband and Children.

"THIS THING CALLED FIZAZZ"

"What is 'Pizazz'? According to Harper's Bazaar, "Pizazz is an indefinable, dynamic quality, the Je ne sais quoi of function"; as, for instance, Hollandaise sauce puts the Pizazz in broccoli. Certain clothes have it, too. There's Pizazz in the new 14-gore Alix coat swinging wide at the back. And in Lilly Dache's little pill box with wax flowers that look real enough to pick. And in crayon bed accessories that are pizazzed up 'gainst hyacinth blue. And in gipsy-like Romany stripes that sing out in all their Romany glory when they are used with dark costume color backgrounds. So if you'd get Pizazz into your Spring clothes, choose those wearables that are as startling as the world itself."

Grenada's short crop of nutmegs has affected all business there.

The Day That I Forget

CHAPTER 37

JOEL'S COMPANY was on location in Death Valley for nearly three weeks.

As soon as Janet and Joel were alone on his return she said, "Darling, I have something to tell you and you are not to get angry."

Joel ruffled her hair, hugged her shamelessly before the waitress and grinned. "My Scotch bride has overdrawn her allowance at last! Never mind, honey, as long as you look as pretty as you do in that green thingamabob"—the green thingamabob was a slinky, silky necklace—"I don't mind."

"No, it's not money, dear," Janet protested. "It's a man."

Joel's arm tightened. So did his mouth.

"You see how unreasonable you are?" she said lightly. "You haven't heard about it yet and you are angry already."

"Well, let's hear about it."

"It's nothing serious at all. Only, grown and seen some movies. Since I was an extra girl and most of the parties were given by Caroline, I've been escorted by Russell."

"Russell?"

"Of course," she answered impatiently. "Russell Bede, Caroline's brother. You met him... the night... the night of her big party."

"Oh," he said after a minute, "I remember him. Your beau."

The way he said it made her feel relieved. Joel had forgotten he was angry that night.

She laughed. "My beau indeed! Did you forget that you're my beau?"

"Not for a minute," he said and thought of the nights he had looked at the stars with the slumberous-eyed Nina.

He looked a trifle guiltily into the shining eyes of his wife and had the grace to feel himself a fool. A lucky one to have Janet for his own! Joel did not find words easy. He had never been able to say the things to Janet that he felt. He would have been embarrassed to tell her that he not only loved her but admired her as an individual. And that he frequently had his moments when he wondered why she loved him or what he had ever deserved to have the one girl in the world for his wife.

He tried to do it in another way. His first thought was for her when he had money. His greatest pleasure was to buy her luxurious gifts which he always felt were yet not enough. There was no question in his mind about being faithful to her. He was married to her—he had never wanted to be married—and she knew that. It was true that he found other women attractive, that he fed upon their flattery and that he had no intentions of foregoing it. But it never occurred to him that he might cause Janet any pain or that she might not be able to read his mind.

Manlike, he gave no thought to the eventual outcome of their marriage. They were married and that was that. They were happy, loved each other, lived without worries and in harmony. They were companions. They accepted each other. He didn't know that women do not take those things for granted and Janet didn't know that he did.

If she had tried to talk to him about their tomorrows, he would have laughed them off, been surprised and probably hurt by any thought she might have that the ties between them were not strong enough. He foresaw no barriers against the future and no dangers in the present.

His momentary anger had not been jealousy of a romantic nature the night that he had come upon Janet and Russell Bede on the terrace. He had been angry because he had heard Russell Bede say, "This will be a secret between us." It didn't occur to him for a moment that it was anything but an innocent secret. Yet he hadn't liked Janet to give even that much of herself.

And then he had forgotten all about the incident.

Forgetting was easy to Joel. He had forgotten that Janet had been upset about Carole Grieat and that red-headed girl. It didn't seem possible to him, or wouldn't if he had known, that Janet was jealous of Nina. All of Janet's talk on another occasion about jealousy, he had accepted as something she had heard about and never experienced.

His little Janet was really a baby!

"So what does all this confession lead up to?" he asked affectionately. "Am I to be the irate husband and go out and beat up the fellow?"

"Oh, Joel, you're so cute! The whole thing is forgotten now but I wanted you to know about it because things get so distorted in telling out here. Someone is sure to tell you that your wife has been shamelessly flaunting a new man while you were away. As a matter of fact," she went on boldly, "I've been having a lovely time. No afternoon bridge sessions, no gab-fests with a lot of girls who never have anything new to say anyway. It's all been nice and healthy and outdoorish and if you don't mind I'd rather like to continue for the next three days."

"Why only the next three days?" Joel answered generously.

"Russell is returning east Saturday and we've some things planned. We're going fishing on Hal's boat Friday. Do you think you can come?"

"Not a chance," he said regretfully. "We're way behind shooting schedule now and we'll be working late for the rest of the week but we'll have a trip to Mexico as soon as we wind up."

"Sure you don't mind if I go?"

"I'm sure I don't," he answered readily.

Janet was sincerely disappointed that Joel couldn't go on the fishing party. She was correct in feeling that she needed his moral support.

The party was given the last day before Russell Bede's departure and Janet had an uncanny feeling that Russell was going to break his silence.

She didn't expect him to do it quite so abruptly or as surprisingly as he did.

Hal Schurrer's boat was not a fishing smack. It was a sleek, white yacht, luxuriously appointed on its spacious decks and its lounges and staterooms.

It was big enough to make for privacy for those who wanted it. There were 12 in the party and Janet clung to the groups, avoiding Russell Bede without seemingly to do so. He had been strangely quiet on the drive to the harbor and more than once she saw him looking at her in a queer, steady way that was disconcerting. Instinctively, she knew that he was going to say something important to her and she knew she was not prepared for it.

He didn't speak, other than to join the general conversation, until they were steaming back to port.

Janet had been sitting with Hal and his wife. Russell joined them and Janet was left alone with him when Gertrude Schirmer followed her husband forward to speak to the captain.

Russell said without preamble, "will you marry me?"

"Russell! I am married!"

"I know that, certainly. I'll ask you again: Will you marry me?"

gily, "Then you aren't a dream, are you?"

"Who is a dream?" snarled the Bad Chap.

"I say you AREN'T one, are you?" asked the rabbit gentleman looking at the bouquet of spring trailing arbutus flowers in his paw. "I—YOU aren't a dream."

"Of course I'm not," sawed the Bob Cat. "I'm real fur and bones and claws and teeth."

"Especially claws and teeth," said Uncle Wiggily politely as he looked at the sharp ones the Bob Cat had on him. He was wondering whether the Bad Chap could be made kind and gentle by the Spring flowers, so Mr. Longears asked:

"Do you like perfume?"

"No! I hate it!" snarled the Bob Cat. "I seem to smell it, too!" he gibbered. "Is it on you—that perfume?"

Won't Sniff

"No. It's on these Spring flowers that I gathered for my wife," said Uncle Wiggily gently. "They are for Mrs. Longears, but I'm sure she wouldn't mind if you took some. Have a sniff, anyhow," and he held the perfumed flowers out to the Bad Chap.

"No! No!" snarled the Bad Chap. "I came her to get you and I'm not going to be fooled with perfume."

"Was that you woofing a little while ago?" asked Mr. Longears edging away to get ready to run.

"Yes," snapped the Bob Cat most impolitely. "Why?"

"I thought it was," said Uncle Wiggily, speaking as a gentleman rabbit should. "But I didn't see you at first. I ran away but I came back after I took a trip."

"I saw you come back," mewed the Bob Cat. "The reason you didn't see me was because I was lying hidden in the snow. That's how I caught cold and the woofing sound I made was when I sneezed. And that's one reason I don't want any of your perfumed flowers—I can't smell them with my —a-ker-choo-aker-choo!"

"I didn't want you to smell them with your akerchoo," said Uncle Wiggily. "Couldn't you use your nose?"

"Don't get funny with me!" snarled the Bob Cat. "I came to catch you and I'm going to, perfume or not."

A Neat Trick

"You might eat the flowers if you can't smell them and they are very sweet," said the rabbit. "But I forgot—when you have a cold you can neither smell nor taste. So if you don't mind—"

"You think you're smart, don't you?" sneered the Bob Cat. "Well, I'll show you!" With that he made a jump for Uncle Wiggily. But Uncle Wiggily quickly jumped back. And then, remembering about his trip to the tangly blackberry vines, the rabbit darted across that place.

He knew where the vines were from having tripped in them before. But the Bob Cat didn't. And, all of a sudden, as he was chasing the rabbit, the Bad Chap's feet became tangled in the vines and he took a trip! Down he fell kerbunko on the snow, bursting his nose hard.

Before the Bob Cat could get up, Uncle Wiggily was far, far away. His wife liked the perfumed arbutus very much and gave her husband a kiss for them. So everything came out all right and it will soon be Spring.

And if the five cent ice cream cone isn't too proud to dance with the penny lollypop, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily up a tree.

Rawdon Couple Celebrate 30th Wedding Anniversary

Many Gifts Are Presented To Mr. And Mrs. David Wellman

A HAPPY OCCASION

BONARLAW, March 17. — On Saturday evening, March the 13th, a very pleasant event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David Wellman of 12th Line of Rawdon, when about seventy-five friends and neighbors gathered to spend the evening, it being their thirtieth wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Wellman were married 30 years ago on Saturday, March 13th, at Winnipeg, Manitoba, by the late Rev. Dr. Sparling, M.A., D.D. The late Dr. Sparling was the founder of Wesley College at Winnipeg. The attending witnesses were Chas. F. Ward and Laura E. Sparling. Mr. and Mrs. Wellman resided at Rapid City, Man., for one year, then returned to the homestead at Bonarlaw where Mr. Wellman was born and raised. Four boys came to bless this union, all of whom were present at this very happy occasion.

About 10 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Wellman were given an old fashioned charivari, after which an address was read by Mr. John McKeown.

They were then presented with a dozen cut glass sherbet glasses and a silver casserole. W. J. Barlow spoke a few words after which the boys presented their parents with a beautiful Aladdin lamp.

Mr. and Mrs. Wellman replied very suitably and speeches were made by Andrew Thompson, Ernest Brown and W. S. Biles. The gathering joined in singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows," after which dancing was enjoyed until 1.30, when lunch was served.

Mr. Kenneth Bain sang a very appropriate song and there was music by Mrs. John S. McKeown and Dave Wellman, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Wellman received a lot of very costly and beautiful gifts, including a mother of pearl clock, pearl handled butter knife cut glass pitchers, and a lovely blanket from friends at Sarnia, Ont.

The party broke up shortly after midnight after best wishes for many more years of happy married life.

oration and followed a similar debate of last Friday night when on a non-party vote of 58 to 46 a similar measure was given second reading and sent to committee. Yesterday's measure was taken up during the hour directed to private bills and was still under discussion when the hour expired.

Hon. J. G. Gardiner, minister of agriculture, got second reading without debate of two bills designed to consolidate and clarify the statutes dealing with feed stuffs and seeds. These measures will be subject of public hearings in the committee on agriculture.

In the main debate there was much criticism of the clause in the old age pensions act amendment designed to discourage marriage among the blind. Blind couples marrying will lose half their pensions. Angus MacInnis, (C.C.F. Vancouver East), moved an amendment to strike out this clause but was ruled out of order.

Mr. Dunning said if it seemed the general opinion of the House that the clause should be eliminated he would be guided by such an expression. Certain kinds of blindness were congenital the minister said and marriage among such blind couples might result in the birth of blind children.

Thinks List Too Large

Conservative Leader Bennett agreed with Mr. Dunning the abuses of old age pensions were numerous and glaring. It believed the government could purge the list of pensioners considerably by careful investigation, particularly in some provinces.

It was time, he said, for the government to consider a compulsory contributory system of old age pensions. Each year social problems were neglected the number of persons dependent on the state increased. It was for this reason he believed social legislation should be undertaken without delay but it should be of a contributory character.

If the state was to do everything, provide pensions for the aged, unemployment relief, health insurance and social security generally without a contribution from the individual "the future of Canada is in the sack." The taxpayers could not bear the burden and no progress could be made.

Pensions figures indicated the cases cited by the members were exceptions rather than the rule, said Mr. Dunning, and proved the administration was more humanitarian that the complaints heard would indicate.

The reason the Dominion government had to send out inspectors was not because deserving people were refused pensions but because undeserving persons were getting them. There was much more need for tightening up than for loosening up.

There were not a few cases of persons with money and considerable property who obtained pensions, said the minister. There were not a few pensioners who had sons and daughters in good circumstances and well able to support them.

Immigrants Swell List.

The reason for the large prospective increase in pensioners was that a large part of the population were immigrants who had come to Canada as adults. They would reach the age of 70 in increasing numbers in the next few years.

Applicants for old age pensions should be required to make out their cases before a county court judge, said Hon. R. A. Stewart (Can. Leeds). A change was needed in the whole system. On the part of applicants for pensions there was an impression that if they worked through the right political channels they could get pensions. He had been asked to fill out papers and refused when it was clear the applicant was not entitled to pension. Usually, he noticed the parties went to someone else and got the pension eventually. Mr. Dunning said the county judge suggestion was being considered.

Feel Deserving Refused.

Miss Agnes MacPhail (U.F.O.-Labor, Grey-Bruce) said she knew of many about it and rarely heard of a deserving person being refused a pension. She thought now that if the blind were to receive pensions another class of persons should be cared for, those completely disabled with arthritis and other diseases.

Support for Mr. Stewart's suggestion came from Dr. J. J. McCann (Lib. Renfrew South). He said pensions were being used for political purposes in every election. The County Court Judge was the ideal officer to decide on applications.

The reason so many pensions were being said, he said, was "the absolute lack of moral obligation on the part of sons and daughters who are well able to care for their parents and will not." In view of the spread of this condition it was questionable if too much state paternalism was a good thing.

The Dominion Government should not pay 70 per cent. of the cost of the pensions when it had no control of the spending of the money, said Dr. McCann. It was too much temptation to Provincial Governments to play politics with money they received for nothing.

In connection with pensions for the blind, Dr. McCann thought the Government was starting at the wrong end. Blindness, in a great many cases, was due to venereal diseases and nothing was being done by public health education to guard against these diseases.

It was "idle to deny the Old-Age Pensions Act has been badly administered," said Mr. Bennett. Because of abuses in administration of the Act its jurisdiction had been transferred from the Labor to the Finance Department shortly before the change of Government.

Political Abuse

Efforts had been made in Canada to administer the old age pensions act for political purposes. Much of this form of abuse had been cleaned up but much remained.

Mr. Bennett believed the list of pensioners would be greatly reduced if purged of those who were not entitled to receive the pension. Human nature was the same everywhere, he said, and people feeling themselves deserving, if not technically qualified, would try to get on the list regardless. There were also those with substantial means, who managed to get the pension.

Before leaving office as prime minister, he had contemplated an act providing for contributory old age pensions. Under that plan citizens would acquire the right to pension at a certain age by virtue of the contributions his thrift had made possible.

Mr. Bennett urged that application of the old age pensions act to the Yukon was even more justified and needed than had been the case with the Northwest Territories.

One of the original committee that presented the report on which the old age pensions act was based, David Spence (Cons. Toronto-Parkdale) said he knew of many cases of fraudulent applications for pensions. People had transferred their property in order to become eligible although they had ample means for their support.

Mr. Spence would extend the blind pensions to start at a lower age and he also urged that the amount of earnings exempt from assessment against old age pensions be increased. If a person 70 years of age and in need of pension managed to earn a little money he should not have his pension reduced thereby.

The present rule is that a pensioner may earn up to $120 a year without reducing his pension. This exemption is considerably higher for blind persons.

Mr. Dunning had the bill amended to provide that a blind person receiving a war pension or a war veteran's allowance for some other cause than blindness would not be barred from receiving one of the new pensions for the blind.

HEPBURN CALMS FEAR OF ELECTION DURING SUMMER

only criticism was that the amusement tax should have been retained on tickets costing over $1. People who could afford to pay $2 to see a hockey game could afford to pay something to the Government.

"I believe in a high wage and a minimum wage," said Mr. Oliver, praising the minimum wage legislation for men. "It supports lived by the Golden Rule. We wouldn't need all this legislation to protect workers from employers who are not honest and who seek to grind the worker down and down to the lowest standard of living."

Benefit to Farmer

Minimum wage legislation would benefit farmers through an increase in the purchasing power of urban workers.

Wilfred Heighington (Con., Toronto-St. David's) said it much more was done to protect the workingman and much less done to protect capital's investment in industry there might be a sit-down strike by employers.

J. A. Craig (Con., Lanark) declared industrialists in the cities would benefit much more from the one-mill subsidy to municipalities than would farmers. He opposed the leasing of pulpwood limits to United States concerns and said if they were to be leased the manufacture of the wood into paper and other things should be done in Canada.

MILLBROOK

MRS. ARMSTRONG IS CHOSEN LEADER

Will Conduct Women's Institute Class In Upholstering And Furniture Repairs

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MILLBROOK, March 17.—Mrs. R. J. McKnight, president, presided at the regular meeting of the local branch of the Women's Institute held at the home of Mrs. Charles Thorndyke Saturday afternoon and attended by eighteen members.

Singing of the Institute Ode was the opening item on the program followed by a gay sing song with piano accompaniment by Miss Ruth Thorndyke. Mrs. G. O. Fallis gave the secretarial report and the roll call was answered by an Irish joke or story. A communication from the Ontario Department, re whether or not the local society would send a delegate or delegates to the twelfth annual Girls' Agricultural College Convention being held in MacDonald Hall, Guelph, May 5, 6 and 7 caused much discussion although a definite decision of the matter was left over for the April meeting being held at the home of Mrs. J. R. Eakins.

Mrs. T. H. Aiken reported for the Sunshine committee and Mrs. J. L. Ryan for the layette committee, requesting volunteers to replace certain articles of an infant's layette which have been distributed during the winter and are now in need of replacement.

Mrs. H. J. Armstrong was reappointed local leader and following instructions from a representative of the department at a district meeting will later conduct a class of local members on the art of upholstering and re-conditioning furniture.

A communication was also received from the Bailleboro branch requesting their company at a St. Patrick's tea.

Plans were also made for a progressive euchre party which will be held in the Waverley Club Wednesday evening, April 14 at 8 p.m. Mrs. D. E. Chiles, Mrs. W. A. Sloan and Mrs. M. Ball were appointed a committee in charge.

Interesting Program

An interesting paper on the origin of St. Patrick's Day was given by the president, Mrs. R. J. McKnight as the introductory item of the Irish program. Other features of the program included a poem by Mrs. O. A. Fallis; a humorous reading by Mrs. W. A. Sloan and Thomas Moore's "Believe Me of All Those Endearing Young Charms" sung by Miss Ruth Thorndyke accompanied at the piano by Mrs. McKnight.

Singing of the National Anthem and a vote of thanks to the hostess dispersed the gathering.

Says Taximen Forced To Dishonesty, Work Over 9 Hours To Earn Minimum

EXMOUTON, March 17 (CP).—E. Chausse, representative of a taxi drivers organization, has clarified a statement he made in the legislature last week. During taximeter discussions, he asserted drivers were "generally dishonest."

"I admitted, under questioning that taxi men generally were forced into dishonesty because of the hours of labor regulations," Chausse said yesterday adding cabmen had to work more than the nine-hour daily maximum set by law. In order to earn the minimum pay of $15.

"So I admitted that to earn our pay we had to be dishonest and break that regulation," he stated.

Claim U.S. Firms Getting Control Of The Canadian Aircraft Market

LONDON, March 17 (CP Cable)—United States firms were rapidly getting control of the Canadian aircraft market, W. R. Perkins, Conservative, stated in the House of Commons last night in speaking on the civil aviation portion of the air estimates.

Unless Britain provided a suitable freight-carrying machine the Canadian services would be run and financed from below the border, he said.

Britain's chances of getting the contract for machines to operate the forthcoming trans-Canada airway service were negligible at present, he affirmed. Britain should endeavor to get the contract by converting six new bombers into civil machines and shipping them to Canada.

Duffus Loan Bill Scored

Mr. MacNeil, James S. Woodsworth (C.C.F., Winnipeg North Centre), and M. J. Coldwell (C.C.F., Rosetown-Biggar) urged the House refuse any further small loans legislation. To do so, Mr. MacNeil said, would be to perpetuate shady business practices. Public opinion demanded such an investigation as he proposed. He understood Finance Minister Dunning had received many representations and petitions urging such an inquiry be made.

"Petitions initiated by the loan companies themselves," Mr. Dunning interjected.

Paul Martin (Lib., Essex East), while not supporting the principle of the measure) advocated second reading so the measure could be dealt with in the same manner as was its companion bill now before the committee.

D. Mclver (Lib., Peri William) declared the bill was "unchristian" but supported the move that would get it before the committee, as that would give him time to prepare to "hit it and hit it hard." He was confident it would not get past the committee.

Mr. Duffus said that of 13 small loan companies advertising in Toronto papers only two were under Dominion Government regulations. Some of the "hooker" companies charged as high as $135 for a loan of $300. This company contemplated charges that would amount to about $24 for a similar loan if repaid in the normal time.

Husband-Slayer Willing Self To Die Begins 4th Day Of Strange Sleep

LOS ANGELES, March 16.—(AP)—Heinz Wills Love, convicted husband slayer who boasted "I can make myself die whenever I want to," began the fourth day of a strange sleep today, insensible to pain or sound.

For a second time, her trance-like condition prevented her from being taken to court for sentencing. Her conviction carries a penalty of from seven years to life imprisonment.

The 31-year-old woman was convicted of slaying Harry A. Love, last New Year's eve at a beach club when he went with his socially prominent mother.

Since she slipped into the coma last Thursday night, all organic functions of her body have ceased, aside from breathing and blood circulation.

Ammonia fumes and pin pricks, usually of avail in "sham" cases, have failed to arouse her.

MENDELSSOHN CHOIR GIVES

lost. It would make its appearance, then its departure, but back it would come for treatment by some other section of the choir. It was distinctly a folk song, though surrounded and decorated with all the subtleness of sweet musical design. Beautiful enough it was for a lullaby.

Again in Eaton Fanning's "How Sweet the Moonlight Sleeps," there was that symbiotic loveliness which no instrumentation could have excelled. It rose to heights of grandeur and it faded toward the end with the feeling that all the rich musical moments in it had been exhausted and drained by the perfection of treatment which it had received.

Men's Voices and Ladies'

If comparisons were permitted the selection by the male voices would receive slight preference over the ladies' choir. "The Old Woman" is a favorite with men's choral ecclesias in many places, and it is a delightful thing. As sung by the men of Mendelssohn it received generous treatment, an outstanding example of full-chorded loveliness, attained by that method which can be described only as "when music breathes."

Dr. Pricker's arrangement of Handel's "Where'er You Walk," was new, and for that reason more than interesting. Courtesy called in one form and favored as a vote grew generously for minor classes, in musical festivals and contests, this aria from "Semele" carries with it the feeling of the lyric voice. To turn such a song to advantage for a male choir is in itself a rather courageous effort to begin with, but it was done, and the upper voices were well able to retain and emphasize the lyric qualities of this delightful bit of music.

The number by the ladies' choir, the "Ave Maria" and "Songs from the Big Veda," the former in eight parts, made it abundantly certain the process of selection had not been strictly enforced. There was a brilliance in the soprano; there was that marked ability to sing easily in the highest ranges, and a delightful coloring and depth in the lower ranges.

Geoffray O'Hara's setting of "Annie Laurie," was instant attention, and the applause surely indicated it was the desire of the audience to hear it again. It is interesting to note that Geoffray O'Hara is a Canadian who is now in United States. Again there was in the opening that sensation of listening to what can be called vocal instrumentation. The male voices hummed, the altos sang about Annie Laurie, and again there was opportunity for the gallantry of men to become vocally assertive in proclaiming devotion to the same sweet lass, and with emphatic heroism they proclaimed their willingness to die for the sweet Annie.

"The old English song "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," was another number which has felt the touch of Dr. Pricker's own method of arrangement for full choir. The simplicity of that song was not damaged in the least, even if there were passages in it which called for forthright singing. "Hold Turpin" and a selection from "The Creole Days" left the audience in happy mood at the closing moment. In both there was that rollicking, dare-devil spirit, that marked rhythm which has the effect of a period of explosive power and that complete abandon which gave the impression the singers enjoyed it all the way through.

Much had been expected of the Mendelssohn Choir. High expectation may somewhat discount the extent of enjoyment, but it was not so on Tuesday evening. The folk of Peterborough expected they were going to hear one of the greatest choirs of the entire world and that is taking in a great deal of territory and meeting with much talent. But that is exactly what they heard. Dr. Pricker and his sweet singers conquered Peterborough.

Welcome and Appreciation.

Dr. J. J. Craig, on behalf of the men of St. Paul's church, gave a warm welcome to Dr. Pricker and members of his choir. Major Maclennan on behalf of the city presided and extended appreciation and message of welcome which the visitors should enjoy. Referring to the reputation and excellence of the visiting organization the Major on the occasion to enunciate the truth that "quality is always appreciated." C. M. Lawrence, acting for the men of St. Paul's, presented Dr. Pricker with a gift.

Dr. Pricker, in humorous vein, acknowledged the welcome and the gift. A form of wanderlust had now seized upon his organization, and after the entering of the Mendelssohn choir had finally managed to get as far away from home as Peterborough. The people of this city were all so anxious to have him see things here, he was sure he had come many time. "They have even volunteered to show us the waterworks system of this city," he remarked. Dr. Pricker is a humorist. He also thanked Dorothy Allan Park for having postponed the annual appearance of the Madrigal Singers because the original date selected was by such a date that for the appearance of the Mendelssohn Choir.

Credit must be given to the committee and workers who arranged for the seating of the choir and the vast audience. To arrange proper seating for a choir of 200 and at the same time to secure something approaching reverence in elevation was in itself a task of no small magnitude. That work was well planned and carefully carried out to the last detail, and the acoustic qualities of the church proved themselves equal to any test imposed.—E.

MALE VOICE CHOIR

The first appearance of the Male Voice Choir will be made this Sunday night in the Y.M.C.A. during the "Fireside Hour." Practice of the choir was held last Sunday with a good attendance. practice was also held on Monday evening, owing to the coming of Mendelssohn Choir. Robert Harle of St. Andrew's Church directs accompaniments. The final practice will be held next Sunday at four o'clock under the leadership of Victor Boorman.

JUDGING BY the lunar transits, this may be a day calling for much wariness against treachery, fraud and other adverse situations. Vigilance may be the way to handle such nonsense.

Those whose birthday it is are under omens of trickery, falsehood, fraud or other subtle undermintings during the year. These may best be met by vigilance and a shrewd or crafty anticipation of such deceptions or tricks.

Most Folks Like Hot Breads Hot, But Some Like Them Cold

Hot Cross Buns Made By Swedish Cooks Are Made Differently

REFRIGERATOR ROLLS

By MARY MOORE

BUT I like them from the bread box nine days old! I like them hot, too, but that rhymed so I had to write it.

For those who aren't old hands at making raised breads this is by way of rousing your interest to make your own Hot Cross Buns.

Hot Cross Buns as the Swedish Cooks make them are a little different than those commonly made by our bakeries. A suggestion to you amateur cooks that have never tackled yeast raised breads before, is to start on some such recipe as this, for they are flavored so well that mistakes in kneading and raising and baking do not matter as much as they would in a loaf of plain white bread.

Swedish Hot Cross Buns.

Five cups flour, 1¼ cups milk, ½ yeast cake (Fleischmann's), ¼ cup butter, 3 tablespoons other shortening, 1-3 cup granulated sugar, yolk of 1 egg, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon mixed cinnamon nutmeg, and cardamon seed (ground). Heat the milk in top of double boiler until lukewarm—dissolve the yeast cake in ¼ cup of it. Beat the egg yolk and to it add the remaining ¾ cup of milk, the butter and shortening, and sugar mixed together with the spices, then the milk and yeast. Beat well. Add this slowly to the sifted flour in large mixing bowl, and when all is added mix with the hands for 5 minutes. Cover and put aside in warm place (like covered radiator or high shelf over stove) to rise for about 2 hours—it should not rise faster.

Cut dough in small pieces a little larger than a walnut, and roll into balls. Place 3 balls close together to make 1 bun, on well greased pan and let rise at warm temperature 1 hour. Then cut cross on top of each with sharp knife and bake at 475 deg. Fahr.—very hot for about 15 minutes. When done brush tops with a mixture of 1 egg beaten with 2 tablespoons cream—then sprinkle with sugar and cinnamon and return to oven for about 2 minutes.

The creation of Refrigerator Rolls was undoubtedly the greatest boost to the Home Made Bread industry that it has experienced since the discovery of wheat.

Even though I would far rather be telling my youngsters the adventures of Alice in Wonderland before they go to sleep—I don't mind running up a batch of Refrigerator Rolls after supper, for I know they will be a sure fire hit with the Monarch of our household.

Refrigerator Rolls.

One-half cup sugar, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 cups scalded milk, 2 cakes Fleischmann's yeast, 1 teaspoon sugar, ¼ cup lukewarm water, 2 eggs, 6 cups bread flour. Add the sugar, butter and salt to the scalded milk while it is still quite warm. Mix the yeast cake and the teaspoon sugar with the lukewarm water,—then add to the first mixture which has been cooled to lukewarm. Sift in 2 cups of the flour, to make a sponge, then the beaten eggs, and beat,—then remaining flour to make a dough. Knead on floured board for 3 minutes, then place in greased large bowl, brush the surface with butter, cover with cloth and stand in refrigerator until wanted.

What is it about those rounds of a half-dozen Pecan rolls in the centre of a bakery window that catches your eye, waters your mouth, and opens your pocket book?

I dunno either—but the secret is no longer the bakers.

Pecan Rolls (With Caramel).

Make a caramel mixture by melting 1 tablespoon butter in a round layer cake tin, add ¼ cup brown sugar, stir until melted and add ½ cup boiling water. Cook slowly until syrup is quite heavy. Remove from fire and sprinkle over 2-3 cups pecan nut halves. Using a little more than half of your refrigerator roll dough, roll it out on floured board to one-third inch thickness. Brush the surface with melted butter and sprinkle with cinnamon and 2 tablespoons sugar. Roll up like a jelly roll and cut into 1-inch slices. Place the slices about 1 inch apart in the pan containing the syrup and nuts. Stand in warm place to rise to more than double in bulk, then bake at 375 or 400 deg. Fahr. for about 20 minutes.

Almond Ring (Canadian Version of Swedish Mandelhorns).

Roll one-half of the refrigerator roll dough to ¼ inch thickness. Combine 2 tablespoons butter and ¼ cup sugar until well blended, then add 1 beaten egg, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, the grated rind of 1 lemon, and ½ cup blanched chopped almonds. Spread this over the dough and roll it up like a jelly roll. Stretch it carefully to make it long enough to form a ring on a greased baking pan, moistening ends with water to make them stay together. Let rise in warm place until double in size and bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for about 20 minutes. To give it a Swedish and appetizing look, gash the top surface diagonally until the almond filling is slightly exposed, before baking.

Since we use only two loaves of bread per week, we are finicky about it when we do select it. Right now we are fondest of the Stoy Bros. bread (Full Bay) that is proximate, and oatmeal bread, which this Food Maestro proudly makes herself.

Oatmeal Bread.

This is best cut the day after baking with a very sharp bread knife.

One cake Fleischmann's yeast, ½ cup lukewarm water, 2 cups boiling water, 2 cups coarse rolled cooking oats, ¼ cup brown sugar, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 4 cups sifted bread flour, 1 teaspoon salt. Pour the 2 cups of boiling water over the rolled oats and cover and let stand until lukewarm. Dissolve the yeast and sugar in the ½ cup lukewarm water, add the butter and add these to the oats and water. Sift in 1 cup flour and beat well. Cover and set aside to rise until light—about 1 hour in warm place. Add about 3 cups flour and the salt and knead very well. Place in greased bowl and let rise in warm place until double in bulk—about 1½ hours. Mould into two loaves, to fit well greased pans ⅓ full, cover and let rise again about 1 hour. Bake 45 minutes at 400 deg. Fahr.

Were you intrigued with the sticks of bread that so uniquely adorned your table that time you visited an Italian restaurant? You can make them with the leftover half of your refrigerator roll dough.

Bread Sticks.

Using refrigerator roll dough, shape sticks first as small biscuits, roll on board (where there is no flour) with hands until 8 inches long, keeping uniform size and rounded ends, by bringing fingers close to, but not over, ends of sticks.

Place on greased cookie sheet and let rise to double their size, and start baking at 450 deg. Fahr. for 5 minutes—reducing heat to 300 to finish, so that sticks may be crisp and dry. If desired salt may be sprinkled on sticks before baking.

MANY of you have tasted apple sauce cake—best of course warm from the oven.

Apple Johnny Cake combines all of the apple sauce cake virtues, to some of its own—it is the best Sunday morning breakfast Hot bread I have come across in some time.

Apple Johnny Cake.

One cup sour milk, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 cup apple sauce, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons melted butter, 1 cup yellow cornmeal, 2-3 cup flour, ¼ teaspoon salt, and 1 cup grated, ground or finely chopped apples—Spies or Baldwins or tart apples preferred.

Combine sour milk with the soda, then add sugar, melted butter and stir well. Then sift in dry ingredients, and lastly apples. Which should not be prepared until moist ingredients are combined, and dry ingredients are sifted together but not added. Pour into muffin tins or flat cake pan in which butter (about 1 tablespoon) has been melted to grease it—pans should be hot when batter is poured in.

Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. Serve for Breakfast or dessert for high tea with plenty of best quality butter or Devonshire Cream. With Devonshire Cream it is a dish fit for quality folk and kings.

CHEESEMEN AIM AT COMPULSORY BOARDING LAW

Section Of Ontario West Of Toronto Would Follow East's Example

13,396 BOXES EXPORTED

KEMPTVILLE, Ont., March 17—(CP)—The Ontario Cheese Patrons' Association, which opened its annual convention to-day in Kemptville Agricultural School, will be asked to approve a resolution calling for compulsory sale of cheese through organized Cheese Board. Last year the Board set up under the Natural Products Marketing Act, passed such an order covering that part of the province East of Toronto. Compulsory boarding is now proposed for Western Ontario. As the Marketing Board derived authority has been set aside by the Privy Council, the proposed new order will be under authority of legislation which Hon. Duncan Marshal is expected to introduce in the Legislature at an early date. The order covering Eastern Ontario provided for exemption from boarding of special types of cheese other than the usual export type. It is now proposed that exemptions be granted only if recommended by Cheese Board officials and approved by the central executive, also that a salesman be permitted to refuse the highest bid, but in event of such refusal he must give good and sufficient reasons.

Two Day Rally

The convention, to last two days, opened with an address of welcome to the delegates by J. C. Shearer, principal of Kemptville Agricultural School, and the address of A. W. MacIntyre, of Finch, president of the association.

T. B. Kline of Toronto was scheduled to speak on "Increasing consumption of cheese in Canada," and for a banquet in Leslie Hall this evening the speakers announced were Hon. Duncan Marshall, Ontario Minister of Agriculture and Dr. C. I. Christie, principal of Ontario Agricultural College.

The resolution regarding compulsory boarding was forecast in the report of S. L. Jess, secretary-treasurer of the association. He reported purchase during the past year of 13,396 boxes of cheese, of which 3,138 remain unsold in Britain.

Gross profit was $3,405, and net profit $843. Average purchase price for the season was 17.306 cents or about one eighth cent higher than the average paid on the boards. "Since the decision of the Supreme Court regarding the natural products marketing act," Mr. Jess said, "it has been necessary for us to endeavor to collect tolls on a voluntary basis direct from the factories, and we have collected up to February 28 this year $3,444. Last January the Dominion government gave us a grant of $5,000." A resolution will be introduced look regarding tolls.

Enquiry Column

Conducted by
Mrs. MARY MOORE

Question—I hope you will not think it too much bother, but I would like to know how to clean a chamois jacket without having it shrink—if it is at all possible for you to answer.

I must say your cooking columns are of invaluable help to me. Thanking you.—M. J.

Answer—Thank you for your letter.

Since you did not mention otherwise we will assume that the chamois jacket is unlined.

Use soft water if available—if not to 2 gallons of lukewarm water add ½ cup baking soda, and ½ cup good quality soap flakes, and agitate until soda and soap are dissolved. As you work with the water keep adding hot water to keep the temperature at lukewarm—that is the same temperature as your hands. When a nice suds is formed put in the chamois coat and work the soiled parts between the hands, adding a little more soap as the suds subside, and more hot water as the wash water cools. If some of the soiled parts cannot be cleaned by rubbing between the hands lay the part out on a washboard and scrub it with a nail brush and suds. Rinse out in lukewarm water softened with baking soda, using about 3 rinse waters. Then hang up to dry on a hanger after wringing as dry as you can with the hands. Let any other moisture drip and evaporate out—do not use wringer. When coat is half dry rub it all over between the hands to stretch and prevent it becoming stiff. Do not dry in hot room—rather hang it in the basement if it is nice and airy. When nearly dry rub and stretch it often between the hands. Brush with dry nail brush to soften surface when dry.

Question—I wonder if you could help me find a method I once saw in your columns for removing hot iron transfers. Thanking you for your kindness.—Miss J. A.

Answer—I cannot recall the method you refer to, nor can I locate it in my files of the page.

However in an amateur fashion I have used transfer patterns a second time by pinning the transfer paper over the material you desire to work on and running over the lines of the design with a tracing wheel (to be bought at art supply stores)—and white pattern is in place gift talcum power through the tiny holes made by the tracing wheel in the paper and pat it into the goods. If goods are white you must either use colored powder or another method. Lift off paper and using the powder design as a guide re-mark the design with soft lead pencil.

I also have added bluing to paraffin and retraced the design on the original paper by dipping a pen into the blued melted wax and tracing it over the design—as you would ink in a penciled sketch. When the wax hardens, apply the design to the cloth with warm iron as you did with original transfer. One-quarter cake of Reckitt's blue mixed with 1 cup melted wax thoroughly blended should do the trick—you must work quickly or the wax will harden too fast—unless stood in larger cup of hot water.

We hope one of these methods works for you.

Question—Your recipes from the Cookery Page are very helpful and I have tried some of them and found them very good.

As I have just started to bake and cook I would appreciate it very much if you could give me recipes for Suet Crust for a Pie, Chocolate Cake with about 8 or 9 eggs, Fancy cookies. Many thanks.—C.B.R.

Answer—Thank you for your letter.

Tender Pie Pastry.

To each cup of pastry flour use 1-3 cup of shortening, ½ teaspoon salt, and enough ice cold water to make it cling together. One cup of flour will make enough pastry for one crust—use 2 cups for a two-crust pie.

Sift flour into bowl, add 3 tablespoons lard or shortening and either blend in with the finger tips or a pastry blender (to be bought in kitchenware section of a hardware or department store.) Add salt and roll out. Over this spread butter to make up the one-third cup of shortening required altogether. Fold pastry in half, then in six layers folding from the sides. Roll out again and fit over pie plate and chill thoroughly. Bake at very high temperature—500 deg. Fahr. for first ten minutes, reducing heat to 350 deg. F to finish. If top crust is used make same as bottom, bring it on plate folded once, to clash. When ready to put in oven put filling in chilled lower crust, quickly fit on top, and bake at 500 deg. Fahr. for ten minues. Then reduce heat to 350 degrees to finish baking. If filling is uncooked fruit such as apples or cherries or rhubarb test with fork through slits in top crust, if tender, before removing from the oven.

Superior Devil's Food Cake.

One-half cup good quality cocoa, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ cup butter, 2 cups sugar, four eggs, rolls and whites separated, 2 2-3 cups flour, ½ teaspoon each vanilla and salt, 1 cup milk. Cream the butter well, and sift in half the sugar while creaming. Beat the yolks until thick, and add remaining sugar to them. Combine these mixtures and add alternately the milk and flour which has been sifted together with the cocoa, baking powder and salt, then beat in stiffly beaten whites and vanilla. Pour into buttered tube pan and bake at 350 deg. Fahr., reducing heat to 300 deg. during last half of baking. When cool frost with boiled or butter frosting.

Date Cookies.

One cup sugar, ¾ cup butter, ¼ teaspoon baking powder, 2 cups sifted flour, 1 egg yolk, 1 cup chopped dates, and about 2 tablespoons milk. Cream the butter and sugar and add the egg yolk beating with the milk. Sift the flour and baking powder together, and sift them into the cream ingredients then add the dates. Add a few teaspoons more milk if the dough is too stiff to roll out. Roll out very thin and cut out and bake. As this recipe makes a large batch you might wish to divide the dough into three parts, adding the dates to one-third, 2 tablespoons good quality cocoa to another, grated rind of an orange and 1-3 cup grated cocoanut to the last. This makes a delicious assortment of cookies—very dainty if they are rolled exceedingly thin.

Watch the cookery page for other cookie recipes from week to week.

Rhubarb Jelly with Whipped Cream

NOTE—To make Braised Beef with Oysters is somewhat similar to Swiss Steak, for you need a 2-lb. slice of round steak—the seasonings and the oysters give it its Sunday dress. Mix together 1½ teaspoons salt, 1-3 teaspoon pepper and ½ teaspoon summer savory and stir them into 1 grated onion. Rub this mixture over the surface of the beef on both sides. Melt 3 tablespoons butter in iron frying pan or Dutch oven, and brown with it 1 tablespoon flour, then into this stir 1 cup water or vegetable stock and stir until thick. To this add 1 one-inch stick of cinnamon, 1 clove, 1 bay leaf, 1 dash of mace, and lay the seasoned steak in it. Cover closely and simmer very gently until beef is done—about 2½ or 3 hours—a little additional liquid will need to be added as it cooks—loosen steak from bottom occastonally. About 5 minutes before serving time gently fry the oysters in butter, then lay them on the beef on a hot platter, and put in oven to keep warm. Strain the gravy left from stewing the beef into the frying pan—making it up to a pint with leftover oyster liquor and stock of vegetables or hot water. Mix 1 tablespoon flour with cold water until paste is smooth, stir this into the boiling gravy and stir until it thickens. Pour over oysters on beef and serve very hot. Garnish with ring of boiled whole new carrots sprinkled with parsley if carrots are accessible. Worth the trouble.

British, Dominion-Canned Goods Bought For Army When Possible

LONDON, March 17 (CP-Havas)—British and Dominion-made tinned provisions are purchased for the army whenever possible, Sir Victor Warrender, financial secretary to the war office, told the House of Commons yesterday.

Robert Morrison, Labor, had asked if the war office intended to continue buying tinned provisions aboard. The secretary said that priority in tinned foods was always given to those of British origin when satisfactory and reasonably priced.

"The main purchases of tinned foods of foreign origin in 1936 were preserved meats and salmon," Sir Victor said. "In case of the former, no suitable British supplies were offered. In the case of the latter, Dominion salmon was purchased wherever available at a reasonable price."

A Wife With Money Aim Of Drunk, 60

Oshawa, March 17—(CP)—JOHN O'Brien who said he came from Sault Ste. Marie and that he was 60 years of age promised the court to keep out of trouble in future by marrying a woman with money.

Charged with intoxication, O'Brien told Magistrate F. S. Ebbs: Give me a chance and I'll never come back. I'll marry a woman with money."

"You're starting pretty late in life, aren't you?" asked the magistrate.

Fifty dollars and costs or 30 days, ruled the court. O'Brien took the jail term.

COMMUNITY HEALTH

A Column Conducted by the Department of Public Health, Peterborough, in the Interests of Peterborough Citizens.

"PNEUMONIA"

February, March and April are considered the pneumonia months because more cases occur at that time of the year than any other. Resistance to disease is lower at the end of the long winter and so there is more likelihood of its development when the body is least able to combat it.

Pneumonia is a communicable disease caused by a germ known as the pneumococcus. This germ is often found in the mouth or nose of healthy people particularly if they have been nursing a pneumonia patient but does not cause the disease unless the patient is run down or weakened by other factors such as chilling, hunger, fatigue, etc. Of course even a healthy person is liable to contract pneumonia if exposed to a large number of germs such as might be expected from close contact with a case of pneumonia. It is no respecter of age, sex or station, striking with a sudden intensity that disables the victim for weeks and frequently causing death. Fifteen out of every hundred deaths in Peterborough last year were caused by pneumonia.

It may start as a sudden sharp pain in the chest following exposure to cold. This pain is due to inflammation of the pleura (pleurisy) and is followed rapidly by congestion and consolidation of the lung. The onset may be the result of a severe cold. Whatever the cause, the results are much the same. There is high fever, cough, shortness of breath and great weakness. If the disease is confined to one lung or one lobe of the lung we call it lobar pneumonia but if it occurs in scattered areas over both lungs the disease is called broncho pneumonia.

No attempt should be made to treat pneumonia without medical aid. It is a disease that requires expert nursing and constant watching combined with careful medical supervision. The physician should be consulted early and every effort made to have his directions carried out to the fullest extent. Rest in bed, heart stimulants, sedatives for pain and watchful waiting are the main factors in treatment.

Prevention depends chiefly on the avoidance of contact with known pneumonia cases. Pneumonia sufferers should be isolated and only a few members of the family allowed near them. A healthy body is one of the best preventives and will do much to combat the development of the disease.

Pneumonia is a reportable disease. The Secretary of the Board of Health or the Medical Officer of Health should be notified as soon as a case develops.

Increasing immigration, a result of the general prosperity of the country, is a problem in South Africa.

Judge Doubts 2 Girls Would Have Similar Mirror, Lipstick, Rouge.

EDMONTON, March 17 (CP)—Possibility of two girls possessing exactly similar sets of lipstick, pocket mirror and rouge is "about one in 1,000,000," Magistrate A. H. Gibson contends.

In police court yesterday he found Alex Morrison guilty of stealing two handbags and sentenced him to three months in jail. Morrison testified the three articles, found in his possession, had been given him for safekeeping by "a girl named Joey who now lives in Vancouver."

Each Lady Is In 'Print' Now

Movie Stars, Indians, Pink Elephants, Subways, Garden Flowers

"WALLIE" MOTIF

ANYTHING from pink cats to human faces and crowding chairs may peer from the surface of women's print frocks this spring. And you don't need a drink to see them, either.

It looks as if the manufacturers of printed goods went absolutely haywire when they started in on the mad orgy of brightening up erstwhile sober fabrics. They started in the season with some reminders of the dramatic romance which set the world by the ears, when they went in for "Wallie" and "Amour, Amour" prints and then turned to reserves that had all the amendments of the Federal Constitution of the United States, plastered over their informative surfaces.

Now anything goes. Animals from the jungle, the barnyard and the circus parade their gaudy hides on spring silks. And there are masks of human faces in delicate outlines, framed by flowers and feathery foliage, printed on sophisticated evening gowns.

An afternoon frock, for instance, may have red and black elephants, with howdahs on their backs, disporting themselves among blue, green and yellow flowers. In addition to the usual neat geometrical prints, there is a perfect riot of life-like African daisies, red rooster heads, peasant figures and punctuation marks on the new fabrics.

This continent has inspired the new Indian tribe silks, so a visit to English friends this summer should include tricks with "Redman" motifs. The patterns are taken from the Indian tribes' the Crow and Blackfoot bow and arrow; the Navajos' teepee; the Mohawk headdress; and several silhouette and beadwork designs.

The Parisian designers are showing their hands in amusing and weird patternings. There is "the morning mail", in a piece plastered all over with stamps; there is a print of Paris bridges and subways, suggested by the coming Paris Exposition of 1937; there is a silk that is patterned in a design incorporating all the funny disks, cogs and wheels in Charlie Chaplin's picture "Modern Times."

There is a tragic note in the eccentric pattern called "Night Flight", which is a reminder of Spanish war raids, and there are floral motifs of many types in Coronation designs.

Your Favorite Star

The craze for movie stars has an outlet in dress, for you may wear, if you wish, a dress patterned with strips, of colored films across which are scribbled the signatures of Garbo Gable, Crawford and other famous people of the talking screen.

The glamor of the South Seas and tropical isles casts its spell over sports clothes, which show colorful and gay designs in fruits, such as lemons, oranges and pineapples.

There are three types in these printed patterns, the spaced, the clustered and the graduated. The latter is exemplified in a dinner gown in black and white, in which one huge flower appears on each wide sleeve and a few adorn the floor of the skirt. The second design, the "scattered", is quite a favorite, like a black model scattered with tiny white rosebuds about the shoulders, the pattern developing into litters of flowers towards the hem. Or the navy crepe with great bunches of brilliant red and yellow tulips.

Yes, I know they sound raspy in the reading, but they are lovely things and have all the freshness of a spring breeze and the beauty of a summer garden. 'Boutique' prints, they are named, appropriately.

As for the third design, the "graduated", that is a flattering one. It is really a gay deceiver, for they draw eyes away from fuller waist and hipline. They are cleverly contrived when made up, to use the

Sheer Ensembles 'Go Swagger' This Spring

For the smart woman, fashion gives us a casual interpretation of the swagger ensemble. But it is handled in a lovely sheer wool that hangs in soft lines, to accentuate slimness. Note the simple neckline, young enough for anyone yet good taste for the mature woman; and the coat length is new, too, in tunic length that is definitely slenderizing to the hiplines. Of navy or black, such a costume could become the basic ensemble in an entire spring wardrobe, varied by changes in accessories.

plain background where the natural lines are fullest and the printed pattern where trimming is required to highlight the style. Therefore they are useful for large-sized women, as well as decorative for their smaller sisters.

Fashion's Fancies

Painted Handkerchiefs.

Most exquisitely dainty novelties are being shown in Paris among the large chiffon evening handkerchiefs. White ones have been noted with hand-painted designs about four inches across in the corner, forming a floral pattern whose centre is an initial. The work is so incredibly fine that it seems to be tiny embroidery stitches instead of paint, but the brilliance of finish makes the points of color glitter like tiny jewels. In the same set of handkerchiefs are pale pastel chiffons embroidered in petit-point, and others whose fine embroidery motives have been waxed.

Felt Collars and Cuffs.

Paris decrees that felt collars and cuffs in solid colors will be popular this spring. Among the most amusing sets which have been seen at the fair openings are those which have cut-out leaves or flowers or stylized motives of varied gay colors sewed on in such a way that they look as though they have just fluttered there. They are fastened on with one big wool stitch, and their borders left free.

Oilcloth Gloves from Paris for The Spring.

The French glove makers have found something delightfully new to brighten up spring costumes. Gloves, usually of gauntlet length, of brilliant solid colors—orange, green and red seem particularly popular—have their backs of shiny oilcloth and their palm sides of suede of the identical color. Some houses are showing them in black, the black oilcloth side being printed in gay flowers.

Peterborough Stores Have Stocks To Suit Every Desire

(By Cathleen McCarthy)

Obliging is the word for this year's Styles . . . .

Queen Elizabeth or Mrs. Simpson. Choose which one to pattern yourself by this Spring. The Queen is pretty and appealing. Mrs. Simpson is smart, smooth, svelte. But remember that smartness is no longer the ideal in fashions. Prettiness holds the floor this year. Or, rather, it is smart to be pretty . . . . .

The very last trace of mannishness has disappeared from the very feminine mode that you may choose, whereas suits that are as masculine in type as you can get them, may be had on the other hand. But here's the rub for those who incline to the severe simplicity of the former king's sweetheart. You have to choose furbelows and trimmings that are feminine, after all. Possibly you like a trim straw sailor for your suit. And lo, a gay butterfly perches on its brim!

* * * * *

Flowers, frills, furbelows, fascinating fussiness. Or trim, smooth tailored lines. Evening gowns that enclose you like a sheath or billow out in as many as twenty-seven yards around the hem. Coats that are straight up and down or flare out in ballerina style in sixteen or more unpressed pleats fashioned from narrow gores. Frocks severely plain (just like Mrs. Simpson's) with white touches at throat and wrist, or as colorful as a peony, blooming with large flowers and fluttering out in cape backs. (Severe black and white or regal splendor in metallic-threaded glistening silks at extreme prices.

You are going to look pretty and feminine this Spring. The new mode is flattering, romantic, colorful. Necklines and hats are lower, skirts and shoes higher. Fashions are elegant with embroidery and applique, gay with ruffles, floral corsages and flowered prints. Dancing through the evening in clouds of lace or net or flower printed taffeta. You will wear flowers on your dress, in your hat, in your lapel, on your belts and scarves, on your handkerchiefs, even around your necks and wrists, in flower jewellery. And you copy the gypsies with Romany stripes anywhere you want them.

* * * * *

According to stylists, Coronation year fashion trends run a gamut ranging from the 1860's on through the gay nineties, to the very latest simple jacket and skirt models of 1937. The Edwardian era is well represented with evening dresses showing full skirts, draped berthas and puffed sleeves, and in the amount of embroidery and flower trimming displayed everywhere.

World events affect the styles. The Spanish civil war is responsible for boleros and fringed crimson sashes, also for the 'matador' and 'tambourine' shapes in women's hats.

The coming coronation of George VI inspires the many kingly emblems that crowd about us, in fabrics, trimmings and jewellery. It inspired the "chess" print that adorns black and white silk with chessboard kings and queens. And there is a new "escutcheon" silk, printed with colorful coats-of-arms, that orginates indirectly from the coronation. Gold and silver fabrics show this influence, as do the little crown-shaped hats and the coronation curls of Miladi's headdress. Swagger suits, 'swashbuckler' shoes and rakish capes reflect the gaiety of the forthcoming event.

* * * * *

Shades of Royalty and England have their spring in this also; Duchess of York, Princess Margaret Rose, Marlborough blue, Buckingham lilac, Holyrood green. And blue, of course, is the favorite color of the Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Simpson. So we have a run on blue this year, with a favorite in a romantic shade, 'Blue Danube', from the land where Edward loiters at present, and 'Riviera Blue', after Mrs. Simpson's retreat. And there are printed goods christened 'Wally' and 'Amour'. For the Scottish queen, we get an epidemic of plaids and tartans, of 'snoods' on Easter hats, and 'thistlebloom' as a new color.

British goods are much to the fore, with English fine wools and English coats as high notes of the mode.

Memories of the past come back in fabrics that our grandmothers wore: mull, dimity, pique, linen, in alpaca, twill, serge, tricoline, gabardine. And the petticoats, even the despised vests, have returned to favor.

So it goes. And the highlights? Softly tailored suits; casual coats in soft woolas; printed crepe daytime dresses, featuring lower necklines, short sleeves, jackets and boleros; summer cottons in sports frocks and simple street fashions; evening gowns that ring all the changes from glittering gold metallic cloth to sheers and cottons . . . .

* * * * *

The articles that are written in this issue do not aim to cover the entire field. That would be impossible. Stocks in the stores shift too rapidly to give more than a rough idea of what one may buy, and this year is too volatile, too contrary in its mode. The Peterborough stores are full of interest and excitement for it is an exciting year and its like won't be duplicated for many a long day—until we have another Coronation, for it is that event that colors all this flower-filled gaiety that runs riot in women's apparel at the present time.

Just to satisfy your curiosity, why not set aside certain hours to visit the stores and see for yourself. There is so much variety this year that it is impossible to give more than a fleeting idea of the things to be seen—and purchased. There is something for every individual taste in a year that runs the changes from fussy to severe, from feminine to masculine treatment, from the plainest of fabrics to materials covered by a riot of gorgeously-colored flowers.

Assemble Your Suit Accessories

The most important thing in selecting a new wardrobe, is for a man to keep in mind the tremendous effect that can be gained by an intelligent assembling of suit, topcoat, and all gained. Most significant is suiting the type of each garment to each other.

Most of the stores selling men's wear throughout the country have realized the fact that many men are too busy to make a study of style analysis before wardrobe-shopping. They have, therefore, trained their sales staffs, and keep them informed as to all new developments.

Playing The Buttons Game

Regal Ornaments, Flowers, Fruit, Vegetables, Or Silver And Gold

YOU were born with a crown on your head and a pain in your hand. Yes, you were. Think it over . . .

Add sixteen, you may have a king's crown on your buttons, or in your buttons rather. They are making them this year of china, shaped like a real crown, orb and all. They come in red or green, with gilt touches.

The game of buttons this Spring is an entertaining one. If you want a dressy touch, pick out a crystal circle centered by solid rhinestones, or a pale pink crystal sample that makes you think of a jewel with its gleaming facets.

FOR DRESSY tailor-made suits, there are square bone buttons with carved surfaces, and for mannish suits you may pick round bone buttons in two and four-hole styles.

For tweeds and woolens there are round and square wooden buttons or circular examples made of imitation leather and braid.

IN THE novelty line, you will find wooden cutouts in animal shapes, or novel buttons shaped and colored like vegetables, for sports frocks. So you may fasten your frock with a tomato or a carrot.

There are even some extravagant designers who recommend the placing of solid gold or silver buttons on your suit, and jewelled buttons on your swish frocks!

AS FOR fruit, it makes buttons too—oranges and bananas in natural colors, pears in green or bronze, purple plums and red cherries.

To arrange a frock with 'fuckers' buttons (putting buttons on like a man's shirt studs, so you can change about), is another vagary of the moment.

PERFORATED SHOES.

Men's summer shoes, perforated for ventilation, have proved so popular in recent seasons that shoe style authorities look for a tremendous boom in them this season. Perforations appear in a wide variety of patterns, mostly on white shoes.

Belgium has a serious shortage of skilled textile workers.

German Lufthansa planes flew 9,500,000 miles and carried 317,000 passengers last year.

Japan produced 360,885,000 pounds of raw silk last year.

Leading shipbuilders of Sweden have orders which will keep them busy for at least two years.

MADAME MERRIAM

Fantasy of Fabrics Features Flowers of Field and Garden

Lyrical Silks, Thin Wools, Tartan Taffetas, New Linen Weaves

PRINTS GALORE

SILKS have gone sentimental this Spring. They deck themselves with flowers—from the garden and the field—and with romantic crowns, plumes and unicorns inspired by Coronation magnificence.

Woollens have harked back to pre-War days, for Fuirez twill, covert cloth, tricotine, even serge.

Tweeds are more simple in monotones and classic checks.

Cottons are ablaze with chintz-like designs, and bold, brilliant tones.

And linen has a great vogue.

Printed crepes have amusing conic patterns: fluttering butterflies, huge bouquets or prim Victorian bows and flowerets, on brown, black or navy grounds. One crepe is called "S'il, vous plait" ("if you please").

Taffetas show a liking for tartan plaids (in view of the coronation of a Scottish queen). And the coronation influence a wider use of gold and silver fabrics for formal wear.

Chiffons and marquisettes are favored for dancing wear, in plain, flowered, plaided, even striped designs. White patterned in fragile black thistles is a honey.

Old-time favorites like bengaline cords and faille are staging a come-back.

Lacquered satin (novelty rayon) from France, shows red or black with gold patternings, on white or colored butterflies on yellow or grey grounds.

The new wools have old names: serge, trieotine, twills, cordings, covert cloth. "Thin wools have large" with weaving stripes, in colors of grey, brown, blue, black, white and beige.

Plaids and plain wools make a smart combination, or plaid with jersey. Monotone stripes and broken checks come in English wools and tweeds, in green, navy, black and brown hues.

There are many variations in the cotton and linen lines. There are plaided linens, for instance, in white with green, copenhagen blue (another old name back again), navy and red woven plaids. There are organdies embroidered in lime yellow, leaf green and French blue all-over fashion. They, along with sheer ceramas, make romantic evening gowns.

"Lace Beulah" is new, with a lace-like design over chiffon of the same shade, in many shades of blue, also white, cerise, pink, green, brown and amber.

There are glazed chintzes and pique, the latter quite a favorite. And huge flowers and thrilling colors blossom all over the cotton goods of this year. "Liberty" printed linen shows designs in soft field flowers.

New Linens.

Other linens that will make interesting novelties for wear this Summer are in transparent effects, with chenille stripes shown on a linen chiffon or a voile ground. Some stripes match the background, others come in brightly contrasting colors. The harsh tones are outstanding. Chenille stripes will also appear on linens of the heavy crash type.

Heavy linen suitings feature real Scotch tartans or Prince of Wales checks (again the Coronation note, although there is no longer a Prince of Wales in the land). A new linen with a lustreless "suedeskin" finish is stressed as a ground for prints with patterns that go as far afield as small prehistoric animals, Hindu mandalas and snake-charmer motifs. There is printed cotton handkerchief linen and rice linen also.

Sudan cloth, which is a rayon and cotton mixture, is a cross between Palm Beach cloth and sharkskin, is going to have a great vogue for sports. It is fifty-four inches wide and that is the dressmaker's dream when it comes to cutting. It comes in natural, white and raspberry shades.

And there is another new material in "suave" cloth (English) that comes in wine and yachting blue colors, and is guaranteed wash proof and sun proof.

You have to look hard at printed pique this year to make sure it isn't silk. The texture of the cotton is unchanged, but the all-over printed patterns look as well as silk. Rose with a navy blue pattern is very smart and with it can be worn the navy accessories you would choose to wear with a navy blue suit. Other attractive combinations are in chartreuse and brown, or blue and wine.

And what do you think of printed jerseys? This idea has spread even to that erstwhile sober material.

A Floral Year.

This craze for "brightening up the corner where you are," as it might be termed, by dressing in the flowers to the house and carrying them around with you on your frocks, is another example of the safety attendant on this Coronation year.

Whole departments in stores are blooming with fragile and hard-wearing materials ablaze with flowers. In the silks, the choice is unending.

Here is a pure silk of exclusive type that has mauve orchids scattered across its black lengths. Here are crepes adorned with sweet peas in pink or mature tones, on a black or navy ground; with cineraria-clustered bright-centered daisies on dark green or brown, or with field flowers, the wildest and showiest of the lot, in huge bouquets on black, navy or white.

The most artistocratic of the lot (it comes as high as $10 a yard, no less) is a French import of pastel satin (fibre silk) with a shadowy ground of delicate water-color, patterned gracefully with long-stemmed white hyacinths.

Fragile and lovely lilies, their whiteness set off by green leaves, fall across the sombre tones of

WHITE TOUCH

ACCESSORIES for Spring wearing.

Prints or paisley effects in your blouses, in your scarfs, in your tailored handkerchiefs that bright young things thrust casually through their belts.

ROMAN STRIPES—the latest word in smartness—in belts, handkies and hat bands, in scarfs, in patent leather bags strapped in Roman stripes, bentonnieres with Roman stripe accessories.

Belts of brilliant colors in suede, calf or patent, to match your shoes, bag, gloves, with some smart two-toned models and laced belts. Match your triangle scarf with a braided belt that may do double duty as a hair-band, if desired.

Crisp white lingerie that comes with so many faces, in blouses and blousettes, in vestees and collars and jabots.

BAGS in square, suitcase and melon shapes, in suede, calf and glace kid, in black and navy, in cupid red and white.

Gloves of pigskin, glace kid and fabric, in all the dark and bright shades, of Spring, to match with, or contrast with, your costume, just as you wish. Fashion says match your gloves with your shoes; match your gloves with your hose; match your gloves with your hat trimming or with your jewellery. Now you know.

Hose in the soft browns, tans, beiges, smoky greys, that hold the stage now. Hose of chiffon, sheer, dull crepe, real silk; long, short and medium lengths; every weight desired; colored hose for evening wear, to match your frock.

UMBRELLAS for Spring showers, made of sheer rubber fibre, in solid colors, or transparent with colored borders, many in plaid rayon.

Sheer linen handkerchiefs from France, some with dark backgrounds—wine, navy, green, black or royal—some of printed fabrics—some with plain centers bordered with flowers—light grounds with wee field flowers—lifesize mauve or yellow violets flung recklessly across their dainty surfaces.

Turkish Trousers Are Being Suggested

In the Paris shows designers actually suggested that women take to wearing crinolines or Turkish trousers. And that's something to think about. Crinolines in lace, satin or taffeta were draped over large wire frames and sometimes pulled up in front in the 18th century manner. But the mannequins had difficulty in getting through doors, which seems to count those dresses "out" where the modern woman is concerned. As for the trousers, well . . . they haven't taken yet, and the designers have been trying for years.

More Suits Are Shown Than Anything Else

"MORE SUITS shown than anything else this Spring." The "suit suit" for one—new and sophisticated, very feminine in detail. The new tailored suits for another—doing lovely things for your figure with their smooth, fitted lines. The bitone-length jackets, the softly flared skirts. The marvellous combinations of color with coat and skirt contrasting. The cutaway suit—chic, a little dramatic, immensely flattering. The svelte redingotes, the new dressmaker detail even in sports suits, the beautiful, dressy swaggers. With flowers on their lapels; with flirtatious little scarfs, with lace and organdy and chiffon and frills once more making news in blouses and vestees. The cape suit with its swagger. The jaunty jigger. The three-piece suit. It's definitely a suit season.

Spring Skirts Much Shorter

Frocks Show Variations in Treatment, Trimmings And Fabrics

ROMANCE RULES

SMARTLY severe or frilly and furbelowed—these are contrasting treatments that mark the season's frocks just as they mark the headgear and outer garments—

FASHION announces a big drop in necklines and a big rise in sleeves—and skirts.

Dresses to wear with coats features the gay printed fabrics that include anything from curling stones to red and blue horses in their motifs.

There are romantic dresses for evening wear in silk taffeta with Second Empire off-the-shoulder decolletage, bouffant skirts and large, natural-looking flower corsages; in black stripes on a waltzing gown of white silk organza; in draped gowns that feature a semi-cowl neckline and skirts gathered to the waistline; in black lace—that pet of the Paris openings.

VELVET BOWS, matching floral patterns in the material, are much liked as trimming for the dress-up gowns, or rows of fine ruching, or vari-colored bands of velvet painting the taffeta slips worn beneath diaphanus, transparent materials.

The jacket frock is a delightful affair for tailored days, using black, navy or brown tones in a fibre silk fabric christened Piccadilly sheer. The severe little dress is trimmed with fagotted white braid in one example of this smart mode, while the hip-length tightly-fitting little jacket has lapels of white pique. In another model of the jacket dress, roman striped silk is utilized for the fitted blouse and the coat lapels. A pleated plaid skirt and fitted jacket of hairy wool with brilliant Ascot tie, is another idea.

And just for a bit of outstanding bravery, what do you think of a molasses wool short jacket, banded with black fox fur, worn over a black fibre silk dress?

The cape dress is a swaggering bit of smartness. The cape, with slashes for the arms to come through, is domed to the shoulders of a dark wool dress with crisp touches of white in the pique collar, the belt and the zipper that runs from neck to hemline in the front.

Knife-pleated skirts flare gaily in dark gowns of fibre silk crepe with wide white collars and trim patent leather belts.

You will find plenty of the boleros that have a Spanish origin, on many of the dresses. They have a charming and youthful air and go usually with printed silk blouses and girdles, many of the latter developed in long fringed sashes of brilliant Goya red silk crepe. Some of the bolero gowns have "ballerina" skirts with many narrow gores.

THE REDINGOTE is another favored style, with its dashing brightly-colored silken panel inset in the front of a navy or black frock. Often the flowers which appear in the printed silk are cut out and used for neck and sleeve trimming, in the favored applique mode which has such a way this year.

Lovely afternoon gowns come in the gay prints in flowers of garden and field sprayed over silken fabrics. They use the V necklines, the short puffed sleeves, the shirred bodices, gathered to girdle or corsage, the flowers at the neck opening, that are features. The raised, swirled Empire waistline accents the graceful appearance of these frocks.

An unusual gown that looks like a piece of sculpture is in its form-fitting sheath of black rose silk jersey moulded to the figure in long lines, with long sleeves and a semi-cowl neckline. Field flowers massed high on the bosom give the bright note to the sombre, graceful gown.

AND HOW would you like a 'crocus' dress. It is yellow wool with a purple belt. There are crocus-shaped pockets on the skirt and blouse, and a corsage of yellow, white and purple crocuses, at the left side of the notched revers.

A dress that business women, busy club women dashing about to meetings, and stay-at-home women who like to freshen up for afternoons, will admire, is of sheer black or navy crepe. It has slimming lines, pleats in the skirt to allow freedom of action, shirrings to soften broad shoulders, flattering fabric belt and bands of latticelike material through which rich color shimmers, trimming the blouse in vertical bands from hem to waistline, outlining a central narrow slit filled in with white crepe or pique.

Alluring new wools, soft as Angora, smooth as suede, make smart frocks for Spring, dressed up with trimming of 'dressmaker' tucking or fine pleating. They have short sleeves and fitted skirts. Their colors are in French blue, rosebery, soft green, gold and silver grey.

Lace suits are to have a fling this summer, it seems. Both Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth are fond of them. The smartest of these suits are made over silk foundations in stunning combinations. like the suit of dusty pink of cream lace over rose silk; of red lace over grey; or blue lace over rose. And with them go black accessories.

Announcing the Newest on Spring FASHIONS

Last Spring's won't do. Clothes are very different this Spring. They take on an air of graciousness and charm. They are frankly feminine—even tailored clothes accentuate the contours of the body, and have a softness that reflects grace.

The Suit is the all-conquering fashion and is seen everywhere. There are many types—which fit in for the occasion required. The two-piece tailored . . the three-piece, which has so many uses . . and the dressmaker suit . . all with their own style and charm.

Coats are surrendering none of their individuality and are taking on a feminine softness.

Romance is in fashion in the Dress mode. Empire influences are evidenced, in the higher waistline and utterly feminine necklines; sleeves are shorter. Prints, and more prints, in a gorgeous array of colours: Brighter Navy, Romance Blue, Red Earth, and the always popular Black. The Evening Mode is picturesque and lovely, with flowing draperies and sculptured silhouettes, fashioned in sheer chiffons, nets and laces. And the prices so interesting

Woman's Crowning Glory Forms A Crown of Curls This Season

Headdress Should Be Simple, Natural And Soft, And Suit The Face

MANY ORNAMENTS

BEAUTY depends on the proper use of the comb. At least, that's what hairdressing stylists mean when they declare that even a pug nose can be nullified by the way you do your hair.

"To beautify a pug-nosed girl," they say, "just turn the ends of her curls downward. If it's hooked nose, turn the curls up."

The idea in hair-waving therefore, is to reverse the prominent lines of the face. The girl with a receding chin should dress the half curls back of the ears, thus creating an illusion of a longer line from ear to chin. For the square-jawed, determined-looking female, "wave the hair diagonally around her head to relieve the stern line of her face."

Another authority advocates a long-bob for this difficulty, and extra curls or puffs for evening wear.

Women with large faces require large waves; small faces require small curls. The thin, long face requires gracefully slanted waves a bit fluffy on both ends, and deeper waves, while the high cheek-boned type needs a slight elaborateness in coiffure. A wave slanted on the forehead, designed to offset the slight irregularity of profile, should be worn, and curls low at the back should be used to harmonize the pointed effect of the chin with the neck line.

"Coronation coiffures," according to a noted hairdressing stylist, "now hold the centre of the stage, but this is no reason to look for extreme designs, for among the leading hairdressers in Canada there is a distinct emphasis this year on practical hair styles."

However, featured at the annual convention and style show of the first week of this month, held in Toronto, many Coronation coiffures held the attention of the delegates from all over Canada. Many regal names were given them, such as coronet roll, duchess, countess and baroness.

Sculptured Hair.

"Positive hair sculpture," it is claimed, this art that brings out the intrinsic beauty in every woman, not by making her conform to some conventional standard of beauty, but by moulding the lines of her hair to conform with the dimensions and curves of her head and face.

Simplicity, naturalness and softness are the newest trends in hair styling, declare the experts. Every one must develop her own individual hair styling, and the most beautiful woman is she whose hair looks as if it can be worn by none other than herself. This is a new idea. It means that we no longer follow the leader, but look around and see just what hair-do is going to make us look the best. Any woman can find a style to suit her type and the occasion. A New York authority declares that the hair is to be neither long nor short, but a workable length, with soft curls and soft waving prevailing. He declares also that smooth hair is definitely out.

The Coronation influence and the new method of individual treatment are apparent in illustrations of the new hair modes. For a youthful oval face, a coronet roll gives an aristocratic appearance. The hair is lightly parted in the centre, and the roll, placed high at the back of the head, extends in a complete coronet to meet soft clusters of curls at the back.

For a slightly irregular, thinner oval face with a broad, intelligent forehead, there is a flat coil twist or braid with a side part; a broader face wears the hair straight back in a few flat waves, while the coiffure known as the "Young Baroness" takes curls swirling softly across the crown of the head and brushes them softly back over the ears. This arrangement has a right part.

There is a distinct flavor of "dressing up" in the Duchess or Countess mode that uses well-defined rolls of hair at top and sides, with an upward movement, while a somewhat extreme idea has the high little swirl of hair just over the forehead in front, with an expanse of smoothly gleaming crown and long ringlets at the back.

A Youthful Crown.

And, if you want to be really out of the ordinary (you have to be careful about this mode) you ask the hairdresser to give you a little crown of curls right at the top of your head, all around, where they sit up fairly oddly and the back hair descends smoothly to long ringlets. This is only for the very young.

"The hair should always be fitted, never dragged down," asserts a famous French hairdresser, who gives an example of the extreme adaptation of the present regal mode by creating a style he calls "Madame Recamier," with curls piled high on the crown, sleek hair and a part below and then a fringe of tiny ringlets about the entire head, hanging on the brow and the nape of the neck.

This Parisian, Antoine, warns against use of extreme height and elaboration of the hair for any occasion but the very formal. The effect of the coronet, which is a definite trend this year, can be achieved simply.

Elaborate Coronation headdresses for even with simpler adaptation for daytime use are achieved by a bit of "teasing" or "ratting" of the hair when elaborate sculptured curls give way to clever rolls and simple curls for daytime.

It is now the fad to wear some decoration in the hair, and aside from all sorts of concoctions for evening wear, there is now a daytime decoration of a roll of braided silk which you buy matched up with a scarf. They may be had in shades of green, blue, red, and deep wine. Also, the bands have ends long enough to serve as a belt if you don't want to use it as a headband.

Hair Ornaments.

One of the prominent New York hairdressers at the recent convention in Toronto brought with him about ninety styles of hair ornaments, in birds, flowers, feathers, jewels in a glamorous array of color and style. The flower arrangements are very elaborate, with plumes galore; and five full-blown roses as one decoration. The American women have been using ostrich feathers in their hair for festive occasions all winter, he declared. The thing that makes the style more permanent is that a band to hold the feathers securely on the head is used, and now that women can wear the ornaments with ease they will take to them with more interest.

A coquettish headdress is contrived with a scrap of lace and two flowers, one purple and the other red, or a black velvet cap with ostrich tips curved on the top and the hair curling over it in spots. The ostrich tips should be the same shade as the hair, if possible.

One grey-haired woman, modelling for a London hairdresser, had the entire back of her head a mass of purple violets. A roll of hair across the top of the head suggested an off-the-face hat, and curls banked the violet arrangement at the base of the neck.

Clever headpieces include a half wreath of hyacinth blossoms or the vivid new field flowres at the back above your "Coronation" roll; an engaging nosegay of apple blossoms or three new French rosebuds, poised centre front; white pinks so real yo want to inhale their perfume, or crocuses to wear like a fawn's horns, standing up.

An impressionistic note from the United States tells us that ladies with blonde, grey and light brown tresses soon will go dancing with their hair tinted lavender, blue, green, or pink (achieved by use of shampoo tint that can quickly be washed out) so as to match or contrast with the evening gown.

Coronation Colors In Spring Suitings

The coronation theme is becoming noticeable in men's clothing as well as milady's. Coronation colors will be incorporated in most of the spring suitings, Saville Row predicts, and red and white pin-stripes on a blue background are expected to be well liked. Ties with tiny embroidered crowns and the symbol "G.R. VI." already are in the English stores, and there are shirts adorned with the letters of the word "coronation" in various patterns for the very brave.

Sports Frock

For her first spring sports outfit Marion Marsh, screen player, chooses this two-piece frock of navy and white crepe. The natural-looking blouse has a sailor collar trimmed with three stripes of light blue, as are the cuffs of the short sleeves. Navy blue buttons, narrow navy belt and navy chiffon handkerchief are the accessories. The navy blue crepe skirt has a narrow inverted pleat in front to make it a comfortable width for walking.

Wear A Suit And Be Smart

Fashion 'Suits' You—There Is Plenty Of Variety In The Styles

SOFT TAILORING

FLASH from Paris, suits and more suits. . . .

Of course you'll want a suit for it's the biggest suit spring in fifteen years. Never have they been more becoming, more wearable, more varied in styling. Suit yourself about the type. . . .

So many of them have short jackets and plain sleeves like a man's. Many are without collars and buttoned high with high shawl revers, and these incline to the three-quarter and seven-eighth lengths. The short skirts that march along with them are nearly all slim, occasionally pleated and sometimes slightly flared.

Faultlessly cut in mannish fashion, but handled with the soft "dressmaker" mode of 1937. There's the idea.

The three-piece suit is a favorite. With it you set your little tailor-made suit beneath and over it, sometimes in the same color and cut, sometimes in harmonizing plaids, a loosely-swinging three-quarter coat flared at the bottom.

Men's wear suitings are supremely smart for the short-jacketed tailored style, with English worsted a winner. Tricotine, one of the old fabrics revived this Spring, is good. They come in black, brown or navy, or grey or brown check. Tweeds are in evidence, of mottled type.

To wear with one of these tricotine models, some makers are showing gallant capes of the same material, domed to the jacket, with squared shoulders.

FOX steles go along handsomely with one of these Spring tailleurs, with nipped-in waist, flaring lapels, squared padded shoulders and hip-length cutaway jacket. They are the last word in smartness.

One of these little suits with the "ribbone" jacket, as it is termed, is of a loose weave in the new "porridge" beige shade, with a decorative accent in saddle stitching in bright navy.

And, for a "different" touch, there is a suit of the "romantic" type. It is styled in double-breasted fitted Russian effect and the long full "skirt" of the jacket, in three-quarter length, is shirred to the fitted waistline in peasant fashion. This is of caramel beige in a loose, wool weave. Another exotic affair is of the same soft material in the new thistlebloom (pinkish mauve) shade, with a jacket of the casual type, long, and flaring from the turned-down collar. The shoulders are straight and broad and there is fine tucking on the front of the coat. The lady looks as if she had just stepped from a page of Godey's Lady Book.

And the fur-trimmed suit is still important for formal occasions. A beautiful model shows a long, fitted jacket nipped in at the waist with "dressmaker" pockets and wide, flaring lapels of dyed fox fur. The fabric is light navy, with a silver-grey thread.

"High" colors have their vogue in the longer-jacketed suits, with many in the Coronation colors; soft green, glowing gold, warm tan, James' rose.

For super-elegance, what could be handsomer than a suit of black broadcloth with a clever back peplum and a collarless jacket? To achieve the essence of smartness, wear with this a blouse of black wool challis patterned with paisley.

Coronation Emblems Are On Many Gowns

Coronation emblems are used on many of the newest gowns. . . . Two miniature beveled crowns hold the drapery in place on a pale blue silk jersey hostess gown shown at a recent Bond Street fashion show. They were designed like the crowns worn by early Norman kings. Dresses glitter for both day and night, and we hear that women will be wearing sequins on simple morning frocks this spring. One such, of fine black jersey, had silver and gold sequins worked in a scalloped design across the shoulders.

'Casual' Note In Ensembles

Two-Color Combinations In Jackets And Skirts—Checks Good

CASUAL clothes are in this year. The casual jacket leads, and the casual mode that combines a short coat with a skirt of a different material, or a cape with both . . . .

Color and detail are important in the new jackets and skirts. Here is the mannish influence, in a cardigan jacket cut like a man's cardigan with saddle stitching and four high-placed pockets. The trim skirt has inverted pleats back and front. It comes in a monotone effect in beige or grey wool flannel.

But two colors are featured in the wool tweed outfit showing a collarless jacket with false lapels and a slightly flaring skirt. The shade called molasses candy has a definite color contrast in a prominent green scarf or you may choose thistle with blue, or green with yellow.

Plaid and plain materials are smart in a jacket of beige, brown and yellow tones worn with a brown or beige skirt, or black, grey and red plaid with a skirt of black or grey.

In mustard yellow or tile green wool flannel comes a jacket made with the new high lapels and cutaway front and a 'sunray' skirt that has twenty-eight stitched tucks radiating at the hem.

The important dressmaker details; stitched collarless front; clever pockets with pear-shaped flaps, hammered buttons and slightly full shoulders, are striking in an ensemble of grey wool crepe with vivid red scarf, or a beige outfit with black scarf.

A 'bellhop' jacket with tiny high lapels and fitted lines, in molasses yellow or St. James' rose wool tweed has a skirt that uses 'pants' pleats, a favorite way of getting tailored fulness.

A 'little suit', softly handled, has a skirt of brown novelty wool fabric, with a stunning contrast in a jacket of yellow and beige tweed.

'JIGGER' is the name of the care-free short boxy coat, stem-thin, that swings from squared shoulders to finger-tip length.

A checked jacket of black and white, worn with a skirt of black wool, or in brown and white with a brown skirt, is something that will give you a lot of smartness, especially if you wear a white vestee with pearl-like studs, to complete the impression of tailored chic.

And, if you want to be the last word, don a cape with this outfit. It also is made of black wool and is three-quarter length, made with high double pockets and epaulet-like squared shoulders.

How To 'Make Up' Correctly

Wear Any Color With Proper Shade Of Rouge And Face Powder

GREEN WITH GOLD

GIVEN the right make-up, any woman can wear any color. Many cosmeticians claim this. Isn't it a pleasant thought?

Exciting Spring clothes and their new colors call for new make-up. You can't use the cosmetics you wore all winter when you step out in an Easter suit of navy with a blue with a Gauguin (salmon) pink blouse!

With navy, we are told to wear warm red roure and lipstick, to bring a healthy glow to cheeks and lips. And with it use a beige powder with underlying peach tones.

Right now, the vogue is for natural-looking faces instead of cosmetic masks. So you should see that your powder exactly matches, or is one shade lighter, than your skin. Keep your skin tones as well as your wardrobe color scheme firmly in mind. It is possible to buy makeup which will, on the average skin, change its color slightly to match the skin tone.

Don't Mix Them

You wouldn't, for instance, wear rust lipstick and nail lacquer with a purple suit, pink blouse or any rose-toned costume. Rust goes with beige and brown and off shades of orange and yellow.

Green eyeshadow is a nice contrast for the woman who owns a yellow or gold evening gown. Rouge with a rust undertone, matching lipstick, bluish-green mascara and a warm, glowing shade of powder are for rust and tangerine as well as gold.

To give you a new Spring face, to go with your Easter outfit, there are all sorts of treatments. One is called a 'Sensation Masque,' beneficial for a dry, porous skin, and another, the 'Anti Brown,' enlivens a tired, sluggish face.

Iron the Face

One of the demonstrations at the recent Hairdressers' convention in Toronto was the ironing of the face with a small, white ivory flatiron heated by electricity and passed over the bumps and hollows of chin, neck and nose, on the same principle as wrinkles are ironed out of family linen.

Did you know that Chinese women of today are doing what their mothers did two thousand years ago (and anything that lasts for two thousand years must be good), when they use whites of eggs as an astringent and wash their faces with bean powder instead of soap, to purify the skin? Also, it seems (and this wouldn't be so easy to imitate) they take minute internal doses of powdered pearls to keep the skin beautiful and youthful.

Flags Are Produced On Girls' Pyjamas

Girls' pyjamas with reproductions of the empire flags across the chest are expected to make their first appearance soon in London shops. Girls will find tiny maps of the dominions printed on satin pyjamas, each country having its own design. The map of Africa has elephants and ostriches, Australia a leaping kangaroo, and England is represented by a beef-eater guarding a Tudor rose.

Famous Hands Of Lady Peel

Gloves In Colors For Tweed Suits, To Match Shoes And Millinery

CHIC NONCHALANCE (the keynote of the Spring style whimsies) is personified in the gloves which have been dedicated to the famous hands of Lady Peel (Miss Beatrice Lillie), the Canadian star now playing in New York in "The Show is On". They are of the engaging short, slip-on type, perfect suit gloves in soft leather, spiced with a half-back of suede. This twin leather combination is also carried out in the thumb. They come in black and brown.

Suit gloves (so important an accessory this Spring), are also made in dyed pigskin, with a dressmaker accent in hand stitching. They may be had in black, dark brown, navy, white and a soft eggshell.

A novel idea of this season is to match one's shoes and gloves. With a dark costume, wear bright-colored glace kid gloves and kid shoes, with red as a leading example of this bright mode. Or, if you wish, tie up the color of your gloves with your stockings. Leading style exponents decree that beige hose may be worn with a beige suit, for instance, so beige gloves follow suit in this ensemble.

Flowered cretonne house coats, with sweeping wide gores to slim the waistline and billow into yards of hem, with short puffed sleeves—for breakfast; after one-of-those-days at the office; for beach wear; are very attractive.

Semi-Drape Suit Important In Picture of Men's Styles

Lower Waistlines, Lapels Wider And Shoulders Softly Draped

LONGER JACKETS

THE SEMI-DRAPE suit with the lower waistline, the wider lapels and the soft drapey shoulders is the most important style note in vogue. The details of this suit tend to make it one that is best suited to most men. It is softer construction throughout and all harsh lines have been eliminated. Sharp shoulder angles have been avoided and shoulder width have been slightly reduced to present a more natural appearance. The sides are straighter, the back easier while the chest remains rather full in keeping with the purpose for which the drape was intended.

The lower waistline, the wider lapels (which serve to give more ease to the drape effect), the wider button panels, the slightly lower pockets (these are generally taped) are all features you'll recognize in the new semi-drape. In most single you'll be offered your choice of regular lapels or lapels that roll graefully and are fastened at the lower button. The entire trend is in keeping with the more conservative dress men are affecting as against the informality of sports clothing.

Single Breasted Drapes.

Although the double breasted jacket lends itself well to the drape design, the influence of the drape is felt in single breasted suits as well. These have also avoided sharp shoulder angles while retaining the fullness in the chest. Naturally, the two-button jacket with notched lapels will be the one most seen, but style leaders will have in their wardrobe other single breasteds. One that they will surely wear is the peak-lapel with either the two or three button front.

The jackets on all models remain a good length, between 29½ to 30 inches if figures mean anything to you. This longer jacket suit has been on the way for several seasons and is now here along with the lower waistline and moderated drape. Waistcoats, or vests, have also been designed to harmonize with the lower waistline idea.

Coronation Colors In Spring Neckwear

The widest use of the red and blue Coronation colors is in men's neckwear. Here their designs, both printed and woven are almost unique as to type. Foulards and striped repps dominate the picture and the foulards offer unusual variety.

New and attractive versions of established patterns are offered with the white ground woven Spitalfields. They represent a definite departure from the usual Spitalfield colors and weaves. Grenadine ties with both self stripes and colored stripes is another innovation. Spaced figures are increasing in popularity. On the campus a continuation of the honored wool ties, both in foulard and checked patterns is seen.

Foulard silk hersey pocket handkerchiefs are definitely "in." These appear in Coronation reds and blues as well as in many interesting variations of colors and patterns.

REVERSIBLE PLAID.

Robert Piguet uses reversible plaid in soft shades of misty blue for a circular-cut raglan coat. He also has a number of pastel woollens for town wear in long, fitted style, usually collarless, or with a rather high tailored collar and no lapels.

a gamut of accessories from cuff links to robes. Much of the attention is focused upon the fabulous jewels that will be used in the ceremonies. So, men's accessories for spring should emphasize the coronation idea. One necktie clasp carries this to the last word in realism. The clasp is an exact copy, in miniature, of the British royal sceptre.

A second necktie accessory, coronation styled, is a cravat chain featuring a small heraldic shield embla zoned with the British lion, rampant. The same shield has been used to decorate cuff links and necktie clasps. Cuff links and clasps are available in yellow gold effect, or yellow gold in combination with coronation red.

Other coronation accessories include suspenders and garters of elastic web, displaying small coronets woven into the pattern. These are finished off with jeweled buckles reproducing a herald's horn.

New ties catch the coronation spirit also. Some silk neckwear utilizes coronation red and blue stripes. More unusual ties display crowns, and other regal devices, worked out in pattern effects.

The coronation ceremonies of King George VI will be held May 12, but this is not expected to end the sale of accessories with the new designs.

Smart Accessories Show Regal Influence

Canadian women are busy checking the floor of coronation fashions. But in their attempt not to miss a single new thing, they have probably overlooked the fact that the coronation is setting fashions for men, too.

This is only natural. England has always been the source of style inspiration for men, and the coronation is a new note in an established tradition.

COLOR A-PLENTY

THE shoe story for Spring and Summer is full of holes! Absolutely! There are holes and cutouts and perforations in every type of shoe this year. Of course, it is really a sort of shoe embroidery.

Grace and beauty feature the shoes for Spring and Summer wearing. The season's gay note, the advance thrill of the Coronation year, extends to every department of Milady's gear, even to her footwear.

Slenderizing lines, airy cutouts, buckled straps, higher heels—these are noticeable in feminine shoes. Although Cuban and low heels are to be found a-plenty, the higher heels are much in evidence, especially a type called the Continental. To vary the rounded-toe fashion come square toes which are really and truly square, and appear on sports sandals. And heels show a squared fashion also at times, with a striking sandal developed in patent leather which has a "six-point" heel, that is a dozen sections indenting the odd heel of this particular model.

The Coronation motif is evidenced in many of the names, in "Royal Lady" ties and "Empire" and "Coronet" sandals. Patriotic colors are in evidence also, with a tendency toward more color in footwear than for many years past. There are any number of blue shoes in the list; there are sandals for sport and summer wear that run to red, white, blue, yellow and green, with a special Coronation combination in the red, white and blue braided straps for one model.

The vogue for suits, whether of the tailored or softer 'dressmaker' type, brings shoes to the fore with greater prominence than they have in a 'coat' year. Dressmaker details softening the tailored suits appear on the shoes, in stitchings, perforations and fine strappings. Black is still the important shade, with new navy blues and earth browns. Alliances of leathers make for combinations like reptile and suede in a tie which uses the reptile leather for the toecap and quarter. Calf leather and suede make a fine opera pump for wear with a formal suit, while patent leather trims square-toed suede shoes.

They Come High.

High fronts and high tongues and short vamps conform to the slenderizing mode.

High T-straps are very popular and there is a suggestion of a higher line in a Roman sandal that has a latticework of high-stitched straps ending at the top with a turn-down collar. "Porthole" sandals have plenty of round perforations in an all-over effect; the "Mona" sandal is an adaptation of moorish footwear; the "Collegiate" is a two-buckle oxford with the fringed tongues which appear so often, and the "Evelyn" is a one-eyelet style with scalloped edging to the tongue.

You may buy patent leather sandals in red, green, blue, white and yellow, with the new six-point heel; there are dashing suede ties in green, brown and black; there are fine suede pumps in brown and blue, with a few greys back again in the style picture; there are ribbon T-strap sandals of black patent leather with low heels, and round-toedities with short vamps and high Cuban heels. It's an accommodating season.

The sports-minded lady has a wide choice. Here are summer sandals with openwork braided vamps and narrow T-straps, in red, black, white, rose and yellow; here are hiking boots of 'H-Cut' style, right up to the calf, and made of brown leather; here are "Scampers" for hard usage and outing shoes and oxfords developed in duck, in white, brown, black and beige. Or, if you want to be a bit dressy in your leisure outdoor moments, don white duck shoes with green suede leather trimming the vamps.

Sport swagger shoes come in 'elk' leather with crepe soles and heels, in shades of green, red, beige and white.

For real comfort in outdoor jaunts, there are high laced boots of Dongola kid.

The King's Bootees.

And, if you want something new and different, there are ankle-high 'Bootees', with jaunty cuffs and round toes, developed in black or white. There is no doubt of their popularity this year. Here is the Coronation influence also, for the King at his crowning will wear a shoe almost like a short boot. Some of the smartest of these ankle-height boots have elastic let in the sides like grandad's slippers.

The "Swashbuckler" is the appropriate name for a gay shoe for Spring wear, that calls to mind the ranting lads of old, with their ringlets and plumed hats and velvet suits. It has the new high front, pierced through with a tiny dagger, and it comes in black or blue gabardine, brown, grey or wine suede, black kid and black patent leather.

A whimsical lacing at the back instead of the front is a fancy of the moment, in a pump of black or brown suede, and in colors, highlighted by shiny patent leather. They call this a 'gaiter' pump.

For evening wear, there is nothing so gay as a white braided satin open-toe-and-heel sandal, to dance the night away. There are silver and gold slippers also for evening wear, and the always favored satin pumps, in many colors.

Just glance for a moment at the fantastic modes for evening wear in larger centers. Unusual sandals have thick wooden soles that are lacquered or metallised like Japanese shoes. These are a boon to tiny girls; they harmonize with plain sheaths rather than with frou-frou frocks. Some elegantes are wearing satin bootees embroidered in petit point, while others favor flat-soled, hand-knitted gold or silver thread bootees, close-fitting and tied around the ankles with a cord and tassels or with bows of colored velvet ribbon.

Bright Color Reaches Peak

Spring Fabrics Extremely Colorful, With Bolder Patternings

During the past few seasons it has become more and more apparent that patterns and colors were becoming bolder and more colorful. This spring, you believe, will see color and pattern reach a new peak.

The one pattern that will be crowned style king is the overplaid. These are not the simple overplaids of other seasons. Far from it. These have new interest, new subtlety. Many are so woven, that while they remain true overplaids, their shadow-skin weave and whatever other weave they take, blend into a new colorful effect; in other instances the main stripe will be strongly accented, thus giving an entirely new effect to the overplaid. This results in what appears to be a striped pattern against a simple ground.

Glen Urquhart plaids will also be extremely popular. And these have been given an extra touch of color. They are big, bold, colorful patterns originally, and now they have been given an added color. And secondary only to overplaids, glen plaids and checks are stripes. Two and three color chalk stripes on comparatively plain grounds, broad stripe on herringbone, stripes separating the herringbone waterfalls that take in the entire width of the weave are only a few of the patterns that are being shown in the shops today.

Shepherds plaids, distinct checks and houndstooth effects are reserved almost entirely for sport jackets and these, though loud, are always in complete harmony.

Color Rules Spring Modes

Coronation Hues Are Lovely—English Names For New Shades

COMBINED TINTS

THE Coronation rules the colour world this Spring. It is an exciting pastime to note the various hues and their names.

Those lovely Coronation tints include a gorgeous cornflower blue, a yellow like the centre of a daisy, and a fine dahlia red. There is a Margaret rose that is soft and flowery and a St. James rose that is like a pastel tint. Marlborough blue is a clear sky tint and Buckingham lilac is a beautiful mauve. Hollyrood green is the color of young hyacinth leaves.

You won't find any royal purple, however, either in velvet or silk. It seems that the designers are saving this color for next Fall. The idea is that other women should not wear this royal color until the Coronation is over.

AND it seems that the flag combination didn't go over, so the big dressmakers had to give up trying to make the ladies wear frocks that combined the red, white and blue of the Union Jack. The feminine world didn't want blue dresses with white collars and red belts.

The latest hosiery color is a pinky beige, if you are interested, as you should be. This year, it appears, you can wear beige hose with a beige suit and feel well dressed. For many seasons back, that wasn't allowed at all.

The newest thing in tints is called thistlebloom and is described as a dramatic shade that suggests rose quartz and has the depth and glow of a thistlebloom on Scottish moors. Its inclusion in the color chart is doubtless complimentary to the Scottish queen, like the Duchess of York grey, with the softness of pussy-willow buds in its lint. You are warned to keep thistlebloom away from red in your outfit, but it goes beautifully with black, beige or navy.

A new shade that is having a great run is "Red Earth" (a reddish tan), while carnelian (on the wine order) is another favorite.

ANOTHER hint of England comes to us in a "rain-washed English green" and there is a reminiscence of the recent royal love affair in the French twist in "Bleu Romance" (lighter than navy) and "Blue Dan ube," both reminding us of the lands where the lovers took refuge.

Allying itself with the season's delving into old-time fashions for materials, Copenhagen blue comes into its own again. There never was a better name than this for that particular shade of blue and women have been using it all along to describe the soft hue.

Yellow in its various shades is a favored color, but white holds its place for selected evening wear. Black and navy are outstanding for afternoon. The warm fruit colors dominate the sports sections.

Beige, which has come into the limelight this year, has its variations. There are caramel and porridge beiges, a shade called 'molasses candy' and a shade between beige and grey which is known as greze.

Women are warned of pitfalls in picking colors this Spring. Because color is being used as accessories—another sign of the Coronation festivities—designers are giving us all sorts of new tones of reds and blues mixed in together, greens and yellows, purples and pinks, and so on. They do it in prints and in short daytime jackets and jigger coats, over dresses of bright hues.

THERE are many three-color combinations which, as one writer puts it, "at first glance cause one to gasp with horror, at the second to see with mild surprise, while the third look results in a snapping of the fingers and a purchase of the dress regardless of consequences".

These new color combinations are as exhilarating as a tonic. Maybe you get a jacket of mustard-color wool appearing with a brown skirt and green blouse, or a dark blue skirt and tomato-red blouse topped by a grey coat. Other mingings of assorted hues result in such ideas as trimming a white frock with red, green and black buttons alternating down the front and wide bands of grosgrain ribbons in the same shades.

Sport Back Suits Simple

University Students Inspire Model That Inclined To Freakishness

SIMPLER VOGUE

THE Sport Back Suit is strictly an American style that is popular in Canada. Although many liberties were taken with its original design and although it has appeared at times when a sport back should not be seen at all, no one will deny that it has a definite place in the style scene and that it serves a useful purpose.

Hollywood the movie capitol, has done much to popularize the sport back, but it originally appeared several thousand miles away, at the Eastern Universities.

The first sport back, you may remember, featured the bellows pleats at each side and extending from the shoulders to the waist. It was further complicated by a yoke across the shoulders, a belt at the waist, numerous tucks, folds, creases and pleats instead.

Sanity Returns

During the past two seasons these freak styles have been dropped one by one. This spring sees a return to sanity. The fundamental purpose of the sport back suit has been retained, but it was found that elimination of gadgets did not necessarily eliminate the comfort and freedom of the sport back.

For one thing, the yoke is almost entirely gone. Side vents have also been dropped although the center vent continues to be popular. Panel backs are relegated to the discarded heap. Knife pleats running forward and back on the sounders are frowned on. Pleated pockets are not as popular as before. In fact, every bit of trimming that fails to serve a functional purpose has been dropped.

NAVY MATCHES UP.

Navy With White.

Use a white vestee, a little veiled hat of natural straw braid in navy to match a calfskin bag with white ornaments, slip on gloves of white glace kid, a white gardenia in your lapel—all with a navy frock of trim crepe.

Navy With Red Earth.

For a softly tailored suit of navy blue, buy a vestee of white silk faille, and everything else in the reddish tan shade called 'red earth'—hatinet, bandeau, buttoned-to-the-throat tailored suit bag of calfskin, 4-button suede slip-on gloves and a fleeton felt hat in the new straight-brimmed sailor make.

Navy With Light Blue.

For your trimly-tailored short-sleeved gown, use forget-me-not blue flowers at your corsage bouquet and trimming a navy beret of rough straw. For your glace kid gloves, your bag and your sling pumps, choose navy blue shades.

Men's Hats Are Broader Brimmed and Lower Crowned

Notable Features For Spring Are New Colors And New Brim Treatments

GREEN GOOD

IT HAS been apparent for some time that men's hat styles were due for a change. The narrow brim and high tapered crown that we have all become so familiar with was too standardized. And whenever a style becomes universally accepted you can look for a change.

That change made itself evident some time ago, but only last season in a big way. If you'll remember, wider brims and lower crowns were first shown when you bought your last spring hat. This season that trend has become general. Every hat manufacturer is featuring the new wider, lower hats. Most men are welcoming the new style because it affords a welcome change from what they have been wearing.

The New Hat.

The leading example of the current favorite has a brim that measures 2¾ inches wide and a crown that is 5¼ inches high. The brim is flatter with only a slight dip in front and the back turns up in a correspondingly moderate way. So you can see that the influence of the Tyroleans is just about over.

The brims are also treated in a new way. Instead of the uniform raw edge that has been featured so long, the new spring hats give you a wide variety of finishes. One of the best bets has a welted edge. In case you are not familiar with the term it might be explained that the welt edge is an extension of the brim turned back flat on the brim itself. Others have bound edges and at least one hat maker that we know of shows a snap brim hat with the raw edge finished with four closely set rows of stitches.

The tendency with undergraduates is to wear the snap brim hat with the brim turned up in front. In accordance with this move many of the spring hats have flattened brims, or else a brim that is wide at the sides and narrower in front. These changes allow the hat to be worn up.

Novel treatments of the bands are frequent enough to be no novelty. One hat has the band going through two eyelets instead of being tied in the conventional bow. Another also does away with the bow and has the band twisted in front and back. In all of these hats the bands are narrower in keeping with the lower crowns. Self bands several with matching cords, and double-strip silk bands add interest to other models.

Hat Colors.

The deep dark brown is no longer the color favorite. Intermediate shades of brown have replaced it. These have been treated with a mattiness that gives them unusual individuality. Neutral shades of green, after being shown for several seasons, are at last becoming an important style feature. Pearl outranks all other shades of gray in importance although lighter shades verging almost to white will become favorites as the spring season approaches summer.

Boys' Shirts Copy Adult Styles

Boys' shirts, in boys' sizes, are practically smaller edition of men's shirts this season. They have gone from the madly colorful patterns to the more sane types seen in dad's own shirt drawer. Patterns are smaller, neater, and in softer shades, and stripes are predominating with checks and overchecks runners-up. In other words, boys' shirts are as sophisticated and suave as men's.

Stripes are used singly, doubly, and in multi-formation, in single, double and polychromatic coloring; varying from hairline thinness to quarter-of-an-inch width. This popularity for stripes and doing away with plaids may be largely attributed to the fact that there is so much plaid in suitings that the shirtings are preferred to break up the possibility of pattern monotony. Solid color shirts are also well liked, and white is always smart.

Probably the greatest interest lies in collars, with the Duke of Kent a first choice, this being any sort of button-down collar, and some shirts showing the long points.

Neckties must, of course, be chosen with the shirt pattern in mind, and for this reason there are some new patterns to choose from. With solid color shirts, the more brilliantly checked or striped tie is worn, whereas with striped shirts ties in small patterns, such as checks and plaids, are predominating.

Raglan Coats Top the Mode

Wide Flaring Skirts Are a Characteristic, With Ease Of Fit

PLAIDS STRONG

BEFORE discussing the individual topcoat styles that will be in the front ranks of the style parade for spring, we believe that a brief summary of the trend in topcoats will prove interesting.

The button-through raglan will again be the number one style, but is followed closely by the balmacaan. In both of these models, as well as in all raglan coats, the most notable style features are the wide flaring skirts, soft construction and ease of fit. In the more formal types of topcoats there is a notable trend to follow the lead set by the most popular spring suit models. In other words, the Chesterfield and fly-front Chesterfield will have lower waistlines, lower buttons, wider lapels and slightly longer lengths.

Now for the individual topcoat models. The raglan that will be seen most has a three-button front, is single-breasted, fits rather closely about the shoulders and flares at the skirt. The lapels are notched and the sleeves carry cuff straps. Another single-breasted raglan is one that is highly distinctive, and though exceptionally smart, will not be seen everywhere. The reason for this might be traced to the price. It is made of soft cashmere and priced accordingly. The lapels on this model are peaked and the sleeves carry turned up cuffs. Although single-breasted, it closely resembles the polo coat.

British Made

A third raglan due to see much service is the fly-front model. It's a coat that shows unmistakable British influence having cuffs on the sleeves and outside patch pockets. One other fly-front raglan is noticeably different by virtue of its narrow shoulders, balloon sleeves and the four rows of stitching on the cuffs and around the bottom of the skirt. It also has a change pocket placed just above the right hand pocket.

The Balmacaan Coat

In itself, the balmacaan topcoat is not a new style. It is the addition of new style details that make it so. The one balmacaan that we have particularly in mind is a single-breasted raglan with a five-button front, wide, sweeping skirt, a cuff and a special pleat on the sleeve and a military collar that may be worn turned up or down. This same type of coat is also shown in the reversible model, one that can be worn on either side. In the reversible, one side is generally of gabardine and the other of tweed. However, in the more expensive lines it is shown in combinations of camel's hair and tweed. This coat is an exceptionally warm coat and while many will be worn this spring, strictly speaking, it is more suitable for fall and early winter wear.

Topcoat Patterns

Suit patterns have had an exceptionally strong effect on topcoats. Overplaids dominate almost every topcoat selection and they are shown in all sorts of tweed fabrics. Single and double and even triple overplaids are appearing on plain twill and herringbone weaves, many lines in two and three-color combinations. Glen Urquhart's are also very much in the style picture.

Topcoats have also followed the suit lead by offering more color. Combinations of checks and overplaids in different, but harmonizing shades are not unusual.

Suits Show Ease And Comfort

The double breasted semi-drape suit shown above features ease and comfort. These suits may be seen in many of Peterborough's stores.

Shirts, Ties, Hose, Take Bright Hues and Patterns

Men's Accessories Reflect Coronation Splendor—Gay Colors

VIVID CHECKS

COLOR and more color is the theme song of the smartest sunshine shirts. While the innovations of patterns cannot be over-emphasized, it is the combination bold colors on pale grounds that set the style pace.

Deep and vivid stripes on pale-shaded grounds show a major trend has developed. The stripes are irregularly arranged and appear in different colors. For the sake of an example we will mention one shirt that bids fair to become the leader. Yellow, green, red, blue and grey all blended for a harmonious effect on a pale ground. While it may startle you at first, it's the kind of shirt that grows on you. But these aren't the only stripes shown. Others are heavy candy stripes with the fine hairline stripes between. In this type of striping one color plus white are usually used.

Checks Still Strong.

Checked shirts and deeptone shirts made such a sensational hit the past few seasons that they have carried over to this season. While not quite as strong as previously, they still must be considered in any style review. The bold checks and extra dark tones are, to some extent, being released to their proper position among the sport shirts and therefore will not be seen around the offices with the same frequency.

Coronation Important.

A tremendous influence in men's shirts, ties, hose, robes, in fact, all accessories has been made by the Coronation. The official colors of red and blue chosen originally for the Coronation of Edward VIII have been held over for the succession of George VI. These colors are flattering to all men regardless of complexion and for that reason will be worn frequently. Red and blue stripes are the most popular of the shirt patterns. However, in hose, red and blue oversquares, stripes and clocks are shown.

The tendency throughout the many shirt lines is toward lower necklines. The three and one-half inch collar point bids well to become the national style favorite although short point models are coming in, so it can be seen that extremes are at hand.

Shoe Styles.

There are different colors shown also in men's footwear, and two-tone effects. Brown, however, remains the style favorite, with combinations of brown and white.

Just as for the ladies, the ventilated type of shoe, with perforations and cutouts, makes its way into the men's world, especially for later wear, when white, punched Oxfords will be exceptionally good.

In materials, fashion goes into reverse this spring. Brown reverse calfskin with trimmings of smooth leather are shown, and Indian moccasin type shoes for golfing and beach wear. Rich brown suede is much liked.

The English influence is felt, with showings of square, English style toes. Wing tips and swept-soled Oxfords are further spring notes. Imported Oxfords are cut and styled to give the casual, well-bred air of the Britisher and his clothes.

Variety In Polo Shirts

Once a boy can get out of doors and shed his jacket he's as happy as a lark. But he has to look dressed-up, nevertheless, so the polo shirt comes to the rescue making the most of sportiness. There are knitted and woven polo shirts, they're all short sleeved, and they may button together, tie together with lacings, or slide faster.

They come in solid colors, in multi-color stripes horizontally or vertically, and in checks, plaids, and all variations of all-over design. They invariably have the turn-down collar, and best liked among the most clothes-conscious fellows is the shirt with set-in section to resemble an under-sweater of different fabric.

The newest, most interesting, and practical version of the polo garment, combines the best features of sport shirt and shirt. It buttons with single-breasted closing from neck-line to hipbone and has long sleeves which button snugly at the wrist. Four pockets are in bellows styling, and button closed.

Flowers Rule This Season

You Find Them Everywhere, Large And Small, In Gay Colors

FLOWERS are so beautiful this year that it is hard to describe them. Of course we have flowers everywhere in this year of Coronation gaiety. They sprawl over house curtains and rugs and upholstery. They scatter themselves brightly over frocks for every occasion, from the lowly house gown of print to the lustrous gleaming satin and lace of evening gala attire. They are flung across scarves and form the crowns of hats and disport themselves on handkerchiefs and bags and jewelry.

AND don't let anybody deceive you about daisies. Far from being modest and retiring, the daisy is writing itself all over the front page this spring. You can't keep her down. And one of her favorite stamping-grounds will be the coat lapel, where you will find her in white and in colors. In patent leather she is a real 'daisy', with glittering leaves. Here she shows herself in white with black and yellow centers and leaves, in yellow with brown or green, in red and navy tones.

Daisies on your suit lapel, daisies on your hat, daisies in the print of your frocks, daisies at your tea or evening decollet'age. They are as new and as charming as Spring. There are bunches in a full-blown quartet of four shades, there are pretty Shasta daisies in a mixed color corsage of white, black and yellow, with a French ancestry behind them, there are crisp pique daisies in grand Coronation gold.

White or mauve or deep purple have a vogue all their own; there are marsh marigolds (cowslip to you), in shades of pale blue, cream or taffy; there are bunches of cherries in white, black or red.

A CELLOPHANE POSY is a gay bit of loveliness, with a single large-petalled blossom that comes in black, white, navy, red, green or taffy orange.

And what could be grander than a jewelled flower for a coat lapel; a little rose jewelled with flashing brilliants and amethyst, ruby, aquamarine, emerald or topaz-colored stones.

The Veiled Coquette Is the Ruling Type in Season's Hats

We Are Flirtatious And Romantic For This Coronation

MUCH TRIMMING

ROMANTIC HATS are with us this season. They are of the 'come hither' type, with little veils that seem to say "Suivez-moi, jeune homme" ('Follow me, young man') as they cascade down the back of the hat, or else hint at intrigue and mystery with their Oriental mode of covering the face and fluttering down over the shoulders...

Could it be that those queer "pill-boxes" of War days would have anything to do with the pillbox hats of the Spring? It is hard to say. War rumors fill the air, but romance is in the breeze as well, so women are forgetting conflict and turning their thoughts to the Easter parade and a new bonnet.

Abetted by Paris, the prettiest hats in years flaunt themselves in the windows. Flowers, fruit, birds, bordered veils, chiffon scarves, multi-colored brims make them coquettish, and once again they come down in the back and hold your hair in place. Which is a mercy...

The new low crowns are flattering, the newest and lowest being the beret-crown, while a beret with roll brim is held snugly to the head at the back with a deep straw 'snood', that nice old word that you meet in Scottish ballads.

IT SEEMS that a snood was the original name given the fillet which bound the hair of a maiden and was emblematic of her maiden character. But, whether married or no, you may wear one this Spring.

The pill-boxes have many variations. One variety is termed a Dalmatian, with a stunning example in a tiny thing of navy blue straw braid tilted over the eyes. A stiffened veil, falling across the eyes, is caught in a bow at the back, where white gardenias purport themselves. Another model in black meteor braid uses a garland of tiny white forget-me-nots across the front, enmeshed in a tiny veil.

Splashes of color in flowers and swirls of drapery in veils dramatize these simple little hats. Meteor braid is an important fabric, also baku and shantung. Milan straw openwork straw. Grosgrain ribbon and rough straws form alliances on many of the models and black vies with navy blue for color honors. Brims curve to show a pretty profile or double into balloon rolls on Bretons, tiny sailors and the well-loved cloche.

TINY PINK BIRDS cover the crown of a double-brimmed cloche, while a small black and white cockerel perches a-top another little chapeau.

For those who like the demure off-the-face styles, there are halo berets, one lovely example being developed in black Milan straw with a face veil that flutters over the shoulders and a braiding of green and fuchsia velvet ribbon resting against the hair, beneath the brim. Another girlish halo model, made of shiny, black fabric sewn in stripe, has a Chinese peak and little tails at the back.

Small sailors wear pastel flowers between their double brims, all around. The Stetson version of the Breton sailor has a brim stitched all around and is rolled higher at one side—the swaggering influence.

THERE are little visor hats; frivolous Dutch caps of openwork straws; little round hats with quills thrust through the crown; old-fashioned 'bonnet' hats with flowers bunched in front and cobweb veils embroidered in chenille; 'picture' hats in wide brimmed sailors with lowered crowns banded by felt flowers in gay Coronation colors; up-turned brim hats designed to show brushed-up curls and a variation of the tricorne, with a deep 'bagging' back and a gorgeous veil with enormous dots.

"This is the most exciting hat season we have had for years," proclaims a designer. "The exhibition of surrealist art led to new ideas in trimming, such as trimming in mushrooms and metal, in bone, wood and cork." The cork is similar to that used to make floors, and the mushrooms are arranged in flower formations on the front of some little straw pillboxes. They are of the type that grow around old trees, and are completed by a tin "leaf."

It is said that the popular 'pill-box' hat was thought of first as a travelling hat for southbound travellers, but another opinion says that, "having gone high hat for a whole season, what could we expect but something very shallow and very tiny?"

A fashion adviser from Hollywood gives her idea:

"The first principle in buying a hat is to have it complete a costume. Don't get a hat and then worry about what to wear with it...

"It must suit your face and really help you. A hat should give you a lift...

"Clever French women take hours to buy a hat, studying themselves in profile and full face, with a coat and without."

"TEAR DROP" JEWELS

The latest whim in costume jewelry—tiny glass 'tear' drops—colored to imitate topaz, rubies, sapphires and emeralds—dangling from sparkling glass beads—made up in necklaces worn close to the throat, in snug bracelets, in stud earrings—

"La Belle" jewelry—bell-like flowers of colored china in garden colors; red, green, flame, blue and white, in necklaces, bracelets, earrings, clips, pins—

Beaded jewelry in vibrant shades of red, green, blue, coral, turquoise, beige, yellow, navy or white—

Florentine silver jewelry and coral jewelry, the latter returning in the little, old-fashioned branchy style, and grand with the Spring blues, beiges and greys—in necklaces, clips, bracelets and hair ornaments—

Stockings For Every Costume

SOFT browns, tans, beiges, smoky greys—these hold the stage as far as stockings are concerned.

They have names that suggest their tones more adequately than for some time past. Moorhusk, for instance, is a soft grey-beige to wear with beige, or with greens, blues and reds. Smokebrown is a slatey brown tone, particularly effective with black, the darker reds, greens and blues. London Mist is a grey taupe-tone that is a classic for wear with the darker greys and all blacks. Toasty, a warm, light beige, goes beautifully with blonde shoes, and is effective with wines, blues and reds. Burnt Nude is a sparkling golden tone with a light tan undercast, extremely good with black, and particularly effective when worn with patent leather shoes. Plaza Beige is a warm golden beige to wear with lighter tones; blonde beige, light vivid greens, bluish greens and black. Cubatan is a new leather type of tan with a coarsely cast, good-looking grain, to wear with green, black or brown and pastel shades. There is a Spanish tan (bright copper), Dransky (rose beige), Polo (tauntan) and Rose, a rich, soft brown for street wear with browns, greens and rusts, also a smart contrast to black. While High Noon is a light gunmetal with a warm brown undertone, to wear with black and darker colors, and Jaunty is a soft neutral beige for general daytime wear, equally good with black, brown and colors.

"PHANTOM" is the name of dress-up chiffon hose with lace clocks and 'Skintone' stockings are guaranteed to make your ankle look perfectly naked, if that is what you wish.

Now there seem to be hose for every need and every purse. You can get two-three silk chiffons for evening, 'twin twisted' for a smart dull finish, or transparent wets of silk from top to toe, with narrow sandal feet; genuine crepes, popular for their dull tones and long lives; service chiffons with silk-plaited feet and stretchy lisle garter welts; four-teen and twelve-thread weaves for heavy service wear; short hose for short women, long hose for long limbs, medium for the in-betweens.

AND colored stockings are again appearing for evening wear, in dark green, blue and gold silk of finest gossamer weave chiffon, designed to wear with frocks of the same shade, companioned by silver, gold or colored evening sandals.

Formal Gown

This evening dress was designed for the Miami lace ball. It is made of silver metal lace, with high neckline at both front and back, and has a soft train. An ostrich feather of royal blue is worn on the front of the gown.

Junior 'Deb' Spring Modes

Young Daughter Of The House Follows In Footsteps Of Mother

'BALLERINA' COATS

Junior Deb Wear is a consideration for mothers in these pre-Easter days. The young daughter of the house has her feminine wants as well as her older sister and mother.

The shops take care of them. Frocks are simplified replicas of the finines worn by their elders, with new prints and Coronation colors.

Hooked wool tweeds in green, blue rust or tan shades, for the unbelted coat with slit-scored fitted back and wide skirt and wide lapels and rose, green or blue fleece wool for the belted model, the full skirt made with V-tucks at the waist, the soft double collar drawn together with a tassel.

For the two-piece Junior Deb's suit, there are no less than eight unpressed pleats for the new "ballerina" back to the three-quarter length coat with its soft double collar. And the slim skirt has a front pleat for fullness. Made in wool crepe, in shades of leaf green, cornflower blue or rust.

Another two-piece suit with three-quarter coat is in blue rust or tan wool with fine woven check. There is a petal collar standing up to the chin and there are V-gores in the full skirt.

Junior hats like simplicity, with many fine fur fells showing the boater brim and bowl-shaped crown, in wineberry red, navy, brown, black, green, blue and the shade known as harness tan.

Shoes incline to Oxford or brogue bandlmas developed in brown or black calf or suede leather in shades of brown, green, navy and black. Saddle stitching, punching and cutouts feature these. Just as in the case of the seniors.

Hand-stitched gloves are sporty in soft chamo-suede fabric, with darts in the backs and buttoned cuffs. They come in navy, beige, grey, white, seashell, yellow and brown.

Granny Wore Cotton.

Imagine our grandmothers if they could see the stockings worn by today's youth: full-fashioned to the top and of real silk!

As for the smaller lassies, special needs have special handlings. There are nice manufacturers who look into all these things, and provide special built-up shoulders in slips for the chubby growing girl, with frills at the knees; very firmly-machined seams for the pull of growing limbs in cotton pyjamas of sky blue combined with shell pink, or vice versa; warmer weather nighties in the same colors with frilly round necks and little puff sleeves; slips with four-gore bias cuts to withstand tremendous junior activity, and trimmed with cunning little sprays of roses embroidered on the fronts.

As for headgear for the toddlers, there are many varieties of the "Shirley Temple" type; saucy turned-up brims, off-the-face felts, cunning bonnets with flower trimmings, the "Little Queen," high-crowned and narrow-brimmed, the adorable "Honey," an upturned sailor, the copy of mother's Breton sailor or a Scotch lassie Highland cap with kilties streamers at the back.

All the colors, from pure white throughout the many varieties of browns, greens, reds, pinks, blues and beiges. But emphatically, no black!

And, for the girl away at boarding-school, how about a pair of those tailored English broadcloth pyjamas made in Coronation blue with Coronation red piping and collars and cuffs, that sport an embroidered crown and "G.R." on the chest?

An Ensemble

Springlike colors are featured in this redingote ensemble for the Easter parade. The sage green silk crepe frock is printed in an abstract design in white, with touches of lustre yellow, purple, blue and brown. The lightweight wool redingote matches the ground of the print, and is lined with the same printed silk. It is reversible. The brimmed hat of natural rough straw has a herringbone pattern.

Coats Feature Casual Styles

There Are Types To Suit All Tastes In The Spring Coat Models

THE softly-styled casual coat; the top coat with softened lines; the three-quarter swagger coat; the swing coat; the jigger coat... These are the outstanding coat trends of the season...

The softly-styled casual coat has a back that is meticulously fitted. It buttons up the front, and has a soft fur collar that matches the shade of the fabric. For that is one of the niceties of this Spring, to dye soft fur just the shade of the garment.

The top coat with softened lines is a completely-transformed garment. Inverted pleats trim the front and back of the skirt. It has a slightly-fitted waistline and there is an all-round belt.

The three-quarter swagger coat, with its easy loosequence, is fashioned with fullness swinging from a shoulder yoke. The collar and slit pockets have dressmaker stitching and it fastens at the side of the little high collar, with a single broad button.

The swing coat has broad shoulders and wide lapels and is snugly fitted in double-breasted fashion. Fulness is folded into the fitted waistline, allowing the skirt of the coat to swing in the Princess manner.

THE JIGGER COAT is a very thin short boxy coat of the carefree type, finger-tip length and squared at the shoulders.

There are variations, of course, like the boxy swagger, casual only to a degree, with an upstanding collar of the 'bracelet' type and squared shoulders with dressmaker puckings. And some dressy coat have capes at the front, and still others flaring all around. The 'ballerina' coat is a striking example of this mode, with as many as twelve to seventeen unpressed pleats making a gay swirl. The new 'collarless' neckline and trimming of patent leather on pockets and belts are features in this section.

ENGLISH WOOL COATS are having a great run this Spring. They are tailored in casual and fitted styles. The casual type goes in for broad shoulders, a folded-over broad tab collar and nonchalant, slashed pockets, while the fitted style has four crescent pockets, a broad leather belt and often no less than seven gores in the swinging back.

They incline to tweedy designs and big bold checks that play up grey, black, red and blue.

Black, navy, sand and grey form the favored colors for many of the longer coats, with the shorter models going in for the 'high' Coronation tones: St. James' rose, tangerine, green, blue.

Fleece cloth is much to the fore this year in coats, with gabardines and tricotines and covert cloth. Soft woods make the dressier models, and monotone tweeds are good for the 'casual' garments, with a lovely navy wool tweed favored for especial styles. There is a beautiful grey blue wool shown that is trimmed with fox fur dyed the same color, while a soft-finished fur called kidskin lends the front of a swagger model.

A different trimming is in bands of stitching extending from neck to hem, with notched lapels, while the liking for white touches is manifested in little scalloped collars of white pique on long coats of smooth wool.

FRENCH COUNT SHOT BY GIRL OVER ROMANCE

Beautiful Newswoman Says Victim Broke Up Affair With Italian Statesman

"HER ONE GREAT LOVE"

Had Her Expelled From Italy—Refuses To Reveal Lover's Name

PARIS, March 18 (CP-Havas).—Madeleine de Fontange, dark-eyed French beauty, today revealed she shot and wounded Count Charles de Chambrun in the Gare Du Nord yesterday because she believed he caused her to lose the love of "a great Italian statesman."

Count de Chambrun, former French Ambassador to Rome, was recovering after an operation to remove the bullet which lodged in his groin.

Identity of the "great Italian statesman" was not revealed. According to Le Matin, Mlle. de Fontange, a former newspaperwoman, told many of her friends that she gained the affections of the unnamed statesman in question after she interviewed him in July, 1936.

The 30-year-old beauty has published two interviews with Premier Benito Musolini—one in the London Daily Mail and another in the Tribune Des Nations.

Wife Witnesses Shooting.

Mlle. de Fontange pushed through the crowd in the Gare Du Nord and fired on De Chambrun as the 62-year-old diplomat was about to leave for Brussels on the De Luxe Bluebird express.

The Countess de Chambrun, who had just said farewell to her husband, was an eye-witness to the shooting.

Police took Mlle. de Fontange into custody.

"De Chambrun caused me to lose the affections of a man who was my lover and who is too well-known for me to expose his name to publicity," she told police.

The Paris Parisien said today that Mlle. de Fontange — whose maiden name was Corradeuci — was expelled from Italy at the request of Count de Chambrun, then French Ambassador, after she had taken an overdose of a sleeping potion in her hotel.

The same newspaper reported she had also been ordered out of the French Foreign Ministry after having caused "a minor scandal."

POLICE SECRETIVE IN TAXI SHOOTING

Information From Unnamed City Buoys Up Hope—Deny Gun Located

KITCHENER, Ont., March 18 (C.P.).— Optimism entered police ranks to-day as they continued search for the slayer of Lawrence Hewitt, Elmsboro taxi operator whose bullet-pierced body was found beside his car early on Sunday, two miles from here.

Information from an unnamed Ontario city is believed to have buoyed police hopes, but they closely guarded all information and would not reveal in what direction progress was made.

One report said an unidentified man made three or four phone calls to Hewitt's home on Friday night. Although reports persisted the police obtained three of the gun, officers denied the Hewitt murder weapon was located.

GALT PEOPLE QUESTIONED

GALT, Ont., March 18 (CP)—Inspectors A. E. Boyd and Clem Jordan of the Criminal Investigation Department of Ontario Provincial Police questioned several Galt residents today in connection with the killing late Saturday night near Elmsboro of Lawrence Hewitt, taxi operator of that village.

Police would not disclose the names of those questioned, but said they were persons who had been in touch with Hewitt on the night he was killed.

Provincial police co-operated with provincial inspectors to help locate any Galt residents who may have noticed past the scene of the crime near midnight Saturday. There had been no results so far in this direction, said police who were otherwise non-committal.

Trio Brave Huron Ice to Aid 5 Men on Island

Pit Row-Boat Against Wildly Tossing Floes After Tug Is Blocked

Fear Smoke-Signals Mean One Of Men Has Been Injured

BEEN CUTTING WOOD

No Government Plane Available Equipped For Water Landing

TOBERMORY, Ont., March 18.—(CP).—Fire signals on Yeo Island, about 15 miles off the tip of Bruce Peninsula, sent three Tobermory men on a dangerous row-boat expedition through the broken ice cakes on Lake Huron. It is feared a party of five men on the island are in need of assistance.

Residents of this Bruce Peninsula town saw the fire signals last night. Early to-day, when efforts to start a tug through the ice fields failed, the rowboat was launched and the journey through the treacherous waters started.

The three men in charge of the rowboat are Warren Adams, Martin Young and Bill Spears. They carried aid for members of the Island group, Percy Spears Bill's brother; Bill Robbins, Ivan Robbins, Bert Bartley and Bill Lowery.

Hope to Use Launch

C. Davis, Tobermory town clerk, said the men in the rowboat hoped to reach Flowernot Island, where they would transfer to a gasoline launch for the rest of the trip to Yeo Island.

The town clerk said the men on Yeo Island spent the winter cutting timber and before leaving promised to use fire signals if anything went wrong.

"It is possible one of the men is hurt," said Mr. Davis. "We couldn't use the tug because of the ice and the Government didn't have a plane equipped for landing near the island. It would have to be a sea plane as we don't think it's possible to land on the island."

However, it is hoped a sea plane will be available shortly.

All Flowers With Skis.

TORONTO, March 18.—(C.P.).—Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests, said to-day his department had received a telephone message from Tobermory asking a plane be sent to investigate smoke signals from Yeo Island 15 miles off the peninsula. Mr. Heenan said his department could not send a plane because all machines have been equipped with skis.

AMELIA EARHART REACHES HONOLULU ON WORLD FLIGHT

Earhart To Drop Two Of Her Three Male Aides At First Stop

AUSTRALIA NEXT

HONOLULU, T.H., March 18 (AP)—Amelia Earhart landed her globe-girdling "flying laboratory" at Wheeler Field at 8.20 a.m. PST today (11.20 a.m. EST) completing her 2,400-mile over-water hop from Oakland, Calif., in less than 16 hours.

The aviatrix and her crew of three averaged better than 150 miles an hour on the flight which began at Oakland at 4.37½ PST yesterday.

Although fatigued, Miss Earhart announced plans to take off later today for Howland Island.

Miss Earhart's piloting.

"Everything okah," she would radio headquarters.

Once, her voice informed Pan-American Airways radio headquarters here "We cannot hear you" when the airways sought to contact her. Then, as if reassuring her listeners, she quickly added:

"All is well."

At Wheeler Field, U.S. Army air base near Honolulu, workmen rushed arrangements to greet the aviatrix, who flew from Hawaii to Oakland in 1935.

100 Troops Ordered Out

A hundred soldiers were detailed to handle crowds greeting the flyer and wishing her success on the rest of her world flight on which she will seek data valuable to possible new commercial airlines.

The Pan-American Clipper, commanded by the veteran Trans-Pacific flier Captain Edwin C. Musick, was overtaken about an hour after Miss Earhart left Oakland at 4.37½ p.m. Musick is bound for Australasia to pioneer a new route.

The Hawaii Clipper, headed for Honolulu on a regular flight to Manilla, was overtaken at 8.15 p.m. by the aviatrix. She then was many miles north of the seaplane using a separate Airlines' radio beam.

Puts Out Own Paper On Time At 80 Years

Estonia, Sask., March 18—(CP)

AFTER seventy years in the printing trade, A. G. Graham can still do work that would put many a young man to shame.

Publisher of the Enterprise, a weekly newspaper here, 160 miles southwest of Saskatoon, Mr. Graham, over 80 years old, recently wrote, edited, set all the type by hand, ran off 300 copies on a hand-turned press and finished a regular two-man job on time.

100,000 New Homes Urged For Toronto

TORONTO March 18 — (C.P.) — Lieutenant-Governor Herbert Bruce of Ontario to-day urged early start on erection of 100,000 houses in Toronto, when he addressed a luncheon gathering. The homes, worth about $2,500 each, would be for rental to low-paid workmen for $15 and $24 monthly under the Lieutenant-Governor's plan.

He estimated the project would cost $10,000,000 annually. With each house costing $2,500 and built on a $200 plot of land, he figures the total cost would be $290,000,000. He proposed the cost be borne by the Dominion government paying $5,000,000 annually and Ontario Government and Toronto paying the other $5,000,000.

Invisible Steel Wire Wall To Guard Britain's Coastline

Net Of Death Streamers To Dangle From Balloons Placed Ten To The Mile

OXFORD, March 18 (A.P.)—New facts about Britain's first line of defence against death from the air—a virtually invisible wall of captive balloons trailing wire streamers—have been disclosed by Professor F. A. Lindeman, one of the Government's chief aviation advisers.

He drew a word picture of ten 100-foot balloons to each mile of guarded territory to bar the approach of an enemy bombing fleet that would not know they were there until they had struck the treacherous, twisting wires.

Even without casualties from the home defence fairplanes and anti-aircraft batteries, the most determined enemy would find the cost too heavy, he believes.

Thus far the Government has thrown a cloak of secrecy around its plans. It has disclosed only that it will spend $3,000,000 on a balloon "barrage" around London, and that information was given only in the air estimates.

But it is known that the trucks from which the balloons are to be controlled already have been built and an authoritative source said orders for a new type of balloon, with sufficient lifting power to raise the cable and wire streamers hanging from the balloon, will be placed in the next few months.

Never Most Direct Routes.

It will not be necessary to throw up a balloon barrage around the entire 8,000-mile coastline, Lindeman says, since planes coming from the Continent probably will follow the most direct route because of their heavy load of fuel and bombs.

As during the Great War, he asserts, the danger zone is the 400 miles from Southampton on the south coast north to Newcastle.

"The cost," he says, "will not be prohibitive. Each balloon will cost a few thousand pounds. The balloons probably will be raised only at night. If enemy planes come in the daytime they can shoot them down."

Lindeman said some technical problems remain to be solved. In addition to the "remote" possibility that an enemy squadron might fly around the barrage, a more likely eventuality is that it would be able to fly over it.

Pointing out that the "ceiling" of bombers has risen from the 10,000 or 12,000 feet limit during the Great War to 20,000 or 25,000 feet, Lindeman said, "I should send the balloons as high as I could—if possible, above the ceiling of the airplane."

TRUCK DRIVER DIES

Truck Hits Pole and Driver Dies After Heart Attack.

TORONTO, March 18.—(CP).—Roy Harper, 50, died to-day after a heart attack while driving a truck for the Consumers' Gas Company. The heavy truck swerved on to the sidewalk, knocked a concrete Hydro pole off at the base, and came to a stop against an iron pole.

At Honolulu

After three months of preparation Miss Amelia Earhart took off on Wednesday afternoon from Oakland airport on a 27,000-mile round-the-world flight with three men shown in the picture BELOW. Sixteen hours later the quartette landed in Honolulu. LEFT to RIGHT the group shows Paul Mantz, technical adviser; Miss Earhart, Captain Harry Manning and F. J. Noonan. Each of the men will navigate a part of the flight across the Pacific and will only accompany the aviatrix for the first few thousand miles.

CHEESEMEN WANT PRICE CONSUMER PAYS IN BRITAIN

Claim It Ample To Ensure Satisfactory Returns To Farmers

INVITED TO PETERBORO

KEMPTVILLE, Ont., March 18.—(CP)—The Ontario Cheese Patrons' Association began a campaign today to obtain for producers prices now being paid by consumers in Great Britain, a price termed "ample" enough to ensure a "satisfactory" return to farmers.

The concluding session of the association's annual meeting here yesterday approved the address of O. R. Green, Ontario agricultural representative for Oxford, who said "the consumer price for our cheese in Britain is ample to pay our producers satisfactory prices. It is your job to get it."

Increased returns, said Mr. Green, "is the only way to restore our cheese industry to its former proportions." Great Britain, he declared, "will buy all the cheese we can send. They complain bitterly that we are not sending it over."

Prospects today were that the association would continue its work of promoting the sale of cheese under the name of the Ontario Cheese Producers' Association. A proposal to change the name from "patrons" was approved by President A. W. MacIntyre. He said the word "patrons" was misunderstood in Britain.

Officers Returned.

The association concluded its convention with re-election of the executive which has served for two years. The members are A. W. MacIntyre of Finch; R. H. Mayberry, Ingersoll; E. J. Fyear, Stirling; George Gardiner, Seeleys Bay; J. F. Bertrand, Hammond and S. L. Joss, Belleville. The executive will name the officers at an early date. Mr. McIntyre has been president.

The association adopted a resolution introduced by Cecil McAllister, Pendleton, expressing appreciation of the interest taken by federal and provincial governments in its work and for financial assistance. Resolution was passed recommending the provincial directors of dairying take action ensuring steps to provide facilities to overcome defects in full cheese.

Speakers were Dr. H. Barton, Federal Deputy Minister of Agriculture; W. B. Somerset, Director of the Ontario Marketing Branch, and O. R. Green, Ontario Agricultural Representative for Oxford.

Dr. Barton dealt with functions of the association in respect of leadership and education and urged co-operation. Regarding trade, he said: "You are not in a position to replace the trade. You are in a position to deal with the trade probably on a somewhat different basis by having an association of this kind, and that is desirable but I can see little to be gained and much to be lost from unnecessary antagonism of the trade.

REBEL BATTERIES POUND MADRID

At Same Time Socialists Smash Italians Back 6 Miles On Guadalajara Front

By Jean Rollin
(Copyright, 1937, The Havas News Agency.)

MADRID, March 18 (C.P.-Havas)—Scores of persons were killed or wounded early to-day when General Francisco Franco's heavy guns poured high explosives and shrapnel into this shell-torn capital.

The bombardment coincided with attacks by motorized insurgent columns on three key sectors of the capital's defences. The insurgents struck in the Casa de Campo, west of Madrid, in the University grounds in the north-west, and at the southern suburb of Baro de Usera.

The explosion of artillery shells rocked the entire capital and sent the war-hardened refugees scurrying to cover. Most of the victims were believed trapped under falling debris.

On the Guadalajara front Spanish Government forces smashed through wavering lines of Italians to regain six miles of territory, including four villages.

After fighting the insurgents to a standstill south of Brihuega, the militia launched a surprise offensive in a driving rainstorm. Advancing on a 30-mile front, the governmentals took the villages of Pajarez, Solanillos del Extremo, Olmeda del Extremo, and Torre del Burgo.

MOTOR CITY TAX BILL APPROVED

Oshawa Finds Itself Unable To Levy For 1937 Due To Appeals

TORONTO, March 18 (CP)—Ontario legislature private bills committee today approved a bill to enable Oshawa to collect taxes this year.

The bill was made necessary by appeals against assessments that have prevented configuration of the assessment rolls. Until the bill approved today receives royal assent, Oshawa will not be able to levy 1937 taxes.

An act respecting the town of Renfrew was declared by H. L. Cummings, Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs, to put a premium on inefficiency and was laid over until Tuesday.

It was stated the town had made in no formal appointment of a tax collector for several years.

Hon. David Croll, Municipal Affairs Minister, urged the town should hold a tax sale and confirm what has been done to date.

T. F. Murray, (Lib., Renfrew) asked the bill be not killed but that an opportunity be given the town's solicitor to appear and Mr. Croll agreed.

Of an extremely quiet and unassuming disposition, Dr. McCullough centered his interest on his practice, his home and church.

He is survived by his wife (the former Sarah E. Carmichael), and three sons, John K. McCullough, Detroit, Thomas B. McCullough, Georgia, and Hugh M. McCullough of the University Club, Toronto. He also leaves a brother, Dr. J. W. McCullough, a former director of medical officers of health; and a sister, Mrs. Sarah Rogers, Saskatoon. His first wife (the former Rachael McNeely) died some years ago.

The funeral is to be held from the residence on Saturday at 2 o'clock p.m., with the Rev. W. P. Robertson, rector of St. John's Church officiating. Interment at Little Lake Cemetery.

Woman Starts Hunger Strike But Weakens In Three Days

Refused Articles By Relief Department She Declines To Eat

BUT CHANGES MIND

LINDSAY, March 18.—Lindsay has gained a certain amount of publicity because of the action of a number of feminine hockey players who staged a sit-down strike in the local arena. Wednesday it was reported that the town could lay claim to a female hunger striker. A widow with a few small children has been receiving relief from the municipality and, according to the report, was refused certain articles which she had listed. She took umbrage at the action of those who are dispensing relief, refused to accept anything further, declaring she would go on a hunger strike. The strike lasted only three days, however, discretion proving the better part of valor.

The Jordan Roberts Company, of Brantford, which sank a number of wells for the local Board of Water Commissioners, and which was bonded by the General Accident Assurance Company, will return to the Board the sum of $21,343.59, the amount paid by the Board to the Brantford Company, which failed to supply the water guarantee stipulated in the agreement. Each party is to pay its own cost in litigation and the contracting company has the right to remove its machinery and equipment which is installed in the wells.

Only 40 Crash Lines As Union Cohorts Join Laid-Off Night Shift

Employees Protest Firing Of Night Gang And Demand Higher Wages

STRIKERS ASK RELIEF

Committee To Ask Minister Of Labor To Probe Firm's Wages

OSHAWA, Ont., March 18.—(CP).—Committee members representing striking workers of the Coulter Manufacturing Company here, announced to-day they would appeal to Hon. David A. Croll, Ontario Minister of Labor, to investigate wages paid by the firm, manufacturers of parts for General Motors.

Only 40 employees marched through picket lines to go to work this morning out of a regular staff of 150, it was stated. Nine police officers watched 90 men and girls who were doing picket duty as each carload of employees went to work amid howls from the crowd.

Strikers claimed their ranks included more than 100 of the day shift's and more than 50 of the night workers who were laid off Tuesday night.

Two Hurt in Clash.

One man was knocked unconscious last night and another injured as employees who were laid off picketed the plant. Police restored order and warned against violence.

Between 50 and 100 workers were laid off, but officials of the Oshawa branch of the United Automobile Workers of America who called the strike said almost every employee had signed union cards. Picketing will be renewed to-day as 250 employees had voted to strike, union officials said.

Demands of strikers included: workers laid off must be re-employed; 70 cents an hour wages for buffers and finishers; minimum hourly rate of 50 cents for other male workers; 45 cents an hour for girls; an eight-hour day and time-and-a-half for overtime.

Minimum wages paid in the plant have been 50 cents an hour for men and 44 cents for girls, union officials said.

Albert E. Coulter, president of the plant, said in a statement the trouble was caused by an "American agitator." He said a night shift was taken on for two or three months each year during the peak production period and when the work was caught up the workers laid off.

As the rush was over the night shift was discontinued last night as the plant had a month's supply of stock ahead. The regular day shift, numbering between 135 and 150 would be kept at full time, Mr. Coulter said, and would probably have to work overtime.

When the day shift started their overtime period last night the discharged employees picketed the plant and attempted to keep the workers from entering. Several were prevented from entering the plant Mr. Coulter said.

Strikers marched to local relief offices after the decision to stop work had been made and asked for aid. J. C. McGill relief administrator, said some were given enough relief to tide them over, but each case would have to be considered and investigated individually before final decisions were made.

UNEXPECTED MOVE SIMPSON DIVORCE STIRS SPECULATION

Reported Objection To Decree Is Suspected Behind Proctor's Action

HEARING FRIDAY

LONDON March 18.— (AP).— The King's proctor, in what was interpreted by legal authorities as a step to remove the last legal barrier to Mrs. Wallis Simpson's final divorce decree, applied to-day for instructions on procedure to the president of the divorce court, Sir Boyd Merriman.

No details were disclosed.

To-morrow's official court cause list contained the following entry: "Simpson, W., vs. Simpson, E.A., (application by the King's proctor for directions)."

"The hearing is fixed for 10.30 a.m." (5.30 a.m. E.S.T.).

The step was considered unusual because the routine method of handling undefended cases, such as that of the Simpsons, is automatic announcement of a final decree six months after the intermediary decree is handed down.

In Mrs. Simpson's case, this would be April 27. She received her decree nisi from Ernest Aldrich Simpson at Ipswich October 27, 1936.

An Objection.

There was some speculation that a reported objection to the divorce might have caused the proctor's move.

The fact the proctor—Sir Thomas Barnes—applied for instruction was taken to mean neither Mrs. Simpson nor her former husband, Ernest Aldrich Simpson, was behind the action.

Had either principal to the divorce desired to accelerate the final decree, he or she would have appealed personally to the president of the divorce court.

The objection was reported to have been entered in the divorce registry at Somerset House in connection with the Simpson case. It was stated the signer was a man employed as a printer on a newspaper. Lawyers attached no significance to the report at the time, since no supporting affidavits were filed within the legal time limit.

To-morrow's hearing, it was learned, will be in chambers, and only the parties to the application—in

LLOYD Evans, 34, unemployed Regina, told his wife a month ago he would be late because he was going to a party.

Mrs. Evans, married only a month when her husband left, notified police to discontinue search for him.

ESPOSITO FREED OF MURDER COUNT

Pennsylvania Jury Finds Kirkland Lake Man Innocent In 31-Year-Old Case

NEWCASTLE, Pa., March 18 (AP).—Rocco Esposito of Kirkland Lake, Ont., was freed by a jury today on a 31-year-old murder charge in the slaying of Francesco Romeo. The jury returned its verdict of acquittal after deliberating 21 hours.

Esposito had denied before that jury he shot Francesco Romeo here in 1906.

Freedom meant Esposito, now 56, might return to his wife and four sons and daughters in his adopted home at Kirkland Lake.

Frank Costa, a special investigator for Attorney-General Charles J. Margiotti, arrested Esposito at a New Year's party last January 1, and returned him to Pennsylvania in an attempt to clear the mystery about the shooting of Romeo, a laborer.

Esposito, his friends said, had been leading an exemplary life since he left Newcastle as a youth of 23.

He waived extradition to return and clear his record. He was the second man to be tried and acquitted on an indictment that had lain almost forgotten in the Lawrence County Courthouse for three decades.

TWO MILLION QUIT IN PARIS 6-HOUR STRIKE

Walkout, Practically Crippling City, Is In Protest Over Clichy Riots

LITTLE VIOLENCE

Socialists, Reds Join Again Backing Blum To End Danger Of Overthrow

PARIS, March 18.—(CP-Havas)—Nearly 2,000,000 workers went on strike today, immobilizing the capital in a mighty anti-Fascist demonstration from which all threat to the Popular Front government had been removed.

Except for a few small processions of strikers during the forenoon which dispersed upon the appearance of police, the strike took place without incident. Bicyclists distributing the Paris-Midi were molested in a few places but other newspapers appeared as usual.

In a statement hailing the demonstration of solidarity, the federations of unions of the Paris district warned all workers to be back at their jobs by noon and not to heed "the provocation of those who, against the workers' interests, might demand prolongation of the strike."

The half-day general strike, called as a protest against the killing of five workers in riots at Clichy Tuesday night, crippled all transport facilities in the city and closed all factories and most shops and offices. Essential public utilities were carried on by reduced staffs. Not even members of the chamber of deputies, due to meet this morning, could reach the Bourbon palace and the session there had to be called off.

Reds, Socialists Line Up.

Overnight conferences among political leaders had meanwhile resolved the threat to the stability of Premier Blum's government. The Radical Socialists and Communists alike indicated their support of the government would continue, although the former strongly opposed the strike, and condemned the latter's demand for the immediate dissolution of Colonel Francois de la Rocque's Social Party and Jacques Doriot's People's Party.

Acute political antagonisms aroused in full force by the Clichy outbreak were soothed while Premier Blum pledged a full investigation and punishment of those guilty for the death of the five workers and injury to 231 workers and policemen during the riot. There was no further question of the government's resignation.

Leaders of the General Confederation of Labor emphasized in calling the general strike that it was directed not against the government but against the Fascist organizations whose dissolution they demanded.

SENATORS DIFFER ON WAR QUESTION

McRae Says Canada Should Keep Clear—Could Not Says Griesbach

OTTAWA, March 18 (CP)—Two of Canada's soldier senators submitted varying views on this country's position in the event of the United Kingdom being involved in another war as the senate yesterday debated a motion dealing with naval defence. They were A. D. McRae of Vancouver and W. A. Griesbach of Edmonton, both of whom hold the rank of Major-General and gave distinguished service in the last war.

Canada should not take part in another European war, said Senator McRae, repeating a stand he had previously taken. Recent events, he said, had given him no reason for changing his view. The next war would bring disaster to the nations taking part if not to the world and Canada should stay out of it.

Senator Griesbach declared Canada could not remain neutral if the United Kingdom were at war. Canada's only hope for security was in the British Empire. He said talk in the House of Commons of preparing for the defence of Canada alone and at the same time remaining neutral was nonsense. Canada was far short of the defence establishment that would be required to maintain neutrality.

Aircraft carriers might sail into the Gulf of St. Lawrence in the event of a war and despatch planes which would destroy the cities of Quebec, Montreal, Three Rivers, Toronto and Ottawa, he said. Adequate steps should be taken to protect Canadian coasts.

TWEED

DR. W. H. MATHER PASSES IN TWEED

Loved Physician Had Served Community Over Fifty Years

TWEED, March 18.—A long and useful life came to a close when Dr. William Milton Mather passed away at his residence at Tweed, on Tuesday, March 16, after an illness of about eight weeks' duration. Dr. Mather died on the day of the anniversary of his birth.

In the passing of Dr. Mather, the village of Tweed, and the county of Hastings as a whole, have lost a good citizen; he was a man of fine character, endowed with a pleasing and friendly personality, whose life was devoted to the service of others and who served well his day and generation. His death has brought deep feelings of regret to all who knew him and pleasant memories of him will long be entertained by all who knew him and enjoyed his friendship.

The late Dr. William Milton Mather was born on March 18, 76 years ago, near the village of Plainfield in the township of Thurlow, his parents being the late Archibald Mather and his wife Eliza Jane Leslie. After completing his studies at the little brick school house in Thurlow township, he attended Albert College at Belleville and later entered Queen's College Kingston, from which institution he was graduated in medicine in the year 1886. Soon after graduation he took up the practice of his profession at Tweed and from that time and up to the time of his last illness, he was actively engaged in ministering to the sick. He was a true family physician and was held in affectionate regard by those he served. By his confreres in the medical profession he was most highly esteemed and as a means of showing their high estimate of his worth the medical association in this district tendered him a complimentary banquet at Tweed on June 9th 1936, at which event prominent medical men from near and far were present. For fifty years he ministered conscientiously and sympathetically to the sick and his life was replete with good works.

He was a coroner for the county of Hastings for many years and held the office up to the time of his death.

In religion he was a member of the Presbyterian church at Tweed, in which congregation he held the office of an elder.

Surviving to mourn his passing are one daughter Mrs. A. C. Locke, of Tweed; four grandchildren, John Locke, Grant Locke, Mary Locke and George Locke, all of Tweed, one brother, Mr. George Mather, Vancouver, B.C., two sisters, Mrs. George Reid, Flushing, Mich., and Mrs. Isaac Bills, Belleville. His wife passed away two years ago.

The funeral was held on Friday afternoon, March 19 privately from his late residence, while a public memorial service was held in the Presbyterian church at 2.30 p.m. Interment was in Victoria cemetery, Tweed.

CANADA'S WHEAT ACT CANCELLING BRINGS CRITICISM

Charges And Counter Charges Flung In House With Division Likely Today

GARDINER GETS A LAUGH

OTTAWA, March 18. — (CP) — Members of the House of Commons today may have an opportunity of registering by vote their approval or otherwise of the government's action last August allegedly rendering the operations of the Canadian Wheat Board Act inoperative in respect to the 1936 crop.

Yesterday's short session was devoted entirely to debate on a Conservative non-confidence amendment to the motion to go into committee on ways and means. The amendment, moved by E. E. Perley (Cons. Qu'Appelle) expressed regret that an order-in-council adopted last August 26 had this effect.

Charges and counter-charges arising from the methods adopted in marketing Canada's wheat since 1930, already subject of several debates this session, were again thrown back and forth across the floor of the House and the debate will resume today.

Out of the discussion came an expression of hope from Hon. J. G. Gardiner, minister of agriculture, that from the work of the Turgeon Royal Commission on grain would be evolved a grain marketing organization that would be second to none in the world.

"I will say, however," he concluded, "that the Dominion of Canada, through its government, should establish a system for marketing not only wheat but all farm products in a manner which will bring the best returns to the producers."

MAYORS DISCUSS LOW-COST HOUSING

Government Is Assailed For Tardiness In Passing More Effective Legislation

OTTAWA, March 18 (C.P.), — Joint meeting of the Dominion Conference of Mayors and the Union of Canadian Municipalities to-day will seek to crystalize results of two days' discussion in a series of resolutions drafted yesterday by a committee.

One of the resolutions, as reported at the start of the meeting, will propose amalgamation of the two bodies.

Consideration debate is expected on the resolution recommending a "strike vote" of the municipalities, in an effort to impress the Dominion Government that they are unable to carry their share of unemployment relief.

To-night a delegation from the joint conference will present the result of its deliberations to the Cabinet.

Housing problems, and especially low-cost housing, were discussed from every possible angle yesterday as the three-day meet proceeded through its agenda.

The day's housing deliberations attracted representatives from all the major welfare societies and social agencies, in addition to a maximum attendance of civic delegates.

House for $17.60.

The conference heard outlined by Professor Percy E. Nobbs of McGill University a mathematically-detailed scheme of self-liquidating low-cost housing, which would provide five-room dwellings for $17.60 per month.

It heard the Dominion Government assailed for its tardiness in bringing forth some more effective housing legislation. It heard the present Housing Act condemned as "abortive" by Marsh Magwood, Reeve of York Township, Ont.

Rev. C. E. Silcox, general secretary of the Social Service Council of Canada, told what they could do towards relieving the housing shortage while they were waiting for the senior governments to act. He urged them to promote wholesale razing of deteriorating sections at the centres of cities and construction of modern apartments within walking distance of business centres.

What the United States was doing and attempting to do was outlined by Miles Colean, technical director of large scale housing, from Washington. The conference was warned shortly after by Professor Nobbs that Canada should avoid the "lavish" example of the United States in its housing policy.

FIND CAR OWNER DEAD IN MACHINE

George Donaldson Has Rubber Tubing Attached To Exhaust In Hand

LINDSAY March 18. — George Donaldson, a young man, whose home is on Ringwood Road, Toronto, was found dead in his car at Bobcaygeon yesterday morning. Monoxide fumes caused his death, and an inquest was deemed unnecessary.

Donaldson, owner of a fine summer home at Bobcaygeon, had been spending a few days in the village. He drove his car into the isolated fair grounds, attached a long piece of rubber tubing to the exhaust pipe, turned on the motor, and sat in the car clutching the tube in his hand.

The motor was still running when the man was found.

DUPLESSIS PARTY RETAINS BEAUCE

J. E. Perron Defeats Action Liberal Nationale Candidate By 377

ST. JOSEPH DE BEAUCE, Que., March 18 (C.P.)—Union Nationale's ranks in the Quebec Legislature were back at full strength to-day with the election of a Government candidate to the vacant Beauce County seat.

In the first by-election since the young Government's entry to office last year, J. Emile Perron kept the seat on the Union Nationale side of the Assembly yesterday, winning a three-cornered fight in the contest necessitated by the resignation of Dr. Raoul Poulin a few months ago.

On the basis of 72 out of 74 polls, Perron beat out Vital Cliche, Action Liberal Nationale, by 377 votes. The unofficial count of all but two polls was: Perron (U.N.) 3566; Cliche (A. L.N.) 3,221, and Wilfrid Doyon (Ind.) 875.

Cliche, according to Returning Officer Joseph Lambert, said after the tabulation that he would call for a judicial recount of the votes. At the same time his most prominent supporter, Edouard Lacroix, Liberal member of Parliament for Beauce—saw the election result as a vote of "non-confidence" in the administration of Premier Duplessis, claiming the win had been obtained by "constable" methods.

Haliburton Lady, 89, Goes Flying Again

Eagle Lake, March 18—(CP)

MRS. M. Birchall, 89-year-old Eagle Lake resident, yesterday made her second airplane flight and said she enjoyed it "immensely."

She took her first ride a year ago when, over the protests of friends, she went up in a plane which was "barnstorming" in the Eagle Lake district in Haliburton.

Yesterday when she heard a plane was making flights from Headlake, fourteen miles from here, she requested she be driven there to make another flight over the district in which she pioneered.

ESPOSITO'S FATE STILL WITH JURY 31-YEAR-OLD CASE

Judge Refuses Request For Review Of One Witness' Evidence

DELIBERATE ALL NIGHT

NEWCASTLE Pa., March 18. — (AP.)—Fate of Rocco Esposito, resident of Kirkland Lake, Ont., charged with the 31-year-old slaying of Francesco Romeo, rested today with a jury that had deliberated until early this morning without reaching a verdict.

The jury received the case yesterday afternoon and worked until 2 o'clock this morning before retiring. Once the jurors came out to ask for a review of the testimony of one witness but Judge Walter W. Braham refused, asserting it would put undue emphasis on a portion of the evidence.

Esposito yesterday denied he had killed Romeo. He asserted he left Newcastle a day before the shooting.

The 36-year-old Italian said he had worked in several states and had been to Belgium since 1926. For years he said, he worked in Northern Ontario. He was arrested January 1, at Kirkland Lake and, waiving extradition, was brought here to face trial.

CLARKSTON, Wash., March 18 —(CP)—Orr F. House of Lewiston, Ore., won the Veterans of Foreign Wars lying championship with a juicy tale.

He said he shipped six carloads of watermelons to market last year —one melon on each car. The train wrecked at a bridge and juice from the broken melons caused a bridge washout.

One Officer—200 Strikers

Mrs. Martha Louise Black, M.P. for Yukon Territory, told the House of Commons how a strike had been conducted in her district. There was evidence at the start that the "sit-down" idea had penetrated to the Yukon, but an officer of the Mounted Police visited the silver camp in question and stated:

"Boys, this is, after all, private property; I think you had better go down to Mayo."

There were several hundred men involved, and they went to Mayo. The strikers organized committees to make certain there was no disregard of laws or the decencies of life. Mrs. Black recounted it was not long before the mining company agreed to negotiate with the men and met most of the demands which they had made, after which they went back to work.

Recalling what has taken place within recent months during strikes in United States and at Canadian points as well, where there has been free fighting and a too large number of hospital cases afterwards, the regard for law and order in the Yukon stands up like a sore thumb. Evidently the Mounted Police have lost none of their lustre in the far-off corner of the Dominion. One lone officer riding into a camp where 200 miners were thinking in terms of the new "sit-down" strike, and merely explaining they were on private property and suggesting they go elsewhere; then having the miners fall in and depart with no blows struck and no violence shown! It should make interesting reading in what we mistakenly refer to as the more civilized parts of the continent.

An Asset To Toronto

Toronto is fortunate in that it has its Mendelssohn Choir. In common with all other large centres of population it has its limitations and its sore spots. But it also has its Mendelssohn Choir.

Toronto has a rather strange municipal outlook; it has whole streets which are frequently referred to as slum areas, and it has its share of that peculiar feeling which causes some of its folk to consider that Toronto is actually a great section of Ontario. But once again, it also has its Mendelssohn Choir.

Toronto has its business houses and firms which are constantly reaching out into territory all over the province in order to take more orders to Toronto. It has a great university toward the support of which Toronto pays nothing at all. But after recounting that it is well to remember once more—Toronto has its Mendelssohn Choir.

And Toronto runs bus lines into many sections of the country far removed from the city itself, and the purpose is to try and take people to Toronto and cause them to spend their money there. It is the very thing which earned for Toronto the name of Hogtown. But then again we recall that Toronto has its Mendelssohn Choir.

The choir has visited Peterborough, and when the folk here think of Toronto they think of the Mendelssohn Choir. It is probably the finest publicity agent the city possesses. It gives an impression of Toronto which that city must desire in its best moments to have created and spread abroad.

A Life Well Spent

The Examiner publishes elsewhere on this page today a letter written by a gentleman in Chicago, and we count it high privilege to be able to print such a communication. It recalls that the writer of the letter came to Peterborough to the office of the late Dr. Morrison, whose passing saddened Peterborough not long since.

This young man was away from home, and he says Dr. Morrison saw to it that he formed the proper associations in the city; he made it his business to introduce him to the people at church and he also made it plain that his home was open to him. All that took place more than thirty years ago, but the man in Chicago has never forgotten it, and he is pleased to admit frankly that his association with Dr. Morrison meant a great deal to him in the period when his life habits were in the process of formation.

That indeed is high tribute; it is something which is wholesome and entirely worth-while, and it is deep and abiding. It is at the moment difficult to think of anything which could bring more sincerity to the task of kindly reference than to say "When I was a young man I felt his influence and it was good."

A Ponderous Word

When Lieut.-Col. George A. Drew spoke in Toronto he used a word which no writer of newspaper headlines would be moved to reproduce. Just this: Over-governmentation.

Most of the folk have been talking about the same thing, but so far they have been content with referring to the condition as "too much government." Some of them may feel moved to apply a few adjectives of their own selection, but speakers can place certain emphasis on the words when three are used. They can say TOO much, or too MUCH as they feel.

If they are moved to adopt that larger word, overgovernmentation, they will have to let the thing slide along until it is through coming out, just like a long sausage in which it would not do to tie a knot in the middle.

We have no urge to write about the matter today, but when it does come again we believe we will stick to the old form and speak of too much government. It would be tough to start on that long word—overgovernmentation—and then bust the point off the pencil before getting all the way through.

Trees Can Become Tired

J. J. Johnson, Dominion fruit commissioner, made the statement at London, Ont., that during the season of 1934-35 there had been planted in Middlesex county alone 11,236 apple trees. The reason for this unusual development was an effort by orchardists to overtake the damage which had been done during the winter of 1933-34 when severe weather killed so many of the trees.

There were orchards where King and Baldwin trees suffered severely that winter, while Spies close by came through as though there had been nothing unusual going on. There was a good deal of reasoning indulged in to try and find the explanation, for Spies are no more rugged than are King or Baldwin trees. George Laithwaite, one of the best orchardists in Ontario, whose farm is in Huron county near Goderich, offered this explanation because his Baldwins and Kings had suffered while his Spies were untouched:

> "The reason why the Baldwins and Kings suffered from the cold winter seems plain enough to me. For several seasons they had been bearing unusually good crops. They had actually been doing more for me than they should have done, and for that reason they were tired; too much had gone out of them, the Spies, on the other hand, although having no failures charged against them, had not been putting forth as much effort, and they had actually been taking it easier, so there was more strength and life in them. I am quite satisfied that when trees face a hard winter the 'tired' ones are not going to stand it as well as those which have no reason to be tired or run down."

Mr. Laithwaite, who counts his trees in thousands, is an authority who knows apple trees as few men do, and for that reason we regard his opinion as something not far removed from being conclusive as to why some trees went through that hard winter all right while others were black the following spring.

Hard Case to Handle

We never before heard of Quarreyville, N. B., but now it is in the news of the day because a dozen children attending public school there have been expelled for refusing to stand while the National Anthem is being sung and they will not salute the flag.

If the children were free to follow their own inclinations and desires they would probably do the same as other pupils; they would salute the flag and they would sing the National Anthem.

In this case, as in others of a similar sort which have been reported from other centres, the children are following directions given to them at home. They are told before going to school what they are to do and what they are not to do, and so while the teachers and trustees have to deal primarily with the children, they are actually in conflict with their parents, who claim their religious beliefs make patriotic training impossible of reception.

First impulse is to put the children out of the school, and that is quite a simple matter to attend to. But once out of the school they have no facilities for education. They are being punished for something which their parents are doing, for these children would not dare do something at school which would mean direct and open defiance of the wishes and instructions of the home.

We admit such parents are a trifle hard to understand. It is said that most of the parents concerned are holding positions in the gift of the provincial government, and two families are receiving pensions from the government. They appear to be willing enough to live by receiving salaries or allowances from the government of the land, and yet refuse to allow their children to act as others who respect and observe the traditions and customs of the same government as exemplified by the patriotic exercises in the schools. Admittedly such cases are stubborn things to handle justly and wisely. The children are put out in the front row as the offenders, while the truth is the offenders are the parents at home.

The Way It Works

Mayor La Guardia of New York has said about all he can say about Adolf Hitler of Germany. When he became weary of invective then he gave place to General Hugh S. Johnson, who came prominently to the front as director of the NRA policies of the Washington government. In the contest it seems that Johnson is a better man than the mayor of New York. He said the Nazis "were a mess of dirty intrigue," and he had something to say about them being the scum of the big cities.

New York has staged several of these protest meetings against Hitler rule and influence, and against his attempts to promote his sphere of influence elsewhere.

What is the result? Simply this: The German people are being informed of these attacks on Hitler through their own controlled papers. The interpretation placed upon it all is that Hitler is a martyr, and United States is preparing in some way for an attack on him and on Germany. From that point the papers and the propaganda directors of Germany proceed to state the time has arrived to draw a closer ring of protection around Hitler. They must see to it that nothing happens to him. So in the end all this business of denunciation carried on in New York and elsewhere is brought as grist to the Hitler mill in Germany. The papers there cannot print what they desire to print; they must print what they are told to use, so the attacks from New York are being turned into new blocks of stone with which to strengthen and fortify the position of Hitler in Germany. And even Hitler himself will not object to that.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Reno, Nevada, has had an earthquake. It was probably caused by the arrival of a woman there who was not in search of a divorce.

The British army is to be supplied with four meals a day evidently in accordance with the old slogan that an army fights on its stomach.

Peterborough is convinced that much greater harmony is to be found in the Mendelssohn choir than in the Ontario Legislature.

At all events it will have to be admitted that these Royal Commissions provide plenty of work for lawyers and the pay is not bad either.

Unemployed Edmonton married men are taking a strike vote and before the ballots are counted the authorities should make it clear that the first strike in this case is also the third.

George Fulford, Liberal member for Leeds, comes to bat with the idea that Ontario's highways should be colored. At the worst they would certainly make a brave showing on the road maps.

John Rennie of Toronto predicts that the next depression will come in 1948. If he is right the present relief machinery will probably carry over into the next slump.

Those who do not believe that there is anything in a name are asked to note that the president of the Sault Hackles Club, the liars' organization, is none other than Elmer N. Hooey.

Speaker in the Legislature says that the employer is the forgotten man. It has got so that even sit-down strikers fail to remember in whose property they are sitting.

Municipal tax bills must show that there has been one mill reduction in taxes as a result of the Ontario government's municipal subsidy. Would it not simplify matters by describing that item merely as conscience money?

A bill has been introduced in the Manitoba Legislature to prohibit movie theatres from giving away chinaware or other gifts. If they want business the show places will have to attract it solely by the merit of the entertainment they provide.

Three candidates have been nominated in the Federal by-election in West Hamilton and only six persons attended the official nomination proceedings to hear the addresses. The campaign in that riding is likely to be over before most folk learn it was on.

D. Leo Dolan makes the helpful suggestion that Canadian hotels and restaurants list Canadian foodstuffs on their menus. It is to be imagined tourists would appreciate the feeling that they were getting something different from their own home brands.

CONVINCED

(By A. B. K.)

¶ They taught me on Concession Ten, where I was raised with goodly men, that gambling games were bad; I often heard the people say, how folk would take your cash away, they warned me as a lad.

¶ In after years I must admit, I weakened now and then a bit, I went both gee and haw; for people out to raise some dough, would peddle tickets as they'd go, and then they'd have a draw.

¶ I bought a ticket on a clock, you'd hear it strike for near a block, with it I'd not be late; and sixty-seven won that prize, and took the clock of goodly size, and mine was sixty-eight.

¶ I bought ten tickets on a car, in it I'd travel fast and far, 'twould ease my corns each day; but when they pulled the tickets out, I had no chance to rise and shout, for mine were miles away.

¶ Another time it was a cow, and later on a fatted sow, a new washday machine; on suits of clothes and tons of coal, I've bartered cash to wreck my soul, no trophy have I seen.

¶ And so I think about the men, who dwelt there on Concession Ten, of truths they spoke at night; and all the tickets I've possessed, have made me even more impressed—that what they said was right.

We Should Quit Yorkshire Hogs

Parliamentary Debates

Mr. BLAIR (North Wellington): I appreciate the remarks of my hon. friend (Mr. Stevens). The difference between what the Dutch farmer gets for his bacon and the price in England, and the difference between what the Canadian farmer gets and the price of Canadian bacon in Britain, is a question that should be very seriously considered by this house. Unquestionably the Canadian packers are making it difficult for the Canadian farmer to raise pigs. I am sure that those who have raised pigs in Canada must realize that they have been doing so at a loss for a number of years. I have here a letter from Mr. Stanley McLean of Canada Packers, an outstanding man, who disagrees with some of the opinions that have been expressed. He says:

In other words, if Canadian hogs had been as good as Danish hogs, the Canadian farmer in the last three years would have received for the hogs he produces an additional $12,000,000 per year.

That is an important statement.

The fact that the Canadian farmer did not receive this extra $12,000,000 per year was a misfortune.

That is from Mr. Stanley McLean of Canada Packers. It is believed that the spread is too great between the price paid in Great Britain and the price paid here to the Canadian farmer. The hon. member has referred to the differential in prices, and I was going to bring that up. I have figures—they are the same as he has given—showing an average of about 4.7 cents as the differential between what the Canadian farmer gets and what the Danish farmer gets in relation to the profits made by the packer. Our packers seem to take all the profits, leaving a small margin of loss for the farmer.

There is another matter to which I would call attention, something I have been working at for the last eight or nine years. I started nine years ago and made a poor success. At one time I was in touch with certain Danish professors; in fact, these gentlemen from Copenhagen were at my home. They said I would never get good bacon and hams from Yorkshire hogs, I had two hundred of them, and these gentlemen laughed at me and said, "These hogs have no hams on them; they have just two posts for hind legs and you will never get hams from them." I got reports from Denmark, and this professor gave me the differentiation between the shoulder and the side. Danish hogs have a larger ham and shoulder. Our Yorkshire hogs are wild animals; they have not been really domesticated. The Danes have beaten us in bacon, eggs, and butter on the British market. Their industry is highly specialized, and I suggest we take advantage of specialization along these lines.

Eight years ago I appealed strongly to the Minister of Agriculture of that day (Mr. Motherwell). One of his assistants was named Arkell, and they wrote to me that they had tried Canadian bacon on the British market and that it tasted better than any Danish bacon. Well, I do not care what they like or do not like. If they want Canadian bacon, we can keep a few Canadian hogs for them; but what we want to know is what the British market wants. It was from that point of view that I argued with them eight years ago. Then the Hon. Mr. Weir got in, and by persistent efforts he imported the Swedish landrace. It is not a Danish pig but it is far superior to our Yorkshire. It is different from the Danish landrace which is a better type. I received from Copenhagen a statement comparing the two types with our own Yorkshire. The Swedish is midway between, but it is a part Red York, and in the British market it is priced exactly between the price of Canadian bacon and Danish bacon. Danish bacon is generally ten shillings per hundredweight—112 pounds—above the Canadian; Swedish runs about five shillings above Canadian. You will find by your weekly reports that that keeps fairly steady. The trick is here. If we in Canada are going to compete with Denmark on the British market why should we not secure a type of pig that the British people want, and then try and cure that pig by the system they require?

Another thing, Hon. Mr. Weir imported some fifty or sixty of these Swedish pigs from Sweden, and I believe he would have brought in the Danish pig but for the interference of the oligarchy in the Department of Agriculture here. I believe they prevented the Hon. Mr. Motherwell bringing them in. I never blame him; I blame the department. I blame the department for not allowing Mr. Weir to bring them in, and I blame the same department for not allowing Mr. Gardiner to bring them in. I am not sure of the personal views of the minister, but it is from that department I got the opinions. To show how brilliant they are in the Department of Agriculture, I was there the other day and I said to the man in charge of the publishing, "You should send to the members of the agriculture committee the live stock market report." He said, "We do; we send them every week." I said, "You do not." He said, "I will show you," and he got out the list of names. The first was Shaver, the next Eccles Gott, I said, "They are out of the house." The next was George Spotton and the next Tom Cayley. I said, "They are dead. Your list has not been revised for the past six years."

Mr. BENNETT: That is right.

Mr. BLAIR: I should like to know why the members of this house are not getting that report. That shows how they are conducting their affairs. I touch my hat to the Minister of Agriculture (Mr. Gardiner). I have great appreciation of the service he has rendered already, but I will take my hat right off to him if he will go there and dismiss about one-third of them. They are simply deadbeats, not alive to the world, but dead as Casabianca's ghost.

Mr. BENNETT: Then they do not need the lethal chamber.

Where Gasoline Is a Menace

(From the Kitchener Record.)

DESPITE the tragic results that so often follow the use of gasoline in the home for cleaning purposes, people will go on taking chances. Warnings are ignored. In effect they say: "I have used it often and nothing happened, I don't think it is nearly as dangerous as they say it is." Then some day the trap springs and the lesson is learned too late.

Persons who are still not convinced that gasoline is "liquid dynamite" and that it should be handled with due respect, especially in confined quarters, would do well to read and carefully digest what Lionel J. Bishop, deputy fire marshall, had to say during a lecture to Chatham Collegiate Institute pupils some time ago on the danger of using gasoline. "Persons using gasoline or benzine for cleaning clothes in their homes," he remarked with emphasis, "don't give a hang for their lives or are insane." This is strong language, but it is the only way to make some people listen to reason.

Mr. Bishop pointed out that gasoline fumes travel down. With the lid off a container for gasoline in a home, or factory, the fumes will travel downstairs and into rooms spreading danger in every direction. It only needs the fumes to reach a furnace, a flame in a kitchen range, an electric current or even the tiny spark which is created by the turning on of an electric switch to touch off the explosion. Continuing he said:

"You can't be careful when you are using gasoline. The hazard of using gasoline is equal to 82 pounds of dynamite. I would sooner have a case of dynamite in the basement of my home than a quarter cup of gasoline from which fumes can escape. One stick of dynamite will cause an explosion sufficient to lift 1,000 pounds of solid rock. Fumes from one gallon of gasoline can cause an explosion of a force 194 times as great. Now you know what I mean when I say that people who use gasoline in homes for cleaning don't give a hang for their lives, or are insane."

We pass this information and warning on in the hope that it will provoke serious thought in the minds of those who think gasoline isn't dangerous. When used without proper precautions gasoline is one of the best ways to invite sudden, violent death. Think it over.

Junior Farmers Can Help.

(From the Chatham News.)

ONE WAY to encourage young men and young women in a recreation that will endure for life, observed an enthusiastic horticulturalist the other day, is to make them a gift of a piece of vacant, perhaps waste land, with permission to make it a plantation of valuable varieties of trees.

With a plan under way to reforest available land in all sections of rural Ontario, there is no reason why the organizations of junior farmers in every county of the province should not play a useful part in this valuable reforestation work which will in time, if carried on systematically for a few years, be an important factor in preventing the floods which in recent years have caused so much damage throughout the country.

Trees are obtainable from the Ontario government's Norfolk nurseries. The tree plantlets should be young—not more than two or three years old. The most valuable plants for this purpose are the white pine and white spruce, because their wood is increasing rapidly in value, and will continue to do so indefinitely, owing to their qualities and the uses to which their wood, when mature, may be employed.

Such a plot should be thoroughly cultivated until the soil becomes pulverized, and the plantlets should be set out two or three feet apart each way. When six or eight inches in height, they should be thinned out until they are at least six feet apart, to be allowed to grow there to maturity. Each plant bed should be kept free from weeds and seedlings or other sorts of trees until the pines and spruces are finally placed and then the seeds of other trees may be scattered among them in order to force the young evergreens to shed off their limbs and grow straight, tapering stems similar to those of the ordinary forest pine. Otherwise they will be useless for manufacturing purposes. No evergreen tree should ever be pruned, because it is difficult to prevent it from making gum, and this tends to check the natural rapid growth.

If the farmer has no children to aid him in the work of reforestation of land not suitable for agriculture, it will pay him to do the work himself. Land that is unsuited for any other kind of crop may grow trees which at any stage of development will add to the price of his land if he wishes to sell.

HOW IT HAPPENED.

(Niagara Falls Review)

EVERY evening for the past three years a motorist in an Ontario city had made use of a certain residential street in coming from business. He chose this route because he was able to make better time than was possible on the more heavily travelled main thoroughfares. During all these years he had never encountered any danger or even serious emergency. But in the dusk of an October evening last year, a young girl hurrying home to dinner dashed on to the roadway from in front of a parked car. Travelling at his customary speed, the driver was unable to avoid her. He attributed her death to circumstances beyond his control, refusing to acknowledge the fact that an important contributing cause lay in his speed in the vicinity of the parked car, which, while it had proved safe enough on hundreds of occasions, had, when the real emergency arose, proved too great to permit a stop in safety.

W. G. GUNTER

He lived his life, in a well-chosen groove,
Where tasks were never light, nor labors few;
The voice of Duty he could plainly hear,
And to its calls he never proved untrue.

Customers, or teachers alike, were
His constant thought
Wherever he went, as years have ebbed away;
On many minds were deep impressions wrought.

That live afresh in mourning hearts today.

He solved his problems with a heart-felt zest,
Were they by day, or in the hours of night;
Where need of strength were needed at their best,
He stood alert and dared to face to fight.

His fears were for the welfare of our race,
But courage made him calm and strangely brave.
He saw the need of culture, faith and grace,
And to his work a well-trained life he gave.

He spent his years in no penurious way,
His sympathies were wide and deep and strong;
He dressed in his to better make each day,
As Time and Tide bore human lives along.

Beyond his tasks our honored friend has gone—
Beyond the clouds of day and shades of night,
To greet the grandeur of the glorious dawn,
That ushers in the reign of fadeless light.

HERE'S A LESSON.

(Kitchener Record)

THE CHICAGO WOMAN attorney and one of the two girls she reared to do "as they darn well pleased" are in the news again.

Several months ago one of her daughters, 16, eloped. Now the rugged individualism of the other girl, 18, has expressed itself in a fan dance in a theatre.

In each incident, the mother apparently forgot her child-training philosophy and flew into indignant action; then relaxed and chuckled over the antics of her darlings.

To thoughtful newspaper readers, this must all be very entertaining—and instructive. If results of the mother's child-rearing policy teach anything, the lesson seems to be that young daughters should not be allowed to do as they darn well please.

NUISANCE GONE

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

ABANDONMENT of the amusement tax by the Ontario government, as indicated in the recent budget pronouncement, marks the passing of a levy that was generally regarded as a nuisance. It was particularly objectionable in athletic circles. At football and baseball matches it was necessary in some cases to obtain tickets at two separate wickets. At the theatres the inconvenience was at a minimum since both organizations provided the admission tickets and tax tickets together.

The principle of taxing amusements probably is about as sound as any. If people have money to spend on such recreation they are devoting it to luxury and therefore might be expected to make the small contribution represented by the tax. But the normal human reaction is not along such lines. The average individual pays a good deal of attention to a levy that is always noticeable because of the manner of collection, while taxes that are included in the price of articles pass by unnoticed.

To The Editor

TRIBUTE TO DR. MORRISON

Editor Examiner,

Sir: As one who was closely associated with Dr. Morrison in my young manhood, and who has practiced dentistry in Chicago since 1906, may I add my tribute to one whom I was privileged to call "Friend".

I apprenticed in Dr. Morrison's office for three years, and as such got to know him intimately. I count myself fortunate in coming under his influence. I was away from home, in a strange city and among strangers. Dr. Morrison saw to it, that I made church affiliations at once, and that his home was open to me at all times, and so I feel a debt of gratitude to him for directing me at a time when such influence was needed.

I am not alone in my testimony for this good man, for I had occasion to observe during these years, that such was his interest in all young men—that no opportunity was ever lost in using his influence for good.

There are hundreds of men who will gratefully remember him and the friendship which he so freely offered. Peterborough is honored in having had such a citizen for so long a time.

DAVID M. SOMERVILLE, D.D.S.

SPEAKS PLAINLY

(Nuneaton, Eng., Observer)

A GROCER buys commodities, pays his assistants, and meets his expenses by the sale of tea, sugar, and other goods. They form his stock-in-trade.

The only stock-in-trade a newspaper possesses is space.

It is only by selling that space—not giving it away, that a newspaper can buy its raw materials, pay wages and meet expenses.

The greater the circulation of a newspaper, the more valuable is its space, and the more worth paying for.

But the greater the circulation the greater are the costs of production, so with all the goodwill in the world, newspapers must exercise justice, before generosity.

Will all who seek free advertising for any cause or commodity, please accept this final intimation of the future policy of the Nuneaton Observer.

WHAT BABSON FOUND.

(St. Catharines Standard)

ROGER W. BABSON, the well-known economist and commercial statistician, recently told of a remarkable experience he had with radio and newspaper advertising. He broadcasted an advertisement by radio at a cost of $5,000 and received sixteen enquiries and two orders as a result. A couple of days later he printed his advertisement in five newspapers in different cities at a cost of $3,000 and received 4,000 replies. The radio advertisement cost him $166.66 for each reply, whereas the newspaper advertisement was only 75 cents a reply.

Sustained newspaper advertising with its power of the printed word, embellished by attractive illustrations and set-up has been proved to the satisfaction of every expert advertiser on the continent as the cheapest and most effective form of advertising. Radio has been in use now for several years and yet the printing industry, due to its increasing revenue, has reached an all-time high in employment and capital investment.

CONDEMNS COMMUNISM

Pope Says It Is "Ruin of Family And Society."

VATICAN CITY, March 18 (AP).—Pope Pius XI. overhauled Communism as "the ruin of family and society" in a lengthy encyclical issued today.

The Holy Father, in a vigorous attack on the forces he has fought even throughout his recent illness, declared only the Roman Catholic Church would effectively oppose the disintegrating effort of Communism.

able way," he continued. "I would like to see the trade associated in your activities. Mr. Singleton has suggested the trade might be given opportunity to use your overseas facilities. That is a good gesture and would be one of the means of obtaining proper relationship with them.

"My conception of the most useful kind of co-operative unit is one that operates efficiently with a certain proportion of the business to be done and I would be content to leave the rest to the private trade.

"It would be a grand thing if we could all get 13 cents for our cheese this year and next, but I am afraid there is no power in sight at present that can assure us of 13 cents a pound or even 12 cents. The element of the market nobody can determine or absolutely control. What we are concerned about, it seems to me, is getting the best price possible and the best net return—and they are not necessarily the same thing."

(Last year the association authorized the executive to press the Federal Government for a minimum price of 13 cents for cheese).

What is Behind It

Dr. Barton ascribed to grading the development of a premium overseas for New Zealand cheese. He said the matter of consolidating small factories in Eastern Ontario was a big problem.

"As to the future of the cheese industry," he said, "it is not going to depend upon any single factor. It is not going to depend upon the fact you have a man in the Old Country or ten men over there, although that would be important. Our factors are cows, the kind of milk we are putting into these factories and how they are equipped, your organization, the marketing methods and a dozen other things.

"It is a mistake to think there is any panacea as far as any branch of industry is concerned," Dr. Barton concluded. "You can have all the organizations in the world and the most representation in the Old Country, but if you continue to put bad milk into your cheese you are jeopardizing your position and the more we depend upon the higher-priced trade we are anxious to get the more serious is a weakness of that kind."

Get the Tests Up

G. R. Green, who has investigated effects of mineral deficiences on Oxford herds, showed delegates how butterfat tests had been brought up by feeding bonemeal, phosphate and other mineral supplements.

"We cannot influence normal butterfat tests in this way," he explained, "but we have considerable data to lead us to believe that we can bring up subnormal tests—and we have plenty—and by feeding cows what they want raise their tests to a much higher level."

W. J. Somerset reviewed the overseas market situation and commented on various points in the report and correspondence of the overseas agent.

"Failure to realize that marketing is the first problem of production may bring disaster," he said. "And there is this to be said for cheese as against other products: They have been quick to realize the necessities of the situation."

"Your overseas representative has demonstrated beyond doubt that higher than so-called market price can be obtained from the wholesale trade for Canadian cheese, that reported market prices are often fictitious, that high prices all along have been paid for best quality cheese and that you have not been getting the benefit. There is not the slightest doubt that his operations overseas and the buying of your association to supply him were a large contributing factor in raising the price last summer—and he has done this with the entire and cordial approval of the British trade."

Patron Must Get More

"If we can get the price up to the cheese patron for his milk, the supply of cheese will rise to its former or higher levels. In no other way can it be done. Lecturing cheese patrons that they are losing the British market—that there must be continuity of supply even if they lose money—is no good. Canadian farmers did not lose the British market, they walked away from it."

"Britain will buy all the Canadian cheese we can send," declared Mr. Green. "They complain bitterly that we are not sending it over. But the price the farmer gets for his milk is all-important. The consumer price for our cheese in Britain is ample to pay our producers satisfactory prices. It is your job to get it for the patrons and that is the only way to restore our cheese industry to its former proportions."

"Mr. Grieve finds the Canadian produce trade has not been doing its job. As your distributors, the people you employ to sell your cheese in Britain, they have not been getting the price they should for it. His indictment of them and how they broke the market unnecessarily last fall in the way that cost the cheese patrons over $170,000 is complete and convincing.

"The future of Mr. Grieve's work, as I see it, would be to extend the services of selling cheese consigned to him by the produce trade for the purpose. He can do better for them that they can for themselves."

Cowan Presents Resolutions

In the closing minutes H. B. Cowan of Peterborough, secretary of the Canadian Dairy Farmers' Federation presented a baton of resolutions and all were adopted. One cated upon Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Federal Agriculture Minister, to inaugurate a campaign against Banet disease. Another congratulated the Government upon obtaining renewal of free entry to Britain for Canadian dairy products.

President McIntyre approved a proposed change in the name of the association from "patrons" to "producers." He said the word "patrons" was misunderstood in Great Britain.

G. A. Elliott, of Norwood, president of the Peterborough county branch, invited the Association to meet next year at Peterborough.

The Scottish Football Association has refused permission to broadcast an account of the international match between England and Scotland this year.

Loblaw Store Is Renovated Has New Front

All Is Ready For Formal Re-opening of Most Modern Store

All is in readiness for the formal re-opening of the most modern store in the chain of Loblaw food markets, in this city to-morrow. A fuller and even more convenient service is to be afforded the public as a result of renovation and extension of the Charlotte street establishment.

...a full line of meats and fruits and vegetables to the complete grocery range it has carried in the past, the store is planning to give the maximum of service to all its patrons. The interior of the store has been cleverly re-designed to include the two new departments and yet the convenience which allows patrons to obtain their wants without a minute of delay has been advanced. Re-arrangement has been carried through out the store.

Outstanding Specials

To celebrate the opening, outstanding grocery, meat and fruit and vegetable specials are being offered in the store to-morrow. The general public is being invited to visit the store and make a thorough inspection of the highly-modern facilities.

The re-opening of the fine store, according to Herbert McConkey, district supervisor, who is here for the event, marks another forward step for the community. The store's policy will in the future as in the past be that laid down by J. Milton Carr, president of Loblaw's. Mr. McConkey stressed. On the store wall the following order of the president is framed: "We wish to impress upon every employee that when weighing meats and vegetables we are placing in your hands the most valuable possession of this company, its reputation for honest dealing, and that you must see at all times that the customer gets all she pays for as to weight, quality and price."

Front Rebuilt

The front of the store has been rebuilt to a new and trim, modern appearance in a scheme of cream and monel finishings. Entering the market, patrons will find increased floor space. To the right is an up-to-date fruit and vegetable stand in the clean, white finish which carries the atmosphere of sanitary cleanliness and tidiness throughout the store.

The central part of the floor space is devoted entirely to the hundreds of nationally - advertised grocery products offered by the Loblaw organization. On the right to the rear is the new meat department fitted with the most recently developed meat marketing facilities. Customers on the way out pass through one of four convenient checking avenues arranged with a close regard for speed and efficiency.

F. E. Moore is in charge of the branch. James Horne will supervise the meat department and the fruit and vegetable department will be in the hands of Edward Lesh.

After the ceremony the young couple motored to the home of Mr. James Yule, where a wedding dinner was served to the immediate family only. Later the bride and groom visited friends in Toronto before leaving for their future home at Kirkland Lake.

URGE WAREHOUSE SET UP IN LONDON FOR THE DOMINION

Handle Bacon, Fruit, Eggs, Poultry, Honey And Dairy Products

BOON TO PRODUCERS

KEMPTVILLE, Ont. March 18—(CP).—There is an opportunity for co-operation between the Dominion and the various Provincial Governments of Canada to assist producers by establishing a central warehouse in London for bacon, fruit eggs, poultry, honey and dairy products, in opinion of Thomas W. Grieve, overseas representative of the Ontario Cheese Patrons Association, whose report was presented to the annual convention to-day by S. L. Joss, secretary-treasurer.

"I believe," Mr. Grieve wrote, "such a depot of centrally located would facilitate marketing of the various products by giving the small buyer facilities for collecting his goods without undue delay or expense, and would have considerable advertising value as a recognizable depot for Canadian products."

Other speakers were G. R. Green, agricultural representative for Oxford, who reported on experiments in connection with mineral deficiency in the soil; W. B. Somerset, of Ontario Marketing Branch, on "results of overseas representatives work and future possible developments," and J. F. Singleton, of Ottawa Dairy Commissioner for Canada, who emphasized the importance of properly maturing cheese for export.

Dr. J. H. Grisdale, former Deputy Minister of Agriculture, who was a scheduled speaker, telephoned that he was not able to get through to Kemptville from his home at Iroquois. The district has experienced a heavy snow fall during the night and on Tuesday and it is still stormy.

Mr. Grieves' report covered the period since he took over his duties last May. His reception from the trade, he stated, was on all cases courteous, and in some instances enthusiastic, as importers were view with alarm the decline in Canadian production during the past few years and are somewhat apprehensive regarding future supplies.

MARMORA SEPARATE SCHOOL STAGES CONCERT

Marmora Pupils Entertain Crowded House To St. Patrick's Program

(Examiner Correspondence.)

MARMORA, March 18.—Scholars of Marmora Separate School trained by Miss Mabel McCarthy, assisted by members of the Sacred Heart congregation, put on an excellent St. Patrick's concert at the Town Hall on Wednesday evening to a crowded house. Rev. Father G. T. Martin acted as chairman.

The opening number was "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," it being taken as a chorus by Senior boys and girls. Next came "The Dear Little Shamrock" as the contribution of the Junior boys and girls. Harold Auger, in his usual pleasing voice sang "Mother Machree." A dance, "The Irish Lilt," was then prettily executed by six Senior Grade girls. Charles Cummings followed with a fine rendition of "The Rose of Tralee." Dan Shannon, who long since graduated from the Juvenile class of sonasters, brought the house down with "McSority's Twins," and "Since Mary Ran Away With the Coon."

Fine melodrama was then presented in the form of a playlet, "Who Killed Mrs. Marshall." The characters were sustained by Margaret O'Connor, Dorena Gehan, Breen O'Connor, Josie Shannon, Margaret Johnston, Donald Auguer and Harold Auger. A surprise of the evening was the character song, "Phil the Fluter," rendered by Charles Cummings in comic costume. Mrs. H. A. McNally was next encored for her excellent vocal offering, "It's Only An Irishman's Dream." The Senior boys next came before the footlights with a much-applauded song, "Kelly." Assisted by Misses Dorena Gehan, Josie Shannon and Margaret O'Connor, Charles Cummings gave a clever skit, "Maggie McCarthy Looks Through the Door."

This was succeeded by the song, "Reuben, Reuben, I've Been Thinking," featured by six Senior girls, and Reuben Warren. John Shannon having given a humorous recitation, Messrs. C. Cumminss and H. Auger and Mrs. Hugh Brady created much diversion with their skit, "Pete, the Peddler."

The program closed with the chorus, "My Wild Irish Rose," sung by the cast and the National Anthem. Miss Mabel McCarthy was pianist throughout the program. Thanks for the splendid patronage was voiced by Rev. Father G. T. Martin.

FAIRMOUNT

Mrs. R. Hooton has been spending a few days in Cavan with her sister, Mrs. James Douglas.

Several from here attended the funeral of the late Mr. Tom Windrum on Monday.

The maple syrup business will be in full swing this week if the weather permits, but prospects are not as bright as last season, as the frost and snow in the woods are lacking, which will shorten the run somewhat and make an advance in the price.

Mr. Stanley Johnston of Omemee spent Sunday with Mr. Harold Hooton.

A slight improvement is noted in Mrs. J. Earle's health.

Mr. W. Edgerton has finished sawing the wood in the community and has moved his machine to Mount Pleasant.

With the recent snow the farmers have been able to draw their logs to the sawmill and finish the wood business on the sleighs.

Miss Muriel Hooton spent last Thursday with Miss Mary Hooton.

Mr. and Mrs. T. W. McIndoo were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Ballantyne on Sunday evening.

QUEBEC STRIKES COMMUNISTS HARD

New Bill Will Ban Printing Of Red Literature, Close Meeting Places

QUEBEC, March 18—(CP)—Designed to strike at "the very base" of Communism in Quebec, a Government bill to curb Red propaganda needed only royal assent today to become law in this province.

And with the bill's passage, Premier Maurice Duplessis' Government was committed to a fight "to the last ditch" against Communism, described by the Union Nationale Government leader as "Public Enemy No. 1" of Quebec.

The Premier promised the finish fight as the Legislature gave his Anti-Communism bill final reading yesterday, placing in the Government's hands the right to padlock Communistic meeting houses, to ban printing and distributing of Red literature and destroy such literature.

While the bill was under debate also the Premier declared the Government likely would bring in a resolution asking the Federal Parliament to pass "whatever law is necessary" to bar Communism from Quebec. He appealed at the same time to other provincial governments to take similar measures, and said his Government stood ready to complement any Federal legislation with necessary Provincial enactments.

Steel Magnate

Sir Arthur Balfour, Lord Riverdale since he was raised to the peerage in 1935, and head of a powerful Sheffield, England steel corporation, reached Ottawa on his 53rd visit to the Dominion to review export trade in steel as it affects Canadian branches of his company. The steel tycoon will visit Montreal, Hamilton and Winnipeg in the course of his visit. He intimated while in Toronto that the armament manufacturing business would also occupy his attention. Lord Riverdale is 64 years of age.

TRANSPORT BILL FURTHER AMENDED

Goes Before Senate For Third Reading After Maritime Victory

OTTAWA, March 18 (CP)—The government's transport bill, still further amended after it was reported from the senate railways committee will come before the Upper House today for third reading.

Maritime senators won a point yesterday when the measure was amended to exclude from authority of the proposed board of transport commissioners through-shipping to and from Atlantic and Pacific coasts and Great Lakes ports. The committee previously had voted down such an amendment.

Major-General W. A. Griesbach (Cons., Edmonton) asked that the bill be given a six-months hoist on the ground it sought to improve the position of the railways at the expense of western producers through regulation of lake traffic. He said he would vote against it. Westerners were almost unanimous in attacking the measure.

Norway expects 1937 to be better commercially than busy 1936.

What Is Correct?

Can bones be picked?

It is considered the worst kind of manners to pick up any meat (such as a chop) with the fingers and chew at it. It is also incorrect, when dining with others, to eat any part of a bird with the aid of the fingers. There is an excellent reason for this rule. To be compelled to look at someone opposite you with soiled fingers and mouth and soiled napkin is obviously very unpleasant.

How long should a man keep his hat off when talking to a woman?

A man may prefer to, but need not, keep his hat off when he is standing talking with a woman of his own age. If the woman is older, he should keep his hat off until she suggests that he put it on. She will, of course, ask him to replace it if the weather is stormy or cold.

Where does a man walk when he is with two women?

A man walking with two women should walk on the side toward the curb. He should never walk in between the two women. The curb side is supposed to be the dangerous side, and the man offers his protection by walking on that side. There is no inference of lack of attention to the one woman because the man walks beside the other.

Be considerate of your guests— serve only FRESH coffee

THE BASIS OF ALL GOOD MANNERS is consideration of others. That is why no thoughtful hostess today serves any coffee that is not perfectly fresh.

Coffee, when it is stale, develops a rancid taste. It loses its mellow flavor and most of its natural, healthfully stimulating properties. It can cause indigestion, headaches, "nerves."

Certainly no hostess would ever want to be guilty of this careless brand of hospitality. And none needs to be today. Chase & Sanborn Dated Coffee in the bag is priced so economically that everyone can afford to serve it, every day and at the largest gatherings.

Every bag of Dated Coffee is rushed absolutely fresh to your grocer with the date of delivery clearly marked on it. No bag stays on his shelf more than ten days. And because of this system, it can be packed in a simple bag and you save the difference.

Serve fresh, Dated Coffee and see how grateful your family and all your guests are. Order Chase & Sanborn Dated Coffee tomorrow in the inexpensive bag.

You'll just love this spring print dress with the youthful gathered high-waisted bodice effect. Tricky plaits at the top of the sleeves square the shoulders smartly. A seam down the center-back assures smooth hips and loads of animation to the hem of the unusually graceful skirt.

While this crepe dress in powder-blue ground printed in white daisies is very practical for town, it can also go to the dressiest bridge party and then on to cocktails.

After you've finished the print dress, make a plain crepe dress of lovely beige crepe with the lower V-neckline and soft girdle. The pattern provides for both models.

The fascinating sheer plain or print crepes, so feminine and popular, are also suitable.

Still again the pattern can be used for smart cotton challis print or plain bright linen for summer.

The illustrated Sewing Chart makes this model even more simple!

Style No. 3052 is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42-inches bust. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39-inch material.

W.M.S. Meeting At St. Andrew's

The regular monthly meeting of the St. Andrew's W.M.S. was held on Tuesday afternoon in the church parlors.

Miss F. Dixon presided over the meeting, which opened with prayer and the singing of a hymn. Miss Elisabeth Ferguson read the Scripture lesson which was followed by prayer by Mrs. Crowe, while Mrs. Porteous read the devotional leaflet.

The theme of the meeting was "Women and Children of Other Lands," and interesting papers on this subject were read by Mrs. S. L. Barns, Mrs. J. Johnson, Mrs. A. Pilling, and Miss J. E. Ferguson. Mrs. J. Johnson sang very acceptably the solo, "Hark, There Comes a Whisper," with accompaniment by Mrs. Harle. The Easter thankoffering meeting will be held on April 20th, at which the guest speaker will be Mrs. R. M. McMullen, formerly of Korea, who will bring an interesting message.

LAKEFIELD

DORCAS IS TOPIC AT W.A. MEETING

Mrs. Kelly Gives Excellent Paper Before Members Of Lakefield Organization

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LAKEFIELD, March 18. — The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Association of the United Church was held Tuesday afternoon, March 16, in the Sunday School room.

Miss Webster, being unavoidably absent, her assistant was in the chair. Group "B" had charge of the program. Mrs. Hull sang sweetly, "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling." The business was then attended to, and Mrs. Roy Robinson was appointed new corresponding secretary owing to a vacancy. As the ladies had decided one month ago to take up as their Bible study, "The Women of the Bible," a member to deal with the life of one at each monthly meeting, Mrs. Kelly chose "Dorcas" as the Bible character of her paper.

Chintz Covers Are Named This Year

Lady Queensberry's London home also reflects her personality in a most decided fashion. The chintz covers even are printed all over with her name in a design made by herself. You find "Cathleen," "Cathleen," "Cathleen" repeated all over it in fascinating fashion. Once she had a dress embroidered with tiny flowers and "Cathleen Queensberry" written below each flower. There is zebra striped carpet on the stairs and in her own bedroom, all expressing a decided personality.

THANKS TO THE TYROL.

You will find some very entertaining and gay peasant belts. They're charming on a knitted pullover or simple frock. Four attached tows of screw-like braid are laced together by a wool cord with tassels, and small hand-embroidered wool flowers deck them all round. In six colours with contrasting cord, tassels and embroidery, the belts themselves being white, soldier red, vivid blue, emerald green, brown or yellow.

LACE FOR MILADY'S DANCING MOMENTS.

And with this season's heelless and toeless street shoes—lace for her daytime moments, too! New York imports in chiffon, of course, in four notable shades—sunbronze (coppery suntan), desert sun (red copper), caballero leather tan), Valencia (soft suntan).

In various ways each year, choosing names of flowers or automobiles, etc. This year they named themselves after mountains.

Miss Trunie Pearson sang "When Irish Eyes are Smiling," accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Percy Johnston, and Miss Leonard supervised the presentation of prizes.

In the League, besides winning the silver trophy, the Alps also won the first series, players including the captain, Miss Elsie Taylor, and the Misses Alice Johnson, Mary Richardson and Alma Gerard. The Selkirks came second, captained by Miss Mae Wilson, with players in the Misses Eleanor Kirn, Vinta Martin and M. Harvey. Mrs. Cecil Wasson had the high single (309) and Miss Elsie Taylor high three (621), in the first series.

In the second series, the Urals took first place, captained by Miss Irene Howarth, with players in the Misses Phyllis Coleman, Jean Saunders and Mary Easson. Second place went to the Rockies: Miss Margaret Johnston (captain), and the Misses Ann Eagleson and Alice Davis and Mrs. C. Wasson. In this series, the prize for high single was won by Miss Margaret Johnston (320) and for high three by Miss Alice Johnston (612).

The prize for high average (179) went to Miss Ethel Rae, and other prizes for good averages were won by the Misses Mae Wilson, Mary Easson, Agnes Dixon, Eleanor Kirn, Margaret Wyllie, Phyllis Coleman, Irma Rosborough, Mareta Sanderson, Mary Richardson, M. Moore, B. Sloan, B. Hall, A. Davis, Stella Bennett, Irene Howarth, M. Irvine, Agnes Horsfield, Jean Saunders, Ann Eagleson, B. O'Brien, Sally Leonard, Queenie Hope, Alma Gerard, M. Skitch.

Next year's executive was announced, in the Misses Agnes Horsfield, Irene Howarth, Phyllis Coleman and Ann Eagleson.

Other teams taking part in the games included the Laurentians (the Misses Stella Bennett, captain, Irma Rosborough, M. Irvine, A. Horsfield); the Pyrenees (the Misses Ethel Rae, captain, Agnes Dixon, Sally Leonard, B. O'Brien); the Adirondacks (the Misses Queenie Hope, captain, Mareta Sanderson, Eva Skirrow, Bertha Sloan); the Sierras (the Misses Margaret Wylie, captain, M. Moore, M. Skitch, Bernice Hall).

St. James' W.M.S. March Meeting

St. James' W.M.S. held their March meeting on Tuesday afternoon in the class room of St. James' S.S. Hall, with a splendid attendance.

The president Mrs. Elliott, presided over the meeting.

Mrs. W. H. Buckley led in the opening prayer.

The Scripture was read by Mrs. Cripps and Mrs. Harris.

Plans were made for the annual W.M.S. Sunday and a committee was appointed to meet with the Mission Circle committee to arrange the program for the proposed mother and daughter banquet. A letter of thanks for remembrance, from a bereaved member was read.

The study for the month from "Men and Women of Far Horizons," was taken up by Mrs. W. K. Sloane, after which the president vacated her chair in favour of Mrs. Payne, the group leader in charge of the March program. This was essentially all-Easter in character and proved very inspiring in the leader's capable hands. The theme was built upon the words, "The Blood of Christ," and enlarged upon by the leader. Hymns and Easter music interspersed the readings of the theme, when a beautiful duet, "Lead Me to Calvary" by Mesdames Doig and Reeves-Newsom, was sung.

Miss Geneva Sedgwick contributed a solo, "Face to Face," and Mesdames Doig, Davis, Reeves-Newsom and Rosborough, sang "Willing to Take the Cross."

"Peace, Perfect Peace," was sung by the congregation, and all again joined in the consecration hymn, "Take My Life."

The beautiful service was brought to a conclusion with prayer by the president.

South Africa's population is shifting from the country to the cities.

Spring Modes In Underwear

Slide - Fastening Corsets, Longer Brassieres, Slim Lines

VEST RETURNS

"OPEN, SESAME!" was the command to the genie in the Arabian Nights' story who obligingly rolled back the doors of the treasure cave. "Sesame" seems like an appropriate name for a smooth morning. So the designers gave it to the slide-fastener that features one of the very newest foundation garments. No hooks, no laces, no zippers, just this handy zipper-like slide-fastener.

Lingerie is enthusiastically feminine this season, to match the exhilarment of the romantic styles. Night gowns are delicate things in sheer materials, or in dainty prints. They are picturesque with peasant fullness, allurring with lace and embroidery. Plaids flaunt themselves in petticoats. Sheerness, when it's not actually transparency, is the keynote of the new underwear. Even the corset is sheer, and the one-piece foundation designed for the straight, slim lines of afternoon wear. And there are very deep brassieres that come down over the diaphragm to meet the lower-plunged corset.

New bias slips are a handy thing for frocks of varying lengths. They are back again. The vest, as we have been calling it, but the old name is the proper one, has been long enough in the discard; are embroidered to show through new sheer blouses. Slips are gracefully flared for swinging skirts, or straight-cut for slim ones, and very decorative in details.

Slim Sheaths

The new slimness demands sheath-like corseting. The new suits and dresses emphasize tiny waists, with complete smoothness right up to the bustline, and with flat hips and back.

So the new corseting looks after these details, with girdles high in front, longer brassieres, and corsets lightly boned over the diaphragm. All exquisitely fashioned in satin, lace, elastic, brocade.

"Whisper" is the name for a very 'uplifting' corselette knitted like a honeycomb, and its little sister (a duo something like the flute and the piccolo) is a girdle named "Whisp."

Corsets nowadays are moulded on lines to fit five distinct types of figures, the heavy bust with slim hips; the full hip and slim bust; the tall average figure; the straight-hip type; the short average figure. There are front-laced corsets with firm boning and diaphragm control; "all-in-one" garments made of brocaded satin with panels of silk knit elastic, a mode fashioned with low evening back and uplifted lace "bras"; slep-in girdles with high front and metal slide fastener; dainty bandeaux in soft satin.

Convertible Slips

"Lilly of France" is the delightful name for a three-piece foundation designed for the straight, slim lines of afternoon wear. And there are very deep brassieres that come down over the diaphragm to meet the lower-plunged corset.

New bias slips are a handy thing for frocks of varying lengths. They have four rows of hemstitching. You simply cut one, or two or three off, to meet the length of your gown, and a trim picot edge is left. They have too a double fitted 'bras' top with a slashed front for low dresses.

The newest nightgowns go in for peasant fullness in the skirt which is shirred to a bodice with a draw neckline in the back and tucked lacey in front.

There are tailored satin teddies to wear under suits trimmed with satin applique, turkey-point and drawn-work, and with bound, scalloped hems.

For the bride there are sumptuous sets of white satin, including slips, panties, a night-gown, a pair of pyjamas and a dressing-gown. They have hand-rolled hems and are adorned with embroidered crowns done in colors. These "Coronation" year sets would wear for years, the quality is so excellent.

Another idea for brides is to choose pale blue and peach georgette sets trimmed with black lace.

The peasant petticoat in fiery, crackling taffeta is just the thing for your suit. It fits smoothly at the hips and swings gallantly out at the hemline, etc display its Scotch plaiding; its solid coloring of Peddy green or cerise; its navy and black grounds trimmed with hem bands of the last named bright colors or Tyrolean blue.

For sports—"Campus" coats of ombre plaid with zipper; Casual jackets in flannel, wool, reveteen; Flannel slacks of navy or brown, worn with a polo shirt of terry cloth; Overalls of striped drill.

Gala Attire Is Very Gay

Diaphanous Materials And Pastel Tints Feature Evening Wear

NO VELVETS

THE modes of the gay, 'mauve' nineties have returned to dress us up for evening attire.

And again the Coronation influence brightens the scene. "Coronation robes" they call them, those queenly frocks that touch the floor all round and go in for misty chiffons and nets that open out in front in petticoat fashion over taffeta foundations.

Evening dresses are elaborate and somewhat contrary. You get them very long, but without trains; or you can have a short one, if you wish. Some designers are featuring the backless models, the front being held up by a narrow strap or a garland of flowers across the back of the neck. Square and oval necklines are prominent, and there is a revival of the old V-neckline. You may have a bodice that rises throat-high in front or has a deep decolletage that, divided in two parts, dips almost to the waist. Hemlines, trailing all around, rise high in front over the toes.

The Glamorous Lady.

The misty chiffons trailed across the desert by Marlene Dietrich in "The Garden of Allah" reveal the exquisite possibilities of this filmy material, and the possibilities also of combining two or three shades of the same color, like the warm ombre tones that progress from deep sand to a molasses tint and a wood brown in one beautiful model with floating cape over the shoulders. Another model in this type has an Empire bodice and a very full skirt of chiffon, the back of the skirt formed of godets in blending blues just like those of larkspur.

Some of these real silk chiffons, 'for moonlight moods," have beautifully-draped jackets that cover a formal decolletage, and are fastened at the corsage with pastel-tinted flowers. The colors incline to light tones; Blue de Venice, coral, violet and that salmon-pink hue known as Gangtin that is like the loveliness of a sunset sky.

Black is much liked for evening wear, enlivened by sparkling brilliants in 'studded' formation, or some bright color, in sashes, jewel-covered buttons, belts, and sprays of flowers.

Flowered Fabrics.

Two-color contrasts are also favored, like a gown with half the bodice developed in cherry-colored mousseline, or a panel of brilliant red falling down the back of the dress in a short train. The touch of green that one sees with such regularity on many of the Spring coats appears in the back panels of a chestnut brown mousseline de soie.

Materials in favor for evening are flower-printed silk crepe and crepon—the bolder the pattern the more fashionable the fabric — brightly striped silks, lace, ribbed silks for senior wear, chiffon, taffeta (usually veiled with chiffon or net), and Coronation fabrics like sumptuous satin brocades studded with gems, and metal cloths.

Color Goes With Tan Shoes

Add this style note to your memo pad, and remember that with black shoes you wear the more conservative hose rolled up in your drawer. But with your tan shoes, you can get out the more colorful ones. Handkerchiefs should be chosen to harmonize with either shirt or tie, and similarly, the hose take their color cue from shirt or tie, or suit.

STYLE WHIMSIES.

Lace Prints For Scarfs in Paris.

Scarfs, scarfs and always scarfs to finish off one's smart costume, says Paris. Among the distinctive now showing in the windows of the exclusive shops along the rue Royale and the rue de la Paix are silks about ten inches wide, the central part being a white lace pattern printed on black and the fringe ends being bright colors. Superimposed on the printing of lace is a second printing of leaves and flowers of the same color as the ends.

Milliners Use Veils.

The innumerable tiny brimless hats, on whose forms the French milliners have let their fancy run entirely free, whether they be square or round, high-pointed or flat, have one thing in common, all have fine-meshed bordered veils thrown over them and hanging long to the shoulders. The effect is as youthful and alluring as the Parisian modiste meant it to be.

HARMONIZING GLOVES with jewellery is another smart means of adding color to a costume in a subtle way. With the new red-dish tan called "Red Earth", wear red gold jewelry. Carnelian, on the wine order, takes real carnelians set in silver. The Coronation colors, red, purple, blue and green, find their color counterparts, respectively, in rubies, amethysts, sapphires and emeralds. The Coronation yellow, Crown Gold, is perfect with yellow gold. Complement your white gloves with pearls, diamonds or rubies; your grey gloves, with silver jewelry. (These gems don't have to be the real thing, of course. Costume jewelry supplies most of them.)

Another smart way of wearing color on your hands is to make your gloves match in hue the trimming on your hat.

Tropical fruits—Lemons, oranges and pineapples; for instance—create colorful and gay designs on printed sports clothes.

Mrs. Simpson Buys Clothes

Shops In Paris For Easter Wardrobe—Silver Fox Evening Wrap FAVORS BLUE

(By BETTINA BEDWELL).

Paris.—When I recently saw Mrs. Wallis Simpson in a box at the Comedie Francaise, watching the production "Berenice," she wore a simple black evening dress and her sable coat was thrown back over her chair. On her sleek, dark hair she had a pointed headdress, which was shaped remarkably like a tiara.

Very few people in the audience seemed to recognize her. A directress of one of the big dressmaking houses where Mrs. Simpson has shopped in the past whispered to me during the intermission that it was Mrs. Simpson.

She has been shopping in Molyneux' gray and gold salons, and later I saw what she bought.

For one thing, she ordered a silver fox coat. It contains twenty of the largest and most beautiful silver fox pelts to be found in Paris. It is straight and boxlike, more than hip length, with long, loose sleeves and a simple standing collar.

For dinners Mrs. Simpson selected a satin dress in the soft blue of the French army uniform, called horizon blue.

A hip-length fitted jacket to be worn with it is tailored like a suit jacket and fastens on blue mirror buttons. The dress is stream-line, with a low-cut, square neckline and a satin belt closing with a mirror buckle. This dinner dress is just instep length.

Another item in Mrs. Simpson's spring clothes budget will be a sports ensemble made of sandy beige basketweave woollen. This has a straight skirt and a waistcoat blouse.

The blouse buttons up the front on polished iron buttons that have holes punched all around the rims.

With this jacket suit she will wear a rolled-brim straw hat that sits back on her head—a style which suits her very well.

She will have a black wool afternoon dress with short sleeves and a round neck, edged by narrow bands of white crepe silk. These bands extend from the neck all the way down the front of the dress to the hem. A draped girdle of the black wool is placed at the waistline of this dress and a cluster of white snowballs is tucked through the girdle.

To wear over this dress, Mrs. Simpson chose a black wool, long coat, redingote type, without any collar and meeting only at the waistline. All the edges of this coat are scalloped and edged with black silk braid worked in loops between the scallops.

An evening gown, which is a pretty creation, will be worn with Mrs. Simpson's new silver fox wrap. Molyneux is making this dress of pale blue crepe marocain.

Crown Buttons Are Smart On Frocks

The crown buttons are here and they are smart as can be in jewel colors of bakelite. A wide frock with a blouse buttoned in them would be what you would like for next May and you should pick up some while they can be had. We notice also that corn and carrots have been added to the list of vegetable buttons.

Short And Bright Describe The Latest

Two words describe the season's newest clothes, "short" and "bright." ... Dresses and suits are short, suit jackets are short, evening dresses are short (some of them). Dark dresses and suits are made gay with bright, striped piping or colorful blouses; hats are sprouting color; stripes and plaids run riot. Some of the dark dresses are shadowed with flowered transparent jackets.

Striped Shirts And More Color

So many men are facing the problem of replacement with the purchasing of spring wardrobes that it's just as well they go about the whole thing right, from start to finish. There is an added formality to men's wear this year, and if we must admit the truth, it's only partly due to woman's desire to see men dressed in keeping with her own formality, because men have become equally style-conscious.

Getting down to shirts, for the more important occasions the well-dressed man will wear the soft shirt striped in color with accompanying stiff white collar. It represents the utmost in town formality, and gives an effect that makes woman forget their manners and turn to look again. Less formal and more appropriate for ordinary events in a business man's day, is the chambray shirt in solid color, unstarched but held in place with a collar pin.

DRESSY afternoon gloves are made in imitation of those designed for a Spanish queen early in the nineteenth century. They are slip-on and are held at the wrist by a ribbon bracelet; this is fastened by a rosette in blue, rose or yellow, in the centre of which are a buttonhole and a tiny pearl button.

And for evening wear, there are beautiful imported things, long and flared and embroidered delicately with a vine and tiny blossoms, in shell or palest sea green. Shorter ones, with the flare slightly shirred, come in dawn pink or white. And there are pretty examples to wear with an evening wrap, white or caramel ones embroidered in gold and with tiny silk flowers.

Lapolnte and designed to prevent Canadians enlisting in foreign forces, including those ranged in civil war. Whether it will precede resumption of the wheat debate or follow it was not indicated.

Conservative Leader Bennett, supporting his colleague's want of confidence motion on wheat, dealt only with the constitutional aspect declaring that a statute placed on the books by parliament in 1935 had been repealed by order-in-council, a procedure not in keeping with parliamentary procedure.

Policies of the government were defended by Mr. Gardiner, J. G. Ross (Lib., Moose Jaw) and Thomas Donnelly (Lib., West Montmagny), while M. J. Coldwell (C.C.F., Rosetown-Biggar) and John Blackmore, Social Credit leader, supported the amendment.

Mr. Perley launched the attack by moving an amendment to the motion to resolve the House into committee of ways and means declaring the House regretted action of the government which had made the Wheat Board Act of 1935 inoperative with respect to the 1936 crop. The amendment will reach a vote today.

Conservative Leader Bennett followed with the declaration a grave constitutional question was involved. He said the government without authority had set aside an act of parliament by an executive act.

Both referred to the fixing of the minimum prices of 87½c subject to the condition that the wheat board would not take delivery of any wheat unless the market price fell below 90 cents. Parliament had passed an act directing the board to buy wheat at a fixed minimum price, said Mr. Bennett, and the government in directing the board not to buy except under certain conditions had, in effect, repealed the act without authority. From parliament to do and made it inoperative so far as the 1936 crop was concerned.

Gardiner Explains.

Mr. Gardiner said the provision in the Act authorizing the board to buy wheat did not mean it had to buy all the time and under all conditions had, in effect, repealed the act without authority. From parliament to do and made it inoperative so far as the 1936 crop was concerned.

Says Hepburn's Sunshine Budget Should Be Called Moonshine One

(Examiner Correspondence.)

LINDSAY, March 18. — An Irish night was staged by the Laymen's Association of St. Paul's Anglican Church Tuesday night, and the guest speaker, A. C. Allman, of Toronto, severely scored the liquor traffic. Mr. Hepburn, he stated, had announced what he called a "sunshine" budget. A more appropriate name, he declared, would be a "moonshine" budget, the Provincial Government making ten million gross profit out of liquor last year. He was pleased that it was announced as gross, for if the cost of maintenance of prisons, mental institutions, deserted mothers and illegitimate children was deducted, there would not be much left. Mr. Allman further asserted that there was no control of liquor in the province at all.

Describing a tour of the Queen Mary while she was in dock in New York city he stated that she was a boat even more wonderful than could be imagined. Expressing disappointment at the American's lack of knowledge of Canadian geography, particularly of such places as Toronto and Montreal, the speaker concluded by saying that this was more than compensated by the generous hospitality.

The meeting was presided over by the president, Miss Vera Wood and a short talk on "Temperance" by Mr. Christopher Newman made up the balance of the program.

General Committee Is Named To Make All Arrangements For Coronation Celebration

Alderman James Dutton Is Chosen Chairman With James Dorris Secretary

HISTORIC PAGEANT?

At a general meeting of citizens held in the City Council chamber on Monday evening, a committee was named in connection with arrangements for the civic celebration of the coronation of Their Majesties King George VI. and Queen Elizabeth.

The committee was elected as follows:

Honorary Chairman — Mayor George A. Macdonald.

Chairman — Alderman James Dutton.

Vice-Chairmen—The Rev. P. J. Kelly and Al. Sharpe.

Secretary—James J. Dorris.

Treasurer—R. T. H. Hicks-Lyne.

From the organizations represented at the meeting, representatives to the several Committees were named as follows: Ministerial Association—The Rev. J. Douglas Paterson; Roman Catholic Churches — The Rev. P. J. Kelly; Local Council of Women — Mrs. C. M. Scott; Lions' Club—J. A. Lovell; Kinsmen Club—Don Lovicks; Twenty Club—Al. Sharpe; Y's Men's Club—J. B. Boyd; Board of Education—Dr. C. R. Scott; Public Schools—Inspector A. Mowat; Separate School Board—Harry Gainey; Catholic Women's organizations — Mrs. J. J. Nash; Canadian Legion—D. A. Combs, M.C.; Chamber of Commerce—Fred J. Overend.

The Peterborough Boy Scouts' and Girl Guides' Associations, the local Militia Garrison, fraternal organizations, Red Patch Club, Labor groups, and all kindred societies are to be asked to name representatives.

A further meeting of the committee is called for this (Thursday) at 7.30 p.m. in the Council Chamber, at which time fullest consideration is to be given to the matter of an historical pageant, which is being sponsored by the Local Lions' Club, and in connection with which the members of the club are asking the co-operation of the general committee, as well as other service clubs in the city.

Several suggestions were advanced in connection with the Coronation celebrations, which are all to be taken into consideration by the committee in devising a program worthy of the occasion.

The religious aspect of the pre-Coronation observances was stressed by members of the Ministerial Association, as well as by Father Kelly. The Rev. Dr. Barr suggested that in line with plans being formulated in England the various churches of the city might hold special services on the Sunday preceding the Coronation, and also on the evening prior to the Coronation.

Inspector Mowat intimated there is to be a uniform program in connection with Coronation observance in the schools throughout the province, which will be laid down by the Ontario Department of Education.

SKILLED WORKMEN IN BIG DEMAND

List Of Opportunities However Means Little To The Unskilled

It's looking like old times at the Employment Services Bureau these days for the prosperity-era blackboard list of vacant jobs is now on display daily. True, the list means little to the unskilled workers still on the unemployed list in Peterborough, but the very presence of it is encouraging.

Following were the employment opportunities indicated on the list to-day: Wood pattern makers, bench, floor and machine fitters, candy maker, tool and die makers, a lithographic stipple artist and a shoemaker. They are needs reported from various manufacturing centres of Ontario. And, of course, only men skilled and experienced in these jobs are wanted.

The movement of labor has improved slightly here in the last few weeks but jobs for casual laborers are still scarce. One hundred unemployed are calling at the Bureau each day to renew their applications and inquire for jobs. It is expected, the opening of the road building season will materially reduce this number.

IRISH COMEDY IS ABLY PRESENTED BY DRAMATIC CLUB

"The Blarney Stone" Is Title Of St. Patrick's Day Effort In Lyceum

EXCELLENT ACTING

With Irish humor and laughter rippling through its dialogue; with Irish music to spice its intermissions; with the drama of the loved green island over the sea to color its situations, "The Blarney Stone" unrolled its four acts on the reconstructed stage of St. Alphonsus' Lyceum on Wednesday night, the first presentation of a Pth of Ireland play which will have another production this evening.

The Dramatic Club of the Lyceum chose this gay, modern Irish drama as its annual St. Patrick's Day offering for the season, and it had a bumper attendance last night, with close to four hundred people filling the big auditorium to capacity and spilling over in able seats.

The crowd chuckled and laughed its way through four acts filled with entertainment, unfolding the tale of the doings, the ups and downs, the joys and near-sorrows, of the O'Linns of Knockanure, in the County Limerick, and the friends who gather to take part in the fulfilment of the will of an eccentric old uncle who leaves his wealth attached to the string of a queer proviso. The yard of the O'Linn home forms the scene of the first two acts, with the entrance hall of Craig-na-Ballach Castle as the setting for the last two, and some very realistic storm scenes in the presentation of the final portions.

The splendid direction of George Lynch, who "couldn't be beat" (even in Ireland) when it comes to giving the real twist and turn to the comedy and pathos of the Celts, is apparent in this play, with fine assistance in the staging from Jack McCabe and Dick Simons.

Excellent Acting.

There is plenty of romance in the tale. "Mother Machree" herself (the pet name of Mrs. Mary O'Linn) in a role enacted with all the skill which Miss Stella Brady knows so well how to impart to these Irish character parts, sees an old lover return with the shade of a broken-down jaunting car hanging over him, in the person of a handsome gentleman, Timothy McCann, of New York City, no less, with Jack Roach giving the part a splendid interpretation, albeit a mite youthful-appearing.

The major role, of course, is that of Brian O'Linn, who runs a wee paper known as "The Blarney Stone," the title having nothing much to do with the theme of the play. Jack Whaley has this part, and isn't he the good-looking "Irish" and coming to rest on a window ledge, sought the comforting warmth of a nearby radiator.

STEM FLOOD OF PEDDLERS.

Dan Douglas, who was of the organization meeting on Wednesday night, of the general committee was have charge of arrangements for the civic celebrations in connection with the Coronation, urged the committee to take steps to stem the flood of peddlers which is believed would probably be descending upon the city offering for sale all kinds of Coronation souvenirs.

WILL BE WELL SUPPORTED.

It is evident that the Peterborough Colts will not be handicapped by any lack of moral support when they meet the Barrie team in Oshawa on Friday night. In addition to the hundreds of local folk who are going down in the motor city on the special C.N.R. train scores of other fans were to-day planning automobile parties for the big game. It looks like one of the biggest hockey exoduses in Peterborough's history.

ROADS BLOCKED.

Country roads were badly blocked by Wednesday's snow storm. Joe Kearns of the Coca-Cola Company, states that he found it impossible to reach Pontypool with a truck, the roads being so badly drifted that he was forced to turn back.

WAS KAISER'S SECRETARY.

Dr. Otto Klinz, Ph.D., at one time undersecretary to the former German Kaiser, has arranged with the local Full Gospel Pentecostal church for a four weeks' series of gospel meetings here. Dr. Klinz, who is a graduate of University of Berlin is expected here for Sunday.

WAS IN 1870.

Relative to the story contained in a previous issue of The Examiner about the flood which inundated large areas of Peterborough, E. A. Peck, K.C., comments: "The item was correct in all its details with exception of the year." Mr. Peck claims the flood was in the year 1870 and not in 1869. He remembers the date so well, he said, because it was the year after he and his parents first came to this country from England.

FINAL LECTURE.

Dr. Victor Lange of the Toronto University staff will conclude the annual university extension lecture series sponsored by the Friday Night Supper Club with an address at the Y.M.C.A. tomorrow evening. He will take as his subject "European Journey". The public lecture will be at 8.15 o'clock in the auditorium but he will also appear at the Friday Night Supper Club supper.

PLOWS CALLED OUT.

Provincial highway plows had a run for their money early this morning, one of the few night calls this winter. They went through Peterborough in several directions, but the fall of snow wasn't heavy enough to pile up drifts. Meanwhile, a C.N.R. plow is still standing on a local siding, so far unmoved by the winter.

Reforestation Policy For County Will Be Discussed At Open Meeting

Reforestation as a local policy, and the planting of trees in relation to the public highways will be discussed at the public meeting which Reeve W. A. Anderson of Otonabee, representing Warden Brown and the county council, has announced for next Tuesday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock in the Canadian Legion Hall.

The speakers will be E. J. Zavitz, provincial forester with the Department of Lands and Forests, and H. J. Moore, horticulturist of the Department of Highways. Municipal councils, school trustees and other officials throughout the county are being invited to attend this meeting, and the invitation extends to the general public.

An effort is being made through Central Ontario this year to stimulate interest in reforestation, and by means of this meeting the county council is looking for some guidance from the ratepayers as to whether they wish the county to adopt a conservation policy. It has been discussed casually from time to time at council meetings, but councils have always backed away from the project.

NOTED MUSICIAN HEARD IN RECITAL AT GROVE SCHOOL

Reginald Stewart's Concert One Of Rare Treats In a Life-Time

EXPLAINED NUMBERS

The Town Hall in New York, where he gave a recital several weeks ago, and the dining hall of the Grove School at Lakefield, where he played Wednesday night, may have seemed poles apart to Reginald Stewart, musical director of the Bach Festival Choir, but for once they possessed briefly and curiously a unity in their echoes of his pianistic art.

Not that Mr. Stewart made any reference to his recent debut in New York or to his many achievements in Toronto during the years which have witnessed his ascent to a high, if not first, place among Canadian musicians; but those who knew of these two events, rather closely connected in time, must have felt a sense of contrast which served chiefly to reveal not only the musician, but above all the man.

A personal friend of Robert Eadie of The Grove staff, Mr. Stewart had promised to come down from Toronto and give a concert "some time." And for that occasion which reached a definite engagement for Wednesday night March worsed up heavy weather, snow blowing through fences with a threat of drifts. Mr. Stewart motored from Toronto, arrived a little late because of the gales and icy roads, asked for only a few minutes (figuratively and somewhat literally to thaw out, and then sat at the concert piano which had preceded him and played the D minor Bach toccata and fugue.

It was all so informal and unassuming, so sincere and frank, the beginning of a peculiarly delightful program that will be long remembered by the senior boys of The Grove and the rather large company of invited guests from Lakefield and Peterborough. It fixed the personality and the charming modesty of Mr. Stewart in the memory of his audience as distinctly and pleasurably as his musicianship. The spirit of intimacy was largely due to Mr. Stewart's desire to explain the subjects of his program to the large group of senior boys, and for that matter to his entire audience; and to that end each number was prefaced with a few words about the composer's idea and how he invested it. Only once in a blue moon or some other rarity does one receive an invitation to such a concert as that.

Mr. Stewart's program was as follows:—

Toccata and Fugue in D minor (Bach); Choral prelude Jesu Joy of Men's Desiring," (Bach); two Gavotte from "Orpheus" (Gluck); Scherzo in E minor (Mendelssohn); transcription of "The Londonderry Air."

"The Donkey" by Grolez; staccato study by Rubinstein; Musical Snuff Box by Liadow; "The Minute Waltz" (Chopin); and Toccata by Schumann.

There was nothing condescending in Mr. Stewart's attitude to the younger members of his audience. His program afforded abundant proof of that. He played for them Bach, Chopin, Schumann, and the others. Following the masterly pianism of the Bach toccata was the same composer's Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring," a simple devotional theme of transporting melody so persuasive under Mr. Stewart's fingers that the music seemed detached from the keyboard. A somewhat similar effect was achieved with the Musical Snuff Box, a delicate, bijou representation of an old fashioned music box, its slender melodic tones objectively imitated. "The Donkey" added a touch of humor with its bizarre harmonies imitating the animal's harsh bray, and an awkward metre suggesting its gait, interrupted by a plaintive love song.

His own transcription of the Londonderry Air was Mr. Stewart's salute to Erin's fatal day. The piano sang its utter-sweet pathos with rich harmonies and with no descent to sentimentality. Humor glinned again in the Mendelssohn scherzo; and the melody of the Gluck gavotte exemplified the material promises of that musical form. The lyric mood glowed in Mr. Stewart's playing of the Brahms and Chopin waltzes, bursts and sparkling in their flowing melodies, and was repeated in the Chopin etudes, marked by grace and fluency of rhythm and crystal clarity. The sonata movement and the Schumann toccata were replete with keyboard brilliance indicating the range of Mr. Stewart's resources, their erudition and Mr. Stewart's account of it halted this comment-ary with profound respect and with a... to gain a glimmer of their subtleties.

At the conclusion of the recital, Rev. Dr. McKenzie and Mr. Eadie expressed to Mr. Stewart their deep gratitude for his kindness in coming to Lakefield, and in giving so freely and so charmingly of his abilities to the audience as a whole, and especially as an experience in music magnificently played.

Those of them who are more receptive to music will perhaps long remember the incidental features of the program, as for example the gaelic realism of "The Donkey." Possibly they may retain their final impressions, too, of Reginald Stewart's vital and luminous Chopin.

FLORAL EMBLEM

Trillium Is Chosen By Legislature Committee.

TORONTO, March 18 (CP)—The trillium grandiflorum was unanimously approved as Ontario's floral emblem by the agricultural committee of the Ontario legislature today.

To Address Forum

It is seldom that Peterborough people have the privilege of hearing a prominent Canadian statesman deliver a non-political address, yet they will be accorded that privilege next Sunday, March 21, when Hon. Harry H. Stevens will address the Open Forum in George Street United Church on the subject, "The Opportunity of the Christian Church in these days of changing Economic and Social Life". This community has a special interest in Hon. Mr. Stevens, he having spent his youth in and around Peterborough. He rose from the ranks to one of the highest positions in Canadian public life. His interest in this city has prompted him to accept the Forum's invitation, and make the journey to Peterborough for the meeting. In view of the special nature of the meeting, an invitation is being extended to the ladies, and a capacity audience is expected.

FISH AMENDMENTS ENDORSED LOCALLY

Changes In Act Hoped To Put a Stop To Selling Of Fish

Complete satisfaction with proposed amendments to the Game and Fisheries Act now before the provincial legislature, particularly the measure which proposes to make it unlawful to buy, sell or barter fish taken during a period prohibited by law, is expressed by the president and secretary of Peterborough Fish and Game Protective Association, and also by the Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C.

Pointing out that the local association of which he is secretary, had urged such a measure both by resolution and by a deputation to the Department, E. A. Dutrans commented, as the act now stands it is a breach to sell fish taken during a period prohibited by law, but the great difficulty has been in connection with the fact that evidence of the actual transaction had to be obtained before a conviction could be recorded.

He stressed that when the bill introduced in the legislature by the Hon. Harry Nixon, Minister of the Department of Game and Fisheries comes into force, it will be unlawful for any person to sell, offer for sale, purchase or barter of yellow pickerel, (pike-perch or dore), pike, lake trout, sturgeon which were taken from provincial waters by angling or which were taken in any other manner by any person without a license issued under the act.

The proposed amendments would also make it unlawful for any person to sell, offer for sale, purchase or barter, or be concerned in the sale of any small-mouthed black bass, large-mouthed black bass, maskinonge, speckled trout, provided that the minister may by permit or license allow the sale of speckled trout, brown trout, rainbow trout or Aurora trout where such trout is propagated by such permit or license holder.

Stop Unlawful Sale

Wallace Harvey, president of the local Fish and Game Association and Mr. Gordon who was a member of the deputation that recently waited on the minister and presented a sheaf of resolutions dealing with conservation of fish and game, were both of the opinion that the proposed legislation if enacted, will have the desirable result of putting a stop to the unlawful sale of fish, by making it easier for convictions to be obtained in such cases.

In the opinion of members of the association, the proposed amendment will in itself be one of the greatest instruments for the protection of the fish resources of this district, as it will provide an effective means of stamping out the unlawful sale of fish.

MEMBERS URGED MINERAL SURVEY HASTINGS AREA

Federal Members Ask Minister To Co-operate With Private Companies

CUSTOM ORE MILL

Three members of Parliament from the Peterborough - Hastings constituencies interviewed the Hon. T. A. Crerar, Minister of Mines, with regard to the possibility of active interest by the government in co-operation with private effort to determine the values of mineral prospects in the area.

At this interview on Tuesday, Rork Ferguson, M.P. for Hastings-Peterborough was accompanied by J. J. Duffus, M.P. for Peterborough West, and Chas. A. Cameron, M.P. for South Hastings. It is reported that reference was made to recent articles in the Examiner relating the increased activities in mining exploration in both counties.

The deputation of members was assured that the work and faith in this area would receive Departmental attention. Hon. Mr. Crerar said he would get a report of the data on this section of the province, with the likelihood that something would be done in the near future probably in the form of a survey.

Some Marmora citizens believe that the district would be materially helped if a reducing mill for handling custom ore was erected in the town as one of the central communities of the district. They contend that some of the smaller companies that are producing or may reach that stage of development would be saved the cost of erecting mills on their properties if a custom plant was available. Of interest to the entire area will no doubt be the fact that the reports of progress and investment in Peterborough-Hastings properties are being attentively followed by the members of Parliament from the three ridings of the district.

The Examiner was informed that if anything practical can be suggested it will be carefully considered by the departments.

THOUGHT GUN HELD BLANKS WIFE SHOT, SLEW HUSBAND

Tells Court She Loved Him —Only Wanted to Scare Him

FREED OF CHARGES

Lincoln.—Mrs. Doris Vanda Ursula Teesdale, 28, was at Lincoln assizes found not guilty of murdering her husband, of whom she said "My love for him never died."

She was also found not guilty of manslaughter, and discharged.

Mrs. Teesdale was alleged to have shot her husband, Cecil Walter Teesdale, 28, a Scunthorpe butcher, when he returned from a party.

Her defence was that her husband had told her the gun was loaded with blanks, and that she got it only to scare him into telling her where he had been. He had boasted of going out with other women, but she loved him too much to harm him.

Richard O'Sullivan, for the prosecution, said the case was tragic in the sense that it involved the death of a young and prosperous citizen, a husband and the father of the accused woman's children.

"One feels a certain sympathy for Mrs. Teesdale in the position which, by her own act, she has been put. Out of her own mouth she is convicted of manslaughter."

Mr. O'Sullivan described her attitude on the morning of the shooting as "the determination of a jealous woman endeavoring to identify her husband's companions.

"She says her husband told her the revolver was loaded with blanks. If she believed that, there was no sense in firing the gun to scare him."

Norman Birkett, for the defence, submitted that a verdict of guilty was unthinkable.

"I will speak of three things—her husband's association with other women; his assaults; his indifference to his little boy. Can you imagine any behavior more likely to wound —and wound grievously—the dearest affections of any ordinary woman?

"There was never a word, never an action, never an emphasis by Mrs. Teesdale to say, 'My husband behaved really badly.'

"Think of the importance which lies here: Mrs. Teesdale said, 'I loved him at the beginning; my love never died. I trusted I should be able to win back his affection.'"

CLAIMS ARCHBISHOPS MERELY ECHO COOPER

Nonconformist Says They'd Shrink From Burning Children, Yet Sanction War

London.—Strong criticism of the attitude of bishops toward war was made by Rev. Dr. A. D. Belden, Nonconformist pastor of Whitefields Tabernacle, London.

Recalling the Archbishop of York's statement at the church assembly that in certain situations Christian folk have the right to kill, Dr. Belden said:

"I am very angry with the archbishop. The Archbishops of Canterbury and York have tremendous prestige in the world. They have the finest opportunity for peace ever presented and all they can do is echo Duff Cooper. If Jesus Christ had been a killer under such circumstances as the Archbishop of York may have in mind, does the archbishop think Christ would have founded a religion, or that he would have founded Christianity?"

Referring to the Bishop of London's statement that he could not stand by and see children bombed without doing something, Dr. Belden said: "Pacifism does not require him to do nothing; rather to get busy and do a lot of things. Does the Bishop of London realize that the only reprisal he has is to acquiesce in the destruction of women and children?

"The clergy in the assembly would be horrified at the thought of throwing 100 children into a fire, but in acquiescing to the tolerant idea of war they are making a practical admission that fire should be poured down on children—and they call pacifists war-makers."

FAKE COINS DECEIVE EVEN BANK TELLERS

"Borstal Failure" Gets Ten Months, Companion Put Back to Next Sessions

London.—Counterfeit shillings and two-shilling pieces so skilfully made that they deceived the expert eyes of bank cashiers were shown to an Old Bailey judge.

The coins had been found in the possession of James Seymour, 34, known criminal, and James Joyce, 21, whom the judge said had been led away by the older man.

Both were convicted of having 32 coins "knowing them to be counterfeit with intent to utter the same." Seymour was sent to jail for ten months; Joyce, who had a clean record, was put back till next sessions.

Detective-Sergeant H. Crouchen told the judge Seymour was a native of Middlesbrough, where he was regarded by the police as a daring and violent criminal.

He was first sentenced there in 1913 for housebreaking. Other sentences included two years at Borstal in 1921 for office-breaking at York; six years' penal servitude in 1924 for conspiring to sell cars, burglary, robbery and possessing housebreaking implements by night.

LONDON 'GOING ROYAL' ROADS TO BE DECKED

Royal Standard, Royal Cipher, Royal Arms Will Be Used

London.—London streets will go "royal" during the coronation. City of Westminster emblems, used for the jubilee ceremonies, will be replaced by the royal standard, the royal cipher and the crown, the royal cipher and the royal arms. For the jubilee only the crossed battle-axes of Westminster were the proper decorations.

The crown may be used either alone or in conjunction with other emblems and the royal cipher may be used in schemes of decoration provided they are not associated with advertising matter relating to individual firms or commodities.

Authorities are anxious, however, that all decorations be done with appropriate dignity, particular portraits and photographs.

SNOWBALLED TEACHER 1366 LAW IS REVIVED

Father Given Warning After Fight Invitation

Grimsby.—A boy who snowballed his headmaster here inadvertently "brought to life" a statute of Edward III, enacted in 1366.

After the snowballing incident the boy was sent to his room by the headmaster. Instead he went home . . . and returned with his father.

Father, it was alleged, shouted at the headmaster, used bad language and invited him to join in a fight in the school yard.

Father was summoned under the 1366 act for conduct likely to cause a breach of the peace. The case was dismissed, but father was warned not to interfere with school duties.

PRAYER IS CREDITED WITH SCIATICA 'CURE'

Woman Thanks Missioner—Claims She Now Does Own Housework

Maidstone.—Mrs. Beatrice Hardy, 40, of Maidstone, claims to have been cured of sciatica by H. G. Kerridge, police missioner for Maidstone.

Mrs. Hardy said:

"I had been helpless for a month and could not move enough to dress myself. When Mr. Kerridge came to my house, my left hand was useless. He took it between his own hands and prayed that it might be healed.

"Within a quarter of an hour the fingers began to stretch. I was able to cut bread. Next morning my legs were cured and I was able to do housework."

Mr. Kerridge stated that the children were playing in the room when he held Mrs. Hardy's hand and prayed: "I asked her to open her hand," he said, and slowly the fingers began to work.

EAT RATIONED

Berlin.—Eat rationing regulations recalling war-time measures have been introduced for 1937 all over Germany to ensure fair and equal distribution of this precious food. Owing to Germany's incapacity for producing more fats and as a result of her shortage of foreign money to buy fats abroad, the new fat regulations became an absolute necessity, officials state.

INVITES LADS TO TEA AFTER BIRCH ORDERED

Little Less of Letter Law Urged By Councillor

Aldershot. — Councillor Harry Ainger, chairman of Aldershot juvenile court, after ordering a birching for three boys who had broken out of a home and stolen property, watched a police sergeant administer the punishment—and then invited the boys to tea with him on Sunday.

They accepted the invitation.

Mr. Ainger said he felt sure the boys would make good.

"I believe in administering the law in spirit with a little less of the letter," he said. "I am fond of children, as hundreds of people in this town know, but I am also a firm believer in discipline."

ASSERTS CORONATION MAY BE SATAN'S DAY

Dean Says Those Who Won't Pray Have Intellect of Rabbit

Essex.—Says the Dean of Bocking, Essex, Very Rev. Edgar Rogers, on the coronation, in his church magazine: "A procession of decorated cars, sports for children, an extra hour's opening of public houses, flags and bunting are not enough. The heart of the coronation is religion.

"We say quite frankly that any man who doesn't come to church and say his prayers at the coronation has the intellect of a rabbit and the emotions of a caterpillar.

"The coronation is the King's consecration to service, and in that coronation we, too, are consecrated.

"A silly day of shouting and excess is Satan's opportunity."

LITTLE RADIUM IN CHINA

Has Only Two Grams Compared to Belgium's 32

Peiping.—China is the richer in radium by 510 milligrams received by the Sino-Belgian Radium Institute, which now has one gram, or slightly less than half of the quantity available in all China.

These two grams of the precious element owned in China, contrasts sadly with the amounts elsewhere in the world. Belgium has 32 grams in use, for example.

GLASGOW TO SPEND $150,000 CELEBRATING

Most Goes to Children—Street Decorations Rejected

Glasgow.—The Glasgow Corporation has voted to spend $150,000 in coronation celebrations, including entertainments in schools for infants, entertainment in parks for junior pupils, excursions to the Firth of Clyde for post-qualifying pupils, and a cruise to the Western Islands for 500 pupils to be selected from secondary schools.

An extra 60 cents is to be paid to each family in receipt of outdoor relief and a gift is to be made to every Glasgow child boarded out in various parts of Scotland. Other arrangements include the granting of a day's holiday to municipal employees.

But the corporation rejected by 42 votes to 31 a proposal that $25,000 be spent on street decorations.

CODE FOR RAT-CATCHERS

Must be Presentable, Agreeable and Well Mannered

London.—A code of professional conduct has been drawn up for rat-catchers.

The standard has been set by the Wandsworth borough council, which, in advertising for two rat-catchers, demands that candidates should be "presentable, agreeable and well mannered for their task of working in other people's houses."

In other words, the Pied Pipers of Wandsworth must be gentlemen —although old school ties are not imperative.

MODEL JAIL-BIRD GOT KEYS VISITED HOME, CAME BACK

Guernsey Authorities Find He Apparently Intended Going to Dance

OUT SEVERAL TIMES

St. Peter Port, Guernsey.—Guernsey has a model jail. The authorities are studying it very closely. For they were told how a prisoner, undergoing 18-months' sentence for house-breaking, having obtained duplicate keys, let himself out to visit his home. Then he returned to jail where, to his surprise, he found that his absence had aroused concern.

The story begins when a policeman on night duty, passing the formidable wall of the prison, saw that the main gate was ajar. He reported the fact to Sergt. J. Laingmead, who, in turn, called the prison authorities. It was found that liberty loving Francis Lesbirel was missing.

A patrol went to his home and it was apparent that he had recently been there, but there was no sign of him.

When the police and warders returned to the prison they found that Lesbirel had re-entered and was unobtrusively making his way back to his cell.

Now it is alleged that on several previous occasions Lesbirel had left the prison at night and returned to his cell undetected.

It is said that he had several dummy keys of the jail in his possession.

In Lesbirel's posession also, it is said, was found a ticket for a dance to which he may have intended going.

Reports—described by the prison governor, H. J. Blampied, as "fantastic"—were current in the island that several prisoners had for some time past been enabled to leave the prison during the night and visit their homes, returning in the morning without discovery, and bringing back with them food and luxuries.

ALL HALLOW'S CHURCH WILL BE DEMOLISHED

Historic Benefice To Be Combined With St. Edmund

London.—All Hallows, the famous city church designed by Wren and the scene of John Wesley's first sermon, is to be demolished and the benefice combined with that of St. Edmund the King, Lombard St, E.C.

That is the effect of a decision announced by the judicial committee of the privy council.

It is now proposed to sell the site of the church—which has been said to be worth at least £180,000 ($750,000)—and to build elsewhere in the London diocese another church of All Hallows.

WANT THIEVES FLOGGED

Polish Farmers Make Demand After Other Measures Fail

Warsaw. — The restitution of flogging as punishment for theft has been demanded at a meeting of some 400 farmers in the Budgoszcz district of Poland. Many thefts have occurred recently in the villages of the district, and the farmers maintain that the only way to stop these is to restore the punishment of flogging. All other measures tried up to date, they say, have proved ineffective.

TEACHER FINED $10 FOR STRIKING BOY

Birkenhead.—"Either he or I had to be master," declared Miss Rita Wilson, teacher of St. Anne's school, Rock Ferry, when she was summoned to court.

C. Routledge said the boy, Frank Ford, of Russell Rd., Rock Ferry, was brought in front of the class. Miss Wilson held up his copy book and said his handwriting was a disgrace. She then struck with the cane.

Miss Wilson said the lad had been insolent, but she denied putting him across a desk.

She was fined £2 ($10) with £4 11s. ($22) costs, but payment was delayed pending consideration of an appeal.

STATES WITH CANDLE MAN SOUGHT SPOOKS

Sister, Seeking Estate, Says he Would Wear Six Shirts

London.—Stories of the strange conduct of her brother were told in the probate court by Charlotte Robertson, East Acton.

Mrs. Robertson is contesting a will by which her brother, J. C. Cook, 83, left all he possessed to his old friend, A. W. Bunker, of Dunstable, Bedfordshire.

She contends Mr. Cook was not of sound mind, and alleges the will was procured by the undue influence of Mr. Bunker, which he denies.

It was stated by counsel in support of Mrs. Robertson's contention that Mr. Cook went around the house with a candle looking for spooks.

Mrs. Robertson, 75, told the court her brother, who formerly held a concession in Pongoland, was "funny in the head" after returning from Africa and at times thought his nephew was his wife, and called him "Constance". He also mistook her for his wife.

He would sit and swear for hours, go out in his pyjamas, wear two pairs of trousers, six shirts and two coats. He talked about spiritualism.

He did not know the difference between hot and cold and was always shovelling coal on the fire.

But in the cold weather he would go into the garden in his pyjamas and sit under a tree.

'I'LL DO MORE CRIMES' GUNMAN TELLS COURT

'Wooden Wedge Crook' Confesses to 31 Charges of Breaking

Exeter.—Tiny, but tough, Frederick Allen, 41, Accrington-born ex-gunman, whose hair allegedly turned gray during nine months' third degree at the hands of United State police, bawled defiance from the dock when he was sentenced to three years' penal servitude here.

"I'll commit more crimes when I come out," he shouted as warders dragged him to the cells.

He had confessed to 31 charges of shopbreaking and housebreaking, had named himself the "wooden wedge crook," whom Scotland-yard and police in Blackpool, Derby, Nottingham, Bexhill, Brighton and Eastbourne had sought in vain for months.

Allen, who went into a workhouse every night before he "did a job" to obtain wooden wedges with which he forced open doors and windows, is also known as Herbert Kendall.

He used to disport himself at Palm Beach, Miami, on the profits of his United States' robberies.

Police outlined his exploits here to-day, told how he went to the States after being discharged from the army in 1920, and was deported after confessing to a share in 20 historic hold-ups.

SAYS MYSTERY BIRD PECKS EWES' EYES

Farmer and Zoo Curator Are Puzzled to Identify Strange Creature

Tunbridge Wells.—A mysterious bird, which experts on bird life have failed to identify, has mutilated 23 ewes on a farm in Kent.

Striking always by night, the creature, it is surmised, alights on the ewe's head, pecks at its eyes and face, and then flies off.

It is on the Fish Hall Farm, Tunbridge Wells, of J. G. Goodwin, that the damage has been caused. Day and night watch is kept.

Bird experts are baffled. David Seth-Smith, curator of birds at London's zoo, says: "I know of no bird, either British or foreign, which would attack sheep in this way."

"I have made extensive inquiries among other sheep farmers," Mr. Goodwin said, "but no one else seems to have suffered from the attacker.

"I am sure it is a bird, because the mark of the beak is so clear. The attacker comes as night or in the early morning, and their leaves the flock alone for days or four

BRIEF STORIES GATHERED FROM ALL CORNERS OF THE WORLD

TWICE FLED DEVIL'S ISLAND TO DIE FOR KILLING OFFICER

France's King of Jail-Breakers Manacled After Many Escapes

AMASSED FORTUNE

Paris.—Armand Jean Spilers, twice broke free from Devil's Island, was sentenced to death at Pau for shooting a policeman. Throughout the trial armed warders kept guard over him. They knew his amazing record.

In 1923, disguised as a warder, he walked out of Lons prison, Belgium. The following year he was sent to Devil's Island. In 1929 he escaped, but was recaptured.

Three years later, with five others, he escaped again, reaching the South American coast in a small boat. With another man he arrived in Venezuela; the others died on the way.

Amazing a fortune in Venezuela he returned to France as M. Dupeny and became a horse owner. He tired of that and was about to retire when he quarrelled with a man. Again he was arrested and his real identity disclosed.

They put him in the Sante prison in Paris. He climbed over the high walls and was free again.

Then a series of burglaries on the Basque coast puzzled the authorities.

A policeman surprised two thieves at St. Jean de Luz. One was Spilers. He shot the policeman. He was imprisoned at Bayonne, but sawed through the bars, clambered along a ledge to a waiting motorcycle and freedom.

Finally he was recaptured. This time he was given no chance. He was kept under a heavy guard

GOOD LOOKS BLAMED FOR VIOLENT DEATH

Milijan, Loved by All Girls, Found Murdered

Belgrade.—Violent death was the end of Milijan Tejitch, of the village of Jabukovka, Jugoslavia, who was so handsome that the local girls would not look at any other man.

One morning he was found murdered by a roadside. It was alleged that a band of men who could not obtain wives owing to the fact that all the girls were in love with Milijan had killed him.

A number of arrests were made and a group of young men sentenced to terms of imprisonment ranging from 10 to 16 years.

Now the verdict has been quashed on technical grounds and a new trial ordered.

GALE HURLS HERDER 1,000 FEET TO DEATH

Storm Blows Shepherd and Sheep Over Cliff

Belgrade.—During a fierce gale at Petrovets-on-Sea, in Jugoslavia, a shepherd and several sheep were swept into the air by the raging wind, carried over the edge of a precipice and crashed to their deaths in the rocky valley 1,000 feet below.

The shepherd, Bozho Jovitch, was tending his flock on a pasture above Petrovetz when the storm broke out. He and some of his sheep were carried far out beyond the precipice before they fell.

Jovitch's body was found 24 hours later in a terribly mutilated con-

FRENCH ARE WORRIED AS BIRTHS FALL OFF

Believed Due to War-Time Young Generations Just Reaching Maturity

Paris.—French population statistics showed a slight improvement in the three months ending September, 1936, with 24,500 births registered. This is an increase of 300 over the same period in 1936. At the same time the number of deaths decreased by 2,000 from the year before. Marriages, on the other hand, continued to fall, showing a decrease of 1,400 compared with last year.

Public leaders continue, however, to be worried about the marriage and birth situation, as the French population has risen only slightly. For the first nine months of 1936, marriages decreased by 3,000 from the figure of last year. Seven thousand fewer children born alive were registered. Deaths, however, for the whole of France diminished by 18,000.

It is explained that the lowered marriage and birth figures are due to the wartime young generations, just reaching maturity, having been low. Another adverse factor is the bad economic situation for the first part of 1936. The slight rise in total population was due solely to the diminution of deaths in the country.

SALVAGE SUNK STEAMER

ROBBERS BEHEADED EARLY EGYPT RULER

Briton Finds Decapitated Body During Sakkara Excavations

Cairo.—The first body of a noble belonging to the time of the first dynasty of Egypt has been discovered by a young British archaeologist, Walter Emery.

Mr. Emery found it while excavating at Sakkara, near the pyramid of Teser. It has been identified as that of Sabu, governor of the province under King Anab, fifth ruler of the first dynasty.

The body, decapitated by ancient robbers, was found lying in the burial pit, in the centre of a tomb which dates back to approximately 3,200 B.C.

Beside the body was a unique vase resembling the steering wheel of a motor car and of about the same size.

The vase was shattered when found, but the fragments retrieved from the sand have been pieced together and sent to the museum at Cairo.

ASK GERMANS WEAR BEARDS AT CARNIVAL

Berlin.—The male population of Kaltenbuhe, South Germany, has been asked by the newspapers of that city to grow beards for the coming carnival season.

The arguments put forward are: "It does not cost anything."

The beard is an outward expression of the owner's willingness to enter the general fun.

The beard will unite the male world during the carnival.

The proposal is bound to be a success, because it is unique and appeals only to the energetic and

GIRL INSANE, KEPT IN COOP FALLS IN LOVE WITH CAPTOR

American Jewess Ill-Treated in Chicken-Pen—Doctor Sent to Jail

LISTENS AT TRIAL

Jerusalem.—Well-known mental specialist Dr. Abraham Litvak was sentenced, after a 14-day trial at Tel-aviv, to a year's imprisonment for detaining a 22-year-old orphaned American Jewess, Haya Rubin, in a chicken coop for eight months.

His 63-year-old father-in-law, Henry Feldman, an Australian Jew, was sentenced to three months in the second division for aiding him.

The prosecution case was that Haya, who is mentally defective, was brought to Palestine by her parents, who died leaving £1,000 ($10,000) for her keep. Dr. Litvak said he could cure her. She disappeared.

Eight months later the police and Mrs. Friedman, a 65-year-old Jewess, who had promised Mrs. Rubin she would care for the girl, found her, half-clad, half-starved, in a tiny chicken-coop on Dr. Litvak's farm in a Jewish village. She had been given scraps of food and a bottle of water every second day, had been beaten and ill-treated and had developed epileptic fits.

She was debarred from giving evidence, but had to sit in court, Mrs. Friedman by her side. She kept her eyes fixed on Dr. Litvak, occasionally gesticulated towards him—she had fallen in love with him during her "imprisonment".

'Her Hand Must Have Slipped' He Remarks

Paris.—Rene Marmel, 28-year-old Paris workman, quarrelled with his wife Juliette, struck her, received a knife wound in the stomach, was taken to hospital and underwent an operation.

BRITISH BISHOPS REGRET NATION'S ARMS PROGRAM

Fear Destruction Of Another War In Europe Never Be Repaired

WONDER AT END OF RACE

LONDON, March 18. (CP).—Britain's huge defence program has evoked expressions of regret from sections of the Anglican heirarchy.

That in time of peace the nation should be called upon to accept an expenditure of £1,500,000,000 ($7,500,000,000) for rearmament forebodes both the present bankruptcy of our political management and the future bankruptcy of our economic order," says the Liverpool Diocesan Review, edited by Rt. Rev. Albert David, Bishop of Liverpool.

Where will this race in armaments end and whither will it lead the nation?" asks Rt. Rev. G. K. A. Bell, Bishop of Chichester. Deploring the government's defence preparations, he urges that the coronation year should see "an immense new effort at reconciliation."

British people, the Bishop of Chichester maintains are not naturally bellicose and he doubts if citizens of any European state care to destroy citizens of other countries, having no personal grudge against them. He refuses to believe the right way to achieve peace is by preparation for war by the different nations. If war were to break out between the great powers of Europe, he declared, the destruction wrought could never be repaired.

Vindictive Treaty

The article in the Liverpool Diocesan Review refers to the "vindictive spirit" of the Treaty of Versailles, which it says would remain an enduring witness of Britain's participating in sowing the harvest of tares Europe was now reaping.

The article continues: "Our subsequent despair in the task of international regeneration and our abandonment of its chief constructive agency for a policy of industrial protection and imperial preference, have forced upon the world a universal policy of self-centred and self-contained national existences.

"We have frankly put present well-being and present comfort first and have left others to stew in their own unpleasant juice. The inevitable nemesis now stares us in the face and we seek to impress our rivals and hearten ourselves by a vast expenditure on preparation for war."

END OF ONTARIO BUDGET DEBATE LIKELY TONIGHT

Tory Move To Probe "Surplus" Bookkeeping Defeated On Split 64 To 14

ROBERTS WALKS OUT

TORONTO, March 18 (CP).—The Ontario legislature, becoming weary of talk, is expected to reach the end of the budget speech debate tonight.

Yesterday William Baird (Cons. Toronto-High Park) refused to go on with his speech after complaining to the speaker the members were not paying any attention.

Last important piece of government legislation was introduced by Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture, in his farm products marketing act. The bill resulted from the privy council decision ruling the federal natural products marketing act ultra-vires insofar as it concerned intra-provincial trade. The Ontario Cheese Patrons' Association suffered from the ruling, being left without power to make assessments for organization, said the minister. The provincial legislation will restore this power.

The budget debate was sidetracked for an hour yesterday as the House opening when Conservatives sought authority for extension of the scope of the inquiry being made by public accounts committee.

The Conservatives sought the right to examine Chester Walters, controller of finances, on the bookkeeping by which the estimated budget surplus for the present fiscal year was arrived at and also on forecasts for the next fiscal year. Premier Hepburn declared "the Tories want to transfer the budget debate to the public accounts committee."

Vote Goes 64 to 14

The premier called on his followers to defeat the motion and this they did by a 64 to 14 vote. Sam Lawrence (C.C.F., Hamilton, East) voted with the government after complaining about the way business is speeded up as the session nears its end.

Dr. A. Duncan Roberts, Sault Ste. Marie member, recently placed on the opposition side of the House by Premier Hepburn, walked out when roll-call division was forced.

Ontario stands in danger of depletion of farm lands of topsoil unless more rigorous reforestation policy is adopted, Angus Dickson (Lib., Perth) warned the House. Inspiration and encouragement for local councils to preserve and restore woodlots and swamps should come from the provincial government. Action was needed now to control the flood menace in many areas.

Mr. Dickson estimated Hepburn government policies were saving the county of Perth, city of Stratford and town of St. Marys more than $180,000 a year. He cited the tax-rate subsidy, assumption of old age pensions and mothers' allowances costs by the province, relief from highway costs and other sections as putting money in the pockets of the municipal taxpayers.

DETROIT STORE STRIKE, MISTAKE

Clerks Go Back To Work When Union Finds Negotiations Advancing

DETROIT, March 18 (AP). — Bleepy-eyed clerks who staged a 10-hour sit-down strike in a loop department store, focal point for a hasty mobilization of 300 policemen, protested it was "all a mistake" today as they prepared to return to work.

The first of the strike group, a majority of whom were young women, abandoned their sit-down siege of the Frank & Seder Co. store early today. Others followed them as rapidly as an assistant corporation counsel could take their statements.

Police Superintendent Fred W. Frehm explained that police wanted to know whether organizers had seized the store in a "raid," and said warrants would be requested if the indications were that they had taken possession of the property illegally. Statements also were expected to disclose whether coercion had been employed to induce workers to join the strike.

Frank X. Martel, head of the Detroit and Wayne County Federation of Labor, announced that the strike was due to a "misunderstanding" of conditions within the store. The agreement provided for continuation of wage and hour negotiations which Martel said were in progress when the sit-down strike was called. The management agreed there would be no discrimination against strikers when work resumed.

"Don't let Constipation get you down"

"WATCH YOUR STEP" THE BOSS TOLD ME

● Constipation dulls working hours, undermines energy and ambition. You feel tired all the time.

The brainiest man in the world just can't succeed if poisons due to accumulated waste in his system slowly and steadily dull his brain, sap his energy, and pull him down below par physically.

Doctors will tell you that common constipation is due largely to lack of "bulk" in your diet. Kellogg developed All-Bran to put that necessary fibre back into your diet.

Tests prove that All-Bran absorbs at least twice its weight in water, supplies the soft bulk necessary, and acts like a sponge in gently cleansing out the system. It also supplies vitamin B to tone up the intestines, as well as iron for the blood.

It's such a simple and easy method to follow too. Just eat two tablespoonfuls of All-Bran daily—either as a cereal with milk or cream—in tasty muffins—or sprinkled on some other cereal.

All-Bran is sold by all grocers. Made and guaranteed by Kellogg in London.

OLDTIME PUCKISTS PLAY TO 7-7 TIE

Unique Game Is Played At Keene By Two Teams Of Oldtimers

(Examiner Correspondence.)

KEENE, March 18.—Two hockey teams made up of stars of bygone days went at it hammer and tongs here Tuesday night, and the result was a speedy, thrilling battle that ended in a 7-all tie.

Both teams started off at a fast clip and kept it up for nearly two minutes. Roach, Robertson and Anderson especially turned it on, followed closely by Three-Star Foley, who played sensationally throughout. The game soon developed into a close-checking duel with honors even. Whalen, in goal for the Easterners, had many close shaves. Foley replaced Renwick in goal in the third, and saved the game, robbing Anderson when the latter was in on top of him.

The goal-getters are unknown, every goal being a result of a five-man passing attack, done so swiftly, it was impossible to see who scored. Another game is to be played in a few days between these two teams if Conny Smythe has not grabbed off most of them in the meantime. Teams:

East.—Goal, F. Whalen; defence, Harold Weir and Mike McCarthy; centre, Howard Anderson; wings, Jack Rose and Bill Rose.

West.—Goal, Mac Renwick; defence, Bob Keitel, Harold Roach; centre, Charlie Nelson; wings, Max Robertson, Frank Brown, Lea Foley and Henry Weir.

In the second period, M. Crowe and C. Earnshaw scored for the Fliers to make it 5 to 1. A few seconds later Crowe tallied again on a pass from Earnshaw to end the scoring at 6 to 1.

Wednesday, being St. Patrick's Day, Mr. Chaplin appeared on the ice in a green sweater and socks. The line-ups:

Fliers.—Goal, K. Graham; defence, J. Kendall and C. Earnshaw; centre, C. Dunford; wings, Mr. Chaplin and B. Arthurs. Alternates: B. Brown, M. Crowe, R. Hopkins.

Digging Up the Local Dirt With the Odd Chuckle or Two

By CEC. PERDUE

WAY BACK in the fall of '36, a grid squad known as the Orioles represented Peterborough quite well in a strong football group. And now the players cash in to the extent of a banquet and windbreakers, both being given tonight at 6.30 in the Empress Hotel by the rugby club. A raffle was run off by the players and officers to raise the do-re-mi for these windbreakers. No doubt most of the huskies will be on deck to do or die for dear old chicken ala king! We trust they confine their blocking, fumbles and interference to the gridiron and stick to passing and tackling at the dinner table. The affair is a nice gesture to a worthy gang.

AT THE Y.W.C.A. tomorrow e'en, these girls' basketball games are listed: "Y" Quakers vs. Westclox Juniors at 7.45. Marconi Radio vs. C.G.E. Seniors at 8.15, and C.G.E. Juniors vs. St. John's at 8.80 by your Bulova. These are important scraps and should be worth seeing if you like the cage sport. A couple of Senior City League men's hoop tilts will be run off on Saturday night at the Y.M.C.A. In Toronto tomorrow, P.C.I. junior boys go into the Ontario interscholastic playdowns and, if they win over Meaford, will hit the finals Saturday.

So our buckskin contest in Peterborough will not be listed before '38—if at all.

BELLEVILLE SCRIBE writes: "We wonder who the ball player in Napanee is who is being sought by Joe Daley. There's an unwritten law in the O.O.B.L. relative to such approaches, Joe." If there is an unwritten law, we'd suggest they put it in writing as no one seems to pay much attention to it. Oshawa took Foley from here, Napanee took a couple from Belleville, Kingston was after a couple, ditto the Petes, and only Belleville was not interested—on account of they won't have a team. However, in the past, ye Quinte crew put the clutch on several, Ernie Holmes and Speedy St. Louis, to mention but a couple.

WITH OSHAWA definitely picked as the spot for the final Barrie-Colts' playoff game Friday night, the locals are getting set for the battle of their lives. It is a large ice surface—the largest in Ontario—and ye Colts had better be going right as Barrie will battle hard all the way. If necessary, 34 minutes of overtime will be played to settle the issue, and the winner goes into the round-robin junior "B" finals with Northern Vocationals of Toronto, Niagara Falls and Guelph—who rubbed out St. Mary's last night with an 11-1 rubber. Our gang is at full strength, in the best of health and rarin' to get another crack at their Barrie rivals. The other squad is also at full strength and it should be a memorable melee.

THE C.N.R. here is running a special train and a record crowd is expected to make the jaunt. Friday is a first-rate night for such a trip and fans will be home at a reasonable hour. The train leaves at 6.30 and gets in to Oshawa at 8.00, leaving there on the return trek at 11.30 and arriving in Peterborough about 1.00. Return fare for adults is $1.25 and for kids 75c. You can get your ducats at either the C.N. freight or ticket office or at the station Friday evening. Tickets for the game may be reserved by phoning the Brock St. rink at 3505 up until three tomorrow afternoon, prices being 75c for reserved seats and 50c for rush. Everyone and his brother seems to be figuring on taking in this contest. A special will be run from Barrie, also, and no doubt plenty of shekels will be wagered on the affair.

IF ANYONE is interested in our opinion, we'd pick the young Petes to win the round over the Barrie boys. Not if the Colts play screwy hockey, but if they go in there and give a good display. These in-and-out teams are very wearing on the nerves, going like a million bucks one night and like 28 cents the next. If they just shoot the works with their ordinary brand of play, they should knock over Barrie even on a large ice surface. But if they look as punk as they did in the second frame in Barrie, it'll be curtains for the Colts. There is some talk of odds on the Bees but we can't locate any—and we'll go for a fin or so at even dough on the locals to slap their opponents out of competition for the year on Friday.

OUR CONGRATS to the Lakefield puckisters for winning the Senior City Hockey League title last night. And our sympathy to the Westclox, their long layoff not doing 'em a bit of good. However, the Northerners ruled the win on their fine showing in recent weeks. The team won the finals in two straight with a classy performance. They play nice hockey and lot their rivals do any roughing up there might be—though the Clockmakers play clean hockey, too. Last night's fray was a good one before over 400 fans, and this winds up a first-rate Blood and Thunder Loop for the year. The victors get the De-Laval Trophy but will not bother going into O.H.A. intermediate "B" playdowns at this late date. Loop officers deserve an orchid for their work in connection with this very entertaining circuit all winter.

Calgary Grills Girls Hockey Team Offered Series With Preston Girls

CALGARY, March 18 (CP). — Tommy Kolt, manager of the Calgary Grills girls' hockey team, took another look at his correspondence today and found he had no direct offer from Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens for the staging of a Canadian women's hockey championship series there.

But he had a letter from a Mr. Norris, an official of Preston Rivulettes, Ontario champions, offering the Western Canadian champions a $1,400 guarantee, mentioning Toronto as the scene for the championship series and stating dates could easily be arranged. The offer was made with the provision Preston wins in the east.

Kolt received a telegram Tuesday from Myrtle A. Cook McGowan, president of the Dominion Women's Amateur Hockey Association, asking that the Alberta branch pay its fees to the Dominion Association and inquiring if the Grills intended to challenge for the Canadian title. He fears that if the Grills must pay the fees they will be unable to make the trip east.

Kolt was unsuccessful last night in his efforts to reach Mrs. McGowan by long distance telephone. He wanted to find out what her organization does and what happens to the fees it asks for.

SHAMROCKS SENT TO QUINTUPLETS

Pot Travels All The Way From County Down From An Admirer

CALLANDER, Ont., March 18.—(CP)—A pot of shamrocks—real Irish ones fresh from County Down—drew the dark-brown eyes of the Dionne quintuplets to a table in their nursery when they arose on St. Patrick's Day.

Yvonne ran to them excitedly and her four sisters joined her in admiration of the tiny shamrocks that were sent from Ireland to the nursery of the famous French-Canadian babies in Northern Ontario.

After their nurses had discouraged Annette and Marie from climbing on the table for a closer view and moved the shamrocks away from the inquisitive fingers of Cecile and Emilie, each was given a St. Patrick's Day gift.

There were five religious medals of St. Patrick, each with a green ribbon long enough to go over the black curls of the quints and hang over their dresses.

Both shamrocks and medals were sent to the quints by Bright McGrath who lives in Downpatrick, the county town of the county of Down in Ulster. She didn't say in her note whether they were picked from the ruins of Saul Abbey, near Downpatrick, said to have been founded by the good Saint himself. But she did assure Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe they were real Irish shamrocks.

Laguardia's Attack Worries Ferguson

TORONTO, March 18—(CP). — Every possibility exsted for serious consequences developing from the attack on Chancellor Hitler by Mayor Fiorello Laguardia of New York, Hon. G. Howard Ferguson declared in his address here last night before the Mutual Fire Underwriters' Association. He warned Canada would become a second Belgium in the event of an attack by United States by Germany or Japan.

The former Canadian High Commissioner to London said Japan had been waiting for an opportunity to attack the United States for years.

"Where would they land their forces?" he asked. "In New York Harbor, in San Francisco's Golden Gate or in Canada?"

"I believe any attack on the United States would see Canada the military base for operations of both warring factions," he added. Canada should assume a greater share of Empire defence, Mr. Ferguson also he also won selection as a running mate for Eddie Shore. From goal out, without an exception, the squad packs experience and scoring power. The front line shown at top, from left to right, has Larry Aurie (Detroit Red Wings) at right wing; Marty Barry, also of the Wings, at centre, and Harvey 'Busher' Jackson, Toronto Maple Leaf ace, on left wing. Red Wings send Goalie Norm Smith (lower left) to guard the nets and place big hard-rushing 'Ebbie' Goodfellow (lower centre) at one defence post. Siebert (lower right) of the Flying Frenchmen gets the other defence post.

National Hockey League All-Star Squad Features Red Wings

The National Hockey League's All-Star team for 1937, compiled by The Canadian Press from a poll of sport writers in N.H.L. cities, carries with it to the mythical 'top' of hockey's ladder a distinctly Detroit hue. Of the six players and coach who go to make up the first string selections, four players wear Red Wing uniforms; and smiling Jack Adams, coach of the Stanley Cup holders, gets the call as chief strategist. Albert 'Babe' Siebert, husky Montreal Canadien defenceman, wins selection to the mythical squad for the second straight year. Last year, playing for Boston Bruins,

Half-Million People To See 99th Running Grand National

Heavy Going For Big Race Is Assured On Account Of Rains

HARD ON GOLDEN MILLER

By Gayle Talbot

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

LIVERPOOL, March 18.—(AP)—A half-million people scrambled to Liverpool today for the opening of the Aintree meeting and the 99th anniversary of the Grand National tomorrow.

Airplanes with two-way radio communication flew overhead directing traffic while mounted policemen and motor patrols directed an endless stream of people toward the races.

King George and Queen Elizabeth, to avoid the crush, arrived early at a little suburban station on their way to Knowsley Hall, the Lancashire home of the Earl of Derby. They will sit in Lord Derby's private stand, where King George V saw the last Royal Grand National 10 years ago.

Heavy rains which swamped all England within the last few days spent much of the violence in this vicinity, assuring heavy going for the big race.

Carries 173 Pounds.

Just what effect the excess moisture would have on the steeplechase was obscure except that experts agreed it would be much help to the heavy-laden favorite, Golden Miller. Carrying 175 pounds over 4½ miles of slippery takeoffs and landings appeared a whole lot to ask of any horse. Chances of some lighter weighted outsider pulling out a victory therefore was considered correspondingly brighter.

Tips on "sure things" filled the air as the vanguard of the world's steeplechasing addicts crowded Liverpool hotels and pubs. Names most frequently heard—barring of course the "Miller"—were Don Bradman, Ego, Delaunais and Pucksbelle.

Gets Strong Support.

Ego, a good second to Reynoldstown last year, was assured of strong support, while the chances of Delanrige, which finished second to Golden Miller in 1934, and one of the surest-footed steeds in the field of 33, improved hourly as the prospect of a muddy track became almost a certainty.

The King and Queen, attending the Grand National for the first time in years, are due to arrive late today. They will be the guests of the Earl of Derby at his nearby estate before and after the big race. The Duke and Duchess of Norfolk also are included among Lord Derby's guests.

REQUESTS TURNED DOWN

GUELPH.—A site has been selected near Fergus by the Ontario Plowmen's Association for its annual plowing match. Two requests from Guelph offering cash considerations if the matches were held near the city were turned down.

Age Questioned

CARMEN KEON.

Eligibility of Carmen Keon, brilliant forward with Peninsula Lumbo Lumber Kings now engaged in junior hockey playoffs in the Ottawa district, has been questioned by the Perth Hockey club who were eliminated by Pembroke in the junior playdowns. Perth officials assert that Keon is too old to play as a junior. Playoffs are temporarily halted while the tangle is cleared up.

BROKE UP STRIKE

Hired Man Stages Sit-Down Strike So Farmer Releases the Bull

OWOSSO, Mich. March 18—(CP). —When his hired man failed to return from chore duties, a Shiawassee County farmer found him staging a "sit-down" strike to collect 25 cents back pay. Arguments failed, so the farmer walked to a stall and released a bull. The hired man "scrammed." The strike was over.

Remember When—

Boston Bruins finished the greatest season of league hockey in modern times seven years ago tonight. Bruins won 38 games out of 44 that season, losing five and tying one. They beat New York Rangers in their final game. Cooney Weiland, their star centre, set an all-time scoring record of 43 goals and 30 assists. Boston won the National League title but bowed to Montreal Canadiens in the Stanley Cup series.

CURLING

By HERB MARTIN

That March 17 clearly belongs to the Irish was demonstrated here Wednesday night when they cooperatively pulling the Scotch by the score of 69-55.

Just how such a combination worked so peacefully together is mighty hard to figure out.

Just imagine Fred Green playing for the Scotch—Bob Hendry for the Irish and how in thunder, C. Giroux, G. Sorenson and S. Valentine qualified at all is beyond us.

While we have no official notice that a protest is being entered, still we hear rumors that the committee on credentials is looking a meeting in the near future.

A chap was sitting in No. 8, prior to the games, and someone asked him who he was playing with, the Irish or Scotch? He replied, "Neither, I pick my company."

It happened the other night just before the commencement of a final game. One of the boys, who likes to get a ride out of anyone, asks one of the rival skips just what system he was going to adopt tonight. Would it be Western? The skip replied, without cracking a smile—"No, north and south."

NELSON OUSTED IN SENIOR RACE BY EDMONTON 5-4

Fort William Ties Round With Winnipeg—St. Jerome To Meet Quebec Aces

RENFREW PUT OUT

TORONTO, March 18 — (C.P.) — British Columbia, producer of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association's 1935-36 Senior champions, today was the first zone to count its representatives among the current season's also-rans. Nelson Maple Leafs, successors to Kimberley Dynamiters in the Coast province, were knocked from playdowns last night by Edmonton Dominions.

The Kimberley team that won the Allan Cup last year is on an extended European tour. In its place, the West Kootenay League put Nelson and held high hopes as the club won the provincial title.

Leafs went down fighting in their first interprovincial series. The opener in Nelson went 60 minutes to a draw, and the second and third battles at Edmonton were close as the can but could score only twice.

The result put Edmonton in Western semi-finals with North Battleford Beavers, who conquered Regina Aces on the way to the Saskatchewan title. The series will open Saturday in Calgary, where Allan Cup finals will be played next month.

Packers, Wanderers Tie

Fort William Wanderers, Thunder Bay titlists, tied the other Western semi-final round with Winnipeg Packers. Manitoba's delegates by winning 5-1 last night to offset Packers' 8-6 victory Monday. The third and deciding contest will be played at Fort William Friday. Wanderers were led to last night's win by Stan Robertson, who scored twice.

St. Jerome qualified to meet Quebec Aces in cup playdowns last night by winning the Quebec Intermediate title over Victoriaville. St. Jerome lost the second game 1-0 but took the total-goals round 6-1.

St. Jerome and Aces are two of eight Eastern teams still in the running. Another will pass out tonight when Port Colborne Sailors are at home to Sudbury Tigers in the second meeting of their total-goals round. The opener in Sudbury ended in a 1-1 tie.

Only other game along the playdown trail scheduled for to-night is a Junior affair in which Portage La Prairie and Winnipeg Monarchs will clash. Monarchs evened the round last night with a 3-2 victory and to-night's result means sudden-death for the loser. The winning team will play St. Boniface in Manitoba finals.

Far and away the class of their section, Amherst St. Pats won the Maritime Junior championship for the second successive year when they beat Charlottetown Rangers 8-3, taking the finals 18-7. Amherst made an impressive showing against Pembroke Little Lumber Kings in 1936 and were being boomed for the Memorial Cup to-day by followers.

Perth defeated Renfrew 4-2 to capture the Ottawa District title with a 9-4 margin on the round. Perth meets Ottawa Rideaus for the Ottawa and District championship in a total-goals series that opens at Perth Friday. The winning team will be sent again Amherst.

Still A Hold Out

LOU GEHRIG

Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, is still having his still treating their contracts back unsigned. Lou wants a contract for $40,000 for two years but having trouble with holdouts. The "Iron Man" of baseball, Lou Gehrig, and Charlie "Red" Ruffing are still holding out for one year is final. Ruffing is holding out for $16,000 but the club are only willing to pay $15,000 for his pitching arm. Joe DiMaggio, star rookie last year, was a stubborn holdout this season but finally signed for $15,000 which is $2,500 less than he thought his services were worth.

RAMBLERS SPILL EAGLES BY 4 TO 2

Youngsters Show No Let-Up With Chances In Big Time At Stake

TORONTO, March 18 (CP) — There will be no coasting for Philadelphia Ramblers even though they have clinched the International-American Hockey League's eastern section title. Several youngsters on the team have dreams of major league tryouts next fall and are not taking any chances.

Considered one of the strongest minor league clubs ever assembled, Ramblers are favorites to take the title. Farm-hands of New York Rangers, some of the players have been given short terms in the National League this season and with several veterans expected to step aside shortly, their turns as regulars are in the offing.

They played as though the championship was at stake before a home crowd last night to split New Haven Eagles 4-2. Clint Smith and Bryan Hextall, forwards rated good chances of stepping up to the big-time with Rangers, both figured prominently, adding two scoring points each.

The most exciting incident in the night's other tussle was a fight between Pittsburgh's Johnny Sherf and Paul Raymond of Springfield Indians. There was no decision given in the battle but Indians won the game 1-0. Alex Smith, veteran defenceman, fired the lone goal in the first period.

McGill Grads Win Basketball Title

MONTREAL, March 18—(CP). — McGill Grads won the Montreal Senior basketball championship and advanced into Dominion playoffs last night by defeating the Young Men's Hebrew Association, 34-31.

A swift last-half rally, featured by the point scoring of Johnny Ferraro and Oke Olsen, the footballers, enabled Grads to come from behind a 21-27 first-half deficit. Ferraro scored 14 points and Olsen 10.

Grads will meet the Ottawa champions at Ottawa, March 27, in the first of a home-and-home series in the first stage of the Dominion playdowns.

WALES WINS

WREXHAM — Wales rapped out its third consecutive win in the 1936-37 tournament today to clinch the honors for the seventh time in the international football championship. The Welshmen won 4-1 over Ireland after leading 2-0 at half-time.

Lakefield Wins Title In Senior City Loop With a 4-3 Decision

Northerners Take Second Straight By Narrow Margin In Red-Hot Tussle To Cop Honors In Blood And Thunder Loop Play-off Series

BEFORE BIG CROWD

Lakefield won the championship of the Peterborough Senior City Hockey League last night at the Brock by trimming the Westclox 4-3 in a hectic struggle to win the series in two straight games. The winners unleashed a savage third period attack which netted them two goals and saw them wipe out a one-goal deficit and go on to win the game. The Westclox had the better of the play for the first two periods but they wilted in the third stanza and faded before the fury of the Lakefield offense.

A large crowd of spectators witnessed the fracas which saw the Clock Men grab off a 2-1 lead in the first period and check their opponents to a standstill. At the end of the second period the score was 3-2 for the Alarm Men but in the final frame Lakefield netted two markers without a reply from the Westclox and managed to hang onto their lead till the final whistle.

The game opened at a fast clip with Westclox pressing the play and checking Lakefield right into the ground. Blewett, in particular took a rough ride. The latter team however had several scoring chances but erratic shooting cost them at least a couple of goals. The Big Beam opened the scoring shortly after the start of the canto when Field fired a long shot which trickled through Loyst's pads. Williams made it two nothing soon after when he banged a hot one into the net. Play slowed down a bit till after the middle of the period when Blewett cut the Westclox lead in half by notching his first goal of the night unassisted.

The second frame opened at a fast clip and hardly had the fans got settled in their seats when Lakefield had tallied. Blewett got credit for the goal when he lifted a long shot which Tharby caught and in trying to clear threw the puck into his own net. This speeded things up and play became quite rough at this stage. Lakefield were shorthanded when Chittick was penalized for tripping and immediately the Westclox staged a ganging attack. Chittick was back before any damage was done and then ganged when Field received a penalty, P. Calladine was right through a couple of times and had the goal keeper at his mercy only to shoot wide. Finally he was rewarded when he banged a shot from close-in.

In the third period Lakefield really went to town. Blewett notched his third goal of the night soon after the start of the final twenty minutes. This tied the score at three-all. Then about the middle of the period the visitors netted the winning goal. Chappell banged it home on a pass from Death. Westclox then put on a ganging attack for the remainder of the affair and although they came close on many occasions the bell rang before they could bulge the twine.

The teams:

Westclox—Goal, Tharby; defence, White and T. Parsons; centre, Field; wings, Williams and Denison; subs, P. Calladine, O'Leary, F. Parsons, Thirnbeck, Padgett.

Lakefield—Goal, Loyst; defence, Charlton and Sabatino; centre, Chittick; wings, Blewett and Jewell; subs, Chappell, Macin, Pearson, Death, Lennox.

Referee—Herb Payne.

TORONTO LEAFS PLAYING RANGERS

Game Will Decide Whether First In Playoffs Be In Queen City Or New York

TORONTO, March 18 (CP) — There are two games in the National Hockey League tonight and just one thing at stake—where Toronto Maple Leafs and New York Rangers will start their third-place Stanley Cup playoff series.

The Leafs meet Canadiens in Montreal and if they win will be able to dictate that the first game be staged in New York and the second and, if necessary, third in Toronto. The matter is decided by the team having the greater number of points.

For Canadiens the game means nothing. They have won the Canadian section and it is doubtful if they will take many chances tonight. The contest will give Montreal fans the opportunity of congratulating Babe Siebert on making the Canadian Press all-star team again and adding a cheer for Toronto's Harvey Jackson, another member.

Anything may happen in New York when Chicago Black Hawks and Americans meet. The boys will be out to fatten their scoring totals and it promises a wide open game.

By Elmer Dolmage
(Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, March 18.—(CP)—Laughing Jack Adams, stout maestro from Nepanee, Ont., gathered around him today the driving forces of his Detroit Red Wings to dominate the seventh annual Canadian Press all-star teams of the National Hockey League. Hockey writers in N.H.L. cities made the selections.

Four members of the 1936 world champions, with Adams himself in the driver's seat that belonged for five years to New York's Lester Patrick, were placed on the first team. For each of them the taste of all-stardom was new.

Following are the Canadian Press teams:

First Team — Goal, Smith (Detroit); R. defence, Goodfellow (Detroit); L. defence, Siebert (Canadiens); Centre, Barry (Detroit); R. wing, Aurie (Detroit); L. wing, Jackson (Toronto); Coach, Adams (Detroit).

Only Siebert, brawny one-time left winger who has come a long way up since he started to slip as a forward, was returned from the 1936 all-team. Traded to Montreal Canadiens by Boston, the Babe has become the mainspring of the French club which will face Detroit in the N.H.L. championship series.

Only Siebert Survives.

A year ago the all-star defence was Siebert and Eddie Shore, and Tiny Thompson, goal—an all-Boston barricade. Only Siebert survived the warfare of another season with top ranking. Thompson ran third in the voting to Normie Smith of Detroit, sensational in his sophomore year and Wilf Cude of Canadiens.

Ebbie Goodfellow, around whom Adams constructed his Red Wing machine, replaced the ailing Shore at right defence. Marty Barry went to centre, vacated by Hooley Smith, now a defenceman at Boston. Larry Aurie took over right wing which Toronto's Charlie Conacher held last year. An injured wrist kept Conacher on the bench until recently.

Back in stride after a deplorable 1935-36 season, Harvey Jackson won the left wing post and a $1,000 bonus offered by Manager Conny Smythe for gaining first-team recognition. The flying Busher, again among the league's top scorers, forced Sweeney Schriner of New York Americans back on the second team. The newspaper critics were almost unanimous in picking Siebert, Barry and Aurie. They were not as well agreed upon a right defenceman, dividing the ballots between Goodfellow and Earl Seibert of Chicago Black Hawks. The big Detroit blond, once as good a centre as he now is defence player, won decisively, however.

At left defence on the second team was Lionel Conacher, 38-year-old Big Train of Montreal Maroons. Nearing the end of his glamorous competitive career, Conacher was adjudged a better hockey player this season than a half-dozen younger and faster stars. A few months ago he talked of retiring. But first he hopes to lead Maroons to a Stanley Cup triumph.

The Jackson-Schriner contest for left wing was one-sided, the Toronto player winning handily, but Schriner's right to the second-team berth was questioned by writers who voted for Herbie Lewis of Detroit or Aurel Joliat of Canadiens. Schriner's winning margin wasn't big.

Nor did Cecil Dillon of New York Rangers retain his second-team post at right wing without opposition. Jimmy Ward of Maroons, Dit Clapper of Boston and Johnny Gagnon of Canadiens ran close behind the backhand artist from Thornbury, Ont. Dillon was named on the second team last year.

Veteran Art Chapman of Americans had no serious rival for the alternate centre berth, though Toronto's great rookie, Sylvanus Apps, ran a good third behind Barry and Chapman. Bill Thoms of Toronto, who beat out Barry for the second team last year, was credited with only one vote.

Defective troubles centred on goal and coach. It was unanimous for Tiny Thompson in 1936 when the Boston goalie had his best season and when blond Normie Smith, finishing his first season with the Red Wings, was regarded as the one possible weak link in Detroit's armour. That was a year ago.

Tiny Thompson Smith was a hero of the playoffs when Red Wings won the N.H.L. title with three straight wins over Maroons—two of them by shutouts—and then defeated Toronto three times in four starts for the Stanley Cup. He picked up last fall where he left off.

Today he is rated as No. 1 goalie in the league, by a narrow margin over the tough Cude of Canadiens and the black-haired Thompson of Boston.

Adams' Record Goes Way Back.

Of several fine team-building performances this season, writers picked that of Adams as the best—and lucky Jack didn't do it all in a year. He spent several years gathering the stars who now make Red Wings the outstanding team in hockey, favorites in many quarters to repeat their double playoff victory of 1936.

He bought Herc Kilrea from Toronto, Scotty Bowman and Syd Howe from the old St. Louis club—three were deals of two years ago. He promoted Smith from Detroit's farm club, then Detroit Olympics of the International League. From the same source he drew Wally Kilrea, Gordon Pettinger and others.

And he threw these players in with his trio of established stars, Aurie, Lewis and Goodfellow. He got Barry from Boston in a trade for Cooney Weiland—one of the best deals Adams ever made. So strong was the Detroit team this year that an early-season injury to Captain Doug. Young, one of the best defencemen in the sport, made no difference.

Now Aurie is through, injured so that he can't work in the playoffs. How well Adams has built will get its greatest test soon.

Cecil Hart, leader of Canadiens in the great days of Morenz and Joliat, came back to score another great success with the Habitants and earn second-team recognition. Away from the N.H.L. three years, he put Canadiens at the top of the Canadian section at the start and kept it there. The death of Morenz was a blow to Hart's team, but the Canucks remain a threat.
